A lot of the boys are throwing loving looks at a winter vacation. And why not? They've got the ROCKNE ball rolling into week No. 3 and the bank accounts rolling up. Then comes November. Which is when Warners hold that Rockne line with 5 sock-bracket releases in a row! The Studio lads and lassies (bless 'em) are in the groove and our schedule is heavy with honeys. All these come galloping thru in November – check 'em and cheer 'em:

✓ BETTE DAVIS in Somerset Maugham's THE LETTER. Herbert Marshall, Jas. Stephenson. A Wm. Wyler Prod'n.

✓ TUGBOAT ANNIE SAILS AGAIN with her 10-year Satevepost following; and after a 2-month ad drive in 15 magazines including 2 ads in the Post.

✓ LADY WITH RED HAIR. From the blazing memoirs of Mrs. Leslie Carter. Miriam Hopkins, Claude Rains.

✓ SOUTH OF SUEZ. The big story of the world's hot-spot. George Brent, Brenda Marshall, George Tobias.

✓ EAST OF THE RIVER. New York's 'other side of the tracks.' John Garfield, Brenda Marshall, Marjorie Rambeau.

That's the story; 5 big ones, one company, one month! (To be followed pronto by Flynn in SANTA FE TRAIL; the Four Daughters as FOUR MOTHERS; Ida Lupino and Bogart in the best-seller HIGH SIERRA). So reach for your booking book and call WARNERS. Then have yourself a time!

ACTOR POLITICS

THE publicly partisan and vociferating actor is a box-office menace made apparent incidentally to the current especially embittered national campaign.

The actor who uses the pedestal of his screen fame for the purposes of political pontification throws some part of that fame and his career into an issue irrelevant to the theatre that made him, and inescapably offends some proportion of the audience.

Not many, happily, have so concerned themselves—the few who have have been and are most conspicuous.

The names of these players whose political expressions invade their dramatic position in the minds of the audiences are to be found in the theatre mails, and the lobby comment of patrons. For the one who writes or speaks there are the many less militant, or less articulate, who go on their way, displeased, at no profit to the box office and screen. And those names are to be found again in the exhibitor expressions that come to Motion Picture Herald.

A scanning of the array of such politically aggressive actors discovers none with any more authority, information or equipment of opinion than any casual man-in-the-street. The box office has given them a vote for entertainment, not for statecraft, not for political economy.

This expression is in cognizance of certain observations recently made on a public platform by Mr. Robert Montgomery, and those that have been appearing in the public prints from several others.

There is a widely accepted fallacy that "every man is entitled to his own opinion". An honest man will hold no opinion until he has information, but few are that honest.

That, however, does not gainsay the right of an actor to an opinion on any issue he is minded to consider—but the exhibitor has a right to ask the actor to keep that opinion sufficiently to himself, as a personal matter, that it shall not interfere with the customers' quest for entertainment.

MR. MONTGOMERY'S latest platform expression, made last week at a session of the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum, in which he disapproved of the leadership of the motion picture industry, is drawing sharp and emphatic response from several directions, as the news pages of this issue attest. Especially to be noted is an expression in behalf of the picture business, and in discussion of Mr. Montgomery, from the New York Journal-American, and obviously from the hand of Mr. William Randolph Hearst. In that will be found, also something of an evaluation of the place of the actor, before the public.

AT that same forum Mr. Robert E. Sherwood, author and playwright, rose to remark, "Our theatre is free, but we shouldn't be too sublimely confident that it is going to remain free. . . . We all know the movies are generally reluctant to express a vigorous opinion. They come out boldly for love, but they avoid taking a stand on any other current problems. There is certainly no misuse of the privilege of freedom of speech in Hollywood. In fact, the Bill of Rights has no standing whatever in the Will H. Hays Code. . . ."

Now this tall and able Mr. Sherwood is not dumb, as the world knows—but he can be and is, especially obtuse.

ONCE again, we must, with a certain impatience, observe to Mr. Sherwood and all his ilk that his objection to the Production Code as an invasion of rights is incompetent, irrelevant and immaterial.

The Code is an instrument adopted by the principal producers of motion pictures to assist in the solving of a number of problems in the field of customer relations. It is as definitely integrated with the operation of making pictures as Developer No. 16 is with darkroom practise. The producing corporations have these several years elected to conduct certain of their creative activities under the terms and guidance of this Code. They would appear to be as well within their rights in that procedure as they would be in the election to operate under regulations, rules, formulae in any other department.

Rights pertaining to motion picture production are those of the producers. The product is their merchandise. Actors, playwrights, carpenters, grips and gaffers are all part of the machinery. If the producers of pictures have a Code that is their business, also their right under the Bill of Rights, too.

Mr. Sherwood has the right both to dislike it, and to express his dislike, but his argument as to its status, in a democracy, is not well founded.

Meanwhile, our experience being what it is, one wonders if Mr. Sherwood has read the Code and if he can indicate where it hampers him? Most commonly it found that those who cry out about the Code are most unfamiliar with it—often have never seen it.

"MILLER SQUARE"

SIGNIFICANT exemplification of success with which the motion picture exhibitor can integrate himself with leadership in his community and make of his theatre an institution as well as a show house is afforded in the case of Mr. Frank J. Miller, Sr., of Augusta, down in Georgia.

The other day the city council of Augusta assembled in special session and passed an ordinance christening a block in Broad Street, site of the new Miller theatre, as "Miller Square".

That ordinance took cognizance of years of service to the public, including "numbers of shows that would not have been furnished to our people had it not been for the said Frank J. Miller", and remarked that the new theatre is "a monument to good business and community loyalty. . . . " Meanwhile, the Augusta Chronicle observes that the new theatre has done things for all that part of the street.

This week of wars, elections and lawsuits, it is pleasant to hear about something that seems to be all right.

This Week in the News

On the Trust Suit Front

THE SIGNATURES of the United States Government attorneys, for the plaintiff, and those for the "Big Five," defendants, had hardly dried, Monday, on the documents of consent settlement of the "key" New York anti-trust action (see page 13), when word came from Philadelphia that there is little likelihood that any of the pending independent exhibitor actions in that city against Warners and the majors, will ever reach trial—expected outside-of-court settlements disposing thereof.

Negotiations have already started on two of the remaining three actions, with disposition expected to come first in the Admiral Theatre suit for $225,000 damages. That suit was filed January 3, 1940, by Rubin Shapiro and Harub Amusement Company, operators of the Admiral, and charged the defendants with engaging in "monopolistic practices" in cutting off the theatres' product when it tried to cut the price of admission to compete with circuit theatres in its vicinity.

Morris Wolf, counsel for Warner Theatres, indicated this week that the Admiral suit will be settled out of court. The case is listed for preliminary hearing in United States District Court in Philadelphia on November 7th, but a postponement will undoubtedly be sought. Negotiations have already begun with Irvin A. Winegrad, Admiral theatre attorney, and final action awaits the return of Ted Schlanger, Warner zone chief in Philadelphia, who at the moment is hospitalized.

Negotiations were also started this week in the Carman Theatre action, filed several years ago. However, at this stage, Mr. Wolf said he was not sure that the negotiations will be completed. The house at present is in receivership and neither Warners nor the Carman have as yet bought this season's product from any companies that would figure in a settlement. Any settlement would be contingent upon the Carman getting additional product from the major distributors, which was the basis of the suit, and it is understood that the Carman seeks all of Paramount product as the price for settlement.

The only remaining suit is that filed last November by Henry Friedman, operator of the suburban Lansdown Theatre, who asked $150,000 triple damages in a situation similar to the Admiral case. However, no attempt has been made as yet to bring either side together, nor has any date been listed for a court hearing.

Last month, the case of David Milgram, head of Affiliated Theatres, an independent chain of 14 theatres, was settled out of court. Mr. Milgram had sought a court test on whether the first house in a particular zone should be given priority in the matter of picture preference.

Periodic postponements of the Government's Buffalo, Nashville and Oklahoma City anti-trust suits will be requested by the Department of Justice from time to time until the Federal Court in New York has taken final action on the consent decree in the New York suit, it was learned Wednesday.

If the New York decree is approved, the five consenting companies will be dismissed as defendants in the out-of-town actions.

All three "field" suits, in effect, will remain in a state of suspension until the New York decree's fate has been determined. If for any reason, the decree is not made effective, prosecution of the action in the field would be resumed.

Meanwhile, considerable expense, time and effort is spared the consenting companies by holding the actions in abeyance by a consent decree agreement with the Government.

Indications are that Paramount theatre associates, first to voice objections to the terms of the "key" Federal anti-trust consent decree, will not appear in active opposition to the decree at the November 14 hearing in U. S. District Court in New York, where Federal Judge Goddard is to listen to exhibitor objections to the document, which was formally presented to him, Tuesday (complete text of the decree, and related documents, start on page 14).

This is not due to any change of attitude on the part of the Paramount operators to the decree, it was said, but rather to the fact that opposition to the decree has spread to probably all organized exhibitor groups since the Paramount associates first met several weeks ago to study the document's provisions with their resulting decision to oppose its approval by the Court even if they had to do it alone.

The Paramount associates are described as still as openly opposed to the blocks-of-five and other provisions of the decree as ever and, while they will probably forego active opposition to it in court, will undoubtedly file a brief with the court stating their objections. Individual Paramount operators may attend the November 14th hearing as observers, but so far as can be learned at this time, neither R. R. Wilby, who represents the Paramount theatre associates in matter pertaining to the decree, nor Fred Kent, who is acting as attorney for them, has planned any organized opposition.

Moreover, it is not believed likely that either of the two will address the court in opposition to the decree Where the Paramount theatre men were prepared six weeks ago to carry on a battle against the decree, single-handed, if necessary, today many of them are said to be convinced that the case against the decree will be presented sufficiently by the organized exhibitor groups such as Allied States, MPTOA, the ITOA, and others.

War Closes 273

TWO HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-THREE British theatres have been closed by war damage and "pressure," a direct London cable to New York reported Tuesday. Of these, 100 are in London, representing 20 per cent of that city's theatres.

In London's West End, the theatrical district, the only houses open are the Empire, Warner, Ritz, Plaza, Gaumont, and Regal. The State, Kilburn, and Trocadero are to reopen Saturday, for weekends only. The openings, it was said, are "experimental."

Permits have been given for the earlier opening of theatres in Middlesex, Essex, and other London suburbs.

David Rose, Paramount's London representative, cabled to the company's foreign manager, John Hicks, in New York, that the Astoria Theatre, Brixton, near London, damaged by a bomb, is being repaired for early opening. The house was owned by Paramount, is now owned by the Odeon Circuit.

The British Army Council was expected to meet again, in London, this week, with representatives of the film industry, to promote a plan for mobile film units which will operate without admission charge. The British film industry has already rejected the Council's endeavor to take over the industry's films. The Council has denied it intends to obtain this film without paying, but admits it intends to show the films free of charge.

British film men are said to be troubled by the desire to aid patriotic moves, and yet avoid competition to established theatres from the projected 300 mobile film units. The Ministry of Information already has many such units, and exhibitors feel their competition.

Hollywood Army Films

THE UNITED STATES ARMY has earmarked $200,000 to be spent for the production of 100 film shorts by various Hollywood studios to be used in instructing conscripts in military tactics, etc., it was disclosed in Los Angeles this week on the eve of the draft. Additional funds are expected later, according to Major Nathan Levinson, vice chairman of the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, and technician at Warner studios.

The Research Council and the studios are co-operating on the project, which is expected to be completed by June 31st, next. Studio heads, this week, received a communication from Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the Research Council, asking for co-operation. Gordon Mitchell, manager of the Council, will supervise.

Films will be made exclusively for cantonments, according to Major Levinson, and will be supplemented by still photographs. Production will probably be apportioned among the various studios.

Meanwhile, it became known that the motion picture division of the Signal Corps Reserve, in Hollywood, now includes 26 officers and 304 men, headed by Levinson, who has just been promoted to lieutenant colonel. During production of the training pictures, officers of the unit may be assigned exclusively to making them.

Other Hollywood officers are: Majors Sam Briskin and Bryan Foy, Captains Robert Lord, Byron Haskins, and Edward Sutherland, and Lieutenants W. G. Hoch, Roy Fernstron and Jules Buck. The division would not be called out as a unit unless mobilized for service, although individuals may receive special orders.

It was reported in Hollywood, this week, that Harry M. Warner is making available the old Vitagraph studio there for the training films. First picture is expected to be ready by the time the first draftees reach training camps.

Y. Frank Freeman, president of the Producers Association, has been designated chairman of the Hollywood National Defense Committee which will work in conjunction with the New York group, headed by George J. Schaefer, RKO president.

Dr. Lee Rosten has started work in Hollywood as local publicity representative of the National Defense Advisory Commission.

Kennedy Speaks

SPONSORED by the Kennedy family, Joseph P. Kennedy took the air on a nationwide network Tuesday night and made a speech, as America's ambassador to Britain, against America's participation in the world war as a combatant, but giving England all short of that, and in behalf of the candidacy of President Roosevelt for a third term.

Mr. Kennedy with showmanly competency insured a large audience by a mysterioso approach to American shores and the event, by dining with the President and then letting it be known he had declined an invitation to ride to New York on the President's special. This helped to make the customers wonder. Also rumors of a "break" helped, too. There was no break.

Mr. Kennedy and Will H. Hays for the picture industry are due any day now to talk about what arrangements can be made to get picture earnings remitted to America.

Once in his half hour on the radio Mr. Kennedy touched the films when in his discussion of international trade problems he remarked: "Just think what happened to the motion picture industry when the war cut off almost a third of the revenue! . . . It is wrong not to appreciate limitations set by world-wide dislocations. These problems will remain even if peace comes tomorrow."

The New Stage

ANNOUNCED two months ago, the new—and "different"—"Stage" magazine did that rare thing among new projects; with 128 pages, it appeared on schedule, Tuesday, at New York's newsstands.

In page size, binding, paper stock, layout, and message, the new magazine differs from the old, which collapsed in June of last year, after seven years of varying fortune. Its page size is 8¾ inches by 11⅞ inches; it is stapled; its paper is thin, semi-slick; its layout emphasizes pictures; and it covers not only the stage, but radio, opera, and the screen.

Anent this wider coverage, its publishers say it will "concern itself vitally" with these fields; and that, from "time to time," the ballet and the concert stage will receive attention. They add they used the old name because they "invariably found that most people were convinced that we were just reissuing the old 'Stage' magazine under another title. . . . It seemed simpler to use the old name for a new magazine with an altogether new editorial approach. 'Stage' proposes to bring Broadway to Main Street, and vice versa."

Items pertaining to motion pictures, in the first issue, are: scenes of the filming of the George Bernard Shaw's "Major Barbara"; pictures and story on the manufacture of Walt Disney's "Fantasia"; and artist Tito Gonzale's pictorial review of Ernest Hemingway's latest book, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," which Paramount has bought.

Films for Music Hall

VARIOUSLY down through the years, the Rockefellers' Radio City Music Hall, in New York, world's largest movie theatre, has been handicapped by its inability to get top product, because of distributor commitments elsewhere on Broadway. Occasionally, through circumstances over which it has no direct influence, additional sources of product have been opened. Typical: due to the fact that MGM's Broadway "show-window," the Capitol, is housing Charles Chaplin's "The Great Dictator," for an indefinite run, three top MGM features have been made available to the Music Hall, including "Escape," "Bitter Sweet," slated for national release November 8th, and "Philadelphia Story." (MGM gets a much bigger gross rental by playing its product at the Music Hall rather than at its Loew circuit affiliates, because of the greater capacity of the Hall.)

The first MGM picture to play the Music Hall was "Young Dr. Kildare," in 1938.

NEW U. S. LAW BUREAU TO CHECK ON DISTRIBUTION IN WAKE OF DECREE PACT

The motion picture trust case consent decree is filed, at long last. The Department of Justice and five of the eight majors, defendant, have agreed.

The three dissenters presumably are to go to trial.

Meanwhile, in a publicity statement issued with the release of the final draft of the decree, tucked in in its tenth page, the Department of Justice announced the coming formation of "a unit," in other words a new bureau, within the department "to keep in touch with the operation of the decree"—the first specifically constituted federal supervision of the motion picture, thus far affecting only distribution.

Supplemental to the consent decree document there was also filed a set of rules and procedure for arbitration of exhibitor-distributor differences to arise under the consent decree provision.

The decree is, the while, still a tentative document, and will be until such time as it is accepted by the court.

Judge Goddard, sitting in the case, has yet to hear parties or corporations objecting to the decree. If, and when, the decree is accepted, its arbitration provisions will be made operative as early as machinery can be set up. Other important provisions, including limitation of selling to "blocks-of-five" and compulsory availability for screening before sale, are not to become effective, by present understanding, until the opening the selling season of next autumn, a year hence.

Also, ultimately, the government is committed to the necessity of bringing, by trial or otherwise, the hold-out trio of defendants, into line with consent decree practices, within prescribed time or the entire proceeding and all arrangements are null, void and bologny.

This new chapter for the motion picture opened with the filing of the decree Tuesday morning at the United States court house in Foley Square in downtown New York.

The proposed consent decree, evolved after over four months of negotiations between representatives of the Department of Justice and film company lawyers, was approved on Monday in Washington by Robert Jackson, attorney general. Late that same afternoon a number of changes in the arbitration rules were agreed upon by the anti-trust and film company lawyers and by officials of the American Arbitration Asso-tion which will administer arbitration under the decree.

Judge Goddard set November 14th as the date for a public hearing on the proposed decree, after James Hayes, special assistant attorney general, had informed him that the Government and the five consenting companies had agreed on the decree. Louis Frohlich, of Schwartz and Frohlich, for Columbia, was told that objections to the decree from non-consenting companies as well as statements from other interested parties, such as exhibitor groups, would be heard on that day.

After the short court hearing which lasted from 10:35 to 10:40 A.M., Tuesday, official copies of the decree and supporting documents were released for the first time by the motion picture unit of the Anti-trust division of the Department of Justice. Although many general provisions of the decree and the arbitration rules have been published the official text of the entire document was not finished until late Monday. The Department of Justice statement explaining what had happened is a 2,500-word document as significant as the decree.

Before November 14th the Government will file an amended bill of complaint directed against Columbia, United Artists and Universal, three original defendants not agreeing to the decree. Mr. Hayes said that the amended complaint would probably not be filed until next week, at the earliest.

The statement issued Tuesday by the Department of Justice said that the decree "calls for the termination" of 'blind selling' and "drastic modification" of 'block booking.'

The Government also announced, "the decree sets up a system for the arbitration of disputes between exhibitors and distributors to be administered by the American Arbitration Association. In order to give this arbitration system a fair trial, the Government agrees not to seek divorcement or dissolution of production and distribution in the industry for a period of three years. During this period the signatory companies agree not to engage in any general program of expansion of theatre holdings and to maintain the status quo so far as is practicable."

Under the proposed decree, the Department of Justice statement pointed out, "pictures must be completed and exhibited to the trade before they can be sold or offered for sale." The trade showings are to be in the local exchange district.

On the subject of the blocks-of-five clause in the decree the government said, "It does not prohibit the licensing of less than five pictures in a single group; distributors are free to sell pictures one at a time or in groups of two, three or four. Although distributors may sell more than one group of five pictures at a time, they may not condition the sale of one group of pictures on the sale of another picture or group of pictures."

Cancellation is not covered in the decree, except for pictures which are locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

Trade showings and maximum sales of blocks of five films would go into effect on September 1, 1941. Other provisions in the decree, including arbitration, would be put in operation as soon as practicable.

The Department of Justice, while admitting that a "new and untried" method of selling pictures is required by the hopes that exhibitors, distributors and the public will benefit. An improvement in the quality of pictures, more careful consideration of local tastes, a better market for independent producers, more competition for pictures among exhibitors are some of the benefits expected by the Government under the decree.

The arbitration set-up provided by the decree is unique in anti-trust consent decree history, the Department of Justice said. Usually practices are prohibited and enforcement left to contempt hearings instituted by the Government but the motion picture decree establishes a forum for swift and independent settlement of complaints.

It was urged that the consent decree does not take away any existing legal rights from any exhibitor under the anti-trust laws.

The status quo will be maintained "to the extent that it is practicable" for three years with the Government agreeing not to press for divorcement or dissolution and the consenting companies agreeing not to engage in a general expansion of theatre holdings.

Under the escape clause (Number XII) the five theatre-owning major film companies will be freed from the obligation of trade showing their films and selling them in blocks. of not more than five pictures if the three other defendents are not required to comply with similar provisions by June 1, 1942.

The Department of Justice concluded its explanation of the decree by saying that it will keep a "constant check" on the operation of the decree through a special unit of the anti-trust division. The records of the arbitration system and the records of the defendants relating to the operation of the decree are subject to inspection by the department. Through the information gained in this manner, it was said, the Government will be in a position to determine what action, if any, should be taken at the end of the three-year trial period.

Arbitration proceedings will be instituted by filing a demand for arbitration at the local board, together with a fee of $10.00. Arbitrators will be men selected by the American Arbitration Association and must be without any previous connection with the motion picture industry. Hearings will be held on the matters subject to arbitration at the offices in the exchange districts. Awards and decisions may be appealed to a board in New York. Penalties up to $500 may be imposed for certain violations of the decree.

Other clauses not mentioned above in the decree include those which require that features be sold in the exchange district where they will be shown, that some run be given every reputable exhibitor unless the distributor can show that his total film rental in that competitive area will be reduced, arbitration of clearance and other disputes and availability of prints. The decree will not affect distribution outside continental United States, roadshows, franchise agreements made prior to June 6, 1940, or in theatres owned or controlled by the distributor.

In keeping with the agreement made in the New York consent decree negotiations further preparations for trial of the Government's anti-trust suits in Buffalo, Nashville and Oklahoma City have been halted by the five consenting companies. If the New York decree is approved the five companies will be dropped as defendants in the three field suits.

Meanwhile exhibitor organizations were preparing their protests for the November 14th decree hearing in New York.

Official Statement where-in U. S. Discusses Practises under Decree

Simultaneously with the filing of the consent decree in the motion picture anti-trust case in Federal court in New York this week, the Department of Justice issued a prepared statement, both summarizing and interpreting the document in its expected and intended application to the practice of the distribution and exhibition branches of the industry. The statement will be found, meanwhile, to convey elements of Fedral policy byond the direct indications of the decree. The official publicity release from the government follows:

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

October 29, 1940

The Department of Justice today announced the filing of a consent decree under the terms of which five major moving picture companies agree to terminate practices which long have been the subject of dispute.

The decree, which was filed today in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, calls for termination of the sales practice known as "blind selling" and drastic modification of the so-called "block booking" methods of the defendant companies.

Companies consenting to the decree are Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Inc., RKO Pictures, Inc., Warner Brothers, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and their subsidiary and affiliated companies.

United Artists Corporation, Universal Pictures Co., Inc. and Columbia Pictures Corporation, three other companies named in the original complaint, have not joined in the decree. An open hearing will be held before the Honorable Henry W. Goddard, District Judge, on November 14, 1940, at 10:30 A. M., at which time interested persons not parties to the suit will be given an opportunity to present their views with respect to the proposed decree.

In addition to revising selling practices of the five signatory companies, the decree sets up a system for the arbitration of dispuites between exhibitors and distributors to be administered by the American Arbitration Association. In order to give this arbitration system a fair trial, the government agrees not to seek divorcement or dissolution of production and distribution in the industry for a period of three years. During this period the signatory companies agree not to engage in any general program of expansion of theatre holdings and to maintain the status quo so far is is practicable.

PRACTICES AFFECTED BY THE DECREE

Blind Selling and Blind Booking

The decree strikes at two selling practices in the motion picture industry which have long been under attack by exhibitor organizations, as well as parent-teacher associations and other public groups, i.e., block booking and blind sell-

PUBLIC WANTS DUALS, SAYS ARTHUR, YET CLUBWOMEN ATTACK THE POLICY

Harry Arthur, in St. Louis, Tells Why He Abandoned Singles, as Local Group Moves to Use Speakers Against Duals

The multiple bill problem in St. Louis brought forth pronounced diametrically opposite views this week. Harry Arthur, Jr., general manager of the Fanchon and Marco circuit announced in an open letter that a single feature policy at the Ambassador in St. Louis had been abandoned after a six weeks' test because of public disapproval, while the St. Louis Better Films Council was accelerating its campaign to do away with double and triple features, announcing a plan to put "Minute Women" speakers in strategic spots throughout the city to talk down duals.

Meanwhile the RKO Circuit's experiment at Proctor's 86th Street in New York, designed to give single feature convenience and at the same time take nothing away from double feature devotees, was said to be working out so well that the plan has been adopted by four more of the circuit's theatres. Under the RKO experiment the main feature is shown at 9:30 p.m. and the second feature immediately following, permitting the customer to decide whether he wants to leave or stay for the second feature.

In his statement to the public and the industry, as forwarded to the editor of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, announcing the change from a single to a double policy at the Ambassador Mr. Arthur said, "During the test period, "Sea Hawk," "Brigham Young" and "The Howards of Virginia" were featured singly, concurrently with an advanced-price, reserved-seat policy. Following five weeks of these three pictures, "Spring Parade," "No Time for Comedy" and "Down Argentine Way" were featured singly, at popular prices, on a non-reserved seat policy, in a further effort to ascertain whether a sufficient number of St. Louisans desired single features to justify the change on a permanent basis. To all outward appearances, it would seem that those who decry double-feature programs, and urge the adoption of single-feature programs nationally, are decidedly in the minority, being of the type which visits motion picture theatres but seldom, as against those regulars who attend weekly and who very obviously prefer double-feature programs.

"We sincerely believe that our efforts along these lines gave to single-feature programs every possible opportunity for success, yet it was found wanting at the box office.

"There seems to be no reason for us to continue single-feature programs further, now, nor in the immediate future. The public of St. Louis voiced its strong disapproval of such a program by remaining away from the Ambassador theatre during the test period."

Cites Reason for Singles

Previously, Mr. Arthur had sent letters to distributors and exhibitors reciting reasons for partial abandonment of the single feature plan. In this communication, the Fanchon and Marco executive pointed out that Loew's played "Boom Town" at advanced prices for three weeks and then followed with "Foreign Correspondent," with another film at popular prices, "which made the Ambassador advanced price, single feature policy appear ludicrous."

Mr. Arthur also said that "Foreign Correspondent" opened close upon the heels of Walter Wanger's visit to St. Louis in which the producer appealed to exhibitors for single feature programs.

He said such a policy practiced at the Ambassador could succeed if there was (1) a concentrated effort on Hollywood to produce quality product that justifies a tilt in admission prices; (2) distributors to afford several weeks' clearance, and (3) a coordinated attempt on the part of exhibitors to standardize prices and policies.

Films Council Campaign

The St. Louis Better Films Council, one of the most active of its kind in the country, in extending its campaign against multiple bills will send the "Minute Women" speakers to visit the various women's clubs in St. Louis for one minute speeches explaining the program of the council.

Mrs. A. F. Burt, founder of the council and leader in the current drive, announced that letters from 15 exhibitors had been received so far in response to the council's demand for discontinuance of the double feature. She said all 15 were opposed to double bills.

Giveaways Not Opposed

Mrs. Burt said that the subject of giveaways has been injected into the campaign, but the council was not opposed to the giveaways because they are not harmful to the children as being "forced to sit through long programs."

Meanwhile, plans went ahead to marshal the 250,000 women who belong to the clubs affiliated with the council, for the drive. Mrs. Burt said it is the plan of the council to educate these women to patronize only theatres where there are single features.

The RKO Circuit experiment of showing the main feature at 9:30 with the second feature following immediately has spread to three RKO houses in the Rockaways, the Columbia, Strand and Park, and the newly acquired Marble Hill at 231st Street and Broadway.

The RKO Proctor's 86th Street was chosen as the first house for the experiment because of the cross-section of New Yorkers it caters to, according to the circuit.

Located at Lexington Avenue and 86th Street, the theatre's audiences hail from Fifth, Madison, Park, Lexington, York, 1st, 2nd and 3rd Avenues and the streets between, in what can be called a most cosmopolitan clientele.

The patrons were queried before the experiment and the only real grievance came from single feature advocates who claimed the evening presentations of the main attraction started at hours too early or too late. One either had to rush through dinner or become a midnight owl in order to see the picture, it was said. The present policy of starting the main feature at 9:30 followed a review of audience reaction.

PICTURES FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL

The Reverend James K. Friedrich, Red Wing, Minn., in Kansas City this week for the annual Episcopal convention, said the church now is trying to meet one of the church school's greatest problems, and that, he said, is how to make the Sunday morning lessons seem interesting after the exciting Saturday afternoon at the motion picture theatre. The use of religious films is for the purpose of teaching and not entertainment, he said. Reverend Friedrich is making a series of six pictures on biblical themes.

Paramount Partners To Meet November 8th

Paramount theatre associates will hold a two-day meeting in Chicago November 8th and 9th, following which a number of them will accompany home office executives to the coast for production conferences with studio officials.

Leonard Goldenson and Sam Dembow, Jr., will conduct the Chicago meeting. Those who will attend include: Earl Hudson, Detroit; Tracy Barham, Ohio; John J. Friedl, Minneapolis; Harry David, Salt Lake City; Harry Nace, Arizona; John Balaban and Jules Rubens, Chicago; Martin Mullin, Boston; R. J. O'Donnell, Dallas; M. A. Lightman, Memphis; John Fitzgibbons, Canada; A. H. Blank, Myron Blank and Ralph Branton, Des Moines, and Robert Weitman, New York.

Messrs. Goldenson, Dembow, Hudson, Balaban, O'Donnell, Lightman, Branton and Weitman will continue to the coast for product conferences, joining Barney Balaban, Neil Agnew, Stanton Griffis and Russell Holman there.

No Progress on Repeal of Cuban Law

Although it had been predicted that the new Cuban administration would take a definite stand in connection with the campaign of the major U. S. distributors to repeal the anti-block booking law, negotiations have struck a snag, and the matter has been postponed until next month, according to reports reaching New York, this week.

George Weltner, assistant foreign manager of Paramount, said in New York on Monday, that the majors' committee had discussed the proposal with representatives of the new administration but that nothing definite had developed. Informal discussions would be continued, he said.

MORE LABOR DEMANDS MADE ON BOTH COASTS

Publicists Seek "Closed Shop" Agreement; IATSE Reported Seeking Hour-Wage Changes

Meetings will continue, between representatives of the New York unit of the Screen Publicist Guild and those of the major film company home offices in New York City, to force a "closed shop," a Guild spokesman declared, on Tuesday. The meetings are to agree on definitions, clarify working atmosphere, and perhaps enable the companies to agree that the guild represents the majority of employees in their advertising and publicity departments in New York. They are being held under the auspices of the National Labor Relations board, from which the guild, claiming a majority of members in the advertising and publicity offices, seeks designation as bargaining agency.

The companies, apprised of the guild's action last week, are said to have asked for proof that it has the members it claims. The meetings, prompted by the NLRB, began last week; more were to be held this week and next. If they do not bring recognition of the guild by the companies, elections may be held.

It was said by guild spokesmen that terms to be asked, generally, would approximate those obtained by the Hollywood unit. Wage scales reportedly will begin at $40 per week for apprentices, $75 for juniors, and $125 for seniors. However, it was added by guild spokesmen that scales are still being discussed.

It was asserted the guild is now classifying its members on the bases of duties and length of service in the film companies. It was revealed there will be no provisions for the automatic promotion of men from junior to senior.

Casey Denies Meeting

In Hollywood, there was rumor last week that some locals of the IATSE, which reached a five-year agreement with the producers last year, are demanding altered working hour and wage conditions. Pat Casey, producers' labor representative, visited Chicago last week, and New York this week, but denied he had met in Chicago with Gearge E. Browne, president of the IATSE, or in New York with other Alliance officers.

Status of the American Society of Cinematographers was reported puzzling the producers this week. The Society has asked the IATSE for membership. It holds a five-year contract with the studios. Its negotiating committee met last week with the producers.

Any conferences of IATSE studio unions with producers will bring a demand from unions for a work guarantee to skilled mechanics, it was predicted. Observers report a possible skilled labor shortage facing producers. National defense industries are attracting many workers, it was noted. The work guarantee has been sought by studio unions. Last year, the painters' union offered to return a 10 per cent wage increase, for such a guarantee.

Managers of the studios, and Fred Pelton, producers' labor contact, met last week, on the recently recast classifications of workers and interpretations of the Wage-Hour Act, made by the Act's administrators.

The Screen Office Employees Guild has won National Labor Relations Board bargaining agency elections at Universal, RKO, Columbia, Republic, MGM, Twentieth Century-Fox and Walter Wanger. The American Federaiton of Labor has asked the guild for affiliation, it is reported.

Friction over jurisdiction and autonomy, always apparent in Hollywood unions, may be eliminated by a report submitted to the IATSE executive council last week by a studio labor committee, which spent three months studying the problems. Many of these have originated in the jurisdictional lines set up after Local 37 had been split into other locals.

PLEA FOR NATIONAL UNITY FROM WARNER

In execution of an idea evolved by Harry M. Warner a one and a half minute "Plea for National Unity", a speech of appeal with a background of patriotic music, is being distributed this week, in seven thousand prints, for special release to theatres when the result of the Presidential election becomes known. The text follows:

> The democratic process has functioned. We have just concluded months devoted to free and untrammelled discussion and debate of the problems confronting the Nation and the qualification of the respective candidates for the Presidency to meet and effectively deal with them. After the fullest consideration, a majority of our citizens have solemnly expressed their choice of the Chief Executive to lead the Nation during the next four years.
> The election campaign has taken place during a period of recurring critical national and world problems. It was inevitable that during the period of discussion and debate national unity would suffer. The great price which we have paid for our democratic right makes the choice of our leader a sacred one.
> Whatever the differences were among us before election, there should remain no doubt that there are no differences among us today. We must stand as one behind the man of the people's choice. We must not fall prey to the plan of "divide and conquer". The Great Liberator has given us our rule of national life—"United We Stand, Divided We Fall".

The trailer has been made by the Warner studios. At mid-week arrangements had been made for cooperative distribution by Warners, Loew's, RKO, Twentieth Century-Fox, and Paramount. Columbia and United Artists are sharing in the costs but are not physically handling distribution.

Writers' Nominations Made

Preceding the election of officers November 13th, the Screen Writers Guild board of directors last week approved nomination of several members. These are: Sidney Buchman and Dwight Taylor, for vice-president; Ralph Block and Dore Schary, for secretary; and Lester Cole and George Oppenheim, for treasurer. At the election, members may nominate others, from the floor, or by petition.

The guild now has 800 members, the board was told.

Proxy voting by the extras' Class B Council of the Screen Actors Guild has been abolished, the Council was informed by the guild board of directors last week. It was also announced that no Class B member will be permitted to serve on the admission committee, and that the guild's welfare committee had been dissolved. This latter, it was explained, was done to avoid confusion between it and the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

In Chicago, conferences between exhibitors and projectionists, on a new pact, were scheduled for resumption Wednesday. Frank Phelps, Warner circuit labor contact, is in that city this week for the conferences.

In the same city, Sam Lamasky, Columbia exchange shipper, has been elected president of the Film Exchange Union. Others elected were George Busch of RKO, business agent, and Kenneth Sein of Columbia, secretary and treasurer.

The officers of the local, largest west of New York, will be inducted next month.

In New Haven, negotiations are being reopened on exchange employees' contracts. This is in accord with a provision in the two-year contracts, signed last November.

The first annual dance and entertainment of the American Guild of Variety Artists was held Monday evening, at the Manhattan Center, New York.

Paramount Awards Made

Cash totaling $725 in Paramount's Production Ideas Contest, was awarded employees at their Pep Club's annual party at the Hotel Astor, New York, on Friday, October 25th. Paul Seligman of the Artists Booking Bureau won the top award of $100 and first award of $50 in the New York area. Charles Brouda of the legal department won the second New York award of $25 and there were 60 awards of $5 each. In the New York Paramount theatre division, Jack Bienstock won first award of $50 and Joseph Kaplan second award of $25, with 10 receiving $5 each. Mildred Davis of the State, Poughkeepsie, won first award of $50 in the Netco Theatres production ideas contest. Tony DeFelice, of the Bardavon, Poughkeepsie, received the second award of $25. There were 10 awards of $5 each.

Fine Carol Bruce $500

Carol Bruce, actress, was fined $500 on Monday in New York by the Actors' Equity Council for appearing on Ben Bernie's radio program and in the Sert Room of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, thereby assertedly violating her exclusive service contract with B. G. De Sylva, producer of "Louisiana Purchase." She was ordered to discontinue her appearances on the radio and in the hotel.

ALLIED 'AID' TO POLICE EXHIBITOR RELATIONS WITH LOCAL EXCHANGES

Samuelson Promises Exhibitors "All Information Possible" in Address at Ohio ITO Convention; Other Groups Meet

Several more exhibitor organizations, including the Ohio ITO, Allied of Connecticut, Connecticut MPTO, Oregon ITO and the New York MPTOA Central Division, met, this week, to consider trade problems of the day, including the U. S. anti-trust suit consent decree, which was filed, on Tuesday, in the New York Federal Court. (Text of the decree starts on page 14.)

Meanwhile, the Kansas Independent Theatres Association, voted to meet in Abilene, Kansas, November 14th, to enable members to become acquainted and familiarize themselves with the aims of the newly-formed organization, Homer F. Strowig, president, has announced.

F. H. Beddingfield, G. W. Parr, and Harry Hardy have been appointed to the program committee of the mid-Winter convention of the TOA of North and South Carolina, which meets in Charlotte, December 1-2.

The eighth annual convention of the ITO of Ohio got under way unofficially, on Tuesday evening.. with a meeting at the Hotel Deshler Wallick, Columbus.

Samuelson Addresses Meeting

Sidney Samuelson, national Allied vice-president, Wednesday in his fourth exhibitor convention address since the organization of Allied Product and Contract Information Department, told the Ohio organization that "exhibitors in unorganized sections are paying a penalty for non-organization through higher film rentals." He said that there is a differential of 21 per cent in gross rental between Allied organized and unorganized territorities.

The Allied Information Department has decided to hereafter release all findings of its product and contract surveys to the trade press and to non-Allied members, in order to give exhibitors all information possible "to prevent their being taken advantage of by film salesmen and others," Mr. Samuelson said.

He reported that a move is underway, with contracts already signed to increase local clearance by 7, 14 or 21 days in favor of federal admission tax-paying houses against those houses which are tax exempt.

Mr. Samuelson reviewed his committee's argument with Columbia Pictures over the availability of the picture "Arizona," which Allied charges was withheld from the 1939-40 commitment in favor of release in 1940-41, as a special."

The Allied vice-president disclosed, for the first time, that the national Information Department check-up would be expanded to embrace regular reports on product in work, maintain a library of producer-distributor contract books, maintain a complete analysis of all film license contract clauses and, "thoroughly police" fair trade practices for the protection of exhibitors' local exchanges.

BUREAU OF MINES LISTS NEW FILMS

The U. S. Bureau of Mines, this week, announced the addition of two new sound films to its collection of pictures illustrating the activities and achievements of the mineral industries, for showing in schools churches, etc., and in theatres.

One of these is titled, "Alloy Steels—the Story of Their Development." The film is in 16 and 35 mm and running time is 20 minutes. The other film is called "Mineral Resources and Scenic Wonders of Arizona." The running time is 40 minutes, and was made in the 16 mm width only.

"Build unity among exhibitors in these troubled times and fight to the finish unfair trade practices in a business-like manner for a justified peace in the industry," urged Mr. Samuelson.

Kelly Denies Charges

Arthur W. Kelly, newly appointed sales manager for United Artists, appeared before the Ohio convention to deny Allied's charges that a picture commitment on a title "Personal History" was the same as UA's recent release, "Foreign Correspondent."

The Allied officials listened and late Wednesday night were meeting privately with Mr. Kelly, Allied corferees including Mr. Samuelson, Martin G. Smith and P. J. Wood, president and secretary, respectively of the Ohio ITO and Abram Myers, national chairman and counsel.

Mr. Myers on Wednesday dissected the consent decree as submitted Tuesday by the Government and the "Big Five" in New York. He opposed all provisions and said he expects to be in New York November 14th at the hearing on the decree before Judge Henry W. Goddard and register verbal opposition to the document. "The majority of exhibitors are unalterably opposed to the proposed new method of selling," he said.

Martin Smith, president of the ITO, was to be guest of honor at a testimonial banquet, Wednesday night.

H. M. Richey, M-G-M's director of exhibitor relations, was to speak at Thursday's sessions. The open forum policy, inaugurated last year, has been retained. Election of officers was scheduled for the final session.

Screenings were to include Universal's "Seven Sinners," with Marlene Dietrich and Charles Chaplin's "The Great Dictator."

Among companies having exhibits at an equipment show were: RCA, National Theatre Supply Company, Manley, Inc., Cretores Popcorn Machines, National Screen Service, National Carbon, Altec Service Corp., and the F & Y Theatre Division.

Herman M. Levy, executive secretary, of the Connecticut MPTO was to have reported on the present status of the Government's anti-trust suit and the views of Thurman W. Arnold, assistant attorney general, at a meeting, on Monday, at Ceriani's Cafe, New Haven. Mr. Levy pointed out that the organization has already voiced its opposition to the decree. Vice President Irving C. Jacocks, Jr., presided.

To Launch Campaign

Allied of Connecticut will launch a statewide membership campaign within a few weeks, with Shepherd B. Epstein in charge. The announcement was made at a luncheon at the HofBrau Haus, New Haven, at which speakers were Arthur K. Howard, Boston Allied business agent and Frank Lydon, national regional director.

Lawrence C. Caplan, another speaker, declared that with the "consent decree almost a certainty, inevitably many problems will arise which will demand discussion and clarification for the exhibitor." Mr. Caplan said the coming session of the Connecticut Legislature would undoubtedly consider many matters of vital importance to exhibitors, especially the ever-threatening possibility of new taxes.

Oregon Game Bill Opposed

ITO of Oregon is opposing a proposal in the general elections in November which would legalize what it calls "certain gambling and gaming devices and certain lotteries," according to O. J. Miller, executive secretary.

The exhibitors contend that "Bank Night" was included in the measure in the belief that it would receive their support, whereas the effect has been the opposite. A similar measure has already been passed in Seattle.

A meeting of the MPTO of the State of New York, Central New York area, was to be held in the Syracuse Hotel, that city, on Thursday, to complete plans for organization and election of officers and directors. Aims and purposes of the organization were discussed.

The meeting was called at the suggestion of Syracuse exhibitors, headed by Sidney L. Grossman. President A. Charles Hayman and Counsel Sidney B. Pfeifer were to be guests.

Dave Miller Celebrates

Celebrating his 20th anniversary with Universal, Dave Miller, Cleveland district manager, will be tendered a testimonial dinner at the Hotel Hollenden, Cleveland, November 20th. Joseph Kaufman, Universal branch manager, is chairman of the arrangements committee. Representatives from Buffalo, Albany, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Cleveland are to attend.

Lichtman Organizes Company

Motor Theatre Corporation of Norfolk, Va., has received a charter from the Virginia Corporation Commission to conduct a theatrical business under a maximum capitalization of $15,000. A. E. Lichtman, of Washington, is president.

GENERAL RELEASE FOR 'DICTATOR'; 'ZORRO', OTHER NEW FILMS LAUNCHED

"One Night in Tropics" and "Seven Sinners" Have Premieres; "Dispatch from Reuter's" Screened in Washington

The United Artists management in New York, Monday, announced that, effective immediately, it would switch the policy on Charles Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" from 'selected runs' in key cities, to a general release, continuing, however, its stipulation on advanced admission, which, the company says, are to continue until the Summer of 1941.

Sales and promotion departments elsewhere this week were launching more campaigns on new product, principally Twentieth Century-Fox's "The Mark of Zorro," Universal's "One Night in the Tropics" and "Seven Sinners," among others.

Lynn Farnol, United Artists advertising and publicity director accompanied Charles Chaplin to Chicago to arrange the premiere there, Thursday, of "The Dictator." Mr. Farnol will leave Chicago at the end of the week for the Los Angeles opening. Blake McVeigh has been appointed by Monroe Greenthal, United Artists exploitation chief, to handle the Los Angeles engagement. He was formerly assistant publicity director at Warners.

Immediate "general release" engagements scheduled for the picture include the Warner, Pittsburgh; Great Lakes, Buffalo; State and Orpheum, Boston; State, Providence; Loew's, Rochester; State, Syracuse; Loew's, Dayton; Valentine, Toledo; State, Houston; Palace, Indianapolis; State, Louisville; Midland, Kansas City; State, New Orleans; State, Memphis; State, St. Louis; Century, Baltimore; Poli, Springfield; Elm Street, Worcester; Majestic, Bridgeport; Poli, Hartford; Poli, New Haven; Apollo and Roosevelt, Chicago; Broad, Columbus;

Also, the Stillman, Cleveland; Poli, Waterbury; Fifth Avenue, Seattle; Broadway, Portland; Paramount, Denver; Fox, Spokane; Palace, Hartford (move-over from Poli); College, New Haven, (move-over from Poli); Palace, Youngstown; Elgin, Ottawa; Orpheum, Montreal; Palace, Meriden; Shea's, Erie; and the Penn, New Castle, Pa.

In New York, "The Great Dictator" was in the third week of its run at the Capitol and Astor theatres.

"Mark of Zorro"

This was "Tyrone Power Week" in Cincinnati and the Twentieth Century-Fox star's home town was ready for his new "Mark of Zorro," which opens Friday at the Albee and Shubert theatres there. The introduction began Wednesday morning when Mr. Power, Annabella, his wife, and Mrs. Patia Power, his mother, arrived in Cincinnati from Hollywood.

Three radio broadcasts were featured on the three-day program. Station WCKY carried a spot-news broadcast of the stars' arrival, and nationwide coverage was to be given via the "Kate Smith Hour" and "Vox Pop," over the Columbia Broadcasting network, in addition to preliminary noon-day "plugs" by Kate Smith and advance announcements on "Vox Pop."

The radio preview of the picture on the Kate Smith Hour Friday night is to feature Mr. Power in his "Zorro" role. Wally Butterworth and Parks Johnson, the Vox Pop commentators, were to stage their broadcast Thursday night from the Sherry Netherland Hotel.

Other Cincinnati events scheduled were a civic luncheon with Mayor Stewart and city officials as hosts to the Hollywood visitors, a costume ball on Halloween at the Hall of Mirrors in the Netherlands Plaza Hotel, a reception at the Schuster-Martin School of Dramatics and a luncheon for newspaper critics and visitors.

Tyrone Power, Annabella, Mrs. Power and Kate Smith were to make personal appearances at the two theatres Friday night.

The three-day celebration was handled by Charles E. McCarthy's publicity and advertising staff from New York, in cooperation with the staffs of the Albee and Shubert theatres. Among those from the Twentieth Century-Fox who attended were Herman Wobber, general manager of distribution; Mr. McCarthy, Rodney Bush, Earl Wingart, Irving Kahn, Eddie Solomon and Roger Ferri.

"One Night in the Tropics"

Universal's "One Night in the Tropics" had its "world premiere" Wednesday at the Fabian theatre, Paterson, N. J., with a show staged by the City of Paterson, in conjunction with a local drive to raise funds for the rebuilding of The Church of St. Anthony there. Admission was five dollars top, "U" reported.

Lou Costello, of the team of Abbott and Costello, featured in the film, which stars Allan Jones, Robert Cummings and Nancy Kelly, a native of Paterson, participated.

A parade started at four in the afternoon, followed by a banquet at the Alexander Hamilton Hotel and the premiere. Mayor William Furrey presided, and the New York and local press were guests.

"Knute Rockne"

Warner Brothers, Monday, reported that "Knute Rockne-All American" had held over in 16 additional cities, making a total of 118 holdovers to date.

The additional holdovers listed were: Strand, New York; Orpheum, Seattle; Fox, San Francisco; Fox, St. Louis; Warner, Memphis; Newman, Kansas City; Stanley, Pittsburgh; Fox. Philadelphia; Circle, Indianapolis; Orpheum, Omaha, with a moveover to the Omaha; Majestic Dallas, with a moveover to the Roosevelt; Palace, Cincinnati; Buffalo, Buffalo, with a moveover to the Hippodrome; Metropolitan, Boston; Strand, Albany, with a moveover to the Albany.

"North West Mounted"

Following its first public exhibitions, last week, in Regina, Saskatchewan and Chicago, Paramount's Cecil B. DeMille production of "North West Mounted Police" was reported by the company to be receiving bookings at advance prices in Canadian and American situations.

In New York this week Neil F. Agnew, Paramount general sales manager, said that on the basis of figures reported to the company from a number of pre-release key engagements, "the picture will be Paramount's biggest money picture in the last 12 years."

His estimate was compiled from reports from Providence, Kansas City, Portland, Ore.; Denver, Houston, Youngstown, Chicago, Memphis, Portland, Me., and Milwaukee where the picture was playing at advanced prices, running ahead 192 per cent of the preceding DeMille picture, "Union Pacific," Mr. Agnew declared in a wire sent to all branch managers.

"Dispatch from Reuter's"

A special showing of Warners', "A Dispatch from Reuter's" was held Monday night in Washington, for members of the House, Senate and diplomatic corps, as well as social and civic leaders. It was held in the auditorium of the Department of the Interior, under the sponsorship of the English-Speaking Union. The film, which is soon to open in New York, describes the origin and growth of the British news agency.

"Seven Sinners"

The "world premiere" of Universal's "Seven Sinners" was held at the Orpheum theatre in New Orleans, Thursday, with Marlene Dietrich, star of the Joe Pasternak production, attending.

"Convoy"

RKO Radio will distribute in the United States and Latin America the English film, "Convoy," produced by Michael Balcon for Associated British Film Distributors, London. The deal with RKO was closed in New York by Arthur Lee. The film stars Clive Brook and John Clements, and was directed by Pen Tennyson. It will be distributed in Canada by N. L. Nathanson.

"Bitter Sweet"

Initial "Bitter Sweet" engagements have been set by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as follows: November 7th, Palace, Cincinnati; November 14th, Des Moines and Roosevelt, Des Moines, day and date, and November 22nd at Loew's, Montreal. The film co-stars Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy.

"Little Bit of Heaven"

Gloria Jean left Hollywood Sunday on a personal appearance tour in connection with Joe Pasternak's production "A Little Bit of Heaven," in which she stars. Her first stop was Chicago.

Warner Brothers, who hold distribution rights to the one reel British film "London Can Take It," said this week that prints are being shipped as quickly as they can be made. The company said that over 600 prints are already on order. The film is playing simultaneously at eight theatres in New York: Radio City Music Hall, Strand, Rialto, Paramount, Roxy, Palace, Globe and Rivoli.

New York society women will serve as ushers and program girls at the premiere showing of "Fantasia," the Walt Disney feature, November 13th at the Broadway theater for the benefit of the British War Relief Society.

The Motion Picture Bookers Club, New York, will undertake to collect used clothing for British war relief. Receiving stations will be set up at exchanges. Harold Klein of the Cocalis Circuit, president of the organization, will direct the work.

SAYS PRODUCT DEARTH CLOSES HIS THEATRE

Claiming inability to obtain suitable product, the management of the 500-seat Bexley, Columbus, Ohio, suburban theatre, has closed the house. Manager Bert Williams issued the following announcmeent anent the closing:

"We have not been able to procure pictures for the coming season of an age and class that will best serve the city of Bexley. Rather than show weak or old pictures we have closed the theatre indefinitely."

NEWSREELS, RADIO AND TELEVISION SET FOR PRESIDENTIAL ELECTION

Plans Laid for First Televised Coverage of National Poll; Motion Picture Participation Through Newsreels, Bulletins

Coverage of the Presidential election on Tuesday by the motion picture, radio and television will mark the first event of its kind at which the three will compete for audience attention.

Theatres throughout the country were arranging special Election night shows which will be broken up with announcement of returns obtained by radio or through tie-ups with local newspapers.

Broadcasting stations will be sending out returns of the national state and local elections as quickly as they are made available through the principal news agencies. Most of the radio stations plan to stay on the air all night, if necessary. Elaborate tabulation systems and simple formulae for announcing the results have been worked out by the three major networks.

Plan Television Reports

Television's coverage of the election will be on an experimental basis because commercial telecasts have not been authorized yet by the Federal Communications Commission. The National Broadcasting Company in New York was making arrangements for a special television program election night which would show, through the use of maps, as well as the usual spoken figures, the progress of the election. Television started its activities in the campaign at the Republican and Democratic Conventions and NBC's W2XBS telecast the Democratic rally in Madison Square Garden Monday night and will also cover the final Republican gathering there Saturday.

The five newsreel companies not only will photograph the candidates and other political figures throughout the country voting, but will follow the election at Times Square, New York. On Wednesday special issues of the newsreels with scenes of the Election will be rushed to the theatres by air express, in many cases.

Many theatres, having found that business drops off sharply when the principal figures of the campaign speak on the radio, do not expect great attendance Tuesday, but are making preparations to run the best show available and announce the progress of the returns from the stage or over a public address system. A few theatres will follow the lead of the Radio City Music Hall and other houses which have adopted the policy that those who attend the theatre on election night want to escape the suspense of hearing incomplete returns as the votes are tabulated and will make no announcements.

Radio Coverage Comprehensive

This Presidential Election, the first covered by television, is the sixth covered by radio. Motion pictures have had a part, of varying importance, in all campaigns since McKinley's in 1896. The first Wilson election was covered by the newsreels and the newsreel record of the inauguration of Herbert Hoover on March 4, 1929, was an early triumph for sound film coverage of a political event.

In 1920 only one radio station, KDKA, in Pittsburgh, transmitted returns of the Harding-Cox election and its audience was smaller than the one television will have in the 1940 election. Although KDKA had only very limited power, the several hundred persons who heard the returns flashed as soon as they were received enthusiastically hailed radio and many regard that November 2, 1920, as the birth of commercial broadcasting.

On Tuesday the 450-odd radio stations linked in the three major chains and several hundred additional independent and unaffiliated stations will carry election returns to the bulk of the nation's population sitting around many of the country's 50,000,000 radio receivers.

Thorough Radio Coverage

Radio's coverage of this election is expected to be much more thorough than the job done in 1938, for today the networks have almost twice as many member stations and the special events staffs of the key stations are larger and more highly organized.

NBC will convert its largest studio in Radio City into a vote tabulating and radio control station. On the large stage control and broadcast booths for both the Red and Blue networks will be erected. Results will be received on a bank of news tickers direct from press headquarters. Standing in the Presidential race will be tabulated on a large chart. About 1,400 guests have been invited.

A staff of 40 experts will handle the Columbia Broadcasting System's presentation of the election returns. Headquarters will be established in the new CBS building opposite the regular studio in New York City.

WOR-Mutual will feature the use of a new formula for announcing returns. Instead of the previous method of saying "so many election districts out of so many give Joe Doe 100,000 votes and Richard Roe 125,000" the Mutual network will announce results in the following manner, claimed to be simpler and less confusing: "At .... P. M., with .... per cent of the votes in (State) already tabulated, ... leads .... by .... votes, or a ratio of .... to ....."

All three networks will have their regular commentators and news analysts giving and interpreting the returns throughout the evening.

DRAFT LOTTERY CUTS GROSSES

Millions of persons listened to the radio announcements of the draft numbers drawn or scanned lists in newspapers on Tuesday to see whether their number or numbers of friends had been selected. All radio stations throughout the country carried draft day programs. It was reported that a number of theatres found that business was hurt.

With the campaign in its final days special political speeches are presented every evening, and many people are staying away from the theatres in order to hear the programs. It was reported that the Democrats will spend a total of about $500,000 for radio time with the three major networks and the Republicans a figure somewhat less than that sum.

The five newsreels will use approximately 125 men to get Election material, including about 10 camera men, five sound, five electricians and five contact men for each company. Crews will cover the candidates voting as well as other figures in national life. Each newsreel company will have men assigned to be with Franklin D. Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie to photograph the winner.

Outside of general shots of people voting in different localities the principal crowd shots will be photographed in Times Square. The general coverage of the election is routine for newsreels, according to an official of one of the companies. The five companies will work together in certain things, such as pooling their lights. Times Square is always chosen as the best spot for crowd pictures because the cameras can turn from the crowds to flashes of the returns, particularly when one candidate concedes the other's election, according to the moving sign on the Times Building.

Theatre Arrangements

Representatives of the plans that theatres have made for election night are the arrangements the Stanley Warner theatres made in Philadelphia with the radio station, WCAU. The tieup which will bring returns direct to over 70 Warner theatres was arranged by Everett Callow, Warner publicity director in Philadelphia and Joe Connelly, promotion director of the radio station.

A special newsroom will be set up at the broadcast station and special telephone lines will line 20 key theatres directly to the station; other theatres will get their returns from the key houses. Thirty second public announcements will be cut in on the picture showing at regular intervals. The radio station will receive credit at the time of each announcement and also special advertising. The theatres will all run late shows.

Other methods of handling returns which will be used by some houses include marking results on a large chart in the lobby, having tie-ups with local newspapers, making announcements from the stage or cutting in on a radio broadcast.

Shorts Facilitate "Break-Ins"

To facilitate breaking into the program some theatres are booking a special short subjects program for Tuesday night. M. J. Weisfeldt, Columbia short subjects manager, said: "Hundreds of Columbia accounts are booking complete short subject programs, which are scheduled to begin at 9 P. M. and continue through midnight, with election returns announced from the stage between each reel."

On Monday the Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., conducted a presidential poll in all its 105 theatres, about 75,000 ballots were cast.

Among the theatremen running for election throughout the country is G. L. Dent, chair theatre operator in Knoxville, Tenn., who is running for representative for Knox county on the Republican ticket.

The Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women has urged each member to ask local theatre managers to show the second Wendell Willkie "Information Please" short which RKO decided not to release at this time.

"Hollywood's Salute to the President," sponsored by the Democratic National Committee, was presented over CBS Thursday night.

R. C. Patterson, chairman of the board of RKO, has been appointed vice-chairman of the finance committee of the Democratic National Committee.

CBS ORDERS ASCAP OFF ITS NETWORK DECEMBER 1

Radio Chain Takes First "Total Action" in Broadcasters' Fight to "Freeze Out" Ascap

The fight of the radio broadcasters' Broadcast Music, Inc., with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, this week passed the mere "threat" stage, when Columbia Broadcasting System, first of the national networks to take total action, formally ordered all ASCAP music off its networks on and after December 1st, one month before actual severence of CBS contractual relations with ASCAP.

The step is one more in a procession, the design of which is to "freeze out" ASCAP entirely from radio, by the end of the year, when ASCAP'S present five-year contracts with the broadcasters expire. The networks, and affiliated and independent stations, comprising the membership of the National Association of broadcasters, have refused to sign new ASCAP five-year contracts, preferred at the year's beginning; and have, instead, set up a music publishing firm, in New York, Broadcast Music, Inc.

Letters to Band Leaders

The CBS announcement was made by Lawrence L. Lowman, vice-president in charge of operations, and contained in a letter sent to band leaders. He also ordered those of them on sustaining programs, to use at least three non-ASCAP pieces per 15 minutes of program, effective Friday. He added that theme songs might have to be changed, and stated only 10 per cent of the music used now on sustaining programs was ASCAP's.

The other networks, the National Broadcasting Company and Mutual Broadcasting System, had previously asked band leaders on sustaining programs to use a certain percentage of non-ASCAP music. Their object has been, as explained in Mr. Lowman's letter, and others from NBC executives, to cushion the effect of a lack of ASCAP music on the air.

The NBC has asked sponsors to adjust their programs so that at least 50 per cent of the music used is non-ASCAP. Deadline for this request was December 1st.

Broadcast Music, Inc., played host to newspapermen, in New York, Monday, at luncheon and an inspection of the New York offices. What it had accomplished to date was outlined by Sidney M. Kaye, vice-president and general manager.

Mr. Kaye asserted 90 per cent of radio stations with over 5,000 watts power have subscribed to BMI; 70 per cent of stations between 1,000 and 1,500 watts; 55 per cent of the stations with 500 to 1,000 watts; and 40 per cent of the stations of 100 and 250 watt power.

ASCAP music, he asserted, comprised only 25 per cent of that playing sustaining programs, and 36 per cent of music on commercial programs.

The board of directors of BMI will be increased to eight, Mr. Kaye said. Each network will have one representative on it. He added, however, that only 21 per cent of the BMI stock is owned by the networks.

Speculation continued, this week, in New York's "Tin Pan Alley," business home of the country's songwriters, over possible effect of a ban on ASCAP music over radio after January 1st. It was predicted that phonograph record companies would enjoy a boom; and that they, ASCAP, and the firms in ASCAP might heavily ballyhoo recordings as the only way to enjoy famed numbers unobtainable on the radio.

New Station Members

However, it was noted that the two largest phonograph record companies, RCA Victor, and Columbia, are associated with the NBC and the CBS.

Harry Engel has been appointed head of BMI's Los Angeles office. He was formerly with Fanchon and Marco, and with several music concerns.

BMI this week announced four new station members: WGAC, Augusta, Georgia; KXOK, St. Louis, Missouri; WOW, Omaha, Nebraska; and WTIC, Hartford.

ASCAP's "Cavalcade of American Music," Thursday, October 24th, at the New York World's Fair, went as scheduled. New York's Mayor Fiorello La Guardia conducted the opening number by the Rochester Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra. There were an afternoon and an evening concert. Among the prominent singers, composers and stars of radio, screen, and stage appearing were Margaret Speaks, Gene Autry, Jerome Kern, George M. Cohan, Irving Berlin, and Richard Rodgers. ASCAP's most famous music was featured.

But the affair was not broadcast.

'Ham' Judgment Says Golden of Actor Criticism

A bitter verbal attack against motion picture star Robert Montgomery, was the major portion of a luncheon address by Edward Golden, general sales manager for Monogram Pictures, to independent exhibitors in the Congress Hotel in Chicago last Friday.

He exhibited a copy of the New York Herald Tribune of October 24th, which quoted Mr. Montgomery as saying that the film heads are responsible for poor pictures and further charged in his story that they could not function in defense work.

"By what right," Mr. Golden said, "does this 'ham' presume to pass judgment on men like Sidney Kent, Harry Warner, Louis Mayer, J. Robert Rubin and Nick Schenck. I'm certain that all here will agree with me that any one of the men I mentioned are far superior mentally or in any other respect to Montgomery who earns $150,000 a year from the industry whose leaders he condemns and maligns."

Mr. Golden also deplored the action of Sam Goldwyn, whom he called "a so-called leader of the industry," in writing articles for national magazines and giving interviews to newspapers which he said tended to hold the industry up to scorn.

"Instead of trying to do all within their power to aid the industry certain people in the industry apparently are trying their best to give the reading public and radio audiences an entirely false picture of conditions as exist in the industry today and we should do all in our power to put an end to the inane rantings of these people," Mr. Golden said in his address.

The consent decree was mentioned by Mr. Golden who voiced the opinion and hope that conditions in the industry for all concerned might be made easier when enforcement of the terms of the decree begin.

He also asked the independents present to give more consideration to the smaller independent producing companies.

"After all," Mr. Golden said, "the power to keep in business or destroy the smaller companies rests with the independent exhibitors."

Jack Kirsch who presided at the meeting was praised by the speaker, who urged all present to support Kirsch in his fight on behalf of the Allied Illinois Theatres.

Monogram Financing 19 of 26 Features

Monogram Pictures is financing the major part of its new season product—19 of 26 scheduled features—W. Ray Johnston, president of the company, said on Tuesday, in Hollywood. He added that the pictures are being financed entirely by Monogram.

Additionally, Monogram is financing eight Tex Ritter westerns, Mr. Johnston said.

"Prefer to Stay at Home in Peace . . ."

—THE SAGE OF SAN SIMEON TO ROBERT MONTGOMERY, ACTOR

Over in that significant left-hand column of page one of the New York Journal-American, Tuesday afternoon last, appeared an earnest outgiving in behalf of the motion picture and its people, in response and reply to certain remarks of Robert Montgomery, actor, in a New York forum of the week prior. The expression in the Journal-American, unsigned, as that column so often is, is in the inimitable style, language and thought of William Randolph Hearst.

NO one objects more vigorously to criticism than an actor and no one, when he has an opportunity, indulges in more severe—even savage—criticism than an actor.

A week ago Mr. Robert Montgomery in New York verified and exemplified this.

First Mr. Montgomery defined to his own satisfaction the functions of the film.

He declared those functions to be entertainment, education and propaganda.

Many will differ from Mr. Montgomery's proposition in part at least.

Some will think that a better definition of the functions of the screen would be entertainment, information and cultural education, and that propaganda should in the main be excluded from the screen.

Some even will assert that the presence of too much propaganda has handicapped the screen. . . .

Some will aver that this propaganda on the screen has affected and infected the audiences and incited them to disagreeable demonstrations.

MR. MONTGOMERY will find quite a number of perfectly good Americans who have come to prefer to stay at home and listen to the radio in peace rather than attend motion picture theatres and have to listen to propaganda and become an unwilling part of a public disturbance.

Many of these quiet people think that the fundamental function of the screen is entertainment, and that even the more sublimated functions of information and cultural education should not be so conspicuous as to interfere with that essential quality of entertainment.

Mr. Montgomery is dissatisfied with the picture product in general and particularly with the leaders of the picture industry which produce this product.

He would improve the situation by introducing more propaganda.

We think that the audiences would rather endure the ills they have than fly to others that they know not of.

We think that the producers who have reduced attendance at the theatres by too much propaganda would hardly improve conditions by the homeopathic method of adding more propaganda as a cure.

Perhaps the producers, dull as Mr. Montgomery in his superior wisdom finds them, do actually know more about their business of production than does Mr. Montgomery who is merely one of the pawns upon the playboard,—who has never made a picture in his life and who certainly would not be willing to back his convictions with his own accumulated funds.

"I AM not an industrialist," says Mr. Montgomery.

An honest confession is good for the soul.

Mr. Montgomery is ordinarily an actor and a very good one.

That, however, does not make him a good critic. Nor does his criticism.

Says Mr. Montgomery disparagingly:

"I am convinced the weakness of leadership, under which to my knowledge the industry has been struggling, is directly responsible for its poor average product in the past and will make it impossible for the industry to perform its function of national defense in the present crisis with any appreciable degree of success."

Argument is something more than assumption.

Proof is something more than unsupported statement.

Mr. Montgomery blandly assumes the poor quality of the average product of the motion picture industry in the past.

There are very few people in the United States or in the world who will agree with Mr. Montgomery in that unwarranted assumption.

THIS baby among businesses, this so-called infant industry has in a brief generation built itself to be the fifth largest industry in the United States,—a country of giant industries.

Has it done this on the poor quality of its average product?

This infant American industry has invaded every country in the world and spread the name and fame and fashion and habit and art and thought and manufactured product of America throughout the world.

Has it accomplished this world-wide feat with leadership that is weak and pictures that are of poor average quality?

Is it not rather true that the average quality of pictures produced in America is so good and the leadership so great that most foreign nations have denied our American pictures the right to compete with their own home-made product, and the right to disseminate American ideas,—and the privilege of promoting American goods in conflict and competition with their own inferior grades of mind and method and material?

What greater compliment is there to the overwhelming excellence of the American picture than this world-wide dread of its devastating competition?

Mr. Montgomery is posing as a superior American patronizingly handing down to an inferior class of less patriotic and less competent moving picture producers his formula for a better screen.

But he is convinced in advance, mind you, that their "weakness" will make it impossible for these inferior Americans, these incompetent industrialists, to follow his formula with any "degree of success." . . .

Mr. Montgomery doubtless means to be a good American, but one distinguishing quality and characteristic of any good American is loyal appreciation of, and patriotic pride in, great American achievement.

There is no greater achievement in American industry than the motion picture has made. Let us all be duly proud and appreciative of it.

MR. MONTGOMERY says, "In an attempt to solve some portion of the problem in the industry of which I HAVE BEEN A PART. . ."

But Mr. Montgomery has just confessed that he is not an industrialist.

He should realize, therefore, with greater evidence of modesty and propriety to what infinitesimal degree he has been a part of the world-wide success of our marvelous American pictures.

Of the upwards of twenty-five thousand successful American pictures that have been made in this generation Mr. Montgomery has made only some twenty-five, and he has not made those. He has merely appeared in them.

These twenty-five as well as the twenty-five thousand have been made by clever writers, competent directors, other actors of equal genius to Mr. Montgomery's, by skillful and capable artists, architects, photographers, costumers, property men, electricians, and members of various arts and crafts and also, lest we forget, by the weak leadership which Mr. Montgomery so deeply deplores.

It is sad that distended frogs will continue to explode while endeavoring to become great oxen, and that small flys upon large power wheels will continue egotistically to say:

"How amazingly I have made this mighty wheel go 'round."

Stories

Hollywood's studios purchased five stories last week, as the new production season climbed into high gear.

Paramount led the list with the purchase of the new Ernest Hemingway novel, "For Whom the Bell Tolls," at a price which the company reported as being in excess of $100,000.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has purchased "The Vanishing Virginian," story of a peppery old man beloved of all who knew him. Written by Rebecca Yancey Williams, the book will be published by E. P. Dutton.

Twentieth Century-Fox bought two properties: "Bucharest Ballerina Murders," by F. Van Wyck Mason, and "Swamp Waters," by Vereen Bell, which is to appear in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post as well as being published as a novel.

At Columbia, producer Charles Rogers bought "Mermaids on Parade," a musical comedy romance with a water carnival setting. The story was written by William A. Pierce.

Jam Session

In spite of predictions in the public prints to the effect that the noble and recently developed art of rug-cutting was on the decline, film developments of recent days stand as proof to the contrary.

Band leaders and the concomitant orchestral accompaniments are much in the movie eye as of the moment.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had its Paul Whiteman in "Strike Up the Band." At Paramount, there are Orrin Tucker and his Band, with Bonnie Baker in "You're the One," and Artie Shaw and his aggregation in "Second Chorus." Additionally, Matty Malneck and company have just finished scoring for "Love Thy Neighbor," with Jack Benny, Fred Allen and Mary Martin.

RKO Radio has just finished "Let's Find a Song," formerly called "Let's Make Music," with Bob Crosby and His Bobcats, and "You'll Find Out," second of the Kay Kyser films, with a third being planned.

Then, too, there is Horace Heidt, signed by James Roosevelt for "Pot O' Gold," which will be released through United Artists, while Universal had its Charles Previn, musical director at the studio, in the same role in the recent "Little Bit of Heaven." At Columbia, possibilities for similar situations exist in the case of "Blondie Goes Latin" and two Irving Starr productions, "Time Out for Music" and "Show Business."

While Warners has not as yet succumbed to the band wave in its features, the "Music Masters" group of short subjects, comprising 10 for the 1940-41 season, has already seen the use of such names as Matty Malneck, Jan Garber, Skinny Ennis and Henry Busse.

REPUBLIC EXPANDS

Republic, this week, in the face of rapidly decreasing foreign markets, broke ground for two new sound stages at a cost of approximately half a million dollars.

Each stage, according to plans, will be a complete production unit, with dressing rooms, make-up rooms and wardrobe rooms as integral parts of the stages.

Placed on a 24-hour shift, construction is expected to be ready by January 1st.

Notes

MGM has organized a group of composers who will write original themes for film scores. The group now includes: Eugen Zador, Daniele Amfiteatrof and Mario Castlenuevo-Tedesco. It is planned to utilize newly written music, rather than library music in future productions.

Charles MacArthur and Al Christie head a new independent producing company, which has been formed by Bernard J. Steele. The new company will produce as its first feature, "Fathers of Madelon," by Frank R. Adams. Mr. MacArthur will prepare the screen treatment and co-direct with Mr. Christie. Distribution negotiations are in progress.

RKO Radio has discontinued its studio talent department. The stock company will be reduced to a minimum, with the studio concentrating on "name" players in the future. Ben Piazza, in charge of the talent department, Julius Evans and Oliver Hinsdell, who assisted Mr. Piazza, are leaving.

Herbert Polesie has been appointed ex-executive assistant to Norman Taurog, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director. He will assist in the production of "Men of Boys' Town."

Project a Film Industry Museum

A plan for the establishment in Hollywood of a motion picture historical museum will be discussed at the next meeting of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, scheduled for November 14th. The museum would be sponsored by the Academy in co-operation with the motion picture studios, the Los Angeles and Hollywood Chambers of Commerce and the Museum of Modern Art Film Library in New York City.

Three months ago, on August 2nd, Donald Gledhill, executive secretary of the Academy, was authorized by the board of governors to make an investigation of the proposal and arrange conferences with officials of the Chamber of Commerce and film studios. A detailed report, outlining the purpose and financing of the proposed museum, has been prepared for the Academy. It was proposed that the plan be tested on an experimental basis for six months or a year with the museum located at the main floor of the former "Trocadero" restaurant on Sunset Boulevard.

Walter Wanger, president of the Academy, and Mr. Gledhill have made arrangements with John Hay Whitney, president of the Museum of Modern Art, and with John Abbott, director of the Film Library, for the co-operation of that organization in New York with the Academy's historical museum in Hollywood.

Option Taken on Site

Academy officials have also discussed the matter with studio executives and civic groups and an option has been taken on the proposed site.

According to the report, the museum would "be set up on a comparatively small scale during an experimental period, but with the expectation that it will eventually fulfill for motion pictures a function similar to that of the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry, the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia and other graphic expositions of American achievement."

The Academy museum would be open to the public for a small fee and in the beginning the Chambers of Commerce and the film studios would help underwrite the project by buying a number of tickets for free distribution. The Academy also would be expected to contribute to the museum until its attendance is great enough to make it self-sustaining.

Besides the Hollywood museum building, the project provides for the establishment of travelling exhibits to be sent throughout the country for showing in such places as the Museum of Modern Art in New York City.

Sears Visit to Exchanges

Gradwell Sears, vice-president in charge of sales at Warner Brothers, is scheduled to leave the New York home offices next week for a tour of the company's Southern and Western exchanges. He expects to be gone eight weeks.

From New Zealand to U. S.

George Dillon, Warners' former New Zealand manager, has been transferred to the domestic distribution department, operating through West Virginia, out of Cincinnati. James Schmidt has been assigned to the home office.

BRITISH BUSINESS IS NORMAL, SAYS REISMAN

Despite war, RKO's bookings in Great Britain continue normal or above, Phil Reisman, foreign sales manager of the company, asserted this week in New York. He added that last week, despite heavy bombing in that country, theatre business for RKO was 10 per cent above normal.

Mr. Reisman returned last week, after two months in Brazil and Argentina. He presided at sales conventions in those two countries.

Good films are being made in Argentina, Mr. Reisman said. There are three "good" studios working near Buenos Aires, he said.

Roosevelt Quits "Soundies" Unit

Resignation as president of the Soundies Corporation of American was announced over the weekend by James Roosevelt, head of Globe Productions. He gave as reason pressure of duties as Captain in the United States Marine Corps Reserve; but he remains a vice-president and director of the company, and also president of the Globe company.

The Soundies firm is distributor of films for the Mills Novelty Company "Panoram" "dime-in-the-slot-movie" machines, for Mr. Roosevelt's Globe Productions will continue to make "Soundies." Globe Productions is also working on "Pot o' Gold" for United Artists release.

Harry Henigson is expected to remain in charge of Globe if, and when, Mr. Roosevelt departs on marine duty.

Mr. Roosevelt's resignation follows a $25,000 three-day cocktail party, at the beginning of last week, at which he and Fred Mills, head of the Mills Company were hosts, and which, in New York's Waldorf-Astoria, introduced the Panoram machine and "Soundies" to interested Easterners.

It also follows dissolution of the producing agreement between him and Samuel Bronston, disclosed last week. Mr. Bronston had expected to release his "Martin Eden" through United Artists, because of Mr. Roosevelt's releasing affiliation with that company.

Show Charity Film

The motion picture trade press attended a preview Thursday morning, in the United Artists projection room in New York of the Federation of Jewish Charities short subject, "It Is For Us the Living," produced by Film Associates of New York. The film, 19 minutes long, made in 35mm and being distributed in 35 and 16mm, depicts institutions supported by the Federation, in action. Narrators supply continuity.

Forest Shifts

Joseph Forest has resigned as assistant to Milton Silver, at National Screen Service, in New York. He is assuming a partnership at the Melbern Press.

Aid Unity, Film Industry Asked

The film, radio and stage were asked to aid national unity, at a luncheon Monday, in New York's Hotel Astor, at which leaders of those fields raised $4,000 to promote the Mobilization for National Unity, being conducted by the National Conference of Christians and Jews. Plans were made for a permanent amusement division of the Conference.

Totalitarianism, coming here, will "shackle" the amusement industry, Dr. Frank Kingdon warned the diners. Dr. Kingdon is educational director of the Citizenship Educational League.

Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, director of the Conference, asked members of the amusement industry to use "showmanship," and said they represented "cooperation among all faiths in action."

Basil O'Connor, chairman of the Mobilization drive, asked those present not to allow the nation to become divided. Other speakers were Former Judge Moses H. Grossman; Louis Nizer, film attorney; Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia Pictures; and Jules Brulatour, film distributor.

Invitations to film industry leaders, to attend the luncheon, were issued by J. Robert Rubin, of Loew's; Mr. Cohn, and Martin Quigley, of Quigley Publications.

B. F. Keith and Orpheum Profits

A net profit of $698,385, after all charges, is shown by the B. F. Keith Corporation and subsidiaries, for the 52 weeks ended September 28th.

The Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation and subsidiaries show a net profit of $989,346, after all charges, for the 52 weeks ended September 28th. This is equal to $15.65 per share on the 63,586 shares of 7½ per cent cumulative preferred convertible.

Stober Promoted

W. C. Stober has been appointed manager of the Chicago branch of the General Register Company. He was formerly on the staff of the Seattle branch of the National Theatre Supply Company, and recently resigned from that city's Western Theatre Equipment Supply Dealer Company. He replaces D. H. Finke. His appointment was announced by E. Bruce Johnson, president of General Register.

MOT's New School Tieup

A new tieup with schools, titled, "The March of Time Teachers Study Guide," a monthly question and answer guide for MOT, has been started, by Albert E. Sindlinger, promotion director. The first issue is based on Mexico to tie in with MOT's new release, "Mexico—Good Neighbor's Dilemma." The guide goes out to theatre managers to be turned over to teachers.

Democrats Honor Walker With Big Scranton Dinner

More than 1,300 overflowed the Crystal Ballroom and mezzanine floor of Hotel Casey in Scranton Monday night for the testimonial dinner honoring Frank C. Walker, postmaster general and president of the Comerford Theatre Corp., which operates more than 100 film houses in New York and Pennsylvania.

The affair was regarded by Scranton newspapermen as the greatest turnout at a banquet for a public figure in Scranton's history. Mr. Walker is the first Scranton resident ever to be appointed to a post in a presidential cabinet. The dinner was sponsored by the Democratic Committee of Lackawanna County.

Many Telegrams Received

Telegrams honoring Mr. Walker were received from many, including President Roosevelt, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York; Edward J. Flynn, national chairman of the Democratic Party and Ambrose O'Connell, first assistant postmaster general. Mr. Roosevelt in his message, sent from New York, said: "I have just learned that you with other friends of Frank Walker are tendering him a testimonial dinner tonight in Scranton. It is a fine thing to do and I speak as an old friend of your honor guest. I have known him through many years and I plead guilty to a gross understatement of fact when I say that Frank Walker deserves the tribute you are giving him in Pennsylvania. He is entitled to similar tributes from his friends in many of our other 47 states of these United States."

Samuel T. Rayburn (D., Texas), speaker of the House, and David L. Lawrence, national Democratic committeeman from Pennsylvania, were among the speakers.

A scroll praising Mr. Walker's "nobility of character," his "irreproachable private life"; his "integrity in business" and as "our leading citizen" was presented.

Speaks on Election

Mr. Walker in his address reviewed President Roosevelt's presidential career and asked the anthracite coal field to support him in the election.

Executives of the Comerford Company attended. Among them were J. J. O'Leary, general manager and a member of the committee; John Nolan, film buyer; Charles Ryan, building superintendent; John and Thomas Comerford, theatre executives; James McKenney, assistant treasurer; John Roberts, booker; Thomas Killeen, Wilkes-Barre, Samuel Freedman, Pottsville, and Harry Spiegel, Scranton, all prominent in the Comerford circuit.

Other guests were Mrs. M. E. Comerford, widow of the chain's founder and an aunt of Mr. Walker; Mrs. Thomas Friday, Mr. Comerford's daughter, and her husband, Attorney Friday, counsel for the Comerford company; Louis Krause and Richard Walsh, secretary-treasurer and vice-president, respectively, of the international theatre workers and stagehands' union.

Nizer writes a book and tells all—about speaking

While Louis Nizer was still a student at Columbia University, he started on an amazing career of oratory, signalized by winning the coveted Curtis Oratorical Prize, the highest award the university can bestow upon its eloquent sons. Since that time, Mr. Nizer has become a familiar figure at countless motion picture functions at which he has heaped encomiums upon the industry he serves as counsel and executive secretary of the New York Film Board of Trade.

This week, Mr. Nizer's book, "Thinking On Your Feet," bearing the sub-title, "Adventures in Speaking," is published under the imprint of Liveright Publishing Company.

The Lawyer Who Went Dumb

After discussion of the somewhat technical phases of speechmaking, the author tells of the young lawyer, who, appearing before the august U. S. Supreme Court for the first time, became silent with fear. Mr. Nizer describes the incident:

". . . He had conscientiously labored for months over the argument that he would present in forty-five minutes to that august body. As he arose, facing in the flesh the nine faces which had, for years, peered inanimately from his office wall, he was suddenly overwhelmed by the enormity of the occasion. He stood frozen. His memory went numb. He could not even recall the name of his client. Justice McReynolds expressed disgust with his total unpreparedness. Chief Justice Hughes, however, understood the phenomenon and gently read passages from the attorney's brief, as if massaging his brain to remove its paralysis. When the ordeal was ended, the attorney retired stoically to the corridor and fainted."

Continuing, he writes: "More actors have had their minds go blank than murderers. Memory mortality is high among speakers, too. What is more painful to an audience than to experience the horror of an actor as his free flow of words suddenly dries up, a desperate stare takes possession of his eyes, pallor chases the blood from his face and he stands immobile for what appears to be hours, uttering not a sound. This, too, is the risk of memorization."

Repartee at a Famous Dinner

Mr. Nizer recounts the repartee, between the chairman and a guest at a famous dinner. The guest had returned after absenting himself for an hour to avoid hearing a dull speech. "Is he finished, yet?" the guest asked. The chairman replied, "Yes, a long time ago, but he is still speaking." He also describes the speaker who fumbled for his watch and was directed to a calendar upon the wall.

Mark Twain, according to the author, threw a spotlight of humor upon what he termed a lack of "terminal facilities." The humorist told of an experience at a fund-raising rally for the Foreign Mission:

"When the speaker had talked ten minutes I was so impressed that I decided to give every cent I had with me. Ten minutes later I concluded that I would throw into the treasury all the silver I had with me. After another ten minutes I decided I would not give anything. At the end of the talk, when the contribution plate came around, I was so utterly exhausted by the argument that I extracted two dollars for my own use."

Says Mr. Nizer: "A speaker who does not strike oil in ten minutes should stop boring."

Quoting the historian, Carlyle, who wrote that history is the essence of innumerable biographies, Mr. Nizer writes, in eulogizing the late Carl Laemmle:

LOUIS NIZER

"The motion picture industry, too, is the essence of innumerable biographies. And some day, perhaps a century away, when the world will have realized that the motion picture is the greatest cultural, educational and entertaining medium ever known, and learned men will write the history of this great art, there will be inscribed in ink and stone the character and image of the guest of honor and perhaps the inscription will read:

'TO HIM WHO BUILT WHILE HE FOUGHT'

And underneath that inscription there will appear in appropriately informal language the words 'Uncle Carl Laemmle.'"

New "Slot-Movie" Company

Announcement has been made of another automatic slot movie company, to be known as "Show Box, Inc."

The company has been organized by Mitchell Hamilburg, artist representative and advertising representative in Hollywood; Irving Starr, independent producer, and Murray Briskin, theatre operator. Offices have been temporarily taken in the Essex House, where franchises are being handled and where demonstrations of the machine are being made.

Bell and Howell are manufacturing the projection and sound equipment. A sales promotion campaign is now in operation for the sale of franchises both on a state-wide and territorial basis. In the present plan of sales-promotion emphasis is being made upon a new finance plan which the company is offering to distributors.

AMPA Honors Terry

Paul Terry, producer of Terrytoons, was to be honored at the bi-weekly luncheon Thursday at the Hotel Edison, New York City, of the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers. It is Mr. Terry's "Silver Jubilee" which the organization is observing.

Ban on 'Ramparts', 'Flames' Lifted

"The Ramparts We Watch," March of Time, banned in Pennsylvania several weeks ago by the Board of Censors, will be exhibited in the state after all, but not in its original form. On the other hand, Paramount's "The World In Flames," banned by the same censors on October 18, has had the ban lifted without any reservations.

March of Time, producers of "The Ramparts," and RKO Radio, its distributors, instructed their attorneys not to go through with the scheduled appeal, which was to be heard this week before the Pennsylvania State Supreme Court, meeting in Pittsburgh. Instead, it was learned, the producers and the State censors met privately and agreed to delete certain parts to which the censors objected. It is believed that all or a large part of the Nazi "Baptism of Fire" sequences were cut. The censors had objected originally to that part, saying it would terrify or incite the public.

William Clarke Mason, Philadelphia attorney, disclosed that the planned appeal from the adverse decision given by the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court, upholding the censor board's ban, had been dropped.

Last Friday, acting on Paramount's application for a rehearing on the board's order prohibiting the exhibition of its "World In Flames" in Philadelphia, the censors lifted the ban. Originally, the picture was rejected for the same reasons as that given for banning the March of Time feature. No reason was given for the change of attitude, nor was any statement issued on rescinding the ban. Mrs. Edna R. Carroll, chairman of the State Censor board, "could not be reached." However, it was learned that the ban was lifted without any reservations or any eliminations of scenes, the endorsement of leading political and Government figures said to have carried much weight with the board. As a result, the picture opens Saturday at the Stanton Theatre in Philadelphia.

French Film in Trouble

In Birmingham, Ala., litigation and counter litigation resulted from the showing of the film "French Girls' Club" at the Galax Theatre the past week. First the police banned the picture on the grounds the advertising on the theatre front was risque.

Theatre manager W. H. Merritt, claiming the city had no authority to ban the picture obtained a temporary injunction, which, however, was later dissolved. Meanwhile the city revoked the theatre's license, and the theatre obtained a temporary injunction against the city which, however, did not permit the showing of the picture. The theatre went ahead anyhow with the showing, whereupon the police seized the film.

As a result, the police have several charges pending in police court against Mr. Merritt, including one for each day the picture was shown, also a charge of misleading advertising.

"Rockne" Radio Rights

The "Lux Theatre," radio program, has paid $1,200 for rights to Warner Brothers' "Knute Rockne—All American." The program will be broadcast December 2nd, with many of the original cast.

Concessions to Film Draftees

More film groups this week reported salary or other concessions to workers called for the draft.

The Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, New York, will waive membership dues for members called into military service, the board of directors decided at a meeting this week.

Twentieth Century-Fox Draft Policy

Provisions for employees of Twentieth Century-Fox called into the armed services of the United States were announced this week by S. R. Kent, president, as follows:

"1—Every employee who shall have been an employee of the corporation for not less than one year shall upon entering any of the armed services of the United States for the 12-month training period in the present emergency be granted a leave of absence without pay, provided, however, that upon the expiration of such service such employees shall promptly apply for resumption of employment.

"2—(a) Any group insurance now carried by the Corporation on the life of such employees shall continue to be carried. (b) The cost of any group insurance now borne by such employees through this Corporation shall be advanced by the Corporation.

"3—Upon the commencement of such leave of absence each employee shall be paid an amount equal to not in excess of four weeks salary, the number of weeks measuring such payment to be in the discretion of the officers of the Corporation."

Warner Brothers announced that any member conscripted and having less than two years service with the company will receive two weeks pay upon leaving for camp. A portion of the employees salary also will be paid to his family during the year of service with the Army.

The Indiana-Illinois Theatre Circuit has notified its employees it will pay two weeks' salaries and continue payments for group insurance during the tenure of military service whether employees enlist or are called by conscription. Positions also will be open on their return from service.

Theatre Men Enlist

James Holmquist of the Cosmo theatre staff, Chicago, has joined the U. S. Naval Reserve and is now in service.

Escape

(MGM)

Family vs. Fuehrer

Further dealings with matters despotic in dictator regions are presented in this picturization of the widely read "best-seller" of the same name. Concerned with the frantic efforts of an American son to save his German born mother from the death penalty, the screen adaptation preserves the melodramatic pace and suspense of the original novel and in addition presents the stars of the piece, Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor, in performances that match in persuasive perfection and power any of their previous portrayals.

Miss Shearer, looking her most statuesque self for the requirements of her regal role, and cast in a part different from her most recent sophisticated appearance in "The Women," breaks loose from the restraint requirements of her character assignment to play an emotional scene at the finish of the proceedings that matches her dramatic talent and tradition. Mr. Taylor again reveals his ability for serious and straight playing with which he scored so heavily in "Waterloo Bridge."

Mervyn LeRoy, the director, has given the story a fast and pointed pace. Arch Oboler and Marguerite Roberts have supplied Mr. LeRoy with a screen script streamlined for just such purposes.

The central character, "Emmy Ritter," around whose prison predicament the complications spin, is played by Nazimova, who here makes a belated but welcome return to the screen after many years of absence.

Mme. Nazimova has not much to do but lie abed and manifest anguish but in the few moments of activity alloted to her, such as in the opening scenes when she castigates the political philosophy and practices of her persecutors, she displays her superb histrionic training. Conrad Veidt, vastly effective in an unsympathetic role, Philip Dorn as a doctor who still preserves a spark of human feeling beneath his Prussian exterior, Felix Bressart as a timorous family friend and Albert Basserman as a beaten and bewildered lawyer stand out chiefly as excellent supporting players.

Although the plot of the narrative contains a stratum of strong political import, actual incidents and situations are drawn on a personal and individual basis and it is from such a treatment that the wider issues of the plot are sketched. Comic relief interludes and to a definite degree the romantic motif are sacrificed to the melodramatic pitch of the story. Ideological connotations are suggested rather than displayed, such as views of petty but despotic official practice and the terrorized silence and paralyzed response of the people. Although subtly stated, the script's sympathy is apparent.

"Mark Preysing" comes to Germany in search of his mother's whereabouts. She, as the internationally renowned stage name, "Emmy Ritter" had returned to her fatherland to transact some business and in the course of it had been sentenced to death on the charge of treason. With the help of "Dr. Ditten," the son finally locates his mother and the old woman is smuggled out of prison presumably as dead. The doctor had previously administered an injection that had placed her in a coma resembling death. After experiencing one of the picture's tautest crises, wherein the coffin carrying "Emmy's" unconscious body is delayed in transit by the gestapo gruelling of the political police, "Mark" takes his mother to the mountain home of the "Countess." She, as the American born mistress of a high army official, had previously met "Mark" and had developed a romantic attachment for him. With the "Countess'" aid, Emmy is finally smuggled out of the enemy country, while the "Countess" is forced to remain behind and stall off her lover summoning the police to pick up the mother and son fugitives.

The audiences who sponsored with their patronage approval the screening of previous anti-Nazi films, this newest contribution to that classification should find considerable audience endorsement. For gatherings who are more personality than political minded, the production offers in the picture's principals potent box office inducement. The novelized and magazine serialized sources of the screen script should attract further ticket purchasing.

La Dietrich Returns to Norm

Marlene Dietrich, who varied her style to achieve what was hailed as a come-back in Joe Pasternak's "Destry Rides Again," returns to norm in the portrayal of a South Sea siren whose allure inspires strong men to violence in the producer's second film in her behalf. Cast as a cafe entertainer deported from island to island for inciting brawls which complicate the affairs of her employers, residents and the U. S. Navy, the star sings songs, wears clothes and sighs dialogue in the manner to which her early vehicles accustomed her public. Highlight of the production is a free-for-all fight between rivals for her favors, their henchmen and assorted bystanders, which has not been matched for thoroughness and duration in the field of rough-and-tumble.

The story, by John Meehan and Harry Tugend, relates an episode in the life of a girl whose career as a cafe singer playing the islands has been and continues to be marked by outbreaks of fisticuffs in the ranks of her admirers, necessitating executive intervention culminating in deportation. On the island principally dealt with, she is wooed by a sailor, besieged by a fellow fond of throwing knives, body-guarded by a deserter from the Navy and a magician addicted to kleptomania, despaired of by an unwilling employer, and, finally, welcomed back to the tramp steamer which brought her, by the ship's doctor, who professes ethical kinship. Incidents intervening between arrival and leavetaking, all stemming from male interest in the girl, range from comedy to romance and melodrama.

John Wayne, Oscar Homolka and Albert Dekker enact principal contenders for the entertainer's affections. Broderick Crawford and Mischa Auer are seen as her body-guards, each supplying humor. Billy Gilbert is in character as a cafe operator. Anna Lee's apportionment of footage as the good girl in the script is negligible.

Direction is by Tay Garnett, identified with many a film of maritime setting, and the art direction by Jack Otterson imparts realism to scene and incident. Ladislas Fodor and Laslo Vadnai are accredited with the original story.

A Hoodlum Reforms

The setting of this being the lower east side of New York, it is evident that, according to screen formula, something to do with reforming a hoodlum is called for. And, that is precisely what occurs in a rather familar scenario. The dialogue seems dated.

The film goes back to the pre-depression days of 1927 but not the pre-depression days for two young boys nurtured in the melting pot of the east side. It follows them down through the years by montage, to the present. Starting out as wastrels the boys have taken divergent paths in those formative years. One is a college graduate, the other a prison graduate.

John Garfield plays the role of the gangster, the grown-up hoodlum. Finishing three years in San Quentin he decides to go home to see his mother, "Mrs. Lorenzo" (Marjorie Rambeau), and the boy his mother had adopted, "Nick" (William Lundigan), the other hoodlum, now graduating summa cum laude from college. With him "Joe" (Garfield) brings a "gun moll" named "Laurie" (Brenda Marshall).

Texas Rangers Ride Again

(Paramount)

Modern Western

Mixing action romance and comedy in palatable quantities, Paramount's "Texas Rangers Ride Again" is a modern western, its time the present, its locale a huge Texas ranch; the plot concerns the efforts of a crooked slaughter house to steal cattle from under the noses of the ranchers and the Texas Rangers. John Howard, Ellen Drew, Akim Tamiroff, May Robson, Broderick Crawford and Charley Grapewin have the principal roles in the film, which received the approbation of a Los Angeles preview audience.

"Texas Rangers Ride Again" has all the elements necessary to satisfy western fans, the pictorial quality of Archie Stout's camera work standing out. James Hogan's direction of the original screen play by William R. Lipman and Horace McCoy paces the action well.

Posing as wanted outlaws, "Kingston" and "Townsley," Texas Rangers, work their way into the confidence of the cattle thieves headed by a relative of "Mrs. Dangerfield," owner of the ranch. In the denouement they uncover the criminals and "Kingston" finds that he and "Ellen Dangerfield" have mutual admiration for each other. The climax is not reached, however, without chases, hard riding and fighting.

Previewed at Paramount Theatre, Los Angeles, a first run house where the audience was quite enthusiastic.—V. K.

The Fargo Kid

(RKO)

Western, with Songs

"The Fargo Kid" is the second of the western pictures in the series at RKO starring Tim Holt. As a plain, simple western it will win fans for Holt; as a western with songs, it will win more. It, by comparison with the first of the series, "Wagon Train," is done with so much more deftness in all departments that any resemblance to the former is almost purely coincidental.

Supporting Holt are Emmett Lynn, for comedy purposes; Ray Whitley and his band of western singers; Jane Drummond, Cyrus W. Kendall, Ernie Adams, Paul Fix, Paul Scardon, Glenn Strange and Mary MacLaren.

Edward Killy directed from a screenplay by Morton Grant and Arthur V. Jones, who adapted W. C. Tuttle's story. Bert Gilroy was the associate of Lee Marcus, executive producer.

The story deals with the efforts of an assayer to steal the gold mine of an elderly couple and their daughter, which plot "The Fargo Kid" with the aid of his friends foils after gun fights, chases, and the usual affairs of western pictures.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

(Republic)

Murder Mystery

Exploitation beneficiary of a location premiere in Atlanta, scene of the story, this picturization of Medora Field's novel of like title is a murder mystery melodrama with comedy emphasized.

Setting of the story, adapted by Stuart Palmer, is a lonely house near Atlanta wherein have foregathered the kin of the deceased owner, whose passing is believed due to criminal act of someone present. Another murder occurs to make this a certainty. Disappearance of both bodies complicates matters. Chance discovery of a secret room, existence of which most have denied, leads to exposure and apprehension of the culprit.

Although all members of the cast participate in both humor and plot, Edgar Kennedy and Willie Best dominate the comedy side. John Hubbard and Wendy Barrie carry the romantic theme.

Blondie Plays Cupid

(Columbia)

Penny Singleton et al

Producer Robert Sparks and Director Frank R. Strayer, who have guided Columbia's "Blondie" pictures from their start, use everything from dialogue to "Blondie's" kitchen sink to promote comedy in "Blondie Plays Cupid," seventh in the group and first of the new season's series from the Chic Young cartoon strip. The result is a combination of situation and oral comedy, combined with the slapstick of old. The audience at the Hollywood Pantages Theatre greeted it with hilarity.

The "Blondie" cast regulars of Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms, Jonathan Hale, Danny Mummert, Irving Bacon and "Daisy," the dog, are supported by Glenn Ford, Luana Walters, Will Wright, Spencer Charters, and Leona Roberts.

Richard Flournoy and Karen DeWolf wrote the screenplay from a story by Miss DeWolf and Charles M. Brown. The picture's plot, dealing with "Blondie's" efforts to keep fireworks away from her family, is untimely, however.

Meet the Wildcat

(Universal)

Cops and Robbers

Ralph Bellamy and Margaret Lindsay are the principals in this mystery story which has Mexico City as its locale. There a robber known as "The Wildcat" has been stealing art treasures in such a fashion that his apprehension seems impossible.

Mr. Bellamy, as an American detective, poses as the crook, a pose which takes in the girl photographer for a picture magazine, the role given Miss Lindsay. The real thief is eventually caught.

Comic support is lent by Allen Jenkins, as a Bronx taxi-driver still in Mexico City after having driven a fare there. The real thief is portrayed by Joseph Schildkraut, ostensibly a reputable art dealer. Rounding out the cast are Jerome Cowan, as a newspaper man; Robert O. Davis, Frank Pugia, Guy D'Ennery and Hans Herbert.

Joseph G. Sanford was associate producer and Arthur Lubin directed the Alex Gottlieb screen play.

Previewed at the Studio City Theatre, North Hollywood, where it met with moderately favorably response.—WALTER SELDEN.

Mercy Plane

(Producers Pictures)

Air Melodrama

The operations of a new kind of racket on the screen—that of stealing airplanes to be sold to foreign powers—are exposed in this criminal and romantic melodrama released by Producers Pictures Corporation. James Dunn and Frances Gifford are co-starred. They are aided by Matty Fain and William Pawley as the leaders of the criminal ring, and Harry Harvey, as comedian.

Directed by Richard Harlan, this is a screen story of air races, feuds between the romantic interests, a large-scale plot to steal privately owned planes climaxed with the purloining of an ambulance plane capable of landing in a limited area. The picture ends, as is expected, with a plot successfully enforced bringing the criminal ring into the open and clearing the name of an innocent victim.

Sigmund Neufield was associate producer of the production based on the original screen play by William Lively.

The Trail Blazers

(Republic)

Western Melodrama

The second of the new series of Mesquiteer pictures has the trio of justice-seeking cowboys lending a hand in establishing a telegraph system through the new West. Robert Livingston and Bob Steele are again the stars in the series, with Rufe Davis, the third member of the group, as the exponent of comedy and sound.

Based on an original story by Earle Snell the Three Mesquiteers, aiding in the construction of the telegraph system become entangled with outlaws who foresee their doom if the system become successful in joining law enforcement agencies of the territory. More than once the supply train with the vital equipment is hijacked by the bandits and the engineers in charge of the construction, murdered. The Mesquiteers are framed by the local newspaper editor and thrown into jail from which they later escape to continue their crusade and bring their enemies to justice.

Like most westerns produced by Republic the picture has a keynote of action aided by romance, music and comedy. Harry Grey was associate producer and George Sherman directed.

SHORT PRODUCT

The Green Hornet Strikes Again

(Universal)

Second Serial Installment

The return engagement of this well-known air wave personality finds him in picture form conducting his campaign against crime in much the same style as he practiced in his opening chapter combat, "The Green Hornet," released in the first month of this year. In private life the "Hornet" still pursues the ineffectual career of a newspaper editor who resorts to a masquerade character when his paper crusading apparently proves fruitless against the criminal activity of a racketeering gang. Obstacles put in the way of the chapter film corrector include several rounds of fisticuffs and gun play, generously proportioned in each installment, and the specific dangers from a burning boat, a car careening off a drawbridge and a house scuttled by an electrical storm. Although the "Hornet" is still true to his purpose, Warren Hull has succeeded Gordon Jones in the title role but Keye Luke and Anne Nagel remain as "Hornet" allies for the sequel. Chapter-conscious places centers, which found the serial activity of the "Green Hornet" equal to their action and thrill requirements, should find the further adventures of the gentleman exciting material to follow weekly. The complete accounting of the crime crusade will take fifteen chapter rounds to narrate with each installment running twenty minutes approximately. Release date is set for December 24, 1940.

Recruiting Daze

Colored Cartoon

It was to be expected that sooner or later the cartoon commentators would give some consideration by way of pen and ink treatment to mobilization matters current today. And now the possibility has become an actuality in this colored cutup contribution. Army recruiting activity is given a gag and guffaw inspection. Passing in review are glimpses of gun-ware, particularly depictions of "Big Bertha" and "Little Bertha." Air facilities, such as pursuit machines and "sausage" balloons, come in for some fun poking. As for the army personnel, the executive forces are pictured in a heavy conference over tick-tack-toe tactics. All through the burlesque business there wanders the aimless but comic character of "Punchy," a none too bright recruiting candidate, who gets himself into all sorts of complications and finally is propelled from a big gun to a distant planet. The comedy incidents are amusing in their own right and become doubly so for being so pointed and timely.—Running time, 6 2/3 minutes.

The Green Archer

(Columbia)

Serial

Among the best known and melodramatic works of the late Edgar Wallace is "The Green Archer." Some 15 years ago it was made into a serial by Pathe and enjoyed considerable success. Now, Columbia has produced a new "Green Archer" serial, of 15 chapters, modernized to fit the tempo of the day. Whether the kids of today will wait with bated breath for each new chapter as their elders did in yesteryear remains to be seen. The serial has a strong advantage to start with, in the name of author and title and the first chapter gives promise of plenty of action and suspense. The setting is an old castle where sliding panels, secret passageways and falling floors vie with train wrecks, auto smash-ups and what-not for customers' attention. Then there is the archer, identity unknown. The cast is headed by Victor Jory and includes Iris Meredith, James Craven, Robert Fiske, Dorothy Fay, Forrest Taylor, Jack Ingram, Joseph W. Girard, Fred Kelsey and Kit Guard. The direction is by James W. Horne. Running time, first chapter 32 minutes.

Documentary

Produced at a cost of $25,000 by Joseph Losey and backed by the National Youth Administration of the Federal Security Agency "Youth Gets a Break" is a documentary film study of the work accomplished by this organization. Opening with scenes of how the youth of this country, unemployed and unable to find work because of lack of experience, lead shiftless and useless lives hindering themselves for productive work in future years and burdening their homes and respective cities or towns. From there the picture goes on to show the inner workings of the administration from its first steps of taking the young men from the street corners, pool rooms and open road and giving them work on the various NYA projects throughout the country, teaching them in their own shops and buildings the numerous trades and commercial fundamentals of business so that they will be better prepared to enter these highly competitive fields with knowledge and experience, and running their own community similar to that of a big city. William E. Watts directed the picture which was photographed by four cameramen. The NYA is negotiating with motion picture companies for the distribution of this thirty minutes subject to be released after election.

Stagefright

(Vitaphone)

Cartoon

Produced by Leon Schlesinger this cartoon, another in the series of Merrie Melody color subjects, concerns two dogs in pursuit of a bone. Feuding and fighting they discover themselves backstage of a vaudeville theatre. Here they become involved with a trained seal, a tight rope, a pigeon that lives in a magician's hat and whose peace is continually interrupted by the battle, and sundry other objects common to a theatre's stage. After many adventures the pigeon takes command of the situation and satisfies both canines.—Running time, seven minutes.

Listen to Larry
(Paramount)
Larry Clinton and Orchestra

Larry Clinton, familiarly known to his syncopation subjects as the old "Dipsy Doodler," leads his orchestral personnel in this musical Headliner for some rousing rounds of modern melody making. The recital runs the jazz gamut from Maestro Clinton's own composition, "Study in Surrealism" through the Fosterian gem, "I Dream of Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair" with stop offs for renditions of "Well, All Right" and "What's the Matter with Me." Terry Allen, Jimmy Curry and Helen Southern accommodate with vocal selections.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Mediterranean Milestones
(Central)
Travel Subject

Another in the series of travel films produced by Philip M. Brown has for its locale the Mediterranean, now of vital importance to Great Britain and of equal interest to her enemies. Syria, Palestine, Tunis, Algiers and Morocco are visited by the roving camera while the Suez Canal, connecting India and the Orient, and Gibraltar, British stronghold of the Mediterranean, are given prominent attention in the subject. An interesting and revealing job has been accomplished by the producer.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Nature's Nursery
(Paramount)
Perfect Paragraphic

Somewhat similar in subject and style of study to the Academy Award Winner, "Busy Little Bears" is this out of doors visit to the nursery premises of Mother Nature. Through some very capable and clear camera closeups, the four-legged little bundles of joy are seen with their respective mamas as the furry families go about their domestic business. The guide for the nursery tour is under a sage old owl whose words of wisdom are both sensible and amusing.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Fly Fishing
(Vitaphone)
Fishing as an Art

With many brook and stream fishermen already looking forward to the Spring and trout fishing this Sports Parade subject presents Dick Miller, world's champion fly caster, in action. Mr. Miller illustrates his technique used for fly casting and then demonstrates his amazing control by casting at floating objects and scoring a bull's-eye each time. The delicate care that goes into the making of these flies, constructed with material from all parts of the world, is clearly shown. By way of contrast an amateur, in comic relief, is shown trying his hand at the art. This is an ideal subject for its nostalgic effect to play during the winter months.—Running time, ten minutes.

Holiday Highlights
(Vitaphone)
Holiday Satire

A satire on the national holidays throughout the year with many gags and humorous off-screen commentary, is this Merrie Melody subject in color. Beginning with the new year symbolized by a crawling babe and progressing through the year burlesqueing the holidays the subject ends with a comic twist on Christmas.—Running time, seven minutes.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

Advance outlines of productions nearing completion as supplied by the producers. These are not reviews. . . .

Comrade X

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Following their first roles together in "Boom Town," Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr appear here in a comedy laid in Russia. The Ben Hecht-Charles Lederer story casts Gable as an apparently drunken newspaper man sending worthless stories to his American paper, but who is in reality "Comrade X," who manages to smuggle out stories most embarrassing to the regime.

Felix Bressart, who heads the support cast, discovers this and blackmails the reporter into trying to get his daughter out of Russia. Miss Lamarr, as the daughter, is unwilling to leave at first but soon sees the point when all are tossed in jail, along with scores of her former comrades. Their escape and romance between the principals follow.

Directed by King Vidor, whose last was "Northwest Passage," the picture's cast includes Oscar Homolka, Eve Arden, Sig Rumann, Vladimir Sokoloff and Edgar Barrier.

Gottfried Reinhardt acted as producer.

Release date: November 29, 1940.

South of Suez

(Warners - First National)

A melodrama based in the African diamond country, this Barry Trivers screen play, based on a Sheridan Gibney story, has in its cast George Brent, Brenda Marshall, George Tobias, James Stephenson, Lee Patrick, Eric Blore, Miles Mander, Cecil Kellaway and Mary Forbes.

The story casts Mr. Tobias in the role of a ruthless and cowardly mine owner, hated by the wife who married him for his money, enacted by Miss Patrick. At her urging, he has hired the adventurer depicted by Mr. Brent as foreman. By constantly throwing herself at him, the woman forces Brent off the place, and he becomes foreman for a dissipated Englishman whose discovery of a huge stone causes his murder. Accused of the crime, Brent flees to England, where he falls in love with the Englishman's daughter; is caught, but finally exonerated.

Release date: November 16, 1940.

Flight Command

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Filmed largely at the San Diego Naval Air Station, "Flight Command" brings the U. S. Navy Air Service to the screen. Heading the cast is Robert Taylor as a flight cadet who joins a fighting squadron as a replacement for a member killed in action.

Commander of the squadron is seen as Walter Pidgeon, with Ruth Hussey as his wife. Romantic complications among the three are finally straightened out as Taylor saves the life of his commander.

The cast includes Paul Kelly, Shepperd Strudwick, Nat Pendleton, Red Skelton, Dick Purcell, William Tannen, William Stelling and Stanley Smith.

An original story by Commander Harvey Haislip and John Sutherand, the picture was directed by Frank Borzage, whose last was "The Mortal Storm." J. Walter Ruben produced.

Release date: To be determined.

Tin Pan Alley

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Alice Faye and Betty Grable appear here as sisters performing in a vaudeville act, who meet a pair of young would-be music publishers portrayed by Jack Oakie and John Payne. Miss Faye puts over songs for the pair, falls in love with Payne, but leaves after a heated argument.

It takes the War to reunite the two, with their story meanwhile also serving as a history of Tin Pan Alley in the years before World War I.

Allen Jenkins, Esther Ralston, Katherine Aldridge, Ben Carter and Elisha Cook, Jr., appear in the Robert Ellis-Helen Logan screen play, based on a story by Pamela Harris. Walter Lang directed and Kenneth Macgowan was associate producer. Mack Gordon and Harry Warren wrote the music and lyrics for the picture.

Release date: December 13, 1940.

Doomed Caravan

(Sherman-Paramount)

Hopalong Cassidy, as usual interpreted by William Boyd, here helps the woman owner of a wagon train, and finds himself up against an outlaw leader portrayed by Morris Ankrum, who is attempting to get control of a freighting line by consistently robbing it.

The cast includes Russell Hayden, Andy Clyde, Minna Gombell, Georgia Hawkins, Trevor Bardette and Pat O'Brien. Mr. O'Brien, though a namesake, is no relation to the Warner star.

Harry Sherman produced and Lesley Selander directed the Johnston McCulley-J. Benton Cheney screen play.

Release date: January 24, 1941.

Michael Shayne, Private Detective

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Lloyd Nolan, as the title character in this murder mystery, manages to unearth motives and a murderer, while also taking on the assignment of keeping an eye on a debutante who likes to gamble too well.

The girl is portrayed by Marjorie Weaver, with others in the cast including Joan Valerie, Walter Abel, Elizabeth Patterson, Donald MacBride, Douglas Dumbrille, Clarence Kolb and George Meeker.

Based on a novel by Brett Halliday, the screen play was written by Stanley Rauh and Manning O'Connor. Eugene Forde directed on the Sol Wurtzel side of the studio.

Release date: To be determined.

(Formerly called "The Private Practice of Michael Shayne".)

Romance of the Rio Grande

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Latest in the "Cisco Kid" series starring Cesar Romero, this has him foil attempts to wrest a ranch away from its rightful owners by the expedient of masquerading as heir to the ranch, the latter in the meantime having been wounded.

Appearing are Patricia Morison, Lynne Roberts, Ricardo Cortez, Chris-Pin Martin, Aldrich Bowker, Joseph McDonald and Pedro de Cordoba. Harold Buchman and Samuel G. Engel wrote the screen play from a novel by Katherine Fullerton Gerould, suggested by the O. Henry character.

Herbert I. Leeds, who handled "Cisco Kid and the Lady," directed with Sol Wurtzel as executive producer.

Release date: To be determined.

You'll Find Out

(RKO Radio)

Described as "a story with positively no social significance," this is the second film making use of band-leader Kay Kyser and his troupe, including soloists Ginny Simms and Harry Babbitt and comedians Ish Kabibble and Sully Mason.

The cast has in it three of the thrill portrayers: Peter Lorre, Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, as well as Dennis O'Keefe, Helen Parrish, and Alma Kruger.

The story, liberally interpolated with musical offerings, has the band leader and his group go to an old castle serving as the home of the girl enacted by Miss Parrish, who is in love with the band's manager, portrayed by Mr. O'Keefe.

Several attempts are made on the young woman's life, but the would-be killers are thwarted and their last effort results in their own destruction.

The James V. Kern screen play was based on an original by Kern and David Butler, who produced and directed as he did in the previous Kay Kyser production, which was "That's Right, You're Wrong."

Release date: November 22, 1940.

Border Legion

(Republic)

Roy Rogers appears here as a fugitive from justice, who flees to the Idaho territory to cover the crime really committed by the brother of the girl with whom he is in love.

The girl in question, pursuing him in an effort to give himself up and stand trial, is shot by a gang which has been terrorizing the neighborhood. The girl is saved and the gang cleaned up by Rogers and his friend "Gabby" Hayes. Carol Hughes portrays the girl, and the cast includes Maude Eburne, Joe Sawyer, as the gang leader; Jay Novello and Hal Taliafero.

Joseph Kane, who made "The Ranger and the Lady," acted as associate producer and director.

Release date: To be determined.

Majors Ask NBC To Explain Plan For Short Waves

Representatives of four major distributors were present Tuesday at a luncheon in New York at which NBC'S proposal that the companies sponsor a regular South American broadcast series were discussed by John F. Royal, NBC vice-president in charge of new developments and Lunsford P. Yandell, manager of the international short wave division.

According to information released through the publicity department of NBC, the motion picture company's emissaries favored the preparation by NBC of specifications of the proposed program, namely of what it would consist, how often it would be broadcast and how long the programs would be and other essential information.

Also requested by the film company agents was a survey of how the proposed broadcast would tie-in with the activities of the Council on National Defense and the MPPDA, in order to co-ordinate the work of the three groups. The final decision will rest with the top executives of each company.

Represented at the luncheon were J. S. Hummel and Robert Schless, Warners; Phil Reisman, RKO; Alfred Dean, Paramount; Arnold Picker, Columbia, and Kenneth Clark of the MPDDA. Messrs. Royal and Yandell were co-chairmen.

Three Majors Oppose Broadcast

Meanwhile, M-G-M, Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists, this week, were reported against the proposed broadcast.

Dave Blum, M-G-M director of foreign publicity, had been invited to the luncheon, but did not attend because he said his company has flatly refused to sponsor the proposal, and he felt that nothing could be accomplished by his attendance.

Joseph H. Seidelman of Universal had also been invited by NBC, but his office said on Tuesday that "he had been too busy and was unable to be present."

In a statement opposing the proposition, this week, Mr. Blum said that short wave reception in Latin America has about the same status that it has in this country and that the limited audience does not warrant large expenditures.

He said there would be only slight advantage in exploiting individual pictures over short wave, because release dates vary widely in Latin America, due to local holidays, seasons, availability of prints and other factors.

Mr. Blum stated, further, that dramatizations would not be feasible because film companies do not wish to give the impression that American films have been produced in the Spanish language. Even if this were desirable, he said, it would be difficult to find Spanish actors who could fill the roles adequately for radio performances.

Calls Interviews Ineffective

He declared that interviews over the air would lose their effectiveness because they would have to be translated. This leaves only a typical Hollywood gossip program available, he added, and since such programs can be broadcast free of charge on other international short wave stations, there is no point in paying for them over NBC.

Mr. Yandell announced unofficially recently that the proposed broadcast would commence about December 1st. The vehemence with which certain of the film companies have opposed the proposition and the lukewarm approval given by others, have apparently given it an "on again, off again" appearance.

Mr. Yandell, sponsor of the idea, however, is convinced that the proposed broadcast is not only feasible, but that it would help to "sell" America to her Latin-American neighbors. The foreign departments of certain of the film companies, however, have been stumbling blocks to acceptance, and until they approve, the proposition is considered to have little chance of home office approval.

It was reported in certain quarters that West Coast executives favored the proposed broadcast and had so told Mr. Yandell, while foreign department chiefs disagreed as to its feasability and necessity.

PARENT-TEACHERS APPOINT CENSORS

Film censors, whose duties will be to visit all movie theatres in the area and select pictures fit for children, are being appointed by parent-teacher associations in South New Jersey communities.

Claiming that certain pictures with innocent titles are not fit to be seen by children, the voluntary censors have taken upon themselves to see that Saturday features are satisfactory from beginning to end.

Sparks Plans Three Jacksonville Houses

E. J. Sparks, president of the Florida State Theatres, operator of over 140 movie houses in Florida, has plans for three new neighborhood houses in Jacksonville, making 12 for the circuit in that city. All of the theatres will be in rapidly growing residential sections of the city and each will have a seating capacity of 600. Plans for the theatres have been made by Roy A. Benjamin, Jacksonville architect, who has designed many theatres for the Sparks organization in recent years.

Plans call for the completion of the new theatres by February. Two of the three theatres will be built by Mr. Sparks and the third by other interests with Mr. Sparks taking a long lease on the house. Modern construction will be followed.

Impetus to theatre construction in Jacksonville has been given by the new Naval Air Station now under construction and Camp Blanding, both government projects in the national defense program. It will mean a big increase in population and the two projects, it is claimed, and will bring $2,000,000 a month in payrolls.

Plans for another neighborhood house in the Murray Hill section of the city were announced by L. H. Holloway and associates of Cordele, Ga. The plans call for a 700-seat house and ground for the theatre was broken last week.

There is a likelihood that a large new downtown house in Jacksonville will be constructed by New York interests with first run Warner Brothers pictures shown. Warner Brothers pictures have not been shown in Jacksonville since the first of the year. An option has been taken on a valuable downtown piece of property and office tenants and other firms conducting business have been asked to vacate by November 1st.

Paralysis in Wisconsin

Quarantine orders, closing theatres, were issued in Mayville and Bloomer, Wisconsin, last week, because of an infantile paralysis epidemic.

Two Years Seen For Island Suit Against Majors

The Philippine Islands' major anti-trust case, involving the plaint of a theatre operator against the majors, circuits, and film exchanges is to resume on November 6th in Manila, after opening September 16th; and observers predict it will last two years. The original complaint was filed four years ago.

The suit is by the Arco Amusement Company against Twentieth Century-Fox, Warner Brothers, United Artists, Universal Distributors, Acme Films, Inc., Luzon Theatres, Inc., the Lyric Film Exchange, and Inocentes de la Rama, Inc. The last named is a circuit operator. Luzon Theatres, Inc., formerly distributed Columbia product; Acme Films, Inc., formerly distributed RKO.

Trial will resume in the Court of First Instance, Manila, before Judge Jose O. Vera. S. M. Berger, president of Acme, will be called by the plaintiff to resume testimony.

Under Commonwealth law, only three days may be allotted to one case during one month. Urgent reasons may draw written permission from the Supreme Court Chief Justice, to give another three days to a case. But only one such permission may be obtained.

Thus, the case will be long, it is predicted, unless it is sent to a referee.

The plaintiff operated the Cine Arco, in Occidental Negros. Difficulties in securing product impelled the suit. Ferrier and Hill represent the plaintiff, Gibbs and McDonough, the defendant distributors.

Majors Get More Time

The major film companies, and the Dubinsky Brothers, defendants in a $450,000 anti-trust suit by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cassil, of St. Joseph, Missouri, have been granted until next Monday to file answers to the Cassil's bill of particulars. They operate the Rialto, St. Joseph.

LaCrosse Suit Starting

Trial of the LaCrosse Theatres anti-trust suit against the majors is scheduled to begin next Wednesday in Federal Court, Madison, Wisconsin. Louis Phillips, of Phillips and Nizer, Paramount home office counsel, is expected to be in Madison for the case. In addition to the majors, other defendants are Minnesota Amusement Company, and Welworth Theatres. The suit asks triple damages, under anti-trust laws, of $1,050,000.

Start Canadian Contest

Famous Players Canadian Corporation this week opened a production ideas contest for cash awards totaling $250 for all theatre employees of the company across the Dominion, the closing date to be next Wednesday. All persons on theatre payrolls have been invited to submit ideas for screen story material in condensed form, the best of which will receive company awards. First award is $100. Later the ideas will be submitted to the production staff of Paramount in Hollywood. A similar contest is under way at the Paramount home office.

'METHOD IS NEW, UNTRIED', U.S. ADMITS

ing. Various proposals to eliminate these practices have been suggested from time to time and legislation to that end has been under consideration by Congress.

Under the present practice, at the start of each motion picture season an entire year's supply of pictures is sold at one time. The contract is executed before production has started on the majority of pictures covered by it. An exhibitor must rely on what is at best but a sketchy outline of the pictures the distributor intends to produce. This selling practice is commonly known as blind selling. Not infrequently the completed picture differs materially, with respect to story, cast of characters and quality, from the outline previously presented to the exhibitor. As a result, an exhibitor often finds himself in a position where he must play a picture which he would never have licensed if he had seen it.

Trade Showing

Blind selling is prohibited by the decree. Pictures must be completed and exhibited to the trade before they can be sold or offered for sale. The defendant companies are required to trade show their pictures in each of their respective exchange districts. Thus every exhibitor is given an opportunity to see the pictures before he buys them.

Under existing practice, each distributor tries to sell as many pictures at one time as it possibly can and requires exhibitors to contract for all or substantially all of the season's output in order to get any of its pictures. As many as fifty pictures may be included in a single block. This is the practice that is known as block booking.

As a result of this practice, exhibitors have practically no opportunity to select pictures based on the local tastes of the communities which they serve. In addition, the playing time of theatres is filled by pictures bought in large blocks from the defendant companies and exhibitors have little screen time available for showing the product of independent producers.

Selling in Blocks of Five

The decree prohibits the licensing of more than five pictures in a single group. It does not prohibit the licensing of less than five pictures in a single group; distributors are free to sell pictures one at a time or in groups of two, three or four. Although distributors may sell more than one group of five pictures at a time, they may not condition the sale of one group of pictures on the sale of another picture or group of pictures.

Under the method of selling prescribed by the decree, if an exhibitor finds that a particular group of pictures contains some that are objectionable, he can request that these pictures be eliminated or that other pictures be substituted for them. If the distributor refuse to grant his request, the exhibitor is in a position to reject the group without jeopardizing his entire year's supply of films.

The decree neither requires distributors to grant nor prohibits them from granting to exhibitors the privilege of cancelling one or more pictures in a given group. As a result of the process of bargaining between distributors and exhibitors, cancellation privileges in varying degrees have been granted by distributors in the past though they have not been legally required to do so. Under the decree the parties are free to bargain with respect to cancellation as well as with respect to the particular pictures to be included in a given group.

REPRINTS OF DECREE FOR HERALD READERS

The rules of arbitration and appeals, the proposed consent decree, and the Department of Justice's statement have been reprinted in pamphlet form and are available gratis to subscribers of the HERALD. Copies will be mailed without charge to those making requests to MOTION PICTURE HERALD, Rockefeller, Center, New York City.

Offensive Pictures

Exhibitors are given the right to cancel any picture that is locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

Because pictures to be released during the present selling season have already been contracted for, the provisions of the decree with respect to trade showing and sales in small blocks do not become effective until the opening of the new selling season on September 1, 1941.

Benefits to be Anticipated

It is reasonably to be expected that the provisions of the decree as to trade showing and sales in small groups will result in an improvement in the quality of pictures as well as in greater opportunity for local community tastes to be reflected in the pictures selected by exhibitors. This new method of selling should open to independent producers a market now closed to them under the system of season block booking. In addition, exhibitors will have greater and more frequent opportunities to compete for pictures.

Although the method of selling provided for in the decree is new and untried in the motion picture industry, it is believed that it will be of benefit to exhibitors and distributors, as well as to the public. Whether or not the new method of selling will operate effectively can only be determined after a fair trial and that is provided for by the decree.

ALLEGED UNFAIR TRADE PRACTICES

The suit charged that the defendants had engaged in certain unfair and discriminatory trade practices to the detriment of independent exhibitors. Among these practices were the following:

(1) Granting certain theatres unreasonable clearance over other theatres;

(2) Discriminating in favor of large circuits of theatres and against small independent exhibitors by licensing pictures on preferred runs to the circuit theatres;

(3) Refusing to license pictures at all to certain theatres;

(4) Forcing exhibitors to buy short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, reissues or westerns as a condition of licensing feature pictures;

(5) Arbitrarily withholding available prints for the purpose of giving a competitive advantage to certain exhibitors over others.

ARBITRATION OF DISPUTES

To provide a forum for the settlement of complaints with respect to the trade practices described above, the decree sets up a system for the arbitration of disputes between exhibitors and distributors. In this respect, the decree is unique. Its approach to the solution of the problems existing in the industry differs from that of any consent decree heretofore entered pursuant to the provisions of the anti-trust laws. Instead of merely prohibiting certain practices and leaving enforcement to the ordinary process of contempt proceedings instituted by the Government, the decree provides a forum in which exhibitors are given an opportunity to have their complaints promptly heard and promptly decided independently of any action by the Government.

The arbitration machinery will be administered by the American Arbitration Association. The decree provides that a panel of not less than ten arbitrators shall be established in each of the thirty-two exchange centers in the United States. The arbitrators, who are to be selected by the American Arbitration Association, must be persons having no past or present connection with the motion picture industry. Arbitration can be instituted by the payment of a nominal filing fee. Controversies are to be heard by arbitrators from the panel, selected either by agreement of the parties or by the American Arbitration Association. Persons whose business or property may be affected by an award are given the right to intervene as parties and to participate in the proceeding.

Provision is made for an appeals board of three members to be appointed by the Court to hear appeals from decisions of the local arbitrators. The board is to have its offices and hold its hearings in the City of New York. The cost of maintaining the arbitration system is to be borne by assessments levied against the defendant companies.

This arbitration system will provide a simple, speedy, inexpensive and impartial remedy for the settlement of disputes between distributors and exhibitors.

JURISDICTION RESERVED FOR FURTHER RELIEF

The petition filed by the Government in this case asks the court to order the divorcement of production and distribution of pictures from exhibition. The petition is based on the theory that divorcement of production and distribution from exhibition is necessary to eliminate the unfair competitive practices in the industry and to restore fair competition therein. The purpose of the present decree is to provide a means for the elimination of unfair competitive practices in the industry without resorting to the more drastic remedy of divorcement.

The establishment of a system of arbitration to implement the slower and more expensive remedy of private suits under the anti-trust laws supplies a long felt need in the motion picture industry. It is to be noted, however, that the decree takes away no existing legal rights of any exhibitor under the anti-trust laws. It provides an additional forum for the settlement of disputes for which no provisions have heretofore been made. Properly administered it should put an end to disputes between distributors and exhibitors which have been a constant source of discord and friction in the past and should result in placing the industry on a fair competitive basis. If these results are not obtained after a reasonable trial period, there will be no alternative for the Government but to proceed with the litigation and press for a revision of the industry structure in accordance with the prayer of the petition.

To give the arbitration system a fair trial the Government will not seek divorcement or dissolution for a period of three years. In the interim the defendants have agreed not to engage in any general program of expansion of theatre holdings, with certain stated exceptions. Thus the status quo will be maintained during the three-year period to the extent that it is practicable.

PARTIES CONSENTING

The companies consenting to the decree are Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Incorporated, RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and their subsidiary and affiliated companies. All five of these companies are engaged in the exhibition of pictures as well as in production and distribution. Three of the companies that were named in the original complaint, namely, United Artists Corporation, Universal Pictures Company, Inc., and Columbia Pictures Corporation, have not joined in the decree. None of these companies owns any theatres. The case will proceed to trial against the court. To protect the consenting defendants against the competitive advantages that the three non-consenting companies may enjoy if they are not required to conform their selling practices to the provisions of the decree with respect to trade showing and sales in small groups, the decree provides for the termination of these provisions as against the five consenting companies in the event the Government has not succeeded in procuring a decree requiring the three non-consenting companies to comply with similar provisions by June 1, 1942. All of the other provisions of the decree remain in effect regardless of the outcome of the suit against the three non-consenting companies.

CONTINUED SUPERVISION BY DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

The Department proposes to keep a constant check on the operation of the decree. The records of the arbitration system are subject to inspection by the Department at all times, as are the records of the defendants relating to the operation of the decree.

A unit will be established in the Antitrust Division to keep in touch with the operation of the decree and to handle complaints with respect to it. As a result of the information thereby obtained, the Department will be in position to determine what further action, if any, need be taken at the end of the trial period.

When Exhibitor and Distributor Differ, Here's the Arbitration Procedure

Accompanying the consent decree in the motion picture anti-trust case, reported to court this week, and subsidiary and separate but in effect a part of it, came an equally approved, accepted set of rules of arbitration of differences between exhibitor and distributor arising under the applications of the trade practices dictated by the decree. or the time and the working life of the decree proper, these rules of arbitration have the force of law, too. The official draft follows:

RULES OF ARBITRATION AND APPEALS

October 28, 1940

I. Initiation of Arbitration

AN ARBITRATION proceeding shall be initiated by filing with the Clerk of the Tribunal having jurisdiction[1] of the controversy a Demand for Arbitration and a submission as provided in subdivision 9 of Section XXII of the Decree, and by paying a filing fee of $10.00 to the Clerk of the Tribunal.

The Demand for Arbitration shall be signed by the complainant and shall set forth:

The name and address of the complaining party; the name and address of each theatre involved in the controversy; the name and address of each exhibitor or distributor against whom complaint is made (hereafter sometimes referred to as a defending party); the name and address of each other exhibitor and distributor whose business or property it is believed by the complainant may be affected by an award in the proceedings; and a brief statement in simple language of the claim and the relief sought.

At the same time a sufficient number of copies of the Demand shall be delivered by the complainant to the Clerk of the Tribunal for delivery to the defending parties and to the other exhibitors and distributors named in the Demand. The Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith deliver one copy to each defending party and to each such other exhibitor and distributor.

Any defending party may within seven days after the date on which the Clerk of the Tribunal delivered a copy of the Demand to such party, sign and file with the Clerk of the Tribunal a list giving the name and address of each exhibitor or distributor not named in the Demand whose business or property it is believed by such party may be affected by an award in the proceeding.

The Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith deliver a copy of the Demand to each exhibitor and distributor named in any list filed by any defending party.

Any exhibitor or distributor named either in the Demand or in any list filed by any defending party and any other exhibitor or distributor whose business or property may be affected by an award in the proceeding, may at any time prior to the commencement of the first hearing intervene and thereby become a party to the proceeding by filing with the Clerk of the Tribunal a statement which shall set forth his interest as an intervenor in the proceeding and a submission as provided in subdivision 9 of Section XXII of the Decree and by paying a filing fee of $10.00 to the Clerk of the Tribunal.

Upon any exhibitor or distributor intervening as a party the Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith deliver to all parties notice of such intervention.

Any party who intervenes more than fifteen days after the filing of the Demand shall not be entitled to participate in the selection of the arbitrator.

II. Qualification of Arbitrators

NO PERSON SHALL be appointed a member of a Panel of Arbitrators established in accordance with the Decree who has any financial interest in, or has or has had any connection with, the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures, or has or has had any interest in any motion picture theatre, as landlord, lessor or otherwise.

No member of a Panel shall serve as an arbitrator in any arbitration proceeding if he has or has had any financial or other relations with any party to the arbitration, or has any interest in the result of the arbitration, or has any personal bias, which might prejudice the right of any party to a fair and impartial award.

III. Appointment of Arbitrators

NOT LESS THAN 15 nor more than 17 days after the filing of the Demand in accordance with Rule I, the Clerk of the Tribunal shall deliver to each party an identical list of arbitrators selected from the Panel of Arbitrators, for the purpose of enabling the parties to indicate thereon their preference of arbitrators. A period of seven days from the date of delivery of the list shall be allowed the parties for the return of the list. If the Clerk of the Tribunal does not receive the list from any party within said period all the names on such list shall be deemed acceptable to such party.

The Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith appoint an arbitrator from the names indicated as acceptable to all parties. In the event no name appears from the lists to be acceptable to all parties, or that none of those shown to be acceptable is available, the American Arbitration Association shall appoint an arbitrator from the remaining members of the Panel.

Not less than 16 days after the filing of the Demand and prior to the appointment of an arbitrator, the parties to any controversy may by written agreement unanimously appoint one or more arbitrators from the Panel of Arbitrators to arbitrate such controversy, by filing such agreement with the Clerk of the Tribunal.

No irregularity in the appointment of an arbitrator shall affect the validity of the proceeding or of the award.

Notice of appointment shall forthwith be given to the arbitrator by the Clerk of the Tribunal, and a signed acceptance obtained.

IV. Removal of Arbitrator and Filling of Vacancy

UPON WRITTEN APPLICATION of any party prior to the date the arbitrator's award becomes final, the American Arbitration

WIDE POWERS FOR LOCAL ARBITERS

Association shall upon proof satisfactory to it that an arbitrator is disqualified under Rule II, revoke the appointment of such arbitrator and declare the office vacant and the award, if any, vacated. No such action shall be taken by the American Arbitration Association in any case where an award has been made unless the applicant party shall have given five days' notice of its application to all other parties. Unless application for disqualification is made immediately following a party's discovery of the reason therefor, such party shall be deemed to have waived such disqualification.

The American Arbitration Association may also revoke the appointment of an arbitrator at any time by reason of his neglect, refusal or failure to perform the duties of his office.

If the appointment of an arbitrator is revoked, or if by reason of resignation, death, or illness an arbitrator is unable to perform the duties of his office, a new arbitrator shall forthwith be appointed by the Clerk of the Tribunal from among the names acceptable to the parties or by the American Arbitration Association, in accordance with the second paragraph of Rule III.

V. Hearings

HEARINGS SHALL be held at the office of the Arbitration Tribunal having jurisdiction of the controversy involved or at such other place in the same Arbitration District as may be agreed upon by the parties with the consent of the arbitrator.

Hearings shall commence as promptly as possible after the appointment of the arbitrator.

The time of the beginning of the hearing shall be fixed by the arbitrator, who may adjourn the hearing from time to time.

The Clerk of the Tribunal shall deliver to the parties written notice of the name of the arbitrator and of the time and place of the beginning of the hearing at least five days prior thereto, unless such notice is waived by the parties.

VI. Procedure at Hearings

THE ARBITRATOR SHALL take the oath of office in the form prescribed by the Administrator before proceeding with the hearing.

Parties may appear personally and be represented by counsel or by others.

Each party shall have the right to examine or cross-examine all witnesses.

Witnesses shall testify under oath or its legal equivalent.

Evidence shall be received only at hearings of which all parties shall have had due notice and the arbitrator in making his award shall consider only such evidence, and such inspection as he may make hereunder.

The arbitrator shall have power to require any party to produce such records or documents as the arbitrator may deem necessary to a proper determination of the controversy. In lieu of producing or offering original records or documents, any party may, with the approval of the arbitrator, produce or offer sworn copies thereof or sworn excerpts of the relevant or material portions thereof. If any party challenges the authenticity, correctness or adequacy of such documents or excerpts, the arbitrator shall determine such authenticity, correctness or adequacy. All exhibits offered in evidence shall be numbered and so marked as to indicate whether or not they were received.

The arbitrator shall be the judge of the relevancy and materiality of the evidence offered and conformity to legal rules of evidence shall not be necessary.

Whenever the arbitrator deems it necessary he may make an inspection in connection with the subject matter of the controversy upon notice to the parties.

The arbitrator may hear argument and receive briefs.

VII. Closing and Reopening the Proceeding

AFTER ALL PARTIES have indicated that they have no further evidence to offer, the arbitrator shall declare the proceeding closed.

Prior to the expiration of the time for making an award the arbitrator may reopen a proceeding upon his own initiative, or for good cause upon the written application of any party on five days' notice to all other parties.

At any time within twenty days after the award has been filed the arbitrator may also reopen the proceeding for the purpose of correcting inadvertent errors in the award.

VIII. Defaults and Withdrawals

IF ANY PARTY to a proceeding defaults by failure to comply with the fourth paragraph of Rule XI or withdraws from the proceeding after an arbitrator is appointed, the proceeding shall nevertheless continue to an award unless all other parties to the proceeding consent to a dismissal. A party who defaults or withdraws shall not be entitled to participate further in the proceeding.

IX. Powers of Arbitrators

THE ARBITRATOR SHALL have the powers and shall perform the duties granted to and imposed upon him by the Decree and

Arnold Listed Three Uses of Consent Decree in His Book

With settlement of the Government's trade practices suit by a consent decree, the following quotations from Thurman W. Arnold's recent book, "The Bottlenecks of Business," may be of interest for its observations on three uses of the term "consent decree," as outlined by the head of the U. S. Antitrust Division:

1.

"The term 'consent decree' in antitrust cases got a special meaning because it came to represent a device which was nothing more or less than a process by which a criminal offense was condoned." page 141

"This use of the consent decree was nothing more or less than a form of unemployment relief for lawyers." page 142

"Today this use of the consent decree has been definitely repudiated by the Department of Justice." page 144

2.

Ten pages farther on Mr. Arnold explained "a case for the proper use of the consent decree." In the example three companies needed to form an agreement to obtain financial backing and the Department and the companies worked out a "consent decree" which Mr. Arnold said was an example of a "civil decree" rather than a "consent decree." This form of an agreement must be submitted to the court and hearings held.

". . . office settlements between the Department of Justice and business are subject to suspicion. It is just as important that the Department of Justice work in the open in the application of the antitrust laws as it is important for business to work in the open. Neither of them is entitled to any secrets in matters which so finally affect the public interest." page 155

Mr. Arnold then gave another example of the use of the consent decree. In this case several companies were accused of illegal practices but a plan was formed to eliminate the "conditions in the entire industry which compelled these illegal practices" and substantial advantages were given to the public and to competitors for maintaining reasonable business practices in the future.

"This process puts it up to businessmen to correct the evils in their own industries. The Department under no circumstances tells them what to do. It simply puts a deterrent upon the violations of the law and gives them the opportunity to work out a different method of accomplishing their lawful objects if they choose." page 160

"It is important that every step of this process should be public." page 162

"Objectors should be heard as amicus curiae in the discretion of the court." page 162

"In using this procedure it is important that the Department should not tell defendants what they should do, but should leave to them entirely the proposal of constructive solutions. The Department's sole function is to enforce the law." page 162 these Rules, and in making his award he shall comply with the Decree and these Rules.

X. Awards

THE AWARD SHALL be filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal within 30 days from the date of closing the proceeding, or from the date fixed by the arbitrator for the filing of briefs, whichever is later.

The award shall be specific, shall contain such findings as are required by the Decree and shall be signed by the arbitrator and acknowledged before a notary public or other officer duly authorized to administer oaths.

In his award the arbitrator shall assess costs against the losing party or parties or apportion them among the parties as he may deem proper. Costs shall be limited to the arbitrator's fee and the filing fees.

The Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith deliver a copy of the award and any corrected award to each party, with the date of filing endorsed thereon.

The award or, if corrected, the corrected award shall become final and binding upon the parties upon the expiration of the time for filing a notice of appeal therefrom, unless an appeal is taken in accordance with these Rules.

XI. Arbitrator's Fees

THE AMERICAN ARBITRATION Association shall fix for each Arbitration District the per diem rate of the arbitrator's fee which in no event shall exceed $50.00 per diem. The arbitrator shall be entitled to the per diem fee for each day or part thereof that he shall attend a hearing or make an inspection.

Any expenses incurred by an arbitrator in making inspections as provided in Rule VI, or in conducting hearings at other places than the Tribunal office as provided in Rule V, shall be borne equally by the parties.

No other compensation or expenses and no gratuities or benefits of any kind shall be paid to or conferred upon an arbitrator by any party.

Prior to the commencement of each day's hearing or inspection, each party to the proceeding shall deposit with the Clerk of the Tribunal a sum equal to the arbitrator's per diem fee. Failure to make such deposit shall constitute a default.

After the award is filed, the arbitrator shall be paid his fee out of the deposits made by the parties to the proceeding. The Clerk of the Tribunal shall return any undisbursed sums to the parties entitled thereto upon the final disposition of the controversy.

XII. Stenographic Cost[2]

THE CLERK OF the Tribunal shall make the necessary arrangements for the taking of a stenographic record of the testimony when such a record is requested by one or more of the parties, who must deposit the cost thereof with the Clerk of the Tribunal.

Any party desiring a transcript of the stenographic record of the hearing shall pay the cost thereof and in the event that such party did not pay the cost of taking the stenographic record it shall reimburse the other party or parties for the cost thereof.

XIII. Extensions of Time

THE PARTIES MAY in writing unanimously agree to extend the time specified in any of the foregoing rules and, except as to Rule X, the arbitrator may extend such time upon the written application of any party upon five days notice to all other parties

XIV. Notice of Appeal

ANY PARTY TO an arbitration proceeding may appeal from an award by filing a notice of appeal with, and paying a filing fee of $25.00 to, the Clerk of the Tribunal in which the award was made, not later than twenty days after the date of filing of the award or the corrected award. The Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith deliver a copy of the notice of appeal with the date of filing endorsed thereon to each party to the proceeding and to the Clerk of the Appeal Board.

The appellant shall have made at his own expense, and, within ten days after filing the notice of appeal, shall file with the Clerk of the Tribunal in which the award was made, three copies of the transcript of the stenographic record of the hearing or such abbreviation thereof as may be agreed upon by the parties.

XV. Record on Appeal

UPON RECEIPT of the three copies of the transcript filed by the appellant, the Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith prepare the record on appeal which shall consist of the following:

[2]Under Rule XIV no appeal can be taken unless three copies of the transcript of the record or an abbreviation thereof are filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal.

1. The Demand for Arbitration and the submission.
2. Statements and submissions of intervening parties.
3. Notice of appointment and signed acceptance of the arbitrator.
4. Clerk's record of hearing.
5. Three copies of the transcript of the stenographic record of hearing or such abbreviation thereof as may have been agreed upon by the parties.
6. Exhibits received in evidence and exhibits offered but not received in evidence, except such as may be omitted by stipulation of the parties.
7. The award.

Unless otherwise directed by the Appeal Board, the record on appeal shall remain on file in the Tribunal until the time for filing of all briefs as provided in Rule XVI has expired.

Immediately upon the expiration of such time the Clerk of the Tribunal shall transmit the record on appeal to the Clerk of the Appeal Board.

XVI. Proceedings on Appeal

WITHIN THIRTY DAYS after the filing of the notice of appeal, each party shall deliver a copy of his brief on appeal to every other party and file with the Clerk of the Appeal Board six copies of such brief with proof of delivery of copies thereof to the other parties.

Within forty days after the filing of the notice of appeal, each party shall deliver a copy of any answering brief to every other party and file with the Clerk of the Appeal Board six copies of such brief with proof of delivery of copies thereof to the other parties.

The Appeal Board upon the written agreement of all parties shall, and upon its own initiative may, order oral argument. At any time not later than five days after the expiration of the time for filing answering briefs any party may apply to the Appeal Board for permission to present oral argument.

Such application shall be in writing, shall state the reasons therefor and shall be filed with the Clerk of the Appeal Board, together with proof of delivery of a copy thereof to each other party. Any objection to such application shall be made in writing and filed with the Clerk of the Appeal Board, together with proof of delivery of a copy thereof to each other party, within five days after the filing of the application. The ruling on such application shall be made by the Appeal Board forthwith after the expiration of the five day period allowed for the filing of objections and a copy of the ruling shall forthwith be delivered by the Clerk of the Appeal Board to all parties.

When the Appeal Board has ordered oral argument it shall fix the date thereof. The Clerk of the Appeal Board shall deliver to the parties notice in writing of the time and place of such argument, at least ten days prior thereto.

Oral arguments shall be heard by the Appeal Board only in New York, New York.

XVII. Decision and Opinion of the Appeal Board

ALL MEMBERS of the Appeal Board shall pass on all appeals and, except as provided in Rule XIX, on all other matters, and the concurrence of two shall be necessary to a decision.

The decision of the Appeal Board together with an opinion stating the reasons therefor shall be in writing and signed by the members of the Appeal Board or a majority thereof. The decision shall be acknowledged before a notary public or other officer duly authorized to administer oaths. The decision and opinion shall be filed with the Clerk of the Appeal Board, who shall forthwith file a copy thereof with the Clerk of the Tribunal and shall forthwith deliver a copy thereof to each of the parties. The Clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith notify each of the parties of the date of filing with him.

The Appeal Board in its decision may affirm, modify, correct or reverse the award of the arbitrator, including provision for costs therein, or may remand the proceeding to the Tribunal for a re-hearing or for further action in accordance with the decision of the Appeal Board.

The Appeal Board in its decision may assess the cost of the stenographic record and of the transcript thereof against the losing party or parties, or apportion it among the parties as it deems proper.

XVIII. Proceedings Subsequent to Decision of Appeal Board

UNLESS THE APPEAL Board remands the proceeding to the Tribunal or reopens the proceeding as hereinafter provided, the decision of the Appeal Board shall become the final award and shall become binding on all parties ten days after it is filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal.

When the Appeal Board remands a proceeding the arbitration shall thereupon proceed in accordance with the decision of the Appeal Board.

Within ten days after the decision of the Appeal Board has been filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal the Appeal Board may reopen the proceeding for the purpose of correcting inadvertent errors. In such case the corrected decision shall be signed and acknowledged and copies thereof shall be delivered and filed as provided in Rule XVII. Such corrected decision, unless it remands the proceeding to the Tribunal, shall become the final award and shall become binding on all parties when it is filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal, but in no event earlier than ten days after the decision corrected thereby was filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal.

XIX. Extension of Time

THE PARTIES MAY by written agreement extend the time specified in any of the Rules relating to appeals, and any member of the Appeal Board may do so upon the written application of any party made upon five days' notice to all other parties.

XX. Submission of Other Controversies

CONTROVERSIES between exhibitors and distributors other than those for which arbitration is provided by the Decree may be submitted to the arbitration system by the parties thereto, provided:

(a) At least one of the parties thereto is a distributor defendant as defined in the Decree; and

(b) A submission in writing setting forth the controversy to be arbitrated is signed by all the parties thereto and filed with the Clerk of the Tribunal having jurisdiction.

These Rules in so far as they are applicable shall apply to the arbitration of such controversies except as the submission may otherwise provide and except that no exhibitor or distributor may intervene therein.

XXI. Access to Records

AT NO TIME shall access to the record of any proceeding or appeal be permitted to any person not a party, except that awards, decisions and opinions may be made public.

XXII. Definitions

"DECREE" MEANS the Consent Decree dated November* 1940 entered in the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York in an action entitled "United States of America v. Paramount Pictures, Inc., et al."

"File with the Clerk" means actual receipt by the Clerk.

"Clerk of the Tribunal" means the Clerk of the Arbitration Tribunal having jurisdiction.

"Arbitration Tribunal" and "Tribunal" mean the Tribunal established by the American Arbitration Association in any city as provided in the Decree.

"Deliver" or "Delivery" means either personal delivery or the placing of the document in the mails properly stamped and addressed to the person intended to receive such document.

"Tribunal having jurisdiction" means the Tribunal maintained pursuant to Section XXII of the Decree and located in the territory in which the complainant's theatre is located as shown on the map filed herewith and made a part of these Rules, except that when a distributor institutes an arbitration proceeding the "Tribunal having jurisdiction" shall be the Tribunal in the territory in which the theatre involved is located. The parties, however, may select as the "Tribunal having jurisdiction" any other Tribunal by written agreement filed with the American Arbitration Association which shall then notify the Clerk of the designated Tribunal.

"Arbitration District" means the territory throughout which the Tribunal shall have jurisdiction as shown on the map filed herewith.

"Person" means any individual, partnership, unincorporated association, or corporation.

"Proof of Delivery" means an admission of delivery or an affidavit of personal delivery or of mailing.

"Award" means award and findings.

[*When entered—Editor.]

Not since the days of the Motion Picture Patents Company and its licenses has any document had so much discussion in the world of the film trade as the long discussed and expensively evolved consent decree which represents agreement between the big five out of eight defendant major concerns in the government's anti-trust suit of 1939-40. The official and final signed draft, put before the trial judge in Federal court this week in New York, follows:

UNITED STATES

PARAMOUNT PICTURES, INC., et al.

October 25, 1940

THE UNITED STATES of America having filed its Petition herein on July 20, 1938, and its Amended and Supplemental Complaint on [See footnote A], 1940; the defendants: Paramount Pictures Inc.; Paramount Film Distributing Corporation; Loew's, Incorporated; Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation; RKO Radio Pictures, Inc.; Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation; RKO Proctor Corporation; RKO Midwest Corporation; Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.; Vitagraph Inc.; Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; and National Theatres Corporation[1] having appeared and severally filed their answers to such Petition and to such Amended and Supplemental Complaint and having asserted the truth of their answers and their innocence of any violation of law; and no testimony having been taken, but each of the consenting defendants having consented to the entry of this decree without any findings of fact, upon condition that neither such consent, nor this decree itself, nor the entry of this decree, nor any statement, provision or requirement contained in this decree, shall be or shall be construed as being (1) an admission or adjudication that the allegations of the Petition or of the Amended and Supplemental Complaint, or any of them, are or is true, or that such defendants, or any one or more of them, have or has violated or are or is violating any statute or law, or (2) evidence that such allegations, or any of them, are or is true, or that such defendants, or any one or more of them, have or has violated any statute or law, or (3) an admission or adjudication that the doing of any of the acts or things hereinafter enjoined or the failure to do any of the acts or things hereinafter directed to be done would constitute a violation of any statute or law, and upon the further conditions hereinafter set forth; and the United States of America, by its counsel, having consented to the entry of this decree and to each and every provision thereof upon such conditions, and having moved the Court for the entry of this decree;

THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED as follows:

[A—Supplemental Complaint to be filed at some later date, presumably against the "Little Three": Columbia, United Artists and Universal, which defendants in the original complaint refused to participate in the consent decree.—Editor.]

I.

The Court has jurisdiction of the parties hereto; and for the purposes of this decree and of proceedings for the enforcement thereof, and for no other purpose, the Court has jurisdiction of the subject matter hereof and the complaint states a cause of action against the defendants under the Act of Congress of July 2, 1890 entitled "An Act to Protect Trade and Commerce Against Unlawful Restraints and Monopolies."

II.

Each consenting defendant, its successors, officers, directors, agents and employees, and all persons and corporations acting under, through, or for it, hereby is and are enjoined from doing the acts prohibited by this decree, and is and are directed to do the acts thereby required.

III.

No consenting defendant engaged in the distribution of motion pictures (hereinafter referred to as a distributor defendant) shall license or offer for license[1] a feature motion picture[2] (hereinafter sometimes referred to as a feature) for public exhibition within the United States of America at which an admission fee is to be charged, until the feature has been trade shown[3] within the exchange district[4] in which the public exhibition is to be held. Every trade showing shall be preceded by a notice, published in a trade publication[5] having general circulation among exhibitors[6] in such exchange district, which shall state the title of the picture and the date and the time when and the place or places where it will be trade shown.

[1]License means (as a verb) to make an agreement, or (as a noun) an agreement, by which a distributor grants the right to exhibit a motion picture in any theatre engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures for profit.

[2]A feature motion picture is a motion picture approximately 5,000 feet, or more, in length.

[3]A trade showing is an exhibition of a feature at a theatre or projection room for the benefit of exhibitors generally.

[4]Each distributor defendant shall file with the Department of Justice a map of each of its exchange districts, showing the territorial limits thereof. Changes in the territorial limits of an exchange district shall be made only after two weeks' notice to the Department of Justice. References in this Section and in Sections V and IX hereof to exchange districts are to exchange districts of each distributor defendant, as constituted from time to time.

[5]Trade publication means a daily or weekly newspaper or magazine which is devoted primarily to news concerning the motion picture industry.

[6]Exhibitor means any individual, partnership, unincorporated association or corporation engaged in the public exhibition of motion pictures in a theatre or theatres for profit.

IV.

(a) No distributor defendant shall offer for license or shall license more than five features in a single group. In offering its features for license to an exhibitor a distributor may change the combinations of features in groups as it may from time to time determine, and may license or offer for license as many groups of features as it may from time to time determine, provided that the license or offer for license of one group of features shall not be conditioned upon the licensing of another feature or group of features.

(b) No distributor defendant shall require an exhibitor to license short subjects, newsreels, trailers, or serials (hereinafter collectively referred to as shorts) as a condition of licensing features. No distributor defendant shall require an exhibitor to license reissues, westerns[1], or foreigns[2] (hereinafter collectively referred to as foreigns) as a condition of licensing other features.

Where a license has been entered into, controversies arising upon a complaint by an exhibitor that the licensing to him of one group of features was conditioned by the distributor upon the licensing of another feature or group of features or the licensing of shorts or foreigns shall be subject to arbitration. An exhibitor shall have no right to assert any such claim unless he shall have mailed to the distributor at its Home Office a notice in writing of such claim and of the grounds thereof, not later than two days after receipt by the exhibitor of the distributor's written approval of the exhibitor's signed application or applications for such features, shorts or foreigns. The power[3] of the arbitrator in deciding any such controversy shall be limited to making (1) a finding as to whether or not the licensing of such features was so conditioned; and, if the finding be in the affirmative, (2) an award cancelling the license for (or to the extent that it may relate to) such other feature or group of features, or such shorts or foreigns.

Where no license has been entered into, controversies arising upon a complaint by an exhibitor that a distributor defendant has offered for license to him more than five features in a single group or that the offer of a license to him of one group of features was conditioned upon the licensing of another feature or group of features, or the licensing of shorts or foreigns, shall be subject to arbitration. An exhibitor shall have no right to assert any claim that an offer so to license such features was so made or conditioned unless he shall have mailed to the distributor at its Home Office a notice in writing of such claim and of the grounds therefor not later than five days after the exhibitor claims the alleged offer was made. The power[4] of the arbitrator in deciding any such controversy shall be limited to making (1) a finding as to whether or not the offer to license such features was so made or conditioned; and, if the finding be in the affirmative, (2) an award imposing upon the distributor making such offer a penalty in an amount not to exceed $500.00. Such penalty shall be payable into the arbitration fund referred to in subdivision 8 of Section XXII hereof.

[1]Westerns are those western pictures which are not of the usual character and type of, and are inexpensively produced as compared with, the distributor's general line of features.

[2]Foreigns are features produced outside of the United States except such as are produced in the English language by the distributor or a subsidiary or affiliate thereof.

[3]When, in any arbitration under this decree, the finding of the arbitrator shall be that the complainant has not sustained his complaint, the arbitrator shall enter an award dismissing the complaint.

[4]See footnote 3 to this Section.

IT HAPPENED THIS WAY—

The chronology of the Government's anti-trust suit against the major motion picture companies and the negotiations for the proposed consent decree, as accepted this week by the Department of Justice and the "Big Five" theatre-owning defendants, follows:

June 3, 1940—Trial opened before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard.

June 6—Hearings adjourned until June 10, following beginning of preliminary talks.

June 10—Another postponement granted. Judge Goddard encouraging both sides to make every effort to settle the suit. Government's initial proposals embraced changes in distribution, exhibition and establishment of an arbitration system.

June 12—Third postponement granted.

June 17—Arbitration being considered for the first time; another postponement granted.

June 24—Progress reported to the court and further delay in the trial given.

July 1—Agreement in 'principle' on arbitration but not on the arbitration machinery. Another postponement.

July 8—Another adjournment. Points being discussed included abolition of blind selling by trade shows, local buying, selling in blocks of five or ten pictures.

July 15—Another week's postponement. The non-theatre-owning companies refuse a consent decree settlement and possibility of peace with the "Big Five" is discussed at this time. The companies would yield on local buying, blind buying and the Government would submit to an escape clause and put off consideration of theatre divorcement.

July 22—Assured of continued progress Judge Goddard set October 7th for the next hearing. A tentative draft, without the escape and arbitration clauses, ready. Paramount Partners object to terms of the proposals. Work continued on the "escape" clause.

Aug. 2—Loew's Inc., RKO Radio and Warners reported to agree in principle on a settlement of the suit by a consent decree.

Aug. 7—Paramount and Twentieth Century-Fox reject the consent decree unless a new and unconditional "escape" clause.

Aug. 14—Government rejects the alternative terms submitted by Paramount and 20th Century-Fox on the "escape" clause. Efforts made to find a basis for a compromise "escape" clause.

Aug. 22—Tentative agreement on a compromise "escape" clause.

Sept. 3—Wave of exhibitor protests against the "block-of-five" clause mounts. Exhibitors and Department of Justice officials meet in Washington.

Sept. 27—Officials rushing work on turning decree proposals into legal language.

Oct. 7—Judge Goddard grants a week's postponement. Lawyers confer in New York and Washington.

Oct. 15—Court told a "few collateral" matters (chiefly the arbitration sections) had to be discussed further. Another postponement.

Oct. 22—"Final" agreement reached and announcement made that "the negotiations have ended." Another week's adjournment granted.

Oct. 28—Robert Jackson, attorney general, approves the decree.

Oct. 29—Proposed decree submitted to Judge Goddard.

Nov. 14 — Public hearing on the decree.

V.

No license for features to be exhibited in theatres located in one exchange district[1] shall include theatres located in another exchange district, nor shall the licensing of features for exhibition in theatres located in one exchange district be conditioned upon the licensing of a feature or group of features for exhibition in theatres located in another exchange district.

Controversies arising upon a complaint by an exhibitor thereby affected that the licensing by a distributor defendant of features for exhibition in theatres located in one exchange district was conditioned upon the licensing of a feature or group of features for exhibition in theatres located in another exchange district shall be subject to arbitration. The power[2] of the arbitrator in deciding any such controversy shall be limited to making (1) a finding as to whether or not the licensing of features for exhibition in theatres located in one exchange district was so conditioned upon the licensing of a feature or group of features for exhibition in theatres located in another exchange district; and, if the finding be in the affirmative, (2) an award imposing upon the distributor defendant so licensing features a penalty in an amount not to exceed $500.00, payable into the arbitration fund referred to in subdivision 8 of Section XXII hereof.

[2]See footnote 3 to Section IV.

VI.

No distributor defendant shall refuse to license its pictures for exhibition in an exhibitor's theatre on some run (to be designated by the distributor) upon terms and conditions fixed by the distributor which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of this Section, if the exhibitor can satisfy reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation and is reputable and responsible, unless the granting of a run on any terms to such exhibitor for said theatre will have the effect of reducing the distributor's total film revenue in the competitive area in which such exhibitor's theatre is located. Controversies arising upon a complaint by an exhibitor that, contrary to the provisions of this Section, a distributor defendant has refused so to license its pictures shall be subject to arbitration. The power[1] of the arbitrator in deciding any such controversy shall be limited to making (1) a finding as to whether or not, contrary to the provisions of this Section, the distributor has refused to license its pictures to the complainant for exhibition in said theatre; and, if the finding be in the affirmative, (2) an award directing the distributor to offer its pictures for license to the complainant for exhibition in said theatre on a run to be designated by the distributor and upon terms and conditions fixed by the distributor which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of this Section. The burden of showing that granting a run on any terms to the complainant will have the effect of reducing the distributor's total film revenue in the competitive area in which the complainant's theatre is located shall be upon the distributor.

CLEARANCE DISPUTES TO ARBITRATION

Any distributor defendant affected by such an award may institute a further arbitration proceeding to be relieved therefrom on the ground that since the making of the award the granting of a run in compliance therewith has had the effect of reducing the distributor's total film revenue in the competitive area in which the complainant's theatre is located, and, in the event that the arbitrator finds that the granting of a run in compliance with the award has had the effect of reducing the distributor's total film revenue in said area, he shall vacate the award.[2]

[2]See footnote 3 to Section IV.

VII.

Controversies arising upon the complaint of an exhibitor that a feature licensed to him by a distributor defendant for exhibition in a particular theatre is generally offensive in the locality served by such theatre on moral, religious or racial grounds shall be subject to arbitration. An exhibitor shall have no right to assert any such claim unless written notice of his election to cancel such feature, together with a statement of his reasons therefor, shall have been mailed to the distributor defendant at its Home Office not later than ten days after the receipt by the exhibitor of the distributor's written approval of the exhibitor's signed application for such feature. In such event the license in so far as it relates to the exhibition of such feature in the theatre specified in the notice shall be deemed cancelled unless within five days after receipt of such notice, the distributor shall have mailed to the exhibitor a notice in writing of its denial of such claim and its intention to arbitrate the controversy. The power[1] of the arbitrator in deciding any such controversy shall be limited to making (1) a finding as to whether or not the feature is generally offensive in the locality served by the exhibitor's theatre on moral, religious or racial grounds; and, if the finding be in the affirmative, (2) an award cancelling the license in so far as it relates to the exhibition of such feature in said theatre.

[1]See footnote 3 to Section IV.

VIII.

Controversies arising upon the complaint of an exhibitor that the clearance[1] applicable to his theatre is unreasonable shall be subject to arbitration under the following provisions:

It is recognized that clearance, reasonable as to time and area, is essential in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures.

In determining whether any clearance complained of is unreasonable, the arbitrator shall take into consideration the following factors and accord to them the importance and weight to which each is entitled, regardless of the order in which they are listed:

(1) The historical development of clearance in the particular area wherein the theatres involved are located;

(2) The admission prices of the theatres involved;

(3) The character and location of the theatres involved, including size, type of entertainment, appointments, transit facilities, etc.;

(4) The policy of operation of the theatres involved, such as the showing of double features, gift nights, giveaways, premiums, cut rate tickets, lotteries, etc.;

(5) The rental terms and license fees paid by the theatres involved and the revenues derived by the distributor defendant from such theatres;

(6) The extent to which the theatres involved compete with each other for patronage; and

(7) All other business considerations, except that the arbitrator shall disregard the fact that a theatre involved is affiliated with a distributor or with a circuit of theatres.

The power[2] of the arbitrator in deciding any such controversy shall be limited to making (1) a finding as to whether or not the clearance complained of is unreasonable; and, if the finding be in the affirmative, (2) an award fixing the maximum clearance between the theatres involved which may be granted in licenses thereafter entered into by the distributor defendant which is a party to the arbitration. Subject to the provisions of Section XVII hereof, the award may fix such maximum clearance under any then existing franchise or any license entered into pursuant to such franchise between such distributor defendant and any other party bound by this decree.

Any distributor defendant or any exhibitor affected by such an award may institute a further arbitration proceeding for a modification thereof upon the ground that since the making of the award the conditions with respect to the theatres involved therein have so changed as to warrant modification, and, in the event that the arbitrator finds that there has been such change[2], he shall make a redetermination of the maximum clearance.

Nothing contained in this Section shall be deemed to restrict, and no award made in any arbitration under this Section shall restrict, the exhibitor's right to license for any theatre any run which he is able to negotiate with any distributor, nor the distributor's right to license for any theatre any run which it desires to grant.

Nothing contained in this Section and no award hereafter entered in any arbitration in accordance with its provisions shall apply to licensing the exhibition of any special feature[3], provided such special feature is licensed under an exhibition contract applicable only thereto, or to the right of a distributor defendant to include in such contract and to make a part thereof such special terms and conditions, including such special clearance provision or provisions, as such distributor shall fix, establish and enforce for and in connection with the exhibition of such special feature.

[1]Clearance means the period of time, fixed by agreement between a distributor and an exhibitor, prior to the expiration of which a feature licensed for prior exhibition in a theatre may not be exhibited in another theatre or theatres.
[2]See footnote 3 to Section IV.
[3]For the purpose of this Section, a special feature means a feature which for a period of time is exhibited at generally advanced first-run admission prices.

IX.

In booking prints for exhibition by exhibitors competing on the same run in the same exchange district[1], a distributor defendant shall not withhold delivery of prints available in its exchange from one exhibitor in order to give a competing exhibitor a prior playing date not provided for in his license. It is recognized that distributors must be permitted discretion in the ordinary course of booking and distributing films in an exchange district when too few prints are available in the exchange for the playing date desired by two or more theatres. In such cases this Section shall have no application.

Violations of this Section shall be subject to arbitration and, if the arbitrator finds[2] that the distributor complained against has pursued a policy of withholding available prints from the complaining exhibitor in violation of this Section, he shall enter an award directing the distributor to discontinue such policy.

[1]See footnote 4 to Section III.
[2]See footnote 3 to Section IV.

A. Controversies arising upon a complaint by an independent exhibitor[1] that a distributor defendant has arbitrarily refused to license its features for exhibition on the run requested by said exhibitor in one of said exhibitor's theatres

ARNOLD DENIES ATTACK ON USE OF ADVERTISING

Thurman W. Arnold, Assistant U. S. attorney general, explained this week the views of the Anti-trust Division of the Department of Justice on advertising, in a letter to Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun and chairman of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

"Unreasonable and coercive use of organized power" is what the Anti-trust Division attacks, Mr. Arnold said. "Sometimes advertising is one of the weapons by which an organization destroys a free market." As an example, he cited "full-line-forcing" through advertising, adding, "There is no possible illegality about building up a nation-wide demand through advertising."

"Advertising," Mr. Arnold continued, "is just one of the means of compelling full-line-forcing. In the 'movies' block booking is a similar kind of thing, but the power is not acquired by advertising."

Certain newspapers and business organizations had interpreted recent statements of the Anti-trust Division as implying that extensive use of advertising may be illegal and Mr. Arnold's letter to Mr. Friendly was to explain its position.

CIRCUIT CHANGES TO BE REPORTED which was in existence or which replaced[2] a theatre in existence at the date of this decree shall be subject to arbitration.

B. In any such arbitration no award shall be made against a distributor defendant unless the arbitrator shall first find the following facts:

(1) The complainant is an independent exhibitor and the theatre operated by him and specified in his complaint was in existence at the date of the decree or replaced such a theatre; and

(2) Such refusal of the distributor to license its features for exhibition in the complainant's theatre on the run requested by the complainant continued during a period of not less than three successive months; and

(3) The distributor during such period has licensed the features requested by the complainant on the run requested by him to a theatre (sometimes hereinafter referred to as a circuit theatre) which was in competition with the theatre specified in the complaint and which was a component of a circuit of not less than 15 theatres or which was affiliated either by stock ownership, common ownership, common buying or otherwise with a circuit of not less than 15 theatres or the licenses for which were negotiated by a buying combine or common buying agent negotiating for not less than 15 theatres; and

(4) The complainant's theatre has not available to it features sufficient in nature and quantity to enable it to operate on the run requested by the complainant; and

(5) (a) Subsequent to July 20, 1935 and prior to July 20, 1940 the complainant operated the theatre specified in his complaint on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre specified in the complaint; or

(b) Subsequent to July 20, 1940 and during the two consecutive motion picture seasons[3] immediately preceding the filing of the complaint, the complainant operated the theatre specified in his complaint on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre specified in the complaint and during such period exhibited on such run substantially all the features released during such period by the distributor complained against; or

(c) Subsequent to July 20, 1935 and prior to July 20, 1940 the complainant demanded in writing[4] features for the theatre specified in his complaint from the distributor complained against on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre specified in the complaint; or the complainant had filed with a Local Clearance and Zoning Board or a Local Grievance Board under the Code of Fair Competition for the Motion Picture Industry approved pursuant to the National Industrial Recovery Act such a complaint which was not finally disposed of by administrative decision under said Code prior to May 27, 1935; or

(d) The complainant operated the theatre specified in his complaint for at least one year prior to the entry of this decree, and subsequent to July 20, 1935 and prior to July 20, 1940 a prior operator of said theatre had demanded in writing[5] features from the distributor complained against on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre specified in the complaint; or the complainant had filed with a Local Clearance and Zoning Zoard or a Local Grievance Board under the Code of Fair Competition for the Motion Picture Industry approved pursuant to the National Industrial Recovery Act such a complaint which was not finally disposed of by administrative decision under said Code prior to May 27, 1935; and

(6) Such refusal to license the exhibition of said features in the complainant's theatre specified in his complaint was in fact because the theatre licensed to exhibit them on the run requested by the complainant was a circuit theatre.

C. In determining whether the exhibitor's complaint is established by the evidence, the arbitrator shall take into consideration, among other things, the following factors and accord to them the importance and weight to which each is entitled, regardless of the order in which they are listed: the terms, if any, offered in respect of each of the two competing theatres; the seating capacity of each of said theatres; the capacity of each for producing revenue for the distributor; the character, appearance and condition of each, including its furnishings, equipment and conveniences; the location of each of said theatres; the character and extent of the area and population each serves; the competitive conditions in the area in which they are located; their comparative suitability[6] for exhibition of the distributor's features on the run requested; the character and ability of the exhibitor operating each and his reputation generally in the industry and in the community for showmanship, honesty and fair dealing; the policy under which each of the theatres has been operated and the policy under which the complainant proposes to operate his said theatre if he obtains the run requested; the financial responsibility of the exhibitor operating each of said theatres; and the distributor's prior relations with each of the two theatres involved and with their owners and operators and any equities arising therefrom.

D. If in any such arbitration the arbitrator finds[7] for the complainant, he may enter an award against the distributor which shall not affect the license to exhibit any feature then under license to the circuit theatre but which shall prohibit such distributor from thereafter licensing its features for exhibition either in the circuit theatre specified in the complaint on the run requested by the complainant, or in the complainant's theatre specified in the complaint, on such run, otherwise than by a separate contract or agreement which shall not be a part of any contract or agreement for the licensing of features for exhibition in any other theatre or conditioned upon the licensing of features for exhibition in any other theatre.

E. After a final award in favor of a complaining exhibitor has been made under this Section, such exhibitor may institute a further arbitration proceeding (to be held before the arbitrator who entered the original award, if available) upon the ground that such award has not been complied with in good faith by the distributor against which it was entered. If in any such proceedings the arbitrator shall find[7] that the distributor has not complied in good faith with the original award, the arbitrator may award damages to the exhibitor for loss resulting from the distributor's failure to comply with the original award but any such award of damages shall be purely compensatory.

Any further arbitration proceeding for an award of damages for violation of the original award must be commenced within sixty days after such violation has occurred, by filing a statement specifying the facts constituting each alleged violation for which damages are sought and the exhibitor's alleged damages resulting from each such alleged violation. No award of damages shall be made in any such proceeding for any violation of the original award not occurring within said sixty day period, but prior violations may, in any such proceeding, be considered by the arbitrator as evidence bearing upon the question of the distributor's good faith.

[1]An independent exhibitor, as used in this Section, is one wholly independent of any circuit of more than five theatres and not affiliated either by stock ownership, common ownership, common buying or otherwise with a circuit of more than five theatres and whose licenses are not negotiated by a buying combine or common buying agent negotiating for more than five theatres.

[2]A theatre shall not be deemed to have replaced such an existing theatre unless erected in the same neighborhood as one which was destroyed or permanently abandoned as a theatre, for the purpose of succeeding to its patronage, and with a seating capacity not more than 25 percent greater than that of the theatre replaced.

[3]A motion picture season means the period from September 1 of one year to August 31 of the next year.

[4]Demands in writing shall be deemed to include complaints in writing to the Department of Justice.

[5]See footnote 4 to this Section.

[6]In considering this factor in situations where the exhibitor customarily exhibits features in two or more theatres on the same run in the same situation as a unit by contracting for groups of features on an "or" basis (i.e., for exhibition at one of two or more specified theatres) all of such theatres may be considered collectively as a unit.

[7]See footnote 3 to Section IV.

XI.

(1) For a period of three years after the entry of the decree herein each of the consenting defendants will notify[1] the Department of Justice immediately of any legally binding commitment for the acquisition by it of any additional theatre or theatres.

(2) During such period each such defendant will also report[1] to the Department of Justice on or before the tenth day of each month the changes in its theatre position, if any, that have occurred during the preceding month, as follows, together with a statement of the reasons for such changes:

(a) Theatres contracted to be built, or under construction;

(b) Theatres lost or disposed of:

(c) Theatres acquired;

(d) Interests in theatres acquired, with a statement of the nature and extent of such interests.

(3) If upon receipt of such information the Department of Justice requests any such defendant to furnish further information with respect to any of the above transactions in which it is involved, such defendant will make a reasonable effort to supply such information promptly.

(4) No information furnished under subdivision (1), (2) or (3) hereof shall be divulged by any representative of the Department of Justice to any person other than a duly authorized representative of the Department of Justice, except in the course of legal proceedings to which the United States is a party, or as otherwise required by law.

(5) For a period of three years following the entry of this decree, no consenting defendant

REPUBLIC CONSIDERS DISTRIBUTION CHANGE

Republic Pictures, a non-defendant in the anti-trust suit, is considering changes in exchange operation, to conform with the consent decree, it was reported in Hollywood Tuesday. Herbert Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, is expected on the coast from New York for production conferences late this month, and then is expected to disclose what changes will be made, not only in exchange, but in studio procedure.

shall enter upon a general program of expanding its theatre holdings. Nothing herein shall prevent any such defendant from acquiring theatres or interests therein to protect its investment or its competitive position or for ordinary purposes of its business. Proceedings based on a violation of this subdivision (5) shall be only by application to the Court for injunctive relief against the consenting defendant complained against, which shall be limited to restraining the acquisition, or ordering the divestiture, of the theatres or interests therein, if any, about to be acquired, or acquired, in violation of this Section.

[1]The notification and report shall include such commitments and changes as may have been made by corporations not parties to this decree which are controlled by such defendant. They shall also include such commitments or changes as may have been made by corporations in which such defendant owns a financial interest but which it does not control, if such defendant has received knowledge of such commitments or changes. Each defendant will request such corporations to notify it immediately of any such commitment or change.

XII.

(a) If prior to June 1, 1942, a decree shall not have been entered against the defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation, requiring each of them to trade show its features before licensing the same for exhibition, Section III of this decree, after said date, shall be inoperative and of no binding force and effect upon the consenting defendants, or any of them, except with respect to licenses entered into prior to September 1, 1942, for the exhibition of features released prior to such date and subsequent to August 31, 1941.

(b) If, prior to June 1, 1942, a decree shall not have been entered against the defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation limiting the number of features which may be licensed in a single group, subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree, after said date, shall be inoperative and of no binding force and effect upon the consenting defendants, or any of them, except with respect to licenses entered into prior to September 1, 1942, for the exhibition of features released prior to such date and subsequent to August 31, 1941.

(c) If, prior to June 1, 1942, a decree shall have been entered against the defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation containing provisions requiring each of them to trade show its features before licensing the same for exhibition, any consenting defendant may at any time thereafter file herein a written notice of its election to be relieved from further compliance with Section III of this decree and to comply with said provisions of such decree against said defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation, and thereupon an order or supplemental decree shall be entered herein on the application of the defendant or defendants so electing which shall subject said defendant or defendants to such provisions of such other decree and entitle it or them to the benefits of any terms thereof providing for the suspension, modification or vacation of said provisions, and relieve it or them from further compliance with the provisions of Section III of this decree.

(d) If, prior to June 1, 1942, a decree shall have been entered against the defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation containing provisions limiting the number of features which may be licensed in a single group, any consenting defendant may at any time thereafter file herein a written notice of its election to be relieved from further compliance with subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree and to comply with said provisions of such decree against said defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation, and thereupon an order or supplemental decree shall be entered herein on the application of the defendant or defendants so electing which shall subject such defendant or defendants to said provisions of such other decree and entitle it or them to the benefits of any terms thereof providing for the suspension, modification or vacation of said provisions, and relieve it or them from further compliance with the provisions of subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree.

(e) If, prior to June 1, 1942, (1) a decree containing the provisions referred to in subdivision (c) hereof, or (2) a decree containing the provisions referred to in subdivision (d) hereof, or (3) a decree containing the provisions referred to in both of said subdivisions, shall have been entered against the defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation, but an appeal therefrom has been taken or any of said provisions have not become operative and of full force and effect, then the operation of the provisions dealing with the same subject matter contained in Section III or subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree shall be suspended and shall be of no binding force and effect upon any consenting defendant except with respect to licenses entered into prior to September 1, 1942, for the exhibition of features released prior to said date and subsequent to August 31, 1941, unless and until such decree shall become final and such provisions shall be in full force and effect against the defendants United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation. After such decree shall have become final, any consenting defendant may at any time exercise its right of election provided for in subdivisions (c) and (d) of this Section.

(f) If, at any time, an Act of Congress or a rule or regulation made pursuant to an Act of Congress shall require the trade showing of features before licensing the same for exhibition, each of the consenting defendants shall be relieved from further compliance with Section III of this decree, and if, at any time, an Act of Congress or a rule or regulation made pursuant to an Act of Congress shall limit the number of features that may be licensed in a single group, each of the consenting defendants shall be relieved from further compliance with subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree. In either of such events any consenting defendant may at any time make application to this Court, of which notice shall be served upon Petitioner and all other consenting defendants, for an order relieving the consenting defendants, and each of them, from further compliance with Section III or subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree, or both, as the case may be, and vacating the same, and thereupon this Court shall make and enter such an order.

(g) At any time after September 1, 1943, any consenting defendant may move to vacate the then effective provisions of Section III and subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree by filing an application under oath stating that during any consecutive twelve-months period preceding the filing of such application either (1) distributors of motion picture films have licensed 25% or more of the features released for exhibition in the United States otherwise than in accordance with the then effective provisions of Section III and subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree[1] or (2) 12½ per cent or more of the total gross income from licenses for the exhibition of motion pictures in the United States, excluding the gross income of states rights exchanges, has been derived from pictures licensed otherwise than in accordance with the then effective provisions of Section III, and subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree.[1]

Petitioner and all other consenting defendants shall be served with notice of the filing of such application.

Upon such application the Court shall enter an order relieving the defendants from further compliance with the provisions of Section III and subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree, unless within sixty (60) days after service of such application Petitioner shall establish to the satisfaction of the Court that during said twelve-months period less than 12½ per cent of the total gross income from licenses for the exhibition of motion pictures in the United States, excluding the gross income of states rights exchanges, had been derived from pictures licensed otherwise than in accordance with the then effective provisions of Section III and subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree.[1]

(h) At any time after September 1, 1942, any consenting defendant may apply to the Court to vacate the provisions of Section III and subdivision (a) of Section IV of this decree, or the provisions of either of such Sections, and upon such application, the Court shall enter an order relieving the consenting defendants from further compliance with such provisions, upon such defendant showing to the satisfaction of the Court that, subsequent to said date and by reason of the competition of persons not selling exclusively in accordance with said provisions of said Sections, or of either of them[1], compliance by the applicant defendant with such provisions of said Sections, or of either of them, has substantially and adversely affected the applicant defendant's business.

[1]Or with corresponding then effective provisions of a decree against the defendants, United Artists Corporation, Universal Corporation and Columbia Pictures Corporation, referred to in subdivisions (c) and (d) of this Section.

XIII.

Nothing contained in this decree shall apply to operations or activities of any consenting defendant outside of the continental United States[1] or to operations or activities of any consenting defendant within the continental United States in so far as they relate to the distribution or exhibition of motion pictures outside of the continental United States.

[1]The continental United States as used herein means the territory within the boundaries of the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia.

XIV.

Nothing contained in this decree shall be construed to limit or affect the right of any distributor defendant, prior to the general release of a motion picture, to road show such picture or to license or otherwise arrange for the road showing[1] of such picture upon such terms and conditions as may be fixed by the distributor.

XV.

The provisions of this decree shall not apply to any franchise which was signed prior to

U. S AGENTS MAY PROBE ANYTIME

June 6, 1940, or to any license entered into pursuant to such franchise, except that Section VIII hereof shall apply to all such franchises and such licenses between parties bound by this decree other than licenses referred to in Section XVII hereof.

XVI.

No consenting defendant and no officer, director, agent or employee of any such defendant, shall be deemed to have violated any provision of this decree if the arbitration of disputes or controversies arising relative to the subject matter thereof is herein provided for, unless such defendant has refused to arbitrate such a dispute or controversy in the manner and under the conditions specified in this decree and in the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals which are filed herewith, as amended from time to time, or has failed or refused to abide by and perform the final award[1] made and entered in such an arbitration proceeding.

[1]For the purposes of this Section the final award in any arbitration proceeding under Section X of this decree shall be only a final award for damages as therein provided.

XVII.

Nothing contained in this decree shall be construed to limit, impair or restrict in any way whatsoever the right of each distributor defendant[1] to license the exhibition, or in any way to arrange or provide for the exhibition in such manner, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as may be satisfactory to it, of any or of all of the motion pictures which it may at any time distribute (1) in any theatre in the ownership, lease, management or operation, or in the proceeds or profits from the management or operation of which, it directly or indirectly, by stock ownership or otherwise, owns a financial interest at the time of the entry of this decree and also at the time of such license, and (2) in any theatre in the ownership, lease, management or operation, or in the proceeds or profits from the management or operation of which, such distributor defendant acquires after the date of the decree and owns at the time of such license, directly or indirectly, by stock ownership or otherwise, a financial interest of not less than 50 per centum and (3) in any theatre in the ownership, lease, management, or operation, or in the proceeds or profits from the management or operation of which, a company in which such defendant owned not less than 42 per cent of the common stock at the date of the decree and at the time of such license[2], acquires after the date of the decree and owns at the time of such license, directly or indirectly, by stock ownership or otherwise, a financial interest of not less than 50 per cent.

[1]For the purpose of this Section (1) defendant RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., or its successors, shall be deemed to have the same interest in the ownership, lease, management or operation or in the proceeds or profits from the management or operation of any theatre which Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, or its successors, directly or indirectly, has; and (2) defendant Vitagraph, Inc., or its successors, shall be deemed to have the same interest in the ownership, lease, management or operation or in the proceeds or profits from the management or operation of any theatre which Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., or its successors, directly or indirectly, has.

[2]In the case of the distributor defendant Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, or its successors, the defendant National Theatres Corporation, or its successors, shall be deemed to be such a company if said distributor defendant owned not less than 42% of its common stock at the date of the decree and not less than 35% of its common stock at the time of such license, provided not less than 42% of its common stock is owned by Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, or its successors, and by present or future officers or directors of National Theatres Corporation, or its successors.

Film Companies Represented By a "Million Dollars' Worth of Lawyers"

Forty-four company and outside lawyers—"a million dollars' worth of legal talent" —and ten lawyers from the Attorney General's offices, participated variously in the preparation for trial and negotiations for consent decree settlement of the Government's anti-trust suit.

The defense counsel included:

LOEW'S—John W. Davis, one-time Democratic nominee for the Presidency; J. Robert Rubin, Loew's general counsel, and staff members, Edward C. McLean, L. E. Bunker, Tyree Dillard and C. Stanley Thompson.

PARAMOUNT—Simpson, Thacher & Bartlett; former U. S. Federal Judge and Solicitor General Thomas D. Thacher, chief counsel; Austin C. Keough, Paramount general counsel; Edwin L. Weisl, Louis Phillips; Albert C. Bickford, Richard Jones, Morgan Callahan, Walter K. Walker and Samuel Boverman.

TWENTIETH CENTURY-FOX—Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey; Ralph S. Harris and John F. Caskey, chief counsel; Frederick Pride, E. Myron Bull and Charles F. Young.

RKO—Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard; Colonel William J. Donovan, chief counsel, assisted by William Mallard, RKO general counsel; William Zimmerman, Gordon Youngman, O. C. Doering, Jr., John Howley and Granville Whittlesey.

WARNERS—Proskauer, Rose & Paskus; former Judge Joseph Proskauer, chief counsel; Joseph Hazen and Robert W. Perkins, Warner general counsel, and assistants, J. Alvin Van Bergh, Howard Levinson and Harold Berkowitz.

Wright, William P. Farnsworth, Holmes Baldridge, James Malloy, John F. Klagett, Thomas J. Lynch, Shelby Fitze.

XVIII.

For the purpose of securing compliance with this decree, and for no other purpose, duly authorized representatives of the Department of Justice shall, on the written request of the Attorney General or the Assistant Attorney General in charge of anti-trust matters, and on notice to any consenting defendant, reasonable as to time and subject matter, made to such defendant at its principal office, and subject to any legally recognized privilege, (1) be permitted reasonable access, during the office hours of such defendant, to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other records and documents in the possession or under the control of such defendant, relating to any of the matters contained in this decree, and (2) subject to the reasonable convenience of such defendant, and without restraint or interference from it, be permitted to interview its officers or employees regarding any such matters, at which interview counsel for the office or employee interviewed and counsel for the company may be present. Without in any way limiting the rights granted in the foregoing provisions of this Section each of the distributor defendants shall keep at its principal office current records, which shall be accessible for the purpose aforesaid, showing—

(1) The dates when and the places where each of the features is trade-shown, the names of the trade publication wherein notice of each trade-showing was published, and the date of publication; the name and location (by town and exchange district)[1] of each theatre in which each feature is licensed for exhibition, and the date of license thereof;

(2) As to each license entered into by it, the date thereof and the names and location (by town and exchange district)[1] of the theatres involved, the names of the parties thereto and of the distributor's sales representative who negotiated the license, and the names of the features licensed for exhibition;

(3) All arbitration awards rendered against the distributor with a statement showing what the distributor has done to comply therewith.

Information obtained pursuant to the provisions of this Section shall not be divulged by any representative of the Department of Justice to any person other than a duly authorized representative of the Department of Justice except in the course of legal proceedings to which the United States is a party, or as otherwise required by law.

[1]See footnote 4 to Section III.

XIX.

Except as otherwise expressly and specifically provided in this decree, nothing herein shall be construed to limit the right of any distributor defendant to select its own customers, to bargain with them in accordance with law, or to negotiate with or to license to or to accept any offer from any exhibitor to license its motion pictures or any number thereof upon such terms and conditions as it deems advisable or to its best interests.

XX.

The provisions of Section III, of subdivision (a) of Section IV, of Section V and of Section X of this decree shall have application only with respect to features released in the United States after August 31, 1941.

XXI.

Petitioner, by its counsel, has represented to the Court that the public interest requires that the provisions of this decree shall operate for a trial period of three years from the date of entry hereof. Petitioner has further represented to the Court, and each of the consenting defendants has consented to the entry of this decree upon the condition, that Petitioner will not for a period of three years after the entry of this decree, either in this action or any other action or proceeding against any such defendant seek either the relief or any thereof prayed in paragraphs (4), (5) and (6) of Section VIII of the Petition filed herein July 20, 1938, or in paragraphs (5), (6) and (7) of Section VIII of the Amended and Supplemental Complaint filed herein (date to come), 1940, or otherwise seek to divorce the production or distribution of motion pictures from their exhibition; or to dissolve any such defendant or any corporation in which any such defendant has, directly or indirectly, a substantial stock interest and which is engaged in the exhibition of motion pictures or holds directly or indirectly a substantial stock interest in any corporation so engaged, or to dissolve or break up any circuit of theatres of any such defendant or of any such corporation, or to require any such defendant, corporation or circuit to divest itself of its interests or any thereof, direct or indirect, in motion pictures in which it had an interest at the date of the entry of this decree.

XXII.

1. The method and conditions of the arbitration which is referred to in this decree, and the procedure for such arbitration, shall be as specified in this Section and in the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals which are provided for hereinafter.

2. An arbitration system for the arbitration of claims and controversies for which arbitration is provided in this decree shall be administered by an impartial Administrator.

The Administrator shall establish and maintain an Arbitration Tribunal in each city in the United States in which three or more of the distributor defendants shall maintain exchanges.

The Administrator shall establish and maintain a panel of not less than ten arbitrators for each Arbitration Tribunal and shall establish and maintain suitable offices and personnel, including a clerk, for each Arbitration Tribunal and for the Appeal Board provided for hereinafter. The Administrator shall have the power to appoint and remove members of the panels and personnel.

3. No person shall be appointed a member of any panel of arbitrators who has any financial interest in, or has or has had any connection with, the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures, or has or has had any interest in any motion picture theatre as landlord, lessor, or otherwise.

4. The American Arbitration Association is appointed Administrator of the arbitration system under this decree, and is authorized and directed to perform the duties and functions of such Administrator until further order of the Court.

Any successor to the American Arbitration Association as Administrator shall be appointed by the Court on the joint application and recommendation of the Petitioner and of a majority of the distributor defendants, except that if the Petitioner and a majority of the distributor defendants fail to join in making such application and recommendation the successor Administrator shall be appointed by the Court.

5. There shall be a Budget Committee consisting of three members, one of whom shall be appointed by the Administrator, one of whom shall be appointed by the distributor defendants, and one of whom shall be the Chairman of the Appeal Board. The Budget Committee shall budget the cost of the maintenance and operation of the arbitration system. Such budget for the first twelve months of the operation of the arbitration system shall not exceed $.....* except with the consent of a majority of the distributor defendants. The budget for each succeeding twelve months' period shall not exceed $.....,* except with the consent of a majority of the distributor defendants, provided, however, that the Court may, on the application of the Petitioner, and for good cause shown, order an increase in the budget for any year to such amount, not exceeding $.....*, as it may find necessary for the effective operation of the arbitration system.

6. Each arbitrator shall be selected and each arbitration proceeding shall be conducted in the manner prescribed by the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals which are filed herewith and are hereby approved. Such Rules may be amended or added to from time to time by the Administrator with the approval of a majority of the Appeal Board upon notice to the Petitioner and to the distributor defendants of such proposed amendments or additions and an opportunity for a hearing thereon. No amendment of or addition to such Rules shall change the qualifications of arbitrators as set forth in Rule II of such rules or deny to any exhibitor or distributor defendant the right to intervene as a party in any proceeding by which it may be affected or deny to any party to an arbitration proceeding the right: to receive notice of all proceedings therein; to participate in the selection of arbitrators; to challenge the qualifications of arbitrators; to be represented by counsel or otherwise; to secure the production of witnesses and of evidence; to examine and cross-examine all witnesses; and to appeal to the Appeal Board from any adverse award. The Rules may provide for the arbitration of claims and controversies between distributor defendants and exhibitors for the arbitration of which no provision is made in this decree and which by agreement between the parties thereto shall be submitted to the tribunals.

7. There shall be an Appeal Board which shall have jurisdiction to determine appeals from awards made by the Arbitration Tribunals. It shall consist of three members appointed by the Court, each of whom shall be a person of known impartiality and distinction. Each such member shall be appointed for a term of three years and shall serve during such term unless he shall be removed by order of the Court or shall resign. Each member of the Appeal Board shall be eligible for reappointment.

One member of the Appeal Board shall be designated by the Court as the Chairman of the Board.

The members of the Appeal Board shall be compensated on an annual basis. The Chairman of the Board shall be paid $.....* per annum, and each of the other members of the Board shall be paid $.....* per annum.

The Appeal Board shall have its offices in New York, N. Y.

8. The expenses of the arbitration system shall be paid out of a fund administered by the Administrator. Such fund shall be established and maintained: by filing fees provided for by the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals; by penalties imposed in accordance with the provisions of Sections IV and V of this decree, and by such additional amounts, to be paid by the distributor defendants, as may be determined by the Budget Committee from time to time to be necessary. Such amounts shall be assessed by the Administrator to and shall be paid by the several distributor defendants in amounts proportionate to their respective gross receipts from licenses for the exhibition of motion pictures in the United States. The proportionate gross receipts of such defendants during the 1939-40 motion picture season shall be used in determining the amount to be paid by each such defendant for the expenses of establishing the arbitration system and of maintaining it during the first twelve months of its operation. Thereafter the gross receipts for the motion picture season ending on the August 31st immediately preceding the start of the particular twelve months' period shall be used in determining such amounts.

Each distributor defendant shall inform the Administrator promptly after the end of each motion picture season of its total gross receipts during such motion picture season from licenses for the exhibition of motion pictures in the United States. Such information shall be treated by the Administrator as confidential and shall not be divulged except as required by law.

9. Any person who has the right to institute an arbitration proceeding under any provision of this decree, may institute and prosecute such proceeding in the manner and subject to the conditions specified in the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, upon the condition that such person file with the Clerk of the Arbitration Tribunal a submission, in the form and executed in the manner prescribed by the Administrator, which shall provide in substance that such complainant submits the controversy to the arbitration and undertakes to abide by and to comply fully with whatever final award may be entered therein.

Any exhibitor or distributor who intervenes as a party in any arbitration proceeding as provided in the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals, shall file with the Clerk of the Arbitration Tribunal a submission, in the form and executed in the manner prescribed by the Administrator, which shall provide, in substance, that such intervenor submits to the arbitration and undertakes to abide by and to accept whatever final award may be entered therein.

[The exact sums for the Arbitration machinery will be determined at conferences to be held by government and industry attorneys with Judge Goddard who will make the final decisions.*—THE EDITOR.]

Representatives of the Department of Justice, duly authorized in writing, shall be permitted reasonable access during regular office hours to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other records and documents in the possession or under the control of the Appeal Board, of the Arbitration Tribunal, and of the Administrator, which relate to the arbitration system and to the arbitration of claims and controversies under this decree.

XXIII.

Jurisdiction of this cause is retained for the purpose of:

(a) Enabling any of the parties to this decree to apply to the Court at any time for such orders and directions as may be necessary or appropriate for the construction or carrying out of this decree, for the enforcement of compliance therewith, and for the punishment of violations thereof;

(b) Enabling any of the parties to this decree to apply to the Court at any time for a modification of this decree in order to conform it to any Act of Congress enacted after the entry of this decree;

(c) Enabling any consenting defendant to make any application to the Court referred to in any provision of this decree;

(d) Enabling any of the parties to this decree to apply to the Court at any time more than three years after the date of the entry of this decree for any modification thereof;

(e) Enabling any consenting defendant to apply to the Court at any time more than three years after the date of the entry of this decree, to vacate this decree, or any modification thereof, or to vacate or modify any provision thereof, on the ground that under the economic or competitive conditions existing at the time of such application, this decree or any modification thereof, or any provision thereof, is inappropriate or unnecessary, or oppressive or unduly burdensome, regardless of whether or not such economic or competitive conditions are new or unforeseen. The right of each consenting defendant to make any such application and to obtain such relief is expressly reserved by them and is hereby expressly granted.

Whenever obligations or prohibitions are imposed upon the defendants by the laws of any State or by rules or regulations made pursuant thereto, with which the defendants by law must comply, the Court, upon application of the defendants, or any of them, shall from time to time enter orders relieving the defendants from compliance with any requirement of this decree in conflict with such laws, rules or regulations, and the right of the defendants to make such applications and to obtain such relief is expressly granted.

Any application by any party to this decree under the provisions of this Section shall be made in open court upon notice to all of the other parties to this decree, and each such party, upon such application, shall have the right and privilege of requiring the production of witnesses upon whose testimony such application is sought or opposed, and of examining and cross-examining such witnesses in accordance with the rules of the Court.

Exhibitor Groups Continue Protests On Blocks-of-Five Clause in Decree

Exhibitor organizations continued this week their attacks on the section of the proposed consent decree which limits film licensing to a maximum of five pictures in any one group and grants no cancellation privilege.

Jack Kirsch, president of Allied Theatres of Illinois, called attention to the fact that in the "Five-Picture Plan" the distributor has the right to interchange pictures and certain clearance difficulties will arise and Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied, issued a statement commenting on Harry Brandt's stand on the decree and holding that the views of the head of the Independent Theatre Owners of New York are similar to those of Allied.

Attorneys for New York Allied, Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Exhibitors, certain Paramount Partners and others were considering what steps could be taken to oppose at the court hearing November 14th the blocks-of-five clause.

Mr. Kirsch said that he would like some comment or interpretation of the bocks-of-five clause which would "definitely pin down the distributor on the interchange" of films permitted by the decree.

The disputed clause (Number IV [a]) reads:

"No distributor defendant shall offer for license or shall license more than five features in a single group. In offering its features for license to an exhibitor a distributor may change the combinations of features in groups as it may from time to time determine, and may license or offer for license as many groups of features as it may from time to time determine, provided that the license or offer for license of one group of features shall not be conditioned upon the licensing of another feature or group of features."

Chicago was given as an example to illustrate possible difficulty: Mr. Kirsch said, "Clearance in Chicago is based upon price of admission, so if a 25 cent house refuse to buy the first group and a 20 cent house buys it, how can a distributor expect a prior run to repeat on a subsequent run?" It was suggested that pictures sold in groups of five should be sold on a national release or local distribution center basis.

The Allied statement, while approving of the answer given to a previous question by Mr. Brandt, again called upon Edward L. Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, to "state specifically what protection he thinks the independent exhibitor should have against chain influence and chain buying power."

Previously a large number of exhibitor organizations had taken definite action in opposition to the proposed consent decree, especially in regard to the blocks-of-five clause. These actions included the following:

National Allied at a meeting in Pittsburgh October 23rd instructed Abram F. Myers, general rounsel, to prepare a brief and appear in lourt, if permitted, in opposition to the blocks-of-five and trade showing regulations of the decree.

The Motion Pictdre Theatre Owners of Arkansas, Tennessee and Mississippi sent a petition against the decree to the Department of Justice.

The United Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Philadelphia studied the decree proposals and prepared papers to intervene against the block clause.

Representatives of 57 Cleveland independent theatres protested to officials of the Department of Justice.

The United Theatre Owners of Illinois sent wires and letters of protest to Thurman W. Arnold, head of the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice.

The Connecticut Motion Picture Theatre Owners presented its objections in a letter sent three weeks ago to Mr. Arnold. A special plea was made for cancellation rights and it was said that the block booking situation would be "aggravated" and not helped by the decree.

The Co-operative Theatres of Michigan also sent a letter attacking the blocks-of-five regulation and other provisions in the decree.

The board of directors of the Kansas-Missouri Theatre Association sent to Mr. Arnold a copy of a resolution holding that the small group of pictures clause was "disastrous to exhibitors".

The Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners attacked the decree proposals, including the one on small blocks, and submitted to the Department of Justice its recommendations for a substitute decree.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Campaign buttons, always a barometer of political interest, are becoming more numerous, more humorous and, perhaps, even more vindictive, judging by the collection of emblems on display, this week, at the Embassy News Reel Theatre and Consolidated's Bryant Theatre, both in the Times Square District of New York. The Bryant collection will be sent to the successful candidate. And it'll serve him right.

With a record total of 3,000,000 voters registered in New York for the Presidential balloting, the number and variety of political buttons in circulation, reflecting a widespread interest in the campaign, has reached unusual proportions, and it was in order to tie-in with this interest that the exhibitors arranged the displays, offering passes for any button not included among the collection.

The Embassy's collection includes 176 pro-Willkie buttons and 84 pro-Roosevelt emblems. The management started the collection about a month ago. Three to six buttons are added to the collection daily. Some of the pro-Willkie buttons read as follows:

FORCE FRANKLIN OUT AT THIRD
ALL I HAVE LEFT IS A VOTE FOR WILLKIE
NO THIRD TERM
NO FOURTH TERM
NO MORE FIRESIDE CHATS
MY FRIENDS—GOODBYE
"MY DAY"—WHEN I VOTE FOR WILLKIE
TWO GOOD TERMS DESERVE A REST
NO THIRD TERMITES
ROOSEVELT FOR EX-PRESIDENT
NO CROWN FOR FRANKLIN
MY FRIENDS—BUT NOT MY SUBJECTS

Choicest of the pro-Roosevelt buttons read as follows:

TWO GOOD TERMS DESERVE ANOTHER
WILLKIE FOR PRESIDENT—OF COMMONWEALTH AND SOUTHERN UTILITY COMPANY
BETTER A THIRD TERM—THAN A THIRD RATER
WIN WHAT? WITH WILLKIE
CONFUCIUS SAY: ONE TIME, GOOD; TWO TIME, GOOD; THIRD TIME, DAMN GOOD
WE MILLIONAIRES WANT WILLKIE

Jack (Columbia) Cohn's country home is a stately white mansion set on the hilltop in Westchester beyond Katonah. A long driveway lined with maples leads from Orchard Hill Road to the portico. Orchard Hill Road is a long, winding country road and Jack's guests kept missing the house, so Jack, experienced as he was in the ways of Broadway, solved that problem. Down on Orchard Hill Road he set up a nice little neon sign reading "Orchard Hill Farm." The following Sunday evening about nine o'clock an automobile rolled up to the house, six people got out and inquired if they were too late for dinner. They were total strangers to all the Cohns, and Jack asked why they thought they could get dinner there. They explained that they had seen the neon sign and thought it was a country inn. Next day, Broadway or no Broadway, guests or no guests, the neon sign came down.

Helen Blaha, out Jersey way, resurrects the story about Hollywood producer Samuel Goldwyn, who in his studio office, sat talking to an admiring friend, a friend of the yes-man type. "Sam," he said, "I notice you have gathered together a remarkable staff to work for you. How do you do it? Do you have a system?"

The impresario replied, "I'm going to interview men for a position now. Do you want to stay?"

"Sure."

The first applicant was ushered in. Goldwyn studied him, then barked, "How much is two and two?"

"Four," the applicant replied, without a moment's hesitation.

"Good—very good," murmured Goldwyn. "It shows you have a high degree of accuracy, and that you think in a clear, well-organized way. Go into waiting room A."

The second applicant appeared. "How much is two and two?" repeated Goldwyn.

Without hesitation, the second young man replied, "Six."

"Marvelous—marvelous," he shouted. "You are not bound by silly convention. You try to rise above the common horde, and show a great originality. Go into waiting room B."

The third applicant was ushered in, standing up well before the glare of Goldwyn.

Again the question was fired, "How much is two and two?"

Without a moment's faltering, "Thirty-six."

Goldwyn gasped. "Stupendous, colossal. I've never heard anything like it in my life! Your imagination breaks all ordinary bonds. You are a Shelley in modern dress. Go into waiting room C."

Goldwyn then turned to the friend. "Well, who do you think I'm going to hire?"

After a moment's thought, the friend replied, "Why, the one who replied thirty-six, I imagine."

"No. I'm going to hire the one who said six."

"But I don't understand. Why?" asked the friend.

"Because," replied Goldwyn, "He's my wife's cousin."

Then there's the tale of the Rockefeller Center movie mogul who left for California and instructed his secretary to write him airmail if anything important came up on which she needed his advice. Something did come up one Friday and she hurriedly wrote him air mail. Then, to be sure he would get the letter promptly in spite of the weekend, she added a special delivery stamp. Impatiently she waited through all Monday and half of Tuesday for his reply and when it came, tore open the envelope for the words of wisdom. She read: "My dear Miss ——: Your letter reached me promptly late Saturday afternoon. It would never have reached me in this Godforsaken neck of the woods until Monday if you had not thought of sending it special delivery as well as airmail. I want to thank you very much for your thoughtfulness. Sincerely, ——." That was all it said.

There's many a connecting link to motion pictures between World War I and World War II, through Alla Nazimova, who, in 1916, appeared for the late Lewis J. Selznick, father of today's David and Myron Selznick, in a war picture, at $1,000 a day, for 30 days and $30,000, and who now is about to appear in another war film, "Escape," for MGM, opening in a few days.

The Russian actress had been appearing in a vaudeville skit in 1916. She called it "War Brides," and Mr. Selznick invited her to picturize the act, inviting also one Richard Barthelmess, who had been playing the Keith Circuit with her, to join in the film, a comparatively short one, which grossed $300,000.

That was in the days when Mr. Selznick was trying to get the Czar of Russia to go to Hollywood for screen parts.

One morning Selznick awoke to discover that the news headlines screamed of revolution in Russia and the overthrow of the Czar. Selznick wrapped a brocaded silken dressing gown about him, rang for Ishi and demanded tea from the Samovar. A secretary came panting, pencil poised, to take dictation. It was a cablegram, sent paid, which, translated from the Russian, read about thus:

NICHOLAS ROMANOFF
PETROGRAD, RUSSIA
WHEN I WAS A POOR BOY IN KIEV SOME OF YOUR POLICEMEN WERE NOT KIND TO ME AND MY PEOPLE STOP I CAME TO AMERICA AND PROSPERED STOP NOW HEAR WITH REGRET YOU ARE OUT OF A JOB OVER THERE STOP FEEL NO ILLWILL WHAT YOUR POLICEMAN DID SO IF YOU WILL COME NEW YORK CAN GIVE YOU FINE POSITION ACTING IN PICTURES STOP SALARY NO OBJECT STOP REPLY MY EXPENSE STOP REGARDS YOU AND FAMILY
SELZNICK

"Lewis Selznick was disappointed when he did not get a reply," wrote Terry Ramsaye in his "A Million and One Nights," history of the motion picture, adding the observation that, "If the Czar had arrived he would have got the job and perhaps a percentage of the profits."

Variety Clubs Convene, Elect

Some 500 reservations have been made for the annual Philadelphia Variety Club banquet, to be held December 12th at the Bellevue-Stratford hotel. Ben Bernie is to be toastmaster, with Postmaster General Frank C. Walker the guest of honor.

The ladies auxiliary of the Philadelphia Variety Club held its first meeting of the season last week.

The comparatively new Philadelphia Motion Picture Associates has selected December 2 as the date for its first annual banquet. Six Harrisburg, Pa., exhibitors will be the guests of honor, and, in order to insure a large upstate attendance, it was decided to hold the dinner in Harrisburg at the Allisonia Club. Exhibitors to be guests include C. Floyd Hopkins, I. Marcus and W. Yost, T. B. Heckard, J. Engle and Bart Karrer. W. C Karrer, president of the local Associates, will be toastmaster.

The Showman's Club, newest of the industry's social organizations in Philadelphia, opened its new clubrooms last week at 1315 Vine St. A. B. Blosson is the "Star" (president) and William Z. Porter the "Script Man" (secretary-treasurer).

In Boston, the Friars Club has voted to join the National Variety Clubs of America as Tent No. 23. Steve Broidy is president.

Harry Goldstein has been elected president of the Boston Motion Picture Salesmen's Clubs, succeeding Harry Goldman. Other officers are: Harry Worden, vice-president; Harry Rosenblatt, treasurer; Maynard Sickels, secretary. The board of directors includes Mr. Goldman, Tom Duane, Steve Broidy, James Connelly, Frank Dervin, Herman Konnis, Saul Simons. Sam Soroker is sergeant-at-arms. The installation and dinner dance are scheduled for November 16th.

The Cincinnati Variety Club staged a Hallowe'en party at the club rooms Thursday night. Tyrone Power, in Cincinnati for the premiere of "The Mark of Zorro," attended.

Plan Annual Dinner

Robert Clark, Paramount salesman, and Harry Bugie, salesman for Republic, in Cincinnati, were elected to membership in the Cinema Club of Cincinnati at its monthly meeting last week. At the meeting further arrangements were discussed for the annual dinner to be held in January.

The Cleveland Variety Club has elected Bert Stearn, United Artists district manager, Chief Barker succeeding Nat L. Lefton. Installation will take place December 14th. The new officers, including Mr. Stearn, are Lester Zucker, first assistant chief barker; Frank D. Drew, second assistant chief barker; Frank H. Boyd, property man, and I. J. Schmertz, dough boy.

Meanwhile in New York, Jack Ellis, president of the Motion Picture Associates, with Moe Streimer, vice-president, and Morris Sanders met last week with John H. Harris of Pittsburgh, national president of the Variety Clubs, and Robert F. O'Donnell of Dallas, to discuss a proposal that the New York organization become a local Variety Club. Another meeting was set for next month.

In St. Louis, Harry Arthur, Jr., vice-president and general manager of Fanchon and Marco, was elected chief barker of the St. Louis Variety Club last week. He succeeds Tony Matreci. Other officers elected are: Louis K. Ansell and Harry Hynes, assistant barkers; George Wiegand, treasurer; Chauncey B. Nelson, secretary. Members of the board of directors include Sam Schucart, Clarence Turley, Herbert Washburn, Joe Ansell, Clarence Hill and Alvin Wolff.

FCC Hearing on Air 'Monopoly' Set

With the fight over the reappointment of Thad H. Brown settled by the former commissioner's relinquishment of his nomination, the Federal Communications Commission this week prepared to clean up the much disputed report on chain broadcasting and set December 2nd and 3rd as the dates for the hearing of oral argument, setting the final date for the filing of briefs at November 11th.

Hearings Opened in June

The six-volume "preliminary" report of the commission's so-called monopoly committee was made public last June, coincident with the opening of hearings by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee on Mr. Brown's reappointment by President Roosevelt.

Under sharp examination by Senator Charles W. Tobey (Rep., N. H.) who was conducting a one-man vendetta against the commission, Mr. Brown displayed considerable ignorance of both the contents of the report and the activities of the commission with respect to statistical matters for which the Senator asked.

Going through the six volumes, Senator Tobey seized upon the committee's recital of the series of events by which Paramount bought into Columbia Broadcasting System in 1929 and relinquished its interest three years later, calling representatives of the radio company to Washington to testify, finally giving the deal a clean bill of health in contrast with the strictures of the report.

The Senator then went into the events leading up to the settlement of the monopoly case against Radio Corporation of America by consent decree in 1932—which he pointed out was ignored entirely in the report—and proceeded to build up what even RCA officials admitted was a very unsavory picture of one of the largest corporations of the country going to outside attorneys and employing unknown real estate brokers and members of the Senate to secure a delay in the court proceedings so that a consent decree might be perfected.

Upon issuance of the report, the networks immediately voiced strong objections to the findings and challenged many of the "facts" on which they were based. The commission immediately assured everyone that they would be given an opportunity to present their criticisms and views, but took no further action while Mr. Brown's nomination was pending.

Indications are that the report will be materially toned down when finally submitted to Congress, where Senator Tobey has pending a resolution for a thorough investigation of the broadcasting situation which he will press if given the slightest opportunity.

New Kent Drive Meetings

The third series of the annual Kent Drive sales meetings is to begin in the Los Angeles Twentieth Century Fox exchange November 1st, attended by Herman Wobber, general sales manager, and William Kupper, Western division manager.

Jerry Weisfelt has succeeded Rube A. Wagle at the Twentieth Century-Fox Omaha exchange.

Spanish Studios Resuming Work

Film production in Spain has made notable progress since the civil war, according to a report to the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Commerce from the United States commercial attache in Madrid.

In the period which has elapsed since the war ended in April, 1939, 24 feature films have been produced in Spanish studios as well as many short subjects, which includes cartoons, and newsreels. A number of foreign films also have been dubbed, according to the report.

Currently there are 10 producing and five dubbing studios operating in Spain. The progress of the industry in Spain, it is reported, is largely due to Government regulating agencies which have made it difficult for foreign companies to introduce new films into Spain or to secure the films necessary for dubbing and making copies. Furthermore, a much larger group of native artists has been developed and production technique has improved steadily.

Philadelphia Plans Exchange Buildings

Two new film exchange buildings will be added to Philadelphia's film row.

RKO will erect a $100,000 two-story building at 244-52 North 13th Street, designed by David Supowitz.

James Clark, president of Horlacher, local film delivery service, has purchased property at 1239 Vine Street, which will serve as a film exchange for independent distributors, when it is modernized.

Distribute $10,000

The Theatre Authority, Inc., which controls theatrical benefits, last week distributed $10,000, to various players', writers', and producers' charities. The money represented the unit's percentage from benefits since April.

Regain Sound Stage

A sound stage used by Columbia and adjoining its studio has reverted to its owner, I. E. Chadwick, who will use it for films he will produce for Monogram release. The first will be "Her Father's Daughter," from Gene Stratton Porter novel, scheduled to start the end of this month.

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

Mexico City exhibitors and capitalists who back cinema construction have been stunned by the prohibition imposed by the municipal government on the builders of the Cine Metropolitano, which was to have been a 5,000-seat theatre. The government decided, when the house was half completed that since it is directly opposite general fire heaquarters automobiles of the cinema's patrons would hamper the fire engines, and as there is no other handy parking place, the theatre could not be allowed.

This ruling is strange indeed, in as much as the government had fully approved plans for the theatre. The owners hope to retrieve their investment by converting the theatre into an apartment house.

No "Wind" This Year

There is no propspect of "Gone With The Wind" being exhibited in Mexico this year for two excellent reasons. One is the close check the municipal governments are now making on admittances to cinemas, a check that lasts until December 31st and is an annual custom in Mexico during the last quarter of the year so that a base for taxes in the New Year can be established.

A "Gone," which has been extensively advertised in Mexico, is expected to establish an all-time box office record, it is considered unfair that it be shown this time of year, for that would give the exhibitors an artificially high tax rate for 1941.

The other reason for the deferment is the long Mexican Christmas celebration, lasting from December 12th until January 6th, a fiesta that is so much of a home affair that the theatres merely keep open for advertising purposes.

Homage was paid the national cinematographic workers by all branches of the industry on the occasion of its sixth anniversary, October 18th.

May Lift Radio Bans

There are good prospects that radio in Mexico will be given the same amount of editorial freedom that the Mexican press enjoys, for Congressman A. E. Orlaineta, one of the few independent legislators, has asked congress to pass his bill which provides for such freedom of expression. The Congressman thinks that it is only fitting and proper that the public get as much information from radio as it does from newspapers and magazines. He brands as reactionary the numerous wraps on radio broadcasts.

Mexican radio taboos forbid broadcasts of any political or religious news. Social mentions are even forbidden, just why, nobody seems to know. Some of these prohibitions are enforced by the government, others by the Confederation of Mexican Workers. Among the Confederation's bans is that which forbids any slurring of labor even though it may be good natured. The Confederation, though, is exerting a strict ban against any broadcasting of Nazi or Fascist propaganda. Woe betide any station that would try to air such propaganda. It would be closed forthwith, for the Confederation is extremely strong.

Congressman Orlaineta's bill provides for maintaining the Nazi and Fascist taboo. Congress is expected to pass the bill before November 30th, the end of the term of President Lazaro Cardenas.

New assistant general sales manager of Forum Films, Inc., of Hollywood, is William Christy.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

Columbia

BLONDIE HAS SERVANT TROUBLE: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms—A very amusing little comedy. Kept the audience in an uproar all the way through. "Daisy," the dog, steals the show from the stars in that it acts almost human. Played on Cash Nites. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 7-8.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

THERE'S THAT WOMAN AGAIN: Melvyn Douglas, Virginia Bruce, Margaret Lindsay—We wish that woman would stay away because we don't do business when she is around.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

First National

ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO: Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Virginia Weidler, Barbara O'Neil—Good picture, good acting but they don't seem to care much for this type in our town. No business to speak of. What the people want is more comedy and acting, not heavy drama. Running time, 143 minutes. Played October 11-12.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO: Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Virginia Wiedler, Barbara O'Neil—Came from outlying cities to see this feature. Business splendid, especially "Bank Night." Miss Bette Davis certainly kept up her fine quality of acting and was well supported by Mr. Boyer. Very long feature, but I think story held one's attention for the entire 143 minutes. Running time, 143 minutes. Played October 10-11.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

ALL THIS AND HEAVEN, TOO: Bette Davis, Charles Boyer, Jeffrey Lynn, Virginia Weidler, Barbara O'Neill—Probably this will rate some Academy Awards and personally I thought it was excellent. The few that came agreed on that point. However, I ran it three days and an average one-day audience divided itself into three parts and dribbled in slightly each night. They would have all come in one evening, I am sure; then I could have put the other two days to better use as far as the box office is concerned. Sometimes these big ones have such a good drawing power that they draw everyone out of town into the first runs. This may or may not be the explanation this time. When I looked at the size of the crowd with tears in my eyes, all I could say was "All This and Passes, Too." Running time, 142 minutes. Played October 16-18.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

MAN WHO TALKED TOO MUCH: George Brent, Virginia Bruce, Brenda Marshall, Richard Barthelmess—This was a fair feature, although it was booked with "Susan and God" and was underrated. Good story and well acted by Brent and Bruce. Business only fair. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 15-16.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

MURDER IN THE AIR: Ronald Reagan, Lya Lys, John Litel—This in my mind was a swell picture and well acted, definitely a good co-feature and if it had been billed with stronger feature would have made better results. Swell entertainment for those who like sabotage plot and excitement. Running time, 55 minutes. Played October 6-7.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood patronage and transient.

THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT: Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan, George Raft, Ida Lupino, Gale Page, Alan Hale—This picture packs a wallop for any audience. Plenty of suspense. Ida Lupino will go places after her performance in this picture. Honors to George Raft, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan and Alan Hale for a grand performance. Played this single bill and it will stand alone. Running time, 94 minutes. Played October 7-9.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT: George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Alan Hale—Good picture and good business. Pleased all. Action in the first half with comedy and drama in the last half. Running time, 93 minutes. Played October 16.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT: George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page, Alan Hale—Reviewed years ago under title "Bordertown." Cast has been changed, decidedly for the worse and trucks are added in a helpless sort of way. Business poor. Played October 13-14.—C. T. Cooney, Jr., Waldo Theatre Corp., Waldoboro, Maine. General patronage.

TORRID ZONE: Pat O'Brien, James Cagney, Ann Sheridan, Andy Devine, Helen Vinson—One of Warner's top pictures that did not click and did not please. Just too much talking. Pat O'Brien can beat most any member of my sex when it comes to fast and unintelligible conversation. Ann Sheridan is good. Running time, 88 minutes. Played October 4-6. —Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BOOM TOWN: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr, Frank Morgan—Here, gentlemen, is the show of all shows. Good story with plenty of action and acting. But, at advanced admissions, it didn't do the business expected. Business just average. Don't play at advanced admissions or you will be the loser. Running time, 120 minutes. Played October 18-19.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

GOLDEN FLEECING: Lew Ayres, Rita Johnson, Lloyd Nolan—A very entertaining picture. Had a lot of comedy scenes which pleased all who came. Played as second feature with "You're Not So Tough." Business below average for Wednesday-Thursday. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

HELL BELOW (Reissue): Robert Montgomery, Walter Huston, Madge Evans, Jimmy Durante, Robert Young, Eugene Pallette—Played this to fine crowd and pleased students, rural patrons and all present. That speaks well for any picture. It is worthy of a play date from any theatre. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 4-5.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

I LOVE YOU AGAIN: William Powell, Myrna Loy, Frank McHugh, Edmund Lowe—Although this was a fine comedy, it certainly was no special and as usual was allocated in the high bracket. Result was we lost our shirt on this.—Warren L. Webber, Pix Theatre, St. John, Kan. General patronage.

MORTAL STORM, THE: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Irene Rich, Bonita Granville—No dice on this one. A high allocated super-super that failed to do only program business. Gave it my best days and starved.—Warren L. Weber, Pix Theatre, St. John, Kan. General patronage.

NEW MOON: Nelson Eddy, Jeannette MacDonald, Mary Boland—Certainly clicked here; good picture, although I think this famous pair have made better. Business good both days. It is really a pleasure to hear such wonderful voices and splendid music. Running time, 104 minutes. Played October 8-9.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood patronage and transient.

NEW MOON: Nelson Eddy, Jeanette MacDonald, Mary Boland—Very good production, but not so good as some of their earlier pictures. I like a costume play, but most of my patrons prefer an up-to-the-minute show. Ran it too late to make anything. Running time, 104 minutes. Played September 13-15.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

NEW MOON: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Mary Boland—This is exactly what the small town does not want. The lowest gross on any "A" picture played on "A" time in eight months. And yet it was allocated as a special.—Warren L. Weber, Pix Theatre, St. John, Kan. General patronage.

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE: Greer Garson, Laurence Olivier, Edna May Oliver, Mary Boland, Maureen O'Sullivan—Even the bargain night crowd squawked on this super-super. There aren't enough "long hairs" in the average small town to support a picture like this.—Warren L. Weber, Ritz Theatre, Stafford, Kan. General patronage.

SPORTING BLOOD: Robert Young, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lewis Stone—This is a swell picture; what they like, action. The burning stable was most too realistic for the kiddies and me, but this one pleased. Running time, 82 minutes. Played September 20-22.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Joan Crawford, Fredric March, Ruth Hussey, Rita Hayworth, Bruce Cabot, John Carroll, Rita Quigley, Rose Hobart, Marjorie Main—Rather a sacrilegious picture and caused a lot of comment. Well acted, I suppose, by both stars, but definitely did not click, here for patrons ridiculed it and it did not draw any business to speak of. In fact, I was disappointed in this date. Walkouts also occurred. Running time, 117 minutes. Played October 15-16.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

WATERLOO BRIDGE: Vivien Leigh, Robert Taylor——Nice picture. Will draw a selective crowd only. Not the best for small town, but a good picture. Running time, 108 minutes. Played October 23-24.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

Monogram

SON OF THE NAVY: James Dunn, Jean Parker, Martin Spellman—Good picture and good business. Pleased all. Martin Spellman, child actor, is very good. Running time, 72 minutes. Played October 18-19.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Paramount

AMBUSH: Lloyd Nolan, Gladys Swarthout—Played this off an old contract. It has plenty of action and makes a real good half of a double bill. Doubled with "Light of the Western Stars" to satisfactory week-end business. If you haven't played it, go back and pick it up. Running time, 62 minutes. Played October 10-12.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN: Jack Benny, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Phil Harris, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine—This is the best Benny picture to date. Benny's popularity on the air will help put this picture over. "Rochester" almost steals the show. Played single bill and it will stand up alone. Running time, 86 minutes. Played September 16-18.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

CAT AND THE CANARY, THE: Bob Hope, Paullette Goddard, John Beal, Douglass Montgomery—This third screening of the old chiller-diller with the sliding panels and weird noises, pretty Paulette Goddard and gagman Hope afforded many laughs for our audience. For its type, the picture is a good one, and as might be expected, the Hope gag that really took with our audience was the one about Uncle Ambrose being so crooked he had to be screwed into his grave.

Any audience should have an enjoyable 75 minutes with this picture. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 19.—J. A. Roynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

I WANT A DIVORCE: Dick Powell, Joan Blondell—This picture pleased on Sunday and business was fair, but it is little more than a program picture. Running time, 97 minutes. Played October 20-21.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

I WANT A DIVORCE: Dick Powell, Joan Blondell—Pleased all. Here is one you can step on heavy and it will stand up. Dick and Joan swell and all young married high in their praise. Used direct mail campaign to young married women urging them to see this picture with their husbands, followed up with dropcards "Do You Want a Divorce?"—wait! See "Mr. and Mrs. Dick Powell in 'I Want a Divorce.'" Running time, 97 minutes. Played October 6-8.—Ritz Theatre, Graford, Texas. Farm, ranch and construction crews patronage.

LIGHT OF THE WESTERN STARS: Victor Jory, Russell Hayden—Zane Grey stories are always good and this is no exception. Doubled with "Ambush" to satisfactory business. This will please the farmer boys. Too bad there are not more of these excellent stories as Harry Sherman knows how to produce them. Running time, 67 minutes. Played October 10-12.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

OPENED BY MISTAKE: Charles Ruggles, Janice Logan, Robert Paige—This picture was received with the uttermost praise, as it was played on our Pal Nite and drew an exceptional large crowd, compared to some of our other Pal Nites. The crowd seemed to go wild over the usual Chas. Ruggles scenes. There was lots of talk of how much the picture was enjoyed. Running time, 66 minutes. Played October 11.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

RHYTHM ON THE RIVER: Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Basil Rathbone, Oscar Levant—Fair picture for Crosby fans. Mary Martin adds greatly to this picture with her fine performance. Did nice business due to everybody wanting to see Mary on the screen, as many knew her at Weatherford and Mineral Wells before her sudden rise to fame. Come again, Mary; your singing and acting was enjoyed by all. Running time, 94 minutes. Played October 11-12.—Ritz Theatre, Graford, Texas. Farm, ranch and construction crews patronage.

THOSE WERE THE DAYS: William Holden, Judith Barrett, Bonita Granville, Ezra Stone—This would be all right for a co-feature, but not for feature attraction. Business slow excepting on "Bank Night" and then we missed our usual sellout. Well acted feature, but definitely too light a story to make for a headliner. Running time, 75 minutes. October 6-7.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood patronage and transient.

UNTAMED: Patricia Morison, Ray Milland, Akim Tamiroff—Paramount tried to dress this one up with color, but with a cast of unknowns it went the same route as most of their other specials have gone this year. No dice on this one.—Warren L. Weber, Ritz Theatre, Stafford, Kan. General patronage.

Republic

CAROLINA MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Story—Now, here is a star that we can depend on. With good old Smiley carrying the comedy, Gene is the only sure fire box star left, even if Metro has more stars than there are in heaven. Gene is heaven at our box office. We are proud of the fine gesture he is making in coming to Canada and donating his services at Toronto in aid of Red Cross.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

CAROLINA MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnett, June Storey—We had one of the biggest Sunday grosses within the past two years. Also did a record for a Monday. The picture is good. Gene is our ace box office attraction. We used to play him on Friday and Saturday, but now switch his pictures to preferred playing time on Sunday and Monday. Good print, good photography. We are now waiting to play Gene's next, "Ride, Tenderfoot, Ride." Running time, 65 minutes. Played September 29-30.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer Theatre, Hibbing, Minn. General patronage.

DARK COMMAND: John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon—One Republic missed on. The people won't go for this kind of picture.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

GIRL FROM GOD'S COUNTRY: Chester Morris, Charles Bickford, Jane Wyatt—This picture is a natural for week-end business and a worthy picture of any company to make. Republic is giving us many good pictures with a big draw these days. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

GRAND OLE OPRY: Weaver Brothers and Elviry—I must say hats off to Republic Pictures. This picture being a hillbilly type I guess is the reason that I can account for a tremendous business. Wherever an exhibitor has a rural patronage, I would advise him not to skip this picture. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 13-14.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

CANADIAN EXHIBITOR JOINS DEPARTMENT

An exhibitor from Ontario, Canada, this week joins the ranks of those contributing to the What the Picture Did for Me department, and three others whose contributions have been missing for some months have resumed their reporting. The new contributor is:

OLIVER STEWART, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada.

The prodigal contributors who resume their reports this week are:

J. K. BURGESS, Iris Theatre, Velva, N. D.

RITZ THEATRE, Garford, Texas.

WARREN L. WEBER, Pix Theatre, St. John, Kansas, and Ritz Theatre, Stafford, Kansas.

Read the reports from these and other exhibitors in the adjoining columns of the department.

RKO Radio

LUCKY PARTNERS: Ronald Colman, Ginger Rogers—Anyone desiring to see this picture had just as well make himself and herself ready to laugh. The two favorites are riotously swell together. This picture can be guaranteed to please both the old and the young, and a splendid box office getter in city, town and village and will be good for a return day any old time. Running time, 101 minutes. Played October 19-26.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

PRAIRIE LAW: George O'Brien, Virginia Vale—A western drama with plenty of action and thrills. On par with other O'Brien westerns. Should please the western fans. Played as second feature with "I Want a Divorce." Running time, 59 minutes. Played October 16-17.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

PRIMROSE PATH: Ginger Rogers, Joel McCrea, Marjorie Rambeau, Queenie Vassar, Miles Mander—Very well produced. A four star all the way through. Grandma and the father in this picture 100 per cent. Ginger Rogers and Joel McCrea also 100 per cent. Not so sordid as some would have you believe. Plenty of humor without striving for it. Don't be ashamed to give this your best playing time. Played October 6-8.—J. K. Burgess, Iris Theatre, Velva, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BRIGHAM YOUNG: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Jane Darwell, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers—This should be our top money maker for the year. I must say that Fox certainly has a great star in Dean Jagger. This picture brought out people that we never expected to see. Mr. Exhibitor, don't miss this money maker. Running time, 110 minutes. Played November 20-21.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN AT THE WAX MUSEUM: Sidney Toler, Joan Valerie—Just a picture with a lot of wax figures. Better help it along with a western or on Bank Nite. Running time, 63 minutes. Played October 16-17.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN AT THE WAX MUSEUM: Sidney Toler, Joan Valerie—Average Charlie Chan picture which pleased on Family Night. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 15.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CISCO KID AND THE LADY: Cesar Romero, Chris-Pin Martin, Virginia Field, Marjorie Weaver—Doubled this with "Winter Carnival" and it made a satisfactory bill, although a little too long for a Saturday. This series is a little higher class than the ordinary run of westerns. Cesar Romero makes a good "Cisco Kid" with Chris-Pin Martin supplying plenty of humor. I will take all of this series I can get my hands on as they are right up a small town theatre alley. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 3-5.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

EVERYTHING HAPPENS AT NIGHT: Sonja Henie, Ray Milland, Robert Cummings—Noticed that some exhibitors panned this picture as not being up to usual Sonja Henie standard. On the contrary, I found this very satisfactory and audience seemed pleased. Played on a single bill to satisfactory business. Running time, 80 minutes. Played September 30-October 2.—Oliver Steward, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

HIGH SCHOOL: Jane Withers, Joe Brown, Jr.—A very fine offering. Did exceptionally well. Partly due to Foto-Nite.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Plaze Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

I WAS AN ADVENTURESS: Zorina, Richard Green, Peter Lorre, Erich Von Stroheim—There's not much I can say for this picture. It did not draw in this town and my belief is that this would only do in a town of 15,000 or above. Beware, small towns. Running time, 81 minutes. Played November 16-17.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

MARYLAND: Walter Brennan, Brenda Joyce, Fay Bainter, John Payne, Charles Ruggles, Hattie McDaniel—This is a small town natural. Color beautiful, plenty of action. This picture should stand alone in any situation. Running time, 93 minutes. Played October 15-17.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

PIER 13: Lynn Bari, Lloyd Nolan—A nice little picture with a little different slant. Will do on bargain night. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 9-10.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

RETURN OF FRANK JAMES: Henry Fonda, Gene Tierney, Jackie Cooper—Did not draw with "Jesse," but is as good, if not better. Color is beautiful. Recording extra good. Full house well pleased. Running time, 91 minutes. Played October 5-7.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

SWANEE RIVER: Don Ameche, Andrea Leeds, Al Jolson—Played this picture to a very good business. Picture has beautiful color. Ameche portrayal of Stephen Foster outstanding. Al Jolson did a good job.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer Theatre, Hibbing, Minn. General patronage.

YOUNG PEOPLE, THE: Shirley Temple, Charlotte Greenwood, Jack Oakie—If Shirley with the help of Greenwood and Oakie in the past with a story like "Young People," Shirley would not be quitting. "Young People" was good, but did not draw. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 13-14.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

United Artists

WINTER CARNIVAL: Ann Sheridan, Richard Carlson, Robert Armstrong, Helen Parrish—Doubled this with "Cisco Kid and the Lady" and it made a satisfactory bill, although a little too long for a Saturday. Played October 3-5.—Oliver Stewart, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

Universal

ARGENTINE NIGHTS: Ritz Brothers, Andrews Sisters, George Reeves, Constance Moore—Entertaining, to say the least. Excellent acting and singing by Andrews Sisters and Ritz Brothers continue to entertain their followers in fine shape. Running time, 74 minutes. Played October 6-7.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

BOYS FROM SYRACUSE: Martha Raye, Allan Jones, Joe Penner, Rosemary Lane, Irene Hervey, Charles Butterworth—Patrons divided on this one. Some like; some not. Will do just slightly above average if played in the proper spot.—Warren L. Weber, Ritz Theatre, Stafford, Kan. General patronage.

DESTRY RIDES AGAIN: Marlene Dietrich, James Stewart, Charles Winninger, Brian Donlevy, Mischa Auer, Una Merkel—Here is a picture that the audience will rave about when they see it. Played it three days to very good biz. Direction, acting and photography outstanding.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer Theatre, Hibbing, Minn. General patronage.

HIRED WIFE: Rosalind Russell, Brian Ahearne, Virginia Bruce, Robert Benchley—A very high class comedy with absolutely everything in it that it takes to please an audience. They will come the third night as well as the first and that means entertainment extraordinary. Running time, 96 minutes. Played October 13-15.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

MUTINY ON THE BLACK HAWK: Richard Arlen, Andy Devine—Very good action. Good product and story with sufficient comedy furnished by Andy Devine. This Arlen-Devine series by Universal is okay. If you need action pictures, better go out and get this series. Running time, 67 minutes. Played October 17-19.—J. K. Burgess, Iris Theatre, Velva, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

SANDY IS A LADY: Baby Sandy, Nan Grey, Tom Brown, Eugene Pallette, Edgar Kennedy—A darned

nice program picture for the double bill spots in the small towns. Pleased everyone.—Warren L. Weber, Ritz Theatre, Stafford, Kan. General patronage.

SON OF FRANKENSTEIN: Basil Rathbone, Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Lionel Atwill, Josephine Hutchinson—The public is fed up on these gruesome pictures. Too many Frankensteins. Did not click at box office.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer Theatre, Hibbing, Minn. General patronage.

WHEN THE DALTONS RODE: Randolph Scott, Kay Francis, Brian Donlevy, Broderick Crawford, Andy Devine—A rip-roaring picture of the old west. Had action, thrills and suspense. What more could one ask for. It also had comedy and all those things gathered together make a very good picture. Played on Cash Nites. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 14-15.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

WHEN THE DALTONS RODE: Randolph Scott, Kay Francis, Brian Donlevy, Andy Devine—Well acted picture for this type. Business very good both days of run. Plenty of thrills and excitement for all. Should click in districts where western type pictures are appreciated, for it contains an excellent cast of stars who all supported one another very well, making it worth mentioning. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 13-14.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

YOU'RE NOT SO TOUGH: "Dead End Kids," "Little Tough Guys," Nan Grey—The "Dead End Kids" and the "Little Tough Guys" provide good entertainment in this picture. Had the usual comedy scenes and that's what the people go for here. Played with "Golden Fleecing." Business below average for Wednesday-Thursday. Running time, 71 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

Warner Brothers

FIGHTING 69TH, THE: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent, Jeffrey Lynn, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Dennis Morgan—Outstanding from standpoint of production and business. Played it three days. The best Warner picture box office in past two years.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer Theatre, Hibbing, Minn. General patronage.

IT ALL CAME TRUE: Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan, Jeffrey Lynn, Zasu Pitts—You'll get the surprise of your life with this one. Plenty of action and a number of old-time songs that appeal to a small town audience. The trailer did not do this picture credit, but it will stand up alone without any trouble and will do business, but you will have to sell the title, although taken from a well known book. Play up the old-time song angle and you will do business. Running time, 97 minutes. Played September 9-11.—Oliver Stewart, Circle Theatre, Alliston, Ontario, Canada. Small town and farming community patronage.

IT ALL CAME TRUE: Ann Sheridan, Humphrey Bogart, Jeffrey Lynn, Zasu Pitts—This is really a swell little picture that I had to use to fill in. Good acting and good story with some fine sequences of night club entertainment in the gay nineties. The title was against it. Wonder who names Pullman cars and picture shows. Running time, 97 minutes. Played October 11-13.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

HELL'S ANGELS (Reissue): Jean Harlow, James Hall, Ben Lyon—Boys, here is one you can bring back now and do outstanding biz. It's timely and appealing. Played it two days mid-week and it did a record for theatre since it was built. Had to start at 6 P. M. Played three shows each night. We seldom submit a report on a picture, but this one deserves it from standpoint of production and business. The print was in excellent condition. Play it by all means if you want to have a bank account. This is the fifth time the picture played since it was made and it's never too old. Played October 15-16.—Edelstein Amusement Co., Homer Theatre, Hibbing, Minn. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

FISH FOLLIES: Phantasies Cartoons—A little too fishy for me, but I believe it took all right.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

FROM NURSE TO WORSE: Three Stooges—Tops in comedy, no foolin'. They brought the house down. Stooges are a feature attraction here.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HOW HIGH IS UP?: Three Stooges—All that I can say is that the patrons almost died laughing at these three nuts. If that's what my patrons want they shall get it. To the many exhibitors that haven't booked this short, do so at once. Running time, 18 minutes.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

NEW HAMPSHIRE: Columbia Tours—Real good. Look out, FitzPatrick; these Columbia boys are making travelogues.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BUBBLING TROUBLES: Our Gang—The poorest short Our Gang has ever made. They seem to be slipping both in quality and audience appeal. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

CAT COLLEGE: Clyde Beatty—As I used to have an ambition to be a wild animal trainer, this pleased me. Think most of the patrons like it, especially the kiddies. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY: Good, but not quite as good as Fox.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

RAINY DAY, A: Cartoons—Good colored cartoon. Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

TOM TURKEY AND HIS HARMONICA HUMDINGERS: Cartoons—Fine colored cartoon with excellent musical score.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

WAY IN THE WILDERNESS, A: Passing Parade No. 14—The Passing Parade Series is always good and this one about the cure of the disease pellagra is no exception. Theatres in the South should certainly play it on their best time. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Paramount

AQUA-RHYTHM: Grantland Rice Sportlights—The Florida University girls who participated in this unusual and interesting short certainly are a well trained group. Their timing and various designs are perfection plus. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

CATCHING WHOPPERS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Real good sport reel.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

DANDY LION, THE: Animated Antics—The first of the Animate Antics and very good, too. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GEORGE OLSON AND HIS MUSIC: Headliners—A peppy musical short.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

MOMENTS OF CHARM OF 1941: Headliners—Very good reel in excellent color. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS, No. 12—Army tests "that tank," British children arrive in U. S., Willkie on campaign, Roosevelt dedicates new school, latest war pictures from England, football, Michigan vs. Michigan State, Notre Dame vs. College of Pacific. An excellent news program. Running time, 13 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS, No. 3—Real good. Ladies like it very much.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WIMMIN IS A MYSKERY: Popeye the Sailor—A Popeye cartoon that was both funny and amusing. Was better than the average. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

RKO Radio

CUPID RIDES THE RANGE: Ray Whitley Comedies—This is a good two-reeler with singing cowboys. Running time, 20 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DONALD'S LUCKY DAY: Walt Disney Cartoons—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

INFORMATION, PLEASE, No. 12—With Wendell Willkie as guest star, the Messrs. Kieran, Adams and Levant go to town. However, we found the sound to be very poor on this one. Found it impossible to understand the speakers at times. I notice that this same complaint has been registered by others. I wonder if RKO could do something to correct this condition, for the shorts are very popular, but prove to be disappointing when one cannot follow the participants word for word. Running time, 12 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, No. 11—U. S. Navy-1940—This issue of the March of Time was very good, and also timely now that the National Defense is under way. Running time, 18 minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, No. 13: Gateways to Panama—Too American for Canadian audiences.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

TWINCUPLETS: Stroud Twins, Brewster Twins—A fair comedy, somewhat on the lighter side, but there is not enough comedy, so it is just an average short subject. Running time, 19 minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

WINDOW CLEANERS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Disney has done it again with a swell color cartoon featuring. Donald Duck, Pluto and a new character represented by an ambitious bee. Donald's troubles with the bee at a dizzy skyscraper height will certainly get the laughs anywhere. Running time, eight minutes.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

HAPPY HAUNTING GROUNDS: Terry-Toons—This black and white cartoon is above average. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: The best newsreel on the market today. Always contains the latest news and sport events.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

TOUCHDOWN DEMONS: Terry-Toons—A better than average black and white cartoon in which cats and mice play football. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

Universal

FOX AND THE RABBITT: Color Cartune Classics (reissue)—Good cartoon in color. In this one the Rabbit finally gets the best of the Fox. Running time, eight minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

Vitaphone

AFRICA SQUEAKS: Looney Tunes—"Porgy Pig" goes to Africa and what happens there makes this cartoon hilariously funny. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

ALI BABA BOUND: Looney Tunes—A funny "Porky Pig" cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

ALL GIRL REVUE: Vitaphone Varieties—Very good short with some pretty girls and peppy dancing. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

BUSY BAKERS: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

CAVALCADE OF ACADEMY AWARDS: Special—An interesting review of the award winners of past years. It ends with the presentation of awards for last year with comments by the winners. Boy, what a price I paid for it, though. It had no extra drawing power here except for the pile of money it drew out of our account. Running time, 30 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

FOOTBALL HIGHLIGHTS: Hollywood Novelties—Entertaining buildup for Knute Rockne. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MALIBU BEACH PARTY: Merrie Melodies—In color and very funny and interesting and an excellent good picture to book. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

STAGE FRIGHT: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WILD HARE, A: Merrie Melodies—Good colored cartoon. Coloring is beautiful. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

WOODY HERMAN AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Seemed to please, though I can see nothing to this modern, so-called music.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

DIGNITY CALLED FOR

The import of army registration, and its implications, of course concerns the theatreman who looks ahead. Already arriving reports on tieins indicate that managers are co-operating. This is to be expected. The mind of the balanced showman reacts immediately to whatever hits the headlines. His job is to hook his situation to "what goes on".

Currently, public attention is occupied with national mobilization and the draft. It may be well to regard the lengths to which the manager should go in accomplishing this "hooking".

There was favorable response, for instance, to Boyd F. Scott's recent offer, on another page, of free admissions on Registration Day. Jim Wagner, of the Cedar, Philadelphia, also took bows in sending over hot coffee to the members of his local registration board.

Now, proposes John Kuehn, assistant at Warners' Fabian, in Bayonne, New Jersey, that before leaving for camp the first draftee in the theatre district be honored on the stage by the Mayor and other city heads. The celebration would include gifts from willing merchants and other well-wishers. The Kuehn plan is under consideration for adoption in the zone. And at this writing various theatres have arranged to make announcements to audiences of numbers drawn in the early drafts.

From the showman's viewpoint, it is understandable that the theatre should be "up there" in this development of the nation's defense program. The desire to soften mobilization fears against a background of entertainment is not to be criticized. And no finger-pointing is called for when these plans aim at the boxoffice.

The problem, and there is one, resolves itself into carrying through such projects with a dignity and judgment befitting the occasion, without jarring the sensibilities of patrons who find in the theatre a brief escape from the sobering impact of war.

Since Armistice Day arrives shortly after the initial drawing of numbers, some of the members are finding in the November 11th date a satisfactory background against which to pitch their conscription activities. In view of the nationwide mobilization, it is argued that Armistice observances this year have a greater significance. Thus, the participation of military organizations and civic heads may be sought without any fears that such participation will be taken for anything less than it aims to be.

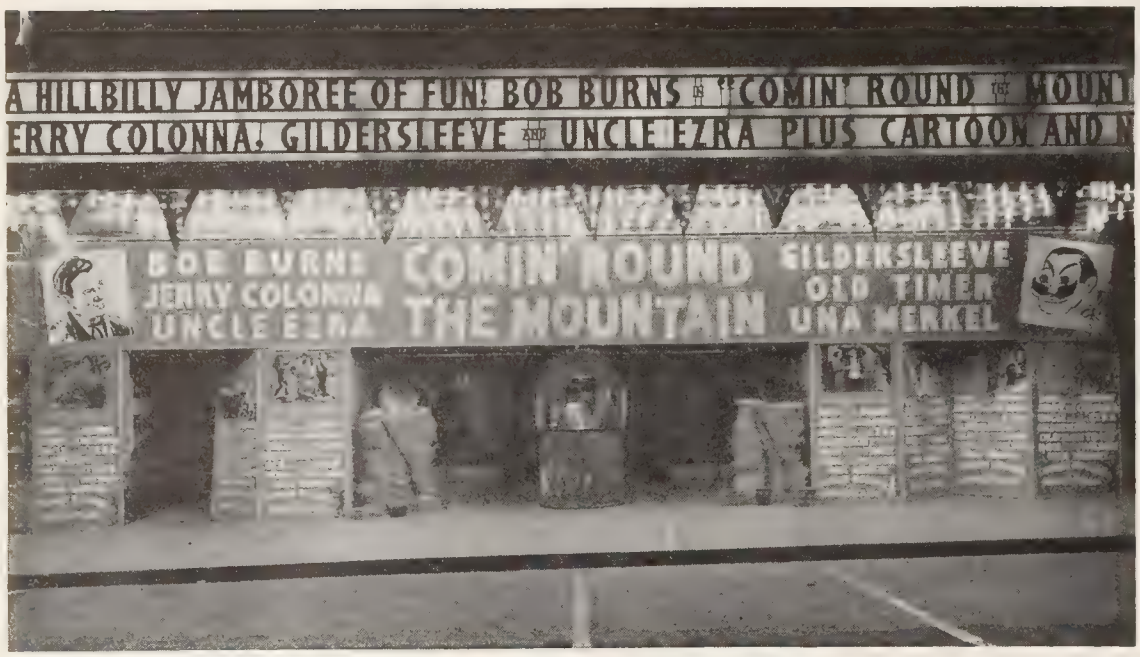
The rearrangement of time schedules in four RKO theatres by John J. O'Connor, vice-president and general manager, promises a distinct way out for theatremen concerned with patron criticism directed at their double-feature programming. Detailed in the news section of this issue, the new policy, adopted after months of study, allows the main feature to be presented nightly at 9:30 instead of closing the show, as formerly.

The change takes nothing away from the double-feature fans, while doubling the enjoyment of the single-bill voters. This is already noted in the favorable reaction to the new policy which is to be inaugurated in other RKO houses where the situation warrants.

THIS BUSINESS OF AGE

In reporting a stunt recently used, a member writes, "It may be an old one for some fellows, but it had never been put on in this town before."

Along in the pages is described a sign-writing idea that stopped traffic completely for Chick Tompkins, in Whiting, Indiana. The same promotion, essentially, was carried among the exploitations in our recent twenty-fifth anniversary number to illustrate how the boys did it "way back when". Tompkins nary worried a worry on the age of the idea. He was smart enough to concentrate on making it work for him.



There is nothing new in exploitation. And, by the same token, there is nothing old in exploitation. A stunt ages only when it is allowed to wither.

"Button, button, who's got the button". Everyone with a button and not all about the election, either. Reported as one of the best stunts used at the theatre in a long time is last week's distribution of a two-color button reading, "All New York Goes To The Roxy". Writes Homer Harmon, ad head, "Requests have also come in from all over town".

Round Table In Pictures

Reported as causing them to stop and read was Dave Martin's 30 by 40 institutional easel in the lobby of the Fox Granada, in Inglewood, Cal. Martin gives credit to his assistant, Bill Erickson as co-worker on the copy.

Touring the downtown area of Broadway was the colorful street truck arranged by ad head, Homer H. Harman, for date on "Down Argentine Way" at the Roxy Theatre. Done in high colors, cutouts of Betty Grable and Carmen Miranda were displayed on either side, while back featured scene stills and cutouts of Grable and Don Ameche dressed in keeping.

Mayors Proclaim Events Honoring RKO Radio Dates

For the premiere of "They Knew What They Wanted" at the RKO Golden Gate, San Francisco, Manager George Bole, and Charles Huy, publicist, obtained civic permission to block off street on both sides of the theatre for the festivities attendant upon personal appearances of the stars in the picture. Special stage built in front of the theatre was shaped as a wine vat and draped with grapes from the nearby Napa Valley, locale of the production. In addition to a program of added entertainment, the stars took bows, and news shots were made of the occasion. Army searchlights and giant arcs were promoted for extra color.

Flags and attraction banners decorated the streets and the theatre building embellished with giant cutout signs and electric streamers running from marquee to roof. A proclamation for the event was issued by the Mayor who attended the opening with other city officials. Fleet of new Buicks, headed by motorcycle escort, transported the stars to the theatre.

The newspapers were made fully aware of the proceedings with comprehensive publicity, and dailies in the neighboring towns carried full accounts of the campaign. Space was also taken in the Italian papers and radio coverage included program on popular Italian hour.

Local Critic Meets Star

Since Charles Laughton was appearing in nearby Boston, George French and Bill Morton arranged to take the local critic to visit the star on behalf of the date at the RKO Albee, Providence. The publicity results added up to an extra three-column feature story and cut, in addition to the regular stuff.

Tiein with the Rhode Island Federation of Women's Clubs returned a reported coverage of 5,000 homes on a telephone chain idea, similar to the chain letter. This worked out very well, as the personal calls gave the picture a lift the conventional plug could not obtain.

Colleges Tied to Premiere

Opened on the eve of the Illinois-Southern California game in Champaign, Ill., the premiere of "Too Many Girls" at the RKO Virginia was no little aided by proclamations from the Mayors of Champaign and the nearby Urbana, urging local support for the event. Under the supervision of district manager, Tom Gorman, Manager Grant A. Martin, and Bob Hickey, RKO Radio exploiteer, a specially produced pageant on the stage introduced 16 co-eds representing the "Big Ten" colleges. Other entertainments were provided by the college Glee Club and other organizations. The football teams and faculty were among the invited guests which included fraternity and sorority heads, university officials, civic heads, athletic coaches, players from the twin-cities and nearby towns. The theatremen also staged a La Conga contest to tie in with the sequence in the picture.

Theatre Fire-Fighting Demonstration Marks "Prevention Week" Campaign

Effectiveness of hooking a picture to a community project for the mutual benefit of both was amply displayed in LaPorte, Ind., when Manager J. R. Wheeler put over "Fire Prevention Week" in cooperation with "Sea Hawk" at the Indiana-Illinois Roxy. The campaign, opening with newspaper mention and trailer supplied by the local fire department, was followed with a number of spectacular street stunts.

These were topped with demonstrations of fire-fighting equipment, one coming on a Saturday, day before opening, when the department's ladder-truck made a run down the main street to the theatre where the extension ladder was hoisted and mounted by one of the firemen who spoke of the "Week" over a loudspeaker. In conjunction, folders were dropped among the crowd, together with guest tickets to the picture and heralds on the picture distributed by the ushers. Another stunt publicized was a fire drill for the staff under the supervision of the Chief, each of the personnel being given an opportunity to use fire-extinguishers and other equipment. Emergency handling of crowds was also demonstrated by the firemen.

In Chicago, Don Johnson, of the circuit's Gayety, featured his "Week" with an insurance tiein wherein prizes were offered for the best 50-word essays on prevention. This was followed with a double-truck co-op ad spread featuring the attraction, "Hidden Gold", of which the Manta-man made up reprints for general distribution.

Ward Ties Double Bill To Burlesque Promotion

Advertising his "Argentine Nights" and "Dance Girl Dance" as a double burlesque, Manager Tom Ward at the El Raton, Raton, New Mexico, carried out his copy in keeping. Peanuts and popcorn were sold in the aisles ahead and during trailers and barker in checkered suit was planted out front. Typical burly front was arranged and hula skirt was draped over cutout of Lucille Ball.

Kept on tap for any fight picture he has coming up and used more recently on "Golden Gloves" is the miniature prize fight ring which Tom set up on sidewalk in front of his theatre. With no prize or contest angle involved, theatreman reports it a natural with kids volunteering to spar. Gloves are supplied for the "fights" and usher acts as referee. At all times, on the floor of the ring, Ward plants his advertising copy.

A "Frank James" impersonator was used as street bally ahead of that picture's opening, with man distributing autographed photos of Henry Fonda. For his lobby display, Ward promoted loan of jacket and gun from localite, who claimed they belonged to Frank James.

PRESIDENTIAL BUTTONS GOOD FOR ADMISSIONS

Basing the offer on the many varieties of election buttons in circulation at this time, Bob Rosen has a poster up in front of the Kingsbridge, New York City, offering free admissions for any Roosevelt or Willkie button not shown on the display.

When a new one is brought in, Rosen adds it to the collection, and for the few passes involved has gathered an exhibit that attracts continually. The buttons also serve to call attention to poster copy announcing election returns from the stage.

Weekly Pigskin Contest Clicks for Falkinburg

Running for nine weeks, through the football season is the contest employed by R. E. Falkinburg at the Majestic and Ralf Theatres, in Lexington, Neb. Early each week three by five cards are distributed, which list the names of colleges competing that Saturday together with boxes next to each for patrons to fill in their choices. Space is also provided at bottom for names and addresses and cards must be at theatre before 12 noon of game. Cards are given out with each ticket purchase and a cash prize of ten dollars goes to the winner each week. In case of a tie, the money is split, if no one gets 100 per cent, highest score is top man.

Curtis Plants Contests On "Great Profile"

For his double bill of "The Great Profile" and "Coming 'Round the Mountain" at the Paramount, in Syracuse, Gene Curtis tied in with local paper for a Hollywood quiz contest in which eight questions pertaining to both pictures were posed. Tickets went to winners. For street bally, man dressed in a Hamlet costume, similar to that worn by Barrymore in the film, paraded streets ahead with back banner.

Artist in store window on Saturday afternoon proved an attractor as he sketched profiles of onlookers, alternating with profiles of Barrymore. Street quiz over WOLF also brought tickets to participants and spot announcements were landed over WSYR.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Brown's "Nights" Lobby

SHOWMEN'S LOBBY LAFFS

ROBBER: Don't feel bad, Mister, make believe it's only a trailer.

Murphy Ties Daguerreotypes To "Third Finger, Left Hand"

Two different contests ran concurrently in leading Syracuse papers as part of the "Third Finger, Left Hand" campaign put over by Frank Murphy for the film's showing at Loew's. A tin-type contest, in which readers were urged to submit favorite old tin-types, ran in the Post-Standard, while a wedding ring contest, posing the problem of whether wedding bands should be streamlined, appeared in the Herald-Journal. Cash and guest tickets were awarded winning entries in both contests.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Meyer's Patriotic Matinee

Ray Meyer at the Warner Uptown, in Philadelphia, recently promoted a "Patriotic Matinee" to spread the doctrines of Democracy. To enhance the show, Ray arranged for patriotic buttons to be distributed to all kids attending the show and contacted schools, women's clubs and patriotic organizations for cooperation. As a lure, some special Warner Americanization shorts were used for his program.

REGISTRATION STUNT AIDS SCOTT GROSSES

So that the theatre would not be forgotten on "Draft Day", "Scotty" Scott hooked the event to the Strand, Uvalde, Tex., by distributing cards announcing that every local registering would be admitted to the theatre free on that day when accompanied by an adult admission. The offer was made known in the theatre by slides in advance and during "the day".

The answer was a gross for the occasion that topped business of the five preceding Wednesdays, reports the Round Tabler.

Theatremen Report "Dreaming" Campaigns

Theatremen in Marshall, Rockport and Monett, Missouri, put on live-wire campaigns for Lum and Abner's "Dreaming Out Loud," with G. H. Hayob of the Mary Lou-Marshall, using heralds to reach visitors at the Saline County Fall Festival, these being placed in automobiles. Banner trucks and a loud speaker also won the attention of the crowds. A full co-op page was used up by the Democratic News, telephone calls made to subscribers and an operator was sent to cover all rural phone subscribers. Window cards were spotted in nearby towns and a six-foot cut-out was posted on the marquee and one and three sheets were used throughout the country.

The Paramount, Rockport, made use of a special banner 40 feet long and three feet wide. The entire trade-drawing area was covered with three thousand specially-printed cards and window cards. Line calls to rural subscribers and heralds distributed to all residences in the town.

The Gillioz Theatre, Monett, engineered a full-page co-op ad specifying jot-'em-down bargains, arranged for radio spot announcements from Springfield, Mo., and Pittsburgh, Kan. Merchant tie-ups, window cards, heralds, 'phone calls and a marquee banner were also employed.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Autographed Footballs Plug "Knute Rockne"

Walt Dunn, of the Paramount-Richards Theatres, in New Orleans, tied up with 24 high schools and colleges in his territory to plug "Knute Rockne" by purchasing regulation footballs which were autographed by Pat O'Brien to be used at school games Saturdays ahead of openings.

Before being tossed onto the gridiron, the footballs were the subject of civic ceremonies with the Mayor and other municipal officials, football coaches, etc., participating. Winning teams will keep the balls.

Camera Amateurs Tied to Contest

Amateur camera enthusiasts of New Jersey now have an attractive opportunity of expressing themselves in the competition arranged by Manager Bob Ungerfeld, of RKO Proctor's Newark, in conjunction with the Sunday Call. Already underway, the contest offers cash and ticket prizes weekly for the best pictures taken of the theatre's "Stage Jamboree," held on Mondays and Tuesdays.

Special seating for camera fans has been provided by Ungerfeld to insure good pictures and the stage is lighted by powerful spots for action shots on fast film. Flash lights and tripods are barred as is standing in the aisles or on seats. In addition to the prizes, the winning picture each week is run in the paper's artgravure section.

To make sure of the widest circulation, Bob has been publicising the contest in the camera column of the paper's hobby page, attention to which is being called with a box on the theatre page. In addition, the Round Tabler has covered all camera and film stores with contest cards, with the dealers plugging the tiein hard for extra sales. At the theatre, trailer and 40 by 60 give further information as a follow-up on the heavy buildup given the tiein by the paper

"Reward" Window Slant Works Well for Gillon

Merchants of Moline, Ill., helped Francis Gillon advertise a "reward" for "Return of Frank James" at the Le Claire, on a window contest that had the folks out hunting when announced. The idea broke with a two-column ad headed "reward," copy reading that next day the 10 different letters of the title would be posted in 10 of the downtown stores. Readers were asked to compile a list of the letters to spell "Frank James" plus the name of each store where each letter was found. Passes were given for the best 25 listings.

Gillon sold the hard-to-convince merchants that the idea would attract wider attention to their windows and merchandise that might otherwise be unnnoticed. Results were gratifying in the number of lists turned in and favorable reaction of the storekeepers.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

South American Atmosphere Stressed by Reh on "Nights"

Recruiting five beautiful models and dressing them in South American costumes, Al Reh for "Argentine Nights" at the Stanley, in Philadelphia brought them to opening football game at Franklin Stadium, where they distributed heralds to the fans. The same night, Rey took the gals to Convention Hall where Glenn Miller was putting on a jitterbug session and arranged for a rhumba contest with a trophy prize to winner from Betty Grable. After the contest, the girls danced around the floor distributing heralds to all couples. Daily newspapers picked up the contest gag as did radio stations, entire stunt being costless to the theatre.

Circuses "Bridge" And Excites City

Winding up his campaign on the eve of opening day with a number of stunts going on at one time in the theatre block, Chick Tompkins' promotion for "Waterloo Bridge" at the Hoosier, Whiting, Ind., is described by the theatreman as a "three-ring circus that brought out one the biggest crowds the city ever saw and broke a long-standing boxoffice record."

To obtain the best corner in town, in advance, Tompkins made up a "pitch" for the Red Cross drive, a long platform built for a pitch-game, the sides carrying theatre and drive copy. In charge were girls in costume to collect contributions and to advertise the picture. Chick then hooked up with a leading baker to insert letter cards in all loaves of bread, each card with one letter of the word "Leigh," and with passes to those bringing in the complete name. Cards of course included full theatre copy.

Fishbowl Slant for Window

Something new for the town and accepted as such was the "girl in the fishbowl" stunt employed by the Round Tabler in a nearby vacant store. Window was blocked off and a small hole left in center. Picture posters, copy, and a large question mark were added. The girl used a p.a. system to attract attention and to answer questions asked by onlookers. Effectiveness of the stunt was noted in the big play given it by the dailies.

At the theatre, Chick excited comments for four days ahead with the "mysterious sign," put on above the marquee. Here, a woman artist in costume, working on a large sign, each day dabbled around painting in what appeard to be meaningless marks without continuity. It was all part of a definite layout, which filled in on the last day became a complete poster for the date. Newsboys hawking papers printed in red, signs on all surrounding bridges, window displays and other helpful exploitations were other things put over.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Local Band Leaders Plug "Band" for Lykes

During the recent one night engagement of Tommy Dorsey at a local ballroom in Toledo, Jack Lykes at Loew's Valentine secured announcements on playdates and featured music from "Strike Up the Band." In addition band leader at hotel plugged the special number of "Drummer Boy" from the picture during his floor show for a week, while still another hotel maestro featured the La Conga number with playdate mention. Radio coverage included recordings over WTOL, imprinted megaphones were distributed at football games and boy in bannered jalopy toured school districts.

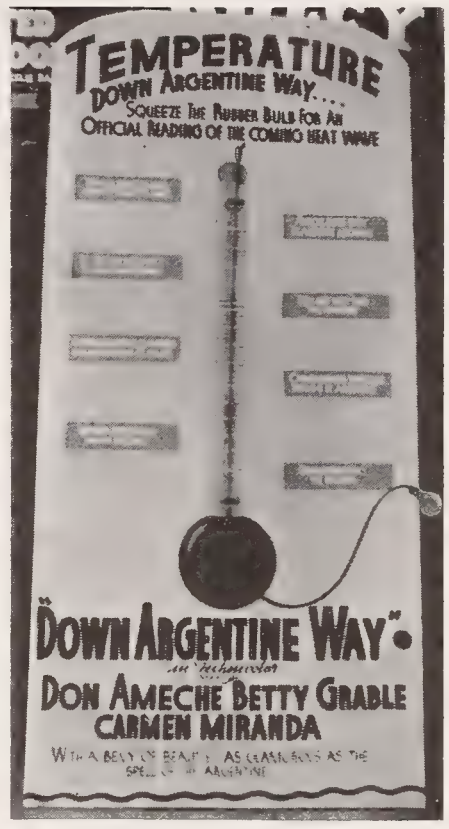
Wainstein Stakes Claim

Dressing a lad as an oil worker, Milton Wainstein for "Flowing Gold" at the Strand Theatre, in Holyoke, Mass., had him distribute tinted cards with copy reading: "Oil Claim. I stake my claim that 'Flowing Gold' is the best show in town". In addition, fleet of oil trucks were bannered.

A SIMONS ANIMATION



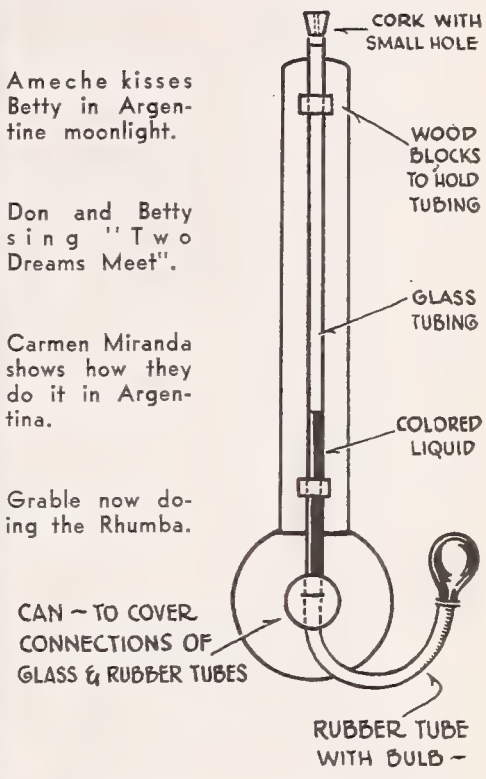
Tropical, terrific Carmen doing the Conga love dance.

It's time for romance the South American way.

Gorgeous, irresistible, glamorous girls now captivating all hearts.

Miranda now singing "Mamae Eu Quero".

Entire lobby display 10 feet high, black and red on yellow background.



Ameche kisses Betty in Argentine moonlight.

Don and Betty sing "Two Dreams Meet".

Carmen Miranda shows how they do it in Argentina.

Grable now doing the Rhumba.

Midwest "Ape" Opening Stresses Horror Stunts

Tied around the catchline "it's horrific," Monogram's "The Ape" was given a spirited campaign for the midwest midnight premiere at the Pastime, Iowa City, Iowa, the front topped with a nine-foot electrically lighted ape figure mounted on the marquee. Giant ape cutouts were fashioned over 40 by 60's in the lobby for further attention with special hanging banners.

Man in ape costume worked in the main streets ahead and on opening day was paraded through the town in a steel cage mounted on a flat car. Additionally effective was an invisible ink teaser card.

Brooklyn Amateur Critics Offered Prizes on "Ramparts"

Patrons of eight RKO neighborhood theatres in Brooklyn, New York, were invited to compete for $200 in prizes offered by the circuit for the best amateur reviews of "Ramparts We Watch," $25 apportioned to each house in the competitions. The rules required that reviews be attached to seat stubs, be mailed or delivered to the theatre where patron saw the picture no later than five days after close of the date.

Theatres cooperating were the Kenmore, Prospect, Dyker, Tilyou, Madison, Republic, Greenpoint and Bushwick. Judges were Al Sindlinger, March of Time, S. Barret McCormick, for RKO Radio, and Harry Mandel, for RKO Theatres.

Bechdel Quizzes Collegians On "Too Many Girls" Contest

Carl Bechdel of the State Theatre, State College, Pa., tied in with the Daily Collegian for his campaign on "Too Many Girls" for controversial letters to the editors as to whether there were too many or not enough girls at Penn State. Penn State has almost 80 per cent in male enrollment.

Bechdel spotted stills on all collegiate bulletin boards and gave pictures of either Ann Miller or Lucille Ball of the cast to fraternity houses, with theatre credit. Collegiate atmosphere shots were used in a score of merchant's windows.

NEWSPAPER BULLETINS TIED TO "DISPATCH"

On "Dispatch from Reuter's", at Warners' Avon, Utica, N. Y., Arnold Stoltz had one of the dailies print up a lot of giant bulletins carrying the latest news flashes coming over the wires. These were spotted on corner stores between signs, one reading, "Read the latest dispatches from all over the world from the Observer-Dispatch", and the other "See Edward G. Robinson in . . . ", etc.

With the wide interest in current happenings, Stoltz reports a ready reception for the tiein by the stores—and no passes needed.

QUICK REPORTS ON RECENT DOINGS

SEEK WORDS OF TITLE FOR "BAND" PRIZES

Members of Bill Elder's Mickey-Judy Fan Club, in Harrisburg, Pa., were offered cash and passes for "Strike Up the Band" at Loew's with a unique newspaper contest wherein entrants were required to find the words of the title in any newspaper page they selected.

The idea was to seek through the news stories and to draw a circle around any word of the title found. Number of times each word was discovered was listed at bottom of page with names and addresses of contestants.

As part of his lobby display on "Boom Town" at the Lyceum Theatre, in Duluth, Minn., George Irwin promoted miniature derrick which was conspicuously displayed with cutout title letters tacked to it in addition to star cutouts, each of which carried names of top players in the picture.

Reported by Dee Barreca, district manager for Loew's in Brooklyn, was the stunt used for "When the Daltons Rode" at the 46th Street Theatre there. Entire staff was dressed as cowboys and cowgirls with chest banners bearing title imprint.

Street ballys aided Arnold Gates on his "Haunted Honeymoon" date at Loew's Park, in Cleveland, since he tied up with dealer for a new model car which was bannered with "Just Married" copy, the usual old shoe and other trimmings and driven about town. Lads carrying teaser and straight announcement banners covered downtown area and for teaser contest, heralds were distributed carrying sketch of plan of the room where the crime in the picture was committed. Tickets went to those who could identify the spot where the body was found.

MGM FOOTBALL SHORT SOLD WITH CONTEST

In connection with Pete Smith's "Football Thrills of 1939," Moon Corker and Frank Bickerstaff put the date over at the Palace, Athens, Ga., with a raft of publicity gained through a newspaper contest on "Your Greatest Thrill in 1939." This could be a play, an event on the field, or anything else pertaining to the game.

Cash and ticket prizes were given to the winners with a gratifying number of entrants trying for the awards. For added buildup, the boys had the coach and University of Georgia team to a special showing.

Recently arranged by Harland Rankin at the Plaza Theatre, in Tilbury, Ontario, was the annual beauty contest sponsored by the theatre. Prizes were promoted from local merchants who plugged the event storewide and through their ads. As a followup a week later, Rankin held a ladies' impersonation beauty contest in which the men competed for prizes and the honor of being called "Miss Tilbury."

M-G-M's electrical transcription on "Strike Up the Band" was planted with WSYR, local NBC outlet, by Frank Murphy, Loew's, Syracuse, as part of his campaign for the Mickey Rooney-Judy Garland musical. This marked the first time in two years that the station agreed to use a motion picture transcription.

Running four columns was the Mayor's Proclamation "Boom Town," which was run in local dailies ahead of Joe Samartano's opening of "Boom Town" at Loew's Palace, in Meriden, Conn. In addition, a parade was held, numerous co-op ads promoted and the Chamber of Commerce support given wholeheartedly.

"Public Deb No. 1" brought John R. Schultz at the Liberty, in Sharon, Pa., numerous window displays in which one-sheets and stills were well represented. Entire lobby was devoted to the picture two weeks ahead, plugs were received over WPIC in their regular half-hour theatre program and teaser readers planted in paper.

Ingenious was the "Great McGinty" setpiece conceived and executed by Assistant Murray Keillor at the Strand, in Trail, B. C. Securing gratis a large cardboard carton from local department store, on which the theatreman sketched a charcoal outline of the character and then cut it out with a razor blade. Planted in front of the theatre, the cutout held a card with copy reading: "Follow the Great McGinty to the Strand".

What he chooses to call an "Is this you" contest, is stunt planted by Jim O'Donnell of the Haines Theatre, in Waterville, Maine, in the classified section of paper. Running a two-column theatre ad, Jim includes a small photo of some localite with the offer of guest tickets to those properly identifying themselves at the classified ad department of the paper.

Contest angle was brought into Ralph Phillips' "Boom Town" co-op page through the use of segments of scene stills which were scattered throughout the various merchants' ads. To those assembling the pieces into complete picture, cash and guest tickets were awarded.

DOG REPLACES HORSE FOR "DALTONS" STUNT

As a switch from the usual horse ballyhoo for a western, Arnold Stoltz ventured a less expensive and what he believes more effective idea for the "Daltons" by using a dog instead. The canine was dressed up with a woman's hair-switch for a tail, an old hobby-horse saddle, and a horse's head made from a wire frame. A three-year-old in cow costume accompanied the "horse," both helped around town by an usher carrying a theatre sign. Folks wanted to know if it was a miniature pony, says Arnold.

Free airplane rides and the solid cooperation of five weekly newspapers helped Dave Seaman of the Warner Forum, Philadelpia, when he played the short "Young America Flies." Essay contests in Catholic and public schools brought gratifying results. The U. S. Army Corps contributed six reels of special aviation pictures, a complete sound and projection machine and posted a detail in the theatre which required an Army Officer in the lobby from opening to closing. From the Quaker City Model Club, Dave received models which he used for lobby purposes, in addition to some promoted from three local airports.

Marking his fifth anniversary at the W&V Colonial, in Allentown, Pa., as director of publicity and assistant to Charlie Bierbauer, local dailies came through with story and art on Nick Todorov's experience thus far in picture business.

COSTUMED NEWSBOYS SELL STONE PAPERS

A sizeable piece of flat stone upon which was lettered "Ephesus Daily News," the date, and headline "Ephesus Blitzkriegs Syracuse" proved to be an outstander for attention on Maurice Crew's "Syracuse" date at the Strand, Waterloo, Iowa.

Two newsboys in Greek costumes carried the "paper" about town, calling the headline. In addition, one of the boys, colored, carried a bannered shine-box offering to polish "sandals" at "one lire."

Proves Best Draw

Repeated for the third successive year, a Talent Search that ran through the summer is now reported to have been one of the biggest grossers at the Rena, Kellogg, Idaho, according to Manager Clarence Golder. Cooperation of the local dancing schools, and endorsement of parents who have found the contests an incentive to children, has made the event one to be anticipated from year to year.

The campaign started in May and ran through August. Preliminary contests were held on Monday nights, proven to be a weak night for business. For the first six weeks, Golder gave cash prizes of nine dollars weekly and then contributed half of the grand prize, an all-expense trip to the New York World's Fair. The other half was paid by a local industrial union which shared the credit in the billing and publicity. Popularity of the contest is indicated by the Round Tabler who reports the final night's business when the big prizes were decided as being the best Monday night since 1937. The comprehensive word-of-mouth comment was paralleled by the generous attentions given by the newspapers which featured the weekly sessions in prominent position.

With his campaign on the above, the Round Tabler also details other promotions put over in his 4,300-population town. On "Road to Singapore," he promoted the use of a large flat truck, upon which was placed a rowboat with lettered sail. In the boat, three Hawaiians rendered string selections. For "Million B. C." Golder obtained the vertebra of a huge dinosaur found in the nearby desert. Displayed at the theatre, the unusual exhibit was good for newspaper stories.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Atmospheric Lobby Staged By Faison for "Lincoln"

Effective lobby display created by George Faison, assistant to C. H. Trotter at the Appalachian Theatre, in Statesville, N. C., on "Abraham Lincoln" consisted of a small rail fence built around a 40 by 60 properly framed. Inside the fence was a split log with axe standing upright, small tiein card read: "From rail-splitter to President."

With the summer school open in local college, arrangements were made with the librarian for special display of cards and reading matter on bulletin boards and a shelf display of Lincoln books. Another stunt put on by Faison was that of giving Lincoln pennies as change from defense tax. Coins were put in imprinted glassine envelopes reading: "Here are reminders for you to see," etc.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Saunders' "Husband" Contest

Readers of the local Times-Star were asked to submit "five rules for winning a husband" as part of the "Pride and Prejudice" campaign put over by Matt Saunders, Loew's Poli, Bridgeport. First prize was an autographed copy of the novel by Jane Austen, with guest tickets awarded to runners-up.

PANAMA CANAL MAP ATTRACTS ON MOT

To give patrons a clearer idea of what the short was about, the Corker-Bickerstaff duo, in Athens, Ga., worked out an ingenious photo map lobby for March of Time's "Gateway to Panama," at the L. & J. Palace. Map showed the Panama Canal in relief and country around it with appropriate copy above.

The Round Tablers report pleasing comment from a number of Army officers on hand to see the picture, since the photo appeared as if it were taken from an airplane.

Cowboy Fancy Roping Used By Unterfort for "Hawk"

Promoted gratis from a local night club by Harry Unterfort was a cowboy who ballyhooed "Brigham Young" by doing fancy rope tricks in front of the Keith Theatre in Syracuse, at the same time plugging the picture. Giant tabloid herald was sold to a merchant, who shared an ad on the back page which paid for entire cost of imprinting and distribution. Special letters were mailed to every English class in the school system; included were two essay contests for guest tickets, one for grade children and the other for the high schools. Every branch of the public library throughout the city used cards and a series of 11 by 14 stills promoted for the purpose, and various book and department stores featured displays tied up with the Louis Bromfield angle.

Promoting bus company for the use of one of their latest streamlined vehicles, Unterfort bannered it with "The Sea Hawk" copy. Bus then toured the entire city day ahead of opening, parked in front at night, keeping its lights on and blinking them from time to time for attraction. Barker in attendance gave special spiel on the picture. In addition news truck was tied up by means of stories being in the various movie magazines.

Newspaper coverage included coloring contest, six-day serialization and a first in many years was a roto spread plugging star and picture. Station WFBL gave four spot announcements daily tying in Bill Lundigan, a former WFBL announcer and local boy who appears in the film.

WARD TIES POLICE TO HALLOWE'EN SHOW

To focus attention upon his combination bill of Universal's "Black Friday" and "Tower of London", booked especially for the Hallowe'en night spook show at the El Raton, Raton, N. Mex., Tom Ward tied in with the police department to post "police cards" urging cooperation in keeping law-and-order by attending the show. The coppers and the schools also sold tickets for the event.

Proceedings were enlivened with games and costume judging. Doughnuts, cider, apples and coffee were promoted by Ward to wind up the party.

They Boom Towns For 'Boom Town'

Since Wichita, Texas, is right in the midst of the oil fields pictured in "Boom Town," the opportunity to tie the two was hardly overlooked by Lew Bary, A. D. Deason and George Sutton in projecting a compelling newspaper buildup for the date at the Wichita.

Of immediate interest was a series of photos showing nearby boom towns during the beginnings of the old drillings. With these were feature stories highlighting the early days. In conjunction, the theatremen secured a number of double-truck co-op layouts, bannered with cuts of oil-derrick country. As to be expected, comment on the picture was vast, especially by the reviewers and columnists. Significance of the entertainment was also expressed on the editorial pages.

On opening day, a parade covered the city, headed by brass bands, 24-sheet floats and bannered autos. The title was widely lettered on prominent windows and stencilled on downtown corners. Working model of an oil rig occupied display space in leading department store and fashions were stressed in other windows.

Kalberer Campaign Booms City

"Let's Make Washington a Boom Town" was the campaign theme determined upon by "Kal" Kalberer for the date at the Indiana, in that Indiana situation. With this in mind, "Kal" obtained permission to plant cards with the slogan on downtown light poles. Title arrows were tacked on all roads leading into the city. Double-truck based on the pressbook contest worked out well with cash and guest tickets offered as prizes. Cooperating merchants used the gummed title labels on windows for followup and also took space on the back of the special herald distributed in the drawing area and in the city.

A department store "treasure hunt" proved helpful on Wally Caldwell's date at the Valentine, Toledo, put on by the Loewman before moving over to Cleveland. Scene stills of the stars' past pictures were placed on 24-inch discs, displayed in the various departments. Patrons were asked to guess the titles, write them on special entry blanks to be deposited in contest boxes at the main entrance. Tiein included herald distribution and window displays.

Top street stunt had nine men marching 10 feet apart, each carrying four-foot gold-painted cutout title letter mounted on batten. Ninth man supported large sign with theatre and playdates. Another bally had young man in city fireman's uniform carrying large suitcase lettered "Explosive thrills and romantic dynamite in," etc.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Drissel's "Finger" Contest

A novel twist by way of a contest was that employed by Roscoe Drissel, Loew's, Norfolk, in connection with his "Third Finger, Left Hand" campaign. Using a picture strip titled "How To Read the Newspaper at the Breakfast Table," which features Myrna Loy and Melvyn Douglas, Drissel asked readers of the Portsmouth Star to complete the poetic jingles accompanying each still. The contest drew an excellent response.

ERPI Branches In Europe Report Few Casualties

Dispatches received at the foreign department of Electrical Research Products, in New York, from its overseas offices indicate that most foreign branches of American distribution and equipment companies are continuing business as usual as best they can under the most difficult conditions.

None Injured in England

Cables from embattled England advise that none of the staff of Western Electric Company, Ltd., has been injured, nor has the company's factory at Cricklewood, northwest London, been damaged, although the homes of a number of employees have been wrecked by bombs. The company's headquarters staff has been evacuated to a non-industrial town some 90 miles northwest of London. However, production continues at top speed at the factory in Cricklewood despite frequent air raid warnings. Watchers on the roof warn workers whenever German bombers come dangerously close. Two American citizens remain on active duty with Western Electric—Robert B. Engler, recording manager, and Clayton Robbins, merchandise manager.

Fred Hotchkiss, manager of Societe de Materiel Acoustique, ERPI's French distributor, sent word from Paris that of the 275 theatres the company serves, 230 were carrying on normally. A report from the war-scarred area along the Channel coast discloses that only three theatres, one in Dunkirk and two in Valenciennes, were seriously damaged, although much greater destruction had been expected in the region of Calais and Lille. Because of the division of France into occupied and unoccupied zones, a supplementary office of S.M.A. has been opened in Marseilles under the direction of H. L. Pemberton.

"Business as Usual"

The ERPI office in Belgium advises that 41 of 59 theatre clients are doing "business as usual." One theatre in Ostend was reported destroyed.

The Netherlands company reports from Amsterdam that the Grand Theatre in Rotterdam has been completely destroyed, but that the other theatres in that territory were continuing to operate.

In occupied Denmark the ERPI office is doing a rush in sales of hearing aids. All theatres are reported in operation.

The Stockholm office states that all ERPI-equipped theatres in Sweden, Norway and Finland are running under peacetime schedules. Arrangements have been made to import American equipment via Petsamo.

The ERPI manager in Italy reported that all theatres were operating as usual and that none of the company's employees had as yet been called to the colors.

In Britain's Mediterranean island of Malta, which has been visited several times by Italian bombers, only one theatre was operating and that one for afternoon shows only, although another house was expected to open shortly.

Universal Files Application

Universal on Friday filed application in the New York supreme court to compel William Freiday, a director of the company and plaintiff in a stockholder suit, to separately enumerate the charges of his complaint and to strike out certain allegations as prejudicial. The application was made by Joseph Proskauer, who has been retained to defend Universal, its officers and directors.

IN COURTS

$16,600 Payment Ordered To Grand National Creditors

Final allowances totaling $16,600 were authorized to Grand National Pictures' creditors by Murray Hulbert, federal judge, last week. They will be paid out of cash on hand aggregating $72,401, which is being augmented by receipts from Grand National pictures still in distribution.

At the same time it was disclosed that $15,000 in wage claims and $30,000 in tax claims will be paid in full. Additional sums will be forthcoming to Harry G. Fromberg, trustee, from the distribution of the company's films by Mohawk Pictures. The allowances authorized were: $7,750 to Dannenberg & Hazen, attorneys for the Grand National trustee; $3,000 to Radin & Goldstein, accountants; $3,250 to Saul E. Rogers, attorney for Grand National, and $1,500 to other attorneys.

Guaranteed Seeks Injunction

An injunction to restrain Screen Attractions Corp. and Morris, Kleinerman, head of the company, from distributing or exhibiting 10 Westerns without authorization has been sought in the New York supreme court by Guaranteed Pictures. Complaint charges the defendant with unauthorizedly distributing the plaintiff's films in New York and New Jersey and that Screen Attractions acquired the prints of the pictures by sub-leasing them for territorial distributors.

Receivership Application Denied

The application of Harry Silverstein for appointment of a receiver for the French Cinema Center was denied by Lloyd C. Church, justice in the New York County supreme court. Mr. Silverstein charged the company was insolvent.

Fox Files Suit

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp., on Friday, filed proceedings in the New York supreme court to compel the New York City Tax Commission to grant a reduction of $210,000 on assessments of the office building and adjacent property. The property is assessed for 1940-41 at $1,145,000.

Stockholder Suit Dismissed

Notice of appeal to the appellate division of the New York supreme court was filed Monday by minority stockholders from a decision of Justice Carroll G. Walter dismissing the stockholder suit against Consolidated Film Industries and other.

NBC Sued on Contract

A suit was filed in the New York supreme court Monday by Julius Singer against the National Broadcasting Company for $15,000, alleging that sum was due him for his services in getting television rights for the company to a number of motion pictures. The plaintiff also asks to examine various NBC executives before trial.

RCA Wins Points

Bernard L. Sheintag, justice of the New York supreme court, Monday dismissed four causes of action in the seven consolidated stockholders' suits against the Radio Corporation of America, General Electric, National Broadcasting Co., Westinghouse, Victor Talking Machine Co., and 29 officers and directors of RCA on the ground that the charges were barred by the six-year statute of limitations. Balance of the complaint, which charges waste and mismanagement after 1933, remains for a hearing of the court.

THE CHART

Productions are listed under distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed as "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) indicates the 1940-41 season. Asterisk (*) after title denotes first appearance.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed. Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

DEAR NORMA AND BOB:

We've got the best news for you! "Escape" is in the bag. A real hit! Look at this photo below: That's not an election crowd, kiddies, it's part of the patient mob in the lobby of Radio City Music Hall waiting to get in to see your new picture. And there's a big line waiting outside, too! A picture's got to be great to make people imitate sardines and pay good money at the same time. Of course, we think it's colossal but Mr. Exhibitor would prefer to hear what the critics say about it. You'll like this, too. Listen!

HOT TYPEWRITERS!

Critics Sing "Dough-Re-Mi!"

"Striking entertainment. What the trade would call a big money show. A first-rate screen thriller."
—N. Y. Herald-Tribune (Howard Barnes)

"Exciting as all hell. Penetrating and blood-curdling effect. The acting is superb."
—N. Y. World-Telegram (William Boehnel)

"A heart-stopping thriller . . . The best and most faithful adaptation of novel to screen that this season, or many another, has ever seen."
—N. Y. Post (Archer Winsten)

"The film is everything the readers of Ethel Vance's sensational best seller can possibly hope for. The camera builds to almost unbearable suspense."
—Los Angeles Herald-Examiner (Dorothy Manners)

"Melodramatic pace and suspense of the original novel! Norma Shearer, Robert Taylor performances match in perfection and power any of their previous portrayals." —M. P. Herald

"It has suspense seldom found on the screen."
—N. Y. Mirror (Lee Mortimer)

"Will have the movie-goers of the land by the nape of the neck as fast as it gets around. Dramatic and hair-raising picture."
—N. Y. Times (Bosley Crowther)

"Makes other pictures seem pallid by comparison with its breathless drama and suspense. Quickens the pulse and leaves the audience breathless."
—N. Y. Daily News (Kate Cameron)

"Powerful! Most effective because it is primarily a fine movie, a great melodrama." —N. Y. PM (Cecilia Ager)

"A strong story excellently acted. Enormous suspense which builds one tensely dramatic situation atop another."
—N. Y. Journal-American (Rose Pelswick)

"A natural. A big, swift, rugged picture. A valuable exhibition property."
—Film Daily

"Intense and passionate with emotion. Strong drama played with telling conviction by a superior cast. An offering of first importance." —Daily Variety

"Enormously rich in atmosphere and impact. Miss Shearer attains the dramatic heights." —L. A. Times (Edwin Schallert)

"M-G-M has a hit in 'Escape'. Intense drama magnificently acted. Best performance of the Taylor career. Norma Shearer was perfect casting. Will do record business everywhere." —Hollywood Reporter

Vol. 141, No. 6 — November 9, 1940

THE PROSPECT

CONTINUED processes of adjustment between this business, and all other businesses, too, and the political and economic concepts of the Administration are both indicated and inevitable.

That was decided at the polls, November 5th.

For the motion picture the process has been under way for some years, obscurely at times, and most recently and most conspicuously in the many somewhat extraordinary aspects of the negotiations and arrangements growing out of the filing of the Arnold anti-trust suit.

It has been made clear that a new viewpoint must be had with respect to such actions, in that they are not lawsuits in the old and long established concept of American practice. A lawsuit starts on a premise of a cause of action and proceeds to a decision and judgment. In this exemplary instance, however, a new order of policy obtains in which the net result, so far, appears to be a new set of trade practice rules for the accepting defendants. Also, and as a unique new and special arrangement, the motion picture industry, so far fractionally and only in the distribution sector, enters into a state of inspection, and continuous operating supervision, in effect, by that new "unit" which the Department of Justice has announced is to be set up for the purpose.

This constitutes something rather akin to a currently limited government Motion Picture Commission. It is not in the history of such developments, down all the years of our national experience, that such movements are recessive. They go forward, acquiring both depth and breadth. This is clearly pointed in the adjacent field of radio, where federal supervision began with the relatively simple function of the allotment of wave lengths, and has now progressed to the making of all manner of commercial operating decisions, most emphatically with frequency-modulation broadcasting and most absolutely with television. In none of these developments of the art are the spontaneous forces of enterprise in technology and promotion in control.

THE motion picture industry is now, like radio and television, in a fair way to have ever sitting with the board a new super-chairman, and not elected from within by reason of either dollars or experience, or ability.

Along with its presentation of the consent decree draft as at last presented to the court, last week's Motion Picture Herald's news pages compared the subjects covered by the government's bill in the suit and the subjects controlled by the decree. It remains to be seen how many of the matters uncovered are to remain on the federal agenda.

In the attendant and accompanying discussions, official and semi-official, it has been indicated plainly enough that the consent decree is maybe a milestone but not an arrival at a destination, that it is not a final document.

Enough is now certain, both in the documents and in the beginnings of production adjustment in Hollywood, to make it obvious that production curves and the patterns of selling and buying are in for a period of both experiment and evolutions. Along with the new set of problems it is more than likely that there will also develop, for the alert, new orders of opportunity.

COMPETITIONS

PERHAPS when the annals of this mad era are on some remote day finally set down in their place in the perspective of Time, it will be known as the Age of Showmanship, a period when all that was accomplished with the multitudes was done with the tools of entertainment, "names" and emotional appeal, supplanting quite the processes of intellect and methods of reason.

The radio years have made one accustomed to the devices of salesmanship which seek to purvey everything from pills to transportation to the nation by irrelevancies borrowed from Hollywood. But with all that, a decided sensation of the extreme nature of the development was to be had on this week's election eve. The two principal parties engaged in processes of saving the nation, again, elected to make their supreme final appeal to the freeholders and voters from New York stages—the Democrats from classic Carnegie Hall, the Republicans from the typical Broadway region cross-street theatre, the Ritz. These air shows were laden with names, many from Hollywood, including Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—also, with a shade more obvious political significance, tap dancing Bill Robinson and the singing Marian Anderson.

Show devices have escaped from the theatre, and now they are all over town, at every night-spotted cross-road, strewn across the nation. So now, more than ever it is the problem of the motion picture showman to increasingly institutionalize his theatre, to make it a place to go, integrated with and built into his community. What the exhibitor is able to put into his theatre on his own cannot be cancelled out or sold away; nor can it be put on the air in competition with him.

Now that "all the world's a stage", indeed, the job for the box office is more explicit.

ADVERTISING in general, and perhaps especially that of the motion picture with reference to productions in Technicolor, is likely to be considerably served by a new "Kodatron Speedlamp", just announced by the Eastman company in Rochester, making possible kodachrome process stills from subjects in rapid motion. Until now it has been difficult to obtain satisfactory color stills for motion picture purposes. The best that have been had have been kodachromes—of which excellent examples were presented in four-color process reproduction in the pictorial section of the recent twenty-fifth anniversary edition of The Herald, and those were essentially static subjects. With the new lamp, it is said, fully timed color stills can be made with exposures as brief as one thirty-thousandth of a second, which is rather beyond any normal motion picture requirement. It is said to give a flash equal to the output of 50,000 forty-watt bulbs.

Trust Settlement

FOR dropping his anti-trust suit against the Warner theatres in Philadelphia and the major distributors, George T. Graves, owner and principal bondholder of the Carman theatre in that city, is understood to have been offered a proposition whereby Frank McNamee, former RKO branch manager in Philadelphia; I. M. Rappaport, operator of the Hippodrome theatre, Baltimore, and Jay Emanuel, would take over the operation of the house on a lease.

The Carman has been in receivership since Spring, Mr. Emanuel being one of three receivers appointed by the local United States District Court to operate the house.

The anti-trust suit was filed personally by Mr. Graves, more than two years' ago, and still is unlisted for trial. The offer is in keeping with a move to settle all anti-trust suits still on the record in Philadelphia out of court.

It is understood that the offer contemplates that Mr. Graves shall retain his financial interest in the theatre. If he approves, the proposal would still be subject to the sanction of Federal Judge Welsh, in whose court the receivership is returnable, and of Stanley-Warner, the principal defendant in the anti-trust action. Also, Warners would have to be in agreement for first-run showings in North Philadelphia, now going to the chain's Uptown theatre, to go to the Carman. And, any such out-of-court settlement is contingent on the Carman getting additional product from the major distributors, which was the basis for the suit.

RCA's "Fantasound"

THE public debut of the Radio Corporation of America's "three-dimensional" sound system, called "Fantasound," will be at the first public exhibition of Walt Disney's "Fantasia" at the Broadway theatre in New York, Wednesday. This will be the official entry of the second contestant in the new sound race, the Bell Telephone Company having demonstrated its stereophonic sound system, but without any accompanying pictures, last April, in New York and in June, in Hollywood.

Two unions this week claimed jurisdiction over installing the equipment for the Disney musical cartoon but a compromise was reached in time to assure the opening as scheduled. (See page 28).

RCA officially claimed Monday that the system, worked out over three years in cooperation with Disney engineers, would have an influence "in bringing about new conceptions of realism in sound-on-film recording and reproduction for the entire industry." The company also predicted: "It is expected that within a few years all leading theatres, in order to show this new type of screen entertainment, will have to be equipped with this new type of sound equipment."

Academy Night School

CONTINUING a new plan of expansion, the management of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will place before its board of governors, on November 15th, a proposal to establish a series of vocational advancement courses limited to studio employees during the next ten months. Last week, the Academy announced the establishment of an industry museum in Hollywood.

Attendance at the school would be restricted to employees of the studios and to those "on-call" workers who are regularly identified with the industry. No outsiders would be admitted, the idea being to provide additional opportunity to those now in the industry. Nineteen courses have been scheduled. Employees would pay as tuition fee about one-third of the cost of instruction, the balance being shared by the studios and the Academy. Sessions would be held evenings.

Leaders in the various film fields would deliver lectures and supervise the seminar and demonstration sessions. In some of the scientific courses a few experts from the outside will also be called in. Also, cooperation will be asked of the various Guilds and technical organizations interested in the welfare of their members, particularly in the junior classifications.

Approve Warner Trusts

THREE $2,000,000 trust funds set up by the three Warner Brothers—Harry, Albert and Jack—each naming another brother as beneficiary, which the U. S. Commissioner of Internal Revenue contended were, in effect, intended to be gifts of the income therefrom, last week were held to be proper by the Board of Tax Appeals at Washington.

The Board's decision was rendered on an attempt made by the Internal Revenue Bureau to collect approximately $5,000 in gift taxes on amounts paid in 1932, 1933 and 1935 by Jack L. Warner to his son, Jack M. Warner and to his former wife from a trust created by Albert Warner.

The Fair Dollar

BONDHOLDERS of the New York World's Fair Corporation will receive 39.2 cents on the dollar, Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the board of directors, disclosed this week.

Two weeks ago, Mr. Gibson said that 38.4 cents on the dollar could be expected, but a higher payment will be made possible through the large revenue from the last weekend of the exposition, and the fact that demolition costs will be lower than was anticipated.

Gross revenue for the past season was finally figured at $11,260,000, some $400,000 above the figure reported two weeks ago. Receipts for the last two days were $300,000 above the anticipated figure, and the cost of demolition of Fair-owned buildings will be $100,000 less than expected.

Dollar Imports Stop

UNTIL a new monetary agreement is concluded, possibly within a few weeks, with the British Government, the American motion picture companies will not be able to withdraw any funds from England. The former pact which allowed the American firms to take about $17,500,000 out of the British Isles expired October 31st. Negotiations for the new agreement began some time ago in London under the direction of Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

Mr. Kennedy, now in the U. S., conferred with Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, in New York a week ago last Wednesday. Various offers of the British Government to allow exports beginning at $5,000,000 and increased to about $10,000,000, were discussed. When the final proposal is received from England, it was reported, Mr. Kennedy again will meet with Mr. Hays who would then inform the major motion picture companies.

One offer of a new British currency export agreement was reported to provide for unrestricted withdrawal of $8,000,000 and a further withdrawal of a like sum if it were earned. The new pact might be concluded within a few weeks, it was said.

On the London Front

A CABLE from Aubrey Flanagan, Quigley Publications' correspondent in London, on Tuesday, reported that the temporary slackening of Nazi air raids on London, last weekend, the absence of air raid alarms on Sunday night, pleasant weather, and extended Sunday opening hours gave the city's film houses heavy weekend business.

The Warner Theatre grossed more on the weekend than during the whole week. The company has reopened the Circle. Other central and Greater London houses have reopened, or plan reopenings. In the West End, the London Pavilion and Astoria have reopened, and the Marble Arch Pavilion will reopen Sunday. The Trocadero and the State also reopened, and the Carlton is expected to resume with "North West Mounted Police."

Red Films Return

THE first shipment of Russian films to this country since the beginning of the year has arrived at the New York offices of Artkino Pictures, Inc., successor to Amkino as distributor of Soviet films on this continent. The first, "The Great Beginning," is scheduled to have its eastern opening at the Miami theatre, New York, shortly. The films arrived by steamship from Murmansk.

Artkino, which succeeeded Amkino when Russian films became too unpopular in this country and "art" houses either closed or refused to play them, has been using 15 old features taken over from Amkino. Last of these was "They Wanted Peace."

Amkino closed its New York offices during the Finnish-Russian fighting. Some of its staff went back to Russia. Nicola Napoli, of its sales staff, formed Artkino; and, as a private individual obtained exclusive distributing rights to Russian films for the Americas.

Other films in the new shipment are "The Mannerheim Line," "University of Life," "The Seamen," and "Homecoming," to be released in the order named.

Films expected soon, by the same route, are "Liberation" and several shorts on life in the Baltic states.

Reds Rule Shipments

WORD from Stockholm discloses that future shipments of films from the United States to Sweden, can be made only with the approval of the Soviet Government, if the films are to be shipped through Petsamo, Finnish Arctic port. At the office of the Swedish Government's Cargo Clearance Committee in New York, it was admitted that discussions on the matter had been had with the Stockholm Government by the USSR. It is expected that the Soviet's permission to ship films to Finland via Petsamo will also be necessary, inasmuch as the port is the only avenue of entrance except through Russia. It was reported that the Swedish Government notified Washington, following receipt of the Soviet advices, to guide American shippers.

'De-freezing' in Spain

RKO has under production in Spain, a feature titled, "Cruiser Baleares," based upon an incident in the Spanish civil war, which will be an experiment in releasing part of the frozen RKO funds tied up in that country.

Dialogue will be in Spanish and the finished film will be exhibited in Latin American countries. It is said that RKO would realize only half of rental money obtained through distribution in world markets. The original proposition made by the Franco Government was for 50 per cent of the rental income to be returned to Spain because of the pressing need for dollar exchange.

RKO sees in the deal the advantage of using frozen funds for production purposes and the possibility of getting more satisfactory deals in the future as a result of the co-operative spirit shown by the company.

Reginald Armour, RKO's European manager, expected back in New York from Hollywood over the weekend, plans to fly to Barcelona in a week, to supervise production of the film.

Paramount Television

PARAMOUNT'S television affiliate, Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, presented Tuesday night its first announced program over its New York station, W2XWV. From time to time during the evening news flashes showing the progress of the election were telecast. The DuMont station has not completed installation of its sound channel so no dialogue or music accompanied the bulletins. Will Baltin, program director, emphasized that the program was only experimental and that the station was not yet ready for a regular program schedule.

W2XBS, the National Broadcasting Company television station in New York, presented a special program from 6:45 P.M. to 1:00 A.M. Election Night. During the evening commentators were interviewed, election flashes read, cards shown to give the voting by states. During parts of the program the television camera was focused on an Associated Press teletyper so that the audience could read the results as they came in. Also visual effects such as an Elephant and a Donkey carrying cards with the electoral votes and chips mounting under the names of Roosevelt and Willkie were used.

Organ Revival?

RECOGNIZING the imminence of a break between ASCAP and the radio industry, January 1st, and the necessity of establishing new outlets for plugging their songs outside of radio, the Music Publishers Protective Association has mapped out a program to meet the threat.

Chief among media which will be substituted for radio as a channel for plugging their songs, will be those film theatres which have organs and other theatres which now use or which may be induced to use song slides. The MPPA says that approximately 1,000 theatres throughout the country still are equipped with organs, and of this number, about 100 regularly use song slides on their screen. The MPPA plan would revive the organ in American film exhibition.

Sunday Stage

REGULAR Sunday Broadway legitimate theatrical performances in New York, starting this Sunday, were authorized this week by Actors Equity Association. The only stipulation Equity imposed was that there should be no increase in the box office price of tickets. Its council indicated informally that they would be more disposed to extend Sunday performances beyond July 1st, the end of the experimental period for such showings, if the producers made particular efforts to attract patrons who could afford tickets priced at $1.10 and $1.65.

35 MORE PRODUCT DEALS REPORTED WITH CIRCUITS FOR THIS SEASON

But Most Companies Remain Silent on Contracts; Total of 120 Recorded for 1940-41; Term Franchises Reported

Distributors, with the exception of RKO Radio and Republic, are, for the most part, continuing to keep their policy, adopted this year, of not announcing circuit deals on the new product. Thirty-five 1940-41 circuit deals have been reported for the past month. Since the beginning of the selling season about 120 announcements have been printed in these pages.

A determination not to announce anything that might upset the negotiations for the proposed consent decree to settle the Government's New York anti-trust suit has been assigned as the chief reason for the failure to make the usual announcement of important deals concluded by several companies.

Also, according to the figures of National Allied a number of exhibitors have not made their product purchases as early as customary.

In the case of some companies, on account of term franchise deals with leading circuits, it was reported that the selling job was not so heavy this season. Some circuits were also reported to have negotiated long term franchise deals with Columbia and Universal to guarantee a supply of product during any critical period while the selling policy set up by the consent decree goes through a period of experimentation.

M. & P. Theatres Signed

Republic circuit deals recently signed included the followings: M. & P. Theatres, 96 theatres, New England; A. E. Lichtman, 20, Washington, D. C., Virginia, North Carolina; Fox Midwest Theatres, Kansas City territory; Commonwealth Theatre Circuit, 41, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri; Interstate Theatre Circuit, 131, Texas, New Mexico; Interstate, Texas.

It was also reported that details of a deal with the Warner Brothers circuit were being negotiated. It was formerly reported that A. H. Blank, 26 theatres, had signed with Fox theatres. The company also has set a deal with the Frisina Circuit's 54 theatres in Illinois.

Among the Universal circuit sales previously published were Minnesota Amusement Company, 93, Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota; Wilby-Kincy, 122, North and South Carolina, Georgia; Interstate, 131, Texas, New Mexico; Publix-Branford, Asheville, Indiana, Illinois, 27; Mutual, Michigan.

Paramount after long negotiations concluded a deal for the Warner Theatre circuit, 459, in 19 states. The two companies concluded the arrangements by conferences in New York after local negotiations for the Philadelphia area were deadlocked.

Additional Monogram circuit deals include Great States; Van Nomikos; Essanees, 27, Chicago; Alliance; Indiana-Illinois, 27. Other Monogram deals previously published included the Newbolt circuit, 11, and Black Diamond, 10, Mutual, Michigan.

"Streamlined" Reissues Sold

Astor Pictures has concluded a booking deal for streamlined versions of "Sky Devils" and "Scarface" with F. & M. St. Louis Theatres and with the Minnesota Amusement Company.

Producers Releasing Corporation reported that during the first six weeks of the sales campaign franchise holders closed approximately 50 percent of the entire sales quota for the 1940-41 product.

Producers Releasing Corporation's circuit product deals previously published for the company's 1940-41 program of 38 films include Saenger's Theatres Corporation, 62, Southeast; Joy Theatres; Theatres Service Corporation; Warners, Washington; Neighborhood Theatres, 9, Virginia; Hofheimer, Rome, 14, Maryland; Prince Amusement Company; Lichtman, 20, Washington, Virginia, North Carolina; Alamo Theatres Corporation; Notes; Constant; Schine, 119, New York, Ohio; West Coast; Royal Amusements, Ltd.; Consolidated Amusement Company, 21, New York; Golden State, 27, California; T. & D., 34, California and New Mexico; Fox West Coast 500-odd in West and mid-west; Blumenfeld, 15, San Francisco; Napa; Nasser Bros.; Redwood Theatres; Harvey Amusement; Publix Great States, 58, Illinois; Easaness, 27, Chicago; Balaban & Katz, Chicago; Associated Theatres, Detroit.

FIELD TRUST SUITS TO BE POSTPONED

The Government's Buffalo, Nashville and Oklahoma City anti-trust suits will be postponed from time to time at the request of the Department of Justice until a final decision has been made on the proposed New York consent decree. If that decree is approved the five consenting companies will be dismissed from the three big out of town actions.

By the agreement considerable time and money for legal preparations for the three trust actions is saved both the Government and the five companies.

ARBITRATION MACHINERY WILL COST INDUSTRY HALF MILLION ANNUALLY

Five Consenting Companies To Pay Percentage of 1939-40 Gross; Fees and Fines To Provide Additional Revenue

During the Election lull between filing the proposed consent decree with Judge Henry W. Goddard October 29th and the hearing next Thursday at which exhibitors and others interested will have an opportunity to present their opinions on the subject, lawyers were spending considerable time making minor changes in the rules of arbitration, adding a paragraph in the arbitration section of the decree itself and discussing the costs of arbitration.

Arbitration Budget in Work

The budget for the arbitration machinery that must be submitted to the Court for approval was finally settled this week at conferences between industry lawyers and J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the American Arbitration Association which will be the administrator of arbitration under the decree.

Each of the five consenting companies will pay a percentage of their 1939-40 gross to support the arbitration machinery. Additional revenue will come from filing fees and fines. The total cost of the arbitration boards in over 30 cities and the Appeal Board in New York was set at $490,000 for the first year, following an Election Day conference in New York.

The budget committee, made up of one representative designated by the American Arbitration Association, one by the five consenting companies and the chairman of the Appeal Board appointed by the Court, will determine the costs for each local board. Office space will be hired at a central location in each of the exchange cities and all the local boards will have a minimum staff of one clerk and one stenographer.

On Tuesday the salary of the chairman of the Arbitration Appeal Board was fixed at $20,000 per year and $17,500 each for the other two members. Previously it had been suggested that the sums be $25,000 and $20,000 respectively.

After the decree has been approved by all parties concerned Mr. Braden will make a tour of the country, interviewing possible members of the arbitration panels in each of the exchange cities and making arrangements for local offices. Each local arbitration panel will have a chairman a well-known man in the particular community.

Meanwhile Government attorneys were working on the revised bill of complaint to be filed, probably on November 14th, against Columbia, United Artists and Universal, the three nonconsenting companies. Before the new complaint can be filed the Government will have to obtain permission from the Court to do so.

Exhibitor organizations also were preparing this week to oppose the consent decree in Court at the hearing next Thursday. It was reported that one group, the Paramount Partners, which previously intended to oppose the decree, might not make a Court appearance, holding that opposition by the organized exhibitor groups would be sufficient.

On Friday of last week, three days after the Department of Justice released the rules of arbitration, along with the consent decree and the Government's statement, numerous minor changes were made in the arbitration regulations and one paragraph was added to the arbitration section of the decree. On Tuesday a few additions, minor changes, were made.

The changes, made after the decree was filed in Court and printed in the November 2nd issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, were as follows:

On page 44 of the HERALD the following was inserted after the first paragraph of the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals:

"Filed herewith and made a part of these Rules is a map showing the territory throughout which the Arbitration Tribunal shall have jurisdiction (each of which territories is hereinafter called an Arbitration District), and the city in each such Arbitration District in which the Arbitration Tribunal shall be located. The Tribunal having jurisdiction in a particular proceeding shall be the Tribunal maintained pursuant to Section XXII of the Decree in the Arbitration District in which the complainant's theatre is located, except that when a distributor institutes an arbitration proceeding the Tribunal having jurisdiction shall be the Tribunal in the Arbitration District in which the theatre involved is located."

The fourth paragraph ("at the same time") was changed to:

"At the time of filing the demand the complainants shall deliver to the clerk of the Tribunal sufficient copies of the demand to enable the clerk to deliver one copy to each defending party and to each other exhibitor and distributor named in the demand, and the clerk shall forthwith make such delivery."

The beginning of the fifth paragraph ("Any defending party") was changed to:

"Within seven days after the date on which the clerk of the Tribunal delivers a copy of the demand to a defending party, such party may sign and file," . . . etc.

"Any" Changed to "a"

In the sixth paragraph "any" was changed to "a."

The paragraph beginning "Upon any exhibitor" is eliminated and a sentence is added to the preceding paragraph:

"The clerk of the Tribunal shall forthwith deliver notice of each intervention to each other party to the proceeding."

Before section II the following was inserted:

"If, any time after the fifteenth day following the filing of the demand and prior to the appointment of an arbitrator, all parties to a proceeding who become parties, by intervention or otherwise, on or before said fifteenth day shall by written agreement select another Tribunal as the Tribunal having jurisdiction and file such agreement with the clerk of the Tribunal originally having jurisdiction, jurisdiction of the proceeding shall hereby be transferred to the Tribunal so selected. Thereafter no further proceedings shall be had in the Tribunal originally having jurisdiction except that the clerk thereof shall forthwith deliver notice of such transfer to the American Arbitration Association and shall forthwith deliver the entire file in such proceeding to the clerk of the Tribunal so selected, who shall forthwith take the action prescribed in Rule III for the appointment of an Arbitrator from the Panel of Arbitrators for his Tribunal."

In the heading of section II an "s" was added to "qualification."

The footnote at the bottom of the second column was taken out.

In the second paragraph of section II ("No member of a panel") the word "arbitration" was stricken out in three places and the word "proceeding" was substituted in the second and third place.

The following changes were made in the first paragraph of section III:

Second sentence beginning "A period of seven days . . ." eliminated in its entirely. Sentence following now reads: "If the clerk of the Tribunel does not receive the list from any party within seven days after the delivery of the list to such party, all the names on such list shall be deemed acceptable to such party."

On page 45 of the text as printed in last week's HERALD—

In the first line a comma was inserted after "shall."

"May also" was changed to "also may" in the first paragraph beginning "The American Arbitration Association."

A comma was taken out after "death" in the second paragraph.

The third sentence in section V was changed to read: "The arbitrator shall fix the time of the beginning of the hearing and may adjourn the hearing from time to time."

In section VI "proceeding with" in the first sentence was changed to "commencing."

In the second sentence the words "appear personally and" were stricken out.

In the fifth sentence "such" was taken out before the word "evidence" and "so received" added after it and "inspection" was changed to the plural.

In the second sentence of section VII "a" was changed to "the."

The words "but shall be bound by the award" were added to section VIII.

On page 46 of the text in the HERALD last week—

In the fifth sentence of section X a comma was added after the word "award" in two places.

A comma was added after the first mention of "fee" in section XI.

In the second paragraph of section XI "or" was changed to read "and." In the last paragraph of that section instead of "the deposits" read "the sums deposited."

"Shall" was substituted for "must" in the first paragraph of section XII.

In section XIII the "r" of "rules" was capitalized.

The fourth and fifth words of section XIV were taken out and "a" inserted.

The next to the last paragraph of section XV now reads:

"Unless otherwise directed by the Appeal Board, the record on appeal shall remain on

EXHIBITORS URGED TO JOIN GROUPS

Allied States Association has taken the occasion of the court consideration of the New York consent decree as a time to urge independent exhibitors to join the group to get "the proper guidance and support in proceedings under the decree."

Allied will oppose the Court approval of the decree, it was pointed out, if the Judge permits such action. However it was said, "The chances are the decree may be entered whether the exhibitors like it or not. Exhibitors then will have to make the best of a bad bargain."

Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, analyzes the proposed decree in terms of its possible effects on exhibitors in a statement which appears on page 17.

file in the Tribunal until the expiration of the time for filing of all briefs provided in Rule XVI.

In section XVI "of copies" was changed to "a copy"; "the" to "each" and "parties" to "party"; also "every" to "each" in the second sentence.

In the third paragraph the first three words were transposed to after the word "parties" and the third and fourth paragraphs were run together.

"But in no event earlier than" in the last sentence of section XVIII was changed "or" and the words "whichever is later" were added at the end.

On page 48 of the HERALD text:

In section XXII the phrase "United States District Court" was changed to "District Court of the United States"; the paragraph beginning "Tribunal having jurisdiction" and the paragraph beginning "arbitration district" were eliminated and the remaining sentences in the section were rearranged in the following order of the definitions: 1, 4, 3, 2, 5, 8, 6, 7.

At the election day conference the following changes were made in the Arbitration Rules: the beginning of the fifth paragraph now reads "At the time. . . ." "At the same time"; after the first clause in the fourth paragraph of section III these words were included: "or in the case of an arbitration of a controversy under either section IV or VII of the decree at any time prior to the appointment of an arbitrator."

In the text of the consent decree the following paragraph was inserted after the first paragraph of subdivision 7 of section XXII on page 54.

"If any member of the Appeal Board is disqualified from passing upon any appeal, or is temporarily unable, because of illness, absence or other cause, to act as a member of the Appeal Board, the Court may on application of one or more members of the Appeal Board appoint another person of known impartiality and distinction to act as a temporary member of the Appeal Board in place of the member so disqualified or unable to act. The compensation of such temporary member shall be fixed by the court."

La Crosse Case Opens In Madison, Wis.

On October 30th attorneys began offering testimony in the U. S. District Court in Madison, Wisconsin, in the $1,472,000 damage action brought by La Crosse Theatres Company, operator of five houses in La Crosse, Wis., against United Artists, Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, Welworth Theatres, operator of two La Crosse houses, and the Minnesota Amusement Co., Minneapolis, parent company of Welworth.

Robert A. Hess, Milwaukee, counsel for the plaintiff, charged Paramount with breaking its film contract with La Crosse Theatres and threatening to erect new houses in the city as a club to force sale of the La Crosse company's houses to Paramount interests at "an inadequate price."

Harold M. Wilkie, Madison, counsel for Paramount, denied Mr. Hess' charge and declared that there was evidence of feeling in La Crosse that the plaintiff had failed to progress and provide facilities for showing of good pictures soon after their release.

The case is being heard before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone and a jury of 12 persons.

Judge Grants Motions In New Haven Action

Judge William H. Comley of the Superior Court in New Haven has granted the motion of Lampert Theatre of Windsor, Inc., to strike out the answer of the defendant, Joseph F. Shulman, filed June 12, 1940, in the action of the Lampert corporation against Vitagraph, Inc. However, simultaneous motions of the plaintiff to expunge and drop for misjoinder were denied. In his memorandum of decision, the Judge stated that "Nowhere does it appear that Joseph L. Shulman is a party defendant except in the allegation that he is the person intended by the motion and order to intervene." The action for damages, reformation of lease, and injunction against Vitagraph restraining it from selling second run to the Plaza, Windsor, was started last February and in March Shulman, operator of the Plaza, filed a motion to intervene as party defendant, which motion was granted. The Judge continued, "The phraseology of this motion suggests that the Court in granting the motion had in mind a corporate entity rather than an individual. It seems to me that the procedure and position of Mr. Shulman in this matter are of such uncertain consequence that it would be wise to send the parties back to the beginning for a fresh start." As a result of this decision, Shulman filed a new motion to amend the motion to intervene, showing that he is the owner of and doing business as the Plaza Theatre Company.

Defense Begins in Middletown Suit

The defense started its case Wednesday, in the sixth week of trial of the "conspiracy" cases brought by S & S Theatre Corp. and Middlesex Theatre, Inc. against Salvatore Adorno, their former partner and manager, in the Superior Court in Middletown, Conn., before Judge Ernest Simpson. Joseph Adorno, son of Salvatore, was the first witness. The plaintiffs completed their examination of 48 witnesses with the testimony of Dr. J. B. Fishman, of Fishman Theatres, New Haven, and Edward Anson, Interstate Theatres, Boston, as to the value of the lease of the Middletown Theatres in June, 1933, the period of the alleged "conspiracy".

Adelphi Case Waits On New York Consent Decree

The Adelphi theatres, Chicago, anti-trust suit will be kept on the court calendar until the New York consent decree has had time to become effective, according to Joseph Rosenberg, attorney for Illinois Allied in the case. If provisions of the decree, particularly the arbitration set-up do not bring relief, the action will be resumed, it was said.

No Republic Changes In Distribution Planned

H. J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., denied Monday the published report that Republic Pictures Corporation was contemplating any change in distribution policy as a result of the consent decree.

Mr. Yates said that he had not yet had time to analyze the decree and, therefore, was not in a position to say whether it would affect Republic operations in any way.

New Jersey Unit

Exhibitors of the New Jersey Allied operating theatres in the southern part of the state are forming a separate unit. At a meeting in the Walt Whitman Hotel, Camden, November 18th, they are to select a regional vice-president, and secretary. Lee Newbury, president of the state unit, will supervise the meeting.

South American Market Threatened By Exchange Loss

Returning from a tour of Latin-America, Walter Gould, newly appointed foreign department chief of United Artists, said in New York Monday that the loss of export markets due to the war was shrinking foreign exchange in South America. If the matter is not adjusted soon, it will limit the purchasing power in this market of all large South American nations, he added.

Announcement of Mr. Gould's appointment to succeed Arthur W. Kelly as foreign department head, was made on Monday, coincident with his return, by Maurice Silverstone, chief executive of the company. Thomas P. Mulrooney will remain as foreign sales manager.

The UA foreign department chief reported film and theatre business flourishing in Argentina, Brazil, Chile and Mexico, with theatre construction active in many Latin American countries. He said Charles Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" would be sold there on terms comparable with those being asked here, including advanced admissions. The picture will open in Buenos Aires around New Year's Day.

Discussing South America's foreign exchange problem, Mr. Gould pointed out that the countries there must use their limited dollar exchange to service their debts, mostly owed to this country or buy goods. They haven't enough dollar exchange to do both, he continued, since their European markets have been shut off by the war. Therefore, they have been compelled to buy more from the United States, as a result. Only nominal increases in purchases by this country in South America would aid in solving the problem.

Paramount Officers Proceed to Studio

Paramount New York home office executives left that city Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to attend product and consent decree conferences at the Hollywood studio, and conferences with midwest theatre associates in Chicago. The studio conferences were to begin on Thursday and carry over to next week, when the theatre associates from Chicago, the Northwest, and elsewhere were scheduled to participate.

Those who left New York on Wednesday for the Coast were Barney Balaban, president; Stanton Griffis, head of the executive committee, and Neil Agnew, general sales manager. Leonard Goldenson and Sam Dembow, Jr., of the theatre department, left the same day for the Chicago meetings, and were to proceed from there to the Coast on Friday night, in company with some of the theatre associates.

Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board, and Russell Holman, Eastern studio representative, were to leave New York Friday night for the Coast.

MYERS OF ALLIED ANALYZES THE CONSENT DECREE FOR EXHIBITORS

Translation of Pact and Arbitration Rules Into Layman's Language Made by Exhibitor Organization's General Counsel

Exhibitors of the United States will have their day in court, Tuesday, in New York, to state their positions on the consent decree settlement and rules of arbitration in the Government's key anti-trust action, which documents were formally approved a week ago, both by the plaintiff Department of Justice and the defendant "Big Five" distributors. Their basic position is in opposition to those parts of the decree settlement which would require the confinement of feature sales offered to blocks of five and only after advance trade screenings.

Recognizing that the legal language used in the decree may be confusing to some exhibitors, Abram F. Myers, board chairman and chief counsel of national Allied States Assoication has interpreted both the decree and arbitration rules from their complex legal language into the language of the layman. The analysis, complete, follows (text of the decree itself appeared in Motion Picture Herald, last week, November 2nd):

by ABRAM MYERS,
General Counsel,
Allied States Association

When a suit is tried and the Court renders a decision, the order which the Court enters is called a decree or a judgment. Since the purpose of such order is to carry out its decision, the Court has control over its provisions, and, in case the parties do not agree thereon, the Court may itself write the decree. That is a contested decree. When such a decree is entered in a case brought by the Government under the Anti-Trust Law, it may be used as evidence of combination or conspiracy in cases brought by private parties under the Anti-Trust Law to recover treble damages.

A consent decree is one agreed to by the plaintiff and the defendant in a suit and is entered by consent of the parties, usually before trial. Since it is not contested, the Court's discretion is brought into play to only a limited extent and the Court really has no control over the specific provisions of a consent decree. Of course, if the proposed decree is beyond the power of the Court to enter, or if its provisions are manifestly unfair or inequitable, or if it comes to the attention of the Court that the decree is the product of a corrupt agreement and is likely to become a public scandal, then the Court may refuse to enter it. But the Court can not write provisions into or strike provisions from the decree merely to suit itself or to accommodate third parties.

A consent decree, entered before any evidence is taken, cannot be used as evidence in private suits.

A consent decree, once entered, is fully as binding as a contested decree, if not more so, since the parties are prevented by their consent from later attacking it. It is fair to say that a consent decree can only be set aside or modified to the extent that provision is made therefor in the decree itself. A consent decree contains no findings of fact and no adjudication of guilt, but violation of its provisions constitutes contempt of Court and is punishable as such.

REPRINTS OF DECREE FOR HERALD READERS

The rules of arbitration and appeals, the proposed consent decree and the Department of Justice's statement, including the changes made November 1st, after the documents were released by the Government and printed in the MOTION PICTURE HERALD, last week, have been reprinted and are available to subscribers. Copies will be mailed without charge to those making requests to MOTION PICTURE HERALD, Rockefeller Center, New York City.

The proposed consent decree has been accepted by only five of the Big Eight, namely, Paramount, Loew's (M.G.M.), RKO, Warner Bros. and Twentieth Century-Fox. The decree does not affect any other distributor. Whenever the word "distributors" is used herein it refers to the five consenting defendants and to no others.

Trade Showings and Groups of Five

1. With respect to features released after August 31, 1941 no distributor shall license any feature picture for public exhibition until such feature has been trade shown within the exchange district in which the public exhibition is to be held.

Notice of every trade showing must be published in advance in a trade publication having general circulation among exhibitors in the district. Such notice must give the title of the picture and the date, time and place of such trade showing.

The purpose of this provision is to enable exhibitors to learn about the pictures offered by the distributors before buying them.

This does not mean that an exhibitor must attend the trade showings in order to buy the pictures. It merely means that the trade showings must be advertised and held so that he may attend them if so minded.

Features undoubtedly will be reviewed by the trade press at the time of or immediately following the trade showings. The new practice will increase the opportunities of reliable trade papers to serve the exhibitors by prompt, accurate and distinterested reviews. Exhibitors will need to patronize and support those publications which in the past have proved themselves trustworthy.

2. Also beginning with the 1941-1942 season, no distributor may offer more than five pictures in a single group. However, a distributor may offer as many such groups at one time as it sees fit, but it may not require an exhibitor to take an unwanted group of features in order to buy the group he wants.

In other words, an exhibitor may buy from a distributor as many groups of five as the distributor may offer at any one time, but he can not be forced to take one group in order to buy another.

How many groups of five each distributor will have ready to offer at the beginning of the season, or at any other time, is a matter of speculation. It is reasonable to suppose that each distributor will have as many pictures completed and trade shown at one time as available capital will permit. It is not reasonable to assume that these great companies will allow any legitimate demand for films to go unmet.

Assuming that each of the five consenting defendants will have four groups ready to offer at the beginning of the next season, they together will offer the exhibitors a total of 20 groups or 100 pictures to choose from.

A distributor in offering its features for license may change the combinations of features in groups as it may from time to time determine. This means that if an exhibitor does not like all the pictures in a particular group, he may bargain with the distributor to substitute therefor more desirable pictures from another group. It could mean that a distributor, wishing to punish an exhibitor for not buying an earlier group, could pack the desired group with several stale or unwanted pictures. The best assurance the exhibitors have that such tactics will not be used is the fact that the Department of Justice will continue to keep a watchful eye on the situation.

The objections to this method of selling are (a) that while it enables exhibitors to choose as between groups of five, distributors still can force unwanted pictures with desirable ones; (b) that it deprives exhibitors of their present cancellation privileges, such as they are; (c) that it threatens the continuous flow of product that exhibitors rely on in the operation of their theatres; and (d) that it will impose a hardship on exhibitors in having to buy at frequent intervals and may increase prices.

Those who favor the new method claim that the exhibitors will benefit because (a) where as he now has to buy from each distributor from 36 to 52 pictures sight unseen he then will be able to choose as between groups of five concerning which he can obtain all the information he wishes; (b) the requirement that pictures must be trade shown before being offered will place them in the class of perishable commodities and the distributors will be under compulsion to sell them as soon as possible, thus adding to the exhibitors' bargaining power; (c) buying will not all be done in the flush days of the autumn when there is a high price psychology and some buying can be done between Thanksgiving and Christmas, during Lent, and in the hot days of the summer when exhibitors and distributors alike are singing the blues; (d) the stranglehold of the distributors on the screens will be broken, giving the exhibitors greater freedom in shopping around and opening the way for independent producers to enter the market and compete with the Big Eight.

Forcing Features, Shorts and Foreigns

As pointed out under the preceding head, the license or offer for license of one group of features shall not be conditioned upon the licensing of another feature or group of features.

The decree further provides (and this will be effective as soon as the decree is signed) that no distributor shall require an exhibitor to license short subjects, newsreels, trailers or serials (collectively called "shorts"), or to license reissues, foreigns or westerns (collectively called "foreigns") as a condition of licensing desired groups of feature pictures.

"Westerns" are defined as "those western pictures which are not of the usual character and type of, and are inexpensively produced as compared with, the distributor's general line of features." "Foreigns" are features "produced outside of the United States except such as are produced in the English language by the distributor or a subsidiary or affiliate thereof."

These provisions against forcing are clear-cut and unequivocal. The remedy for forcing is equally definite and certain.

U. S. GIVES SIGNAL TO GO AHEAD WITH COMMERCIALIZATION OF 'FM'

However, Only Third of Applications Have Been Disposed of; FCC Chariman Promises Early Action on Others

First definite steps toward the development of a FM (frequency modulation) broadcasting service were taken by the Federal Communications Commission October 31st with the issuance of licenses for commercial operations by 15 stations.

35 Applications Remain

Disposing of slightly less than a third of the more than 50 applications which are pending, the commission gave the go-ahead signal to The Evening New Association, Detroit; Don Lee Broadcasting System, Los Angeles; Baton Rouge Broadcasting Company, Baton Rouge, La.; Radio Service Corporation of Utah, Salt Lake City; Zenith Radio Corporation, Chicago; The Yankee Network, Mt. Washington, N. H.; The Journal Company, Milwaukee; National Broadcasting Company, William G. H. Finch and the Marcus Loew Booking Agency, New York; Evansville on the Air, Inc., Evansville, Ind.; Howitt-Wood Radio Co., Inc., Binghampton, N. Y.; Frequency Broadcasting Corporation, Brooklyn; WBNS, Inc., Columbia, Ohio, and the Capitol Broadcasting Co., Inc., Schenectady.

"The granting of these licenses by the commission," Chairman James L. Fly declared in announcing the action, "marks an important milestone in the continued advance of the radio industry."

The remaining applications, he promised, will be acted upon at the earliest opportunity.

FM is expected to bring radio service to many communities which do not have, at present, stations. Mr. Fly recently said, "Frequency modulation will create employment for many thousands of people and the public will obtain a greater service."

With 15 FM commercial licenses already granted and more promised soon by the FCC interest was growing this week in the FM national network proposed by John Shepard III, head of the Yankee network. WHN, Loew-MGM radio station, which has just been granted a FM station, is one of the interested parties. It was reported however that a FM network could not be organized on a national scale for a few years although sectional networks would be possible within a year.

Bell Telephone Prepared

The Bell Telephone Company which obtains millions of dollars in revenue by carrying network radio programs from station to station has issued a statement that it is prepared to offer wire facilities to the radio industry for better program transmission channels whenever desired. FM being, "staticless", can relay its programs from station to station without the use of any wires. However in practice some FM studios, as the case of WOR in New York, are linked to the FM transmitter by special telephone wires. Others use a radio relay. At present it is not known what relay system the proposed FM network would use. It was said that special telephone wires might be used for very short relays and FM radio relays for longer distances.

A special FM antenna is being constructed for W8XVH in Columbus, Ohio, which has been operating on 250-watt power since March but when commercial programs are permitted, beginning January 1st, it will go to 60,000 watts, which, it was reported, will make it the most powerful station in Ohio.

After December 18th no CBS programs may be rebroadcast over FM stations, it was announced by Paul W. Kester, vice-president.

"Pot o' Gold" Meeting

The National Association of Broadcasters' Code Committee was scheduled to hold a special meeting Thursday in Chicago at which giveaways and other free offers over the radio, such as the Tums' "Pot o' Gold" program which has aroused so much exhibitor opposition, will be considered. Time limitations on commercial announcements also was to be discussed. Edgar Bill is chairman of the committee. Others include Gilson Gray, Frank Mullen, Theodore C. Streibert, Earl J. Glade, Hugh A. L. Halff, Henry P. Johnson, J. O. Maland and Calvin J. Smith.

Reiterating that it is without authority to interfere in any way with the program activities of broadcasting stations, the Federal Communications Commission last week filed but took no action on a bitter protest by John L. Lewis, president of the CIO, against the refusal of Station KYA, San Francisco, to renew a contract under which for the past two years the CIO has been making five broadcasts a week.

The station refused to continue the agreement on the ground that the program dealt with controversial matters and therefore was not acceptable under the rules of the National Association of Broadcasters.

New Stations Authorized

The F.C.C. has granted construction permits for four new radio stations. The new stations will be in the following cities: Brownwood, Texas; Baltimore, Maryland; Washington, D. C., and Corpus Christi, Texas.

Power increases were granted to the following:

Stations WJAR, Providence; KARK, Little Rock, Ark.; WMMN, Fairmont, W. Va.; KPRC, Houston, Tex.; KOMO, Seattle, and KRNT, Des Moines, were authorized to increase their night power from 1,000 to 5,000 watts; WBRY, Waterbury, Conn.; KFEL, Denver, and WPEN, Philadelphia, were granted increases from 1,000 to 5,000 watts, day and night; WBAA, W. Lafayette, Ind., increase of power from 500 watts night, 1,000 watts day, to 1,000 watts night, 5,000 watts day; KFUN, Las Vegas, Nev.; KENO, Las Vegas, Nev., and KFOR, Lincoln, Neb., increase night power from 100 to 250 watts; WTJS, Jackson, Tenn., increase power from 250 to 1,000 watts and change of frequency from 1,310 to 1,360 kilocycles; KLPM, Minot, N. D., increase night power from 500 to 1,000 watts, and WTAW, College Station, Tex., increase day power from 500 to 1,000 watts.

On Friday the Mutual Broadcasting System will inaugurate a series of 13 weekly broadcasts of the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski and Eugene Ormandy.

The following Virginia stations joined the Mutual network Monday: WLVA, Lynchburg; WBTM, Danville and WSLS, Roanoke.

It was reported that 14 stations in the South would join NBC networks this week.

George B. Porter, former assistant general counsel of the F.C.C., has been retained by the commission to serve as special counsel at the monopoly hearings scheduled for December 2nd.

The annual Fall convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers will be held in Rochester, N. Y., beginning on Monday. Papers will be presented on television, FM and other subjects.

William S. Paley, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, planned to leave Thursday on a six-week aerial tour of South America. Mr. Paley was to be accompanied by Paul W. White, director of news programs, and Edmund Chester, director of Latin American Relations.

F.C.C. SETS JANUARY TELEVISION MEETING

The Federal Communications Commission announced last week that it would confer with the National Television Systems Committee early in January but pointed out that it would not ask for recommendations for definite standards at that time. This action, it was reported, dimmned hopes for the early introduction of commercial television.

The chairman and panel heads of the television industry's committee will be asked to report actions taken but make no recommendations to the Commission at the January meeting which will not be a hearing. The public however, will be admitted.

The National Television Systems Committee was formed July 31st and had set January 1st as the goal for reaching complete agreement on a set of definite standards. Thus far members of the committee have not been working together very well, it was reported, and no final report will be made before the Spring.

16mm. Color Films

Color Classics, company organized last Spring by Stan Barnett under the name of Kodachrome Screen Classics, has two 16mm. productions in work, "Lobster Harvest," filmed on Matinicus Island off the coast of Maine, and "Forefathers of Liberty," produced at Provincetown, Mass. The one and two reel shorts are designed for theatrical and television distribution. The company's first 16mm. color films were "Waltz of the Flowers" and "Jefferson and Monroe."

Buys Into Hubenart Circuit

Hal Daigler, former assistant to John Hamrick of Hamrick-Evergreen theatres, has purchased an interest in the Hubenart Circuit of Seattle, Wash. He will be supervisor of operations for the theatres in the circuit, which is controlled by Ben F. Shearer, including houses in Alaskan cities, Bremerton and Everett, Wash. Plans for a new 900 seat theatre in Bremerton are now being prepared for Mr. Shearr.

New Battle Creek House

The Butterfield circuit of Michigan plans to erect an 800-seat theatre in Battle Creek, to meet the demands for entertainment resultant from the concentration camp of the Fifth Division at Fort Custer, nearby. The circuit's new Hill Theatre. Hillsdale, and Southtown Theatre, Lansing, have been opened.

ADVANCED ADMISSION TREND GROWS; PLANS MADE FOR 'ARIZONA' OPENING

Sixteen Circuits, Representing Approximately 850 Theatres, Contract for "North West" at Increased Admissions

Some 850 theatres, throughout the country, representing 16 major circuits, this week, booked "North West Mounted Police," to be played at advanced admission prices. Meanwhile, in Los Angeles plans for the western premiere of Charles Chaplin's "The Great Dictator," at the Carthay Circle, November 14th, at which an admission of $5.50 top for the opening will be charged, are being completed.

16 Circuits Signed

The 16 circuits which have booked Paramount's "North West" at advanced admission prices, are: Fox Wisconsin, Milwaukee; Fox-West Coast, Los Angeles; J. H. Cooper Enterprises; Minnesota Amusement, Minneapolis; Fourth Avenue Amusement Co., Louisville; Butterfield Theatres, Detroit; United Detroit Theatre Corp., Detroit; Evergreen State, Seattle; Fox Intermountain, Denver; M & P, Boston; Wilmer & Vincent; Interstate, Dallas; Intermountain Theatres, Salt Lake City; Tri-State Theatres, Des Moines, Gibraltar Enterprises, Denver and Ralph Talbot Theatres, Tulsa.

Interstate Circuit has set the following dates: November 8th, at the Martini, Galveston; November 9th, at the Majestic, Dallas and St. Antonio; Worth, Fort Worth, Plaza, El Paso; and November 16th, at the Paramount, Austin. M & P Theatres will play the picture at advanced admission prices in their theatres in Boston, Worcester, New Haven and Hartford and Springfield, while Wilmer and Vincent will show it at increased prices in Norfolk, Richmond, Harrisburg, Reading and Easton.

"North West Mounted Police," has already played pre-release dates in Providence, Kansas City, Portland, Ore.; Denver, Houston, Youngstown, Chicago, Memphis, Portland, Me., and Milwaukee.

General release of the picture has been set back from Thanksgiving Day to December 27th because of the number of bookings at advanced prices, according to Neil F. Agnew, general sales manager.

It has been held over for extra playing time in its first ten key-city engagements reports, this week, to the Paramount home office indicated. Average weekly theatre grosses were exceeded by the picture at the Newman, Kansas City; Majestic, Houston, Malco, Memphis; and in the following cities: Chicago, Providence, Milwaukee, Portland, Ore.; Youngstown, Portland, Me., and Denver.

Pageant for "Arizona"

The roaring days of American pioneer history will stamp their way back to Tucson for the week of November 11th when, for the world premiere of Columbia's Wesley Ruggles production, "Arizona," that city will stage a program of fiesta, feasting, dancing-in-the-streets, parades and pageantry.

The actual premiere will take place Friday night, November 15th, at the State and Rialto theatres, and the Temple of Music and Art.

Director Ruggles, Mr. Kelland, Jean Arthur, the star; William Holden, in the male role; Warren William and others are to be guests of honor.

During the week, "Old Tucson," built by Columbia as a background for the picture on a site 14 miles from the present city, will hold open house as a "wide-open frontier town."

Ceremonies in Tucson will start off at midnight on Friday, with state, county and city officials cooperating, and Hollywood personalities participating. A band concert on the Court House steps will precede the ceremony, at which Mayor H. O. Jaastad will turn back the clock to the days of the Civil War. The hands of an enormous calendar-clock showing the years between 1860 and the present, will be turned back to the early date—that of the picture's action.

Friday morning will find the village of the Papagos Indians occupying the main street, where, for two days, visitors will be given an insight into the life of the Papagos. The Queen of the Mexican phase of the fiesta will be crowned, and the Mexican settlement in City Hall Park will be dedicated. Dancing and a reception for members of the Columbia troupe will mark the opening of the Mexican settlement; a civic luncheon will be served.

Schedule Parade

A Western parade presenting a collection of early Arizona transport, will take place in mid-afternoon. The Tucson rodeo parade commitee is to be augmented by cowboys, cowgirls, Mexicans, Indians, miners, early settlers with their covered wagons, long-horned cattle, and an early circus troupe. No motor vehicles will be allowed.

On Saturday, festivities will continue, with an Indian reception to the guests, followed by a general adjournment to Old Tucson, for "a typical day in a Wild West town."

Citizens and tradesmen of Tucson are cooperating by the formation of a "committee of 50,000" members of which are working with Columbia officials, Governor E. T. Jones, Mayor Jaastad and Nick Hall, mayor of Old Tucson, the local Chamber of Commerce and other civic and state organizations.

Cincinnati Sees "Zorro"

Returning to his home town, where, as a boy, he was fired from an usher's job in a local theatre, as a youth, Tyrone Power participated in the elaborate festivities which surrounded the world premiere, last Friday, November 1st, of "The Mark of Zorro," Twentieth Century-Fox film, at the RKO Shubert and Albee, in Cincinnati.

Accompanying Mr. Power were his wife, Annabella and his mother, Mrs. Patia Power. In addition to personal appearances by the actor and his wife, Kate Smith also appeared.

There was a three-day celebration, a costume ball and five radio broadcasts, including Miss Smith's and Vox Pop over CBS.

Present from the home office were: Herman Wobber, William Sussman, Charles E. McCarthy, Rodney Bush, Earl Wingart, Edward Solomon and Roger Ferri. George Roberts, district manager, from Cleveland, also attended.

On Kate Smith's broadcasts, excerpts from "The Mark of Zorro," with Mr. Power in the leading role, were given. Laura Louise Frazer, Cincinnati, contest winner, played opposite Mr. Power in the radio version of the film.

Police estimated the crowds which greeted Mr. Power, Annabella, Mrs. Power, his mother and Kate Smith, in Fountain Square, facing the Albee Theatre, at upwards of 25,000 persons.

100 Day-and-Date Bookings

RKO reported, this week, that Kay Kyser's "You'll Find Out," has been booked for some 100 day-and-date openings Thanksgiving Week. The world premiere has been set for the Roxy, New York, November 14th.

RKO has announced that it would not be concerned with personal appearances of Mr. Kyser in conjunction with showings of "You'll Find Out," and that it would confine itself to booking the picture. The band leader's personal appearance at the Roxy in connection with his picture was handled by the Music Corp. of America, his personal representative.

Key-city openings include: Augusta, Lincoln, Lexington, St. Louis, Baltimore, Richmond, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Dayton, Huntington, Denver, Kansas City, New Orleans, Trenton, Salt Lake City.

"The Dictator" at $5.50 Top

Charles Chaplin's "The Great Dictator," will have its premiere at the Carthay Circle, Los Angeles, November 14th, with tickets priced at $5.50 top. Prices for the regular run following the opening will be $1.65 evenings and $1.10 matinees.

The dual premiere of the picture at the Roosevelt and Apollo Theatres, Chicago, last Thursday, October 31st, was attended by capacity crowds. B. & K. executives anticipate a long run for the film in the Loop theatres.

The management of the Aldine, Philadelphia, where "The Great Dictator," is playing at advanced admission prices, has inaugurated early Saturday morning shows for children, priced at 25 cents, tax included. The theatre opens at 8:30 A. M., a half hour earlier than usual. Matinee scale is 75 cents, with evening scale $1.14 for all, children included.

Paterson's Opening

A world premiere, in the Hollywood manner, greeted the advent of Universal's "One Night in the Tropics," at the Fabian, Paterson, N. J., last Wednesday night, October 30th.

The event was a tribute to Lou Costello, home town boy, who appears in the cast with Allan Jones, Nancy Kelly and Costello's partner, Bud Abbott. The entire proceeds of the premiere, priced at $5 top, was donated to the Paterson Community Chest Fund and to a special fund for the rebuilding of the local Church of St. Anthony.

Mayor William Furrey proclaimed a half holiday. Buses brought Universal home office executives, and trade press, newspaper and fan magazine representatives from New York. A parade was followed by a banquet at the Alexander Hamilton Hotel, prior to the screening. A stage show preceding the picture, featured film, radio and stage personalities. Masters of ceremonies included Mr. Costello, Milton Berle, Henry Youngman and J. C. Flippen.

DETROIT'S STAGE MAKES COMEBACK

A new ten-year high in competition from the legitimate theatre was reached this week in Detroit when the Lafayette opened with dramatic stock, increasing to three the number of downtown houses playing shows. This does not include the Jewish stock company at the People's Theatre.

In recent years the Cass had been the only legitimate theatre and it was dark most of the season. This year, however, the Cass has booked a solid season of roadshows. The Wilson, dark for some seasons, has booked 30 weeks of musical comedy stock, this season.

Charities Group Starts Campaign

Pledging themselves to 30 to 50 per cent increased support this year, 70 leaders in the motion picture, theatrical and allied fields met Friday, November 1st, for luncheon at the Hotel Astor, New York, and organized the amusement industry of New York City for the 1940 campaign of the New York and Brooklyn Federations of Jewish Charities on behalf of 116 health and welfare institutions serving New York.

The non-sectarian character of the services provided by the affiliated institutions was stressed by David Bernstein, Loew's co-chairman with Major Albert Warner of the Amusement Division of Federation.

Acknowledgment of the support tendered to Federation by the amusement industry was made by former Justice Joseph M. Proskauer, 1940 campaign chairman. During the past five years, he said, contributions from motion picture and theatrical men and women have increased from less than $30,000 to more than $150,000.

Other speakers included William Klein, vice-chairman of the citywide campaign, who has been assigned to work with the Amusement Division, and Paul Felix Warburg, chairman of the Business Men's Council of Federation.

Barney Balaban, Nate J. Blumberg, Jack Cohn, George J. Schaefer and Murray Silverstone will serve as vice-chairmen with Mr. Bernstein and Major Warner.

Chairmen in charge of enlisting support for Federation in motion picture companies and in other branches of the amusement division follow:

Columbia, Abe Schneider; Loew's MGM; Leopold Friedman; Paramount, Arthur H. Israel, Jr.; RKO, Malcolm Kingsberg; Warner Brothers, Joseph H. Hazen; 20th Century Fox, Joseph M. Moskowitz; United Artists, Paul N. Lazarus; Independent Producers, Budd Rogers; Universal, Joseph H. Seidelman; National Screen Service, Herman Robbins; Motion Picture Operators, Joseph D. Basson; Importers, Max A. Schlesinger; Exchangers, Harry Buxbaum; M.P.&D. of A., Isroy M. Norr; Artists' Representative, William Morris, Jr.; Attorneys, William Klein and Louis Nizer; Dancing Schools, Arthur Murray; Independent Theatres, Harry Brandt; Laboratories, Alan E. Freedman; Motion Picture Accessories, Benjamin S. Moss; Legitimate Theatres, Marcus Heiman; Music Publishers and Composers, Louis Bernstein; Publications, Jack Alicoate; Night Club, Ted Friend.

Other members of the Federation committee who attended Friday's lunch are:

National Decency Legion Classifies Seven Films

Of seven pictures classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week two were approved for general patronage, three were found unobjectionable for adults and two were cited as objectionable in part. The films and their classification follow.

Christie-MacArthur Budget at $400,000

The first film of the new Al Christie-Charles MacCarthur unit which will be produced under the trademark and with the backing of Odessco Productions of which Bernard J. Steele, is president, has been budgeted at $400,000, it was disclosed this week. Messrs. Christie and MacArthur will co-produce and co-direct the initial production, for which Mr. McArthur is writing the screenplay.

The film, titled "Fathers of Madelon," is a comedy-drama by Frank R. Adams, first published as a full length novel in the Red Book, six months ago. Mr. Steele is reported to be negotiating a major release for the film and others to follow

Odessco, last year, produced "Back Door to Heaven," on an arrangement with William K. Howard, similar to the one under which Messrs. Christie and MacArthur are working. The film was released by Paramount.

ASCAP Wins in Louisiana Tax Suit

The Louisiana Supreme Court held unconstitutional, this week, the late Huey P. Long's law to tax collectors of music royalties and rentals $5,000 for each parish (county). The decision is considered a victory for the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers who fought the law.

The ruling was made in a case brought against J. Studebaker Lucas, attorney for ASCAP by the district attorney of Jefferson Parish. It upheld the ruling of District Judge Robert L. Rivarde in favor of Mr. Lucas. Chief Justice Charles A. O'Neill, who wrote the opinion, held the license law was "violative of the constitutional right to carry on business."

Mr. Lucas had contended that his gross collections in Louisiana in 1939 were $69,297.39, but that collection licenses for the 64 parishes in the state would have cost him $320,000. The license fee was authorized in an act passed by the Legislature in 1934, during Mr. Long's regime.

New Illinois Unit To Watch Laws

When the Illinois State Legislature meets in Springfield next January, Southern Illinois theatremen will have their legislative interests watched closely for the first time in the state's theatrical history. Representing the theatremen will be the United Theatre Owners of Illinois, a newly organized exhibitor association which boasts of a membership of 250 circuit and independent exhibitors, with adverse legislation forming the chief business of the association. Also to be dealt with will be such things as free movies, nickel-in-the-slot movies, censorship and radio competition.

Heading the association is Edward G. Zorn, of Pontiac, an independent who operates two theatres in that city. He has been in the business for 20 years having been film salesman for Paramount prior to going to Pontiac 14 years ago.

As president of UTOI, Mr. Zorn is following up a campaign which started little over a year ago to combat adverse legislation. At that time a group of downstate exhibitors met in Chicago and made plans for starting an association. No action was taken, however, for the setting up of a permanent organization until a year later, when at Peoria, on June 27th, more than 50 exhibitors met to form the UTOI. Mr. Zorn was selected to head the group.

Prior to the meeting in Peoria, William F. Crouch made a tour of the state and outlined plans of the association to many exhibitors. Later he was named executive secretary of the group.

Illinois circuits such as Publix-Great States, Frisina Amusement Co., E. E. Alger, A. B. McCullom, I. U. Rodgers, Fox-Midwest, S. E. Pirtle and R. C. Cluster, are members.

The UTOI does not go into the Chicago metropolitan territory where Allied and the Exhibitors Association of Chicago represent theatres.

Offices have been established in Springfield, the state capital.

Soon a service department will be set up with information for exhibitors being available such as theatre building and equipment data, city license rates, fire laws, rules etc.

Charity Horse Show

A dead heat in the park class race for men only in which all seven entrants won was one of the features of the horse show and rodeo burlesque held by the Dallas Cinema Bridle and Breakfast Club held Sunday at the White Rock Stables. The club, which is made up of Dallas exhibitors, distributors and exchange men, sponsored the affair for the charities of the Dallas Variety Club.

Riding in the dead heat were Jack Dailey, Owen G. Adams, Bernard Brager, Sede Miller, Vernon Rhode, R. E. Griffith and Lynn Stocker. Arthur James, old time rodeo expert, who was master of ceremonies and judge, declared the event a dead heat.

PARAMOUNT NET NEAR 2 MILLIONS, 20th-FOX LISTS $1,075,611 LOSS

Fox Loss Was After $2,200,000 Provision for Reserve Against Foreign Losses; $1,400,000 Write-off Made in Quarter

Net third quarter earnings of $1,944,000 after interest and all charges were estimated by Paramount Pictures this week while Twentieth Century-Fox for the 39 weeks ended September 28, 1940, reported a net operating loss of $1,075,611 after all charges including provision of $2,200,000 for reserve against foreign assets.

Paramount Estimates $1,944,000

Paramount Pictures Inc., estimates its earnings for the third quarter ended September 28, 1940 at $1,944,000 after interest and all charges, but before retroactive adjustment based on the increased rates of income tax and the excess profits taxes under the Second Revenue Act of 1940. After providing, in the third quarter, for such additional taxes for the first nine months of 1940, the earnings for the quarter are estimated at $1,726,000. This amount includes $316,000 representing Paramount's direct and indirect net interest as a stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings for the quarter of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries and $22,000 profit on purchase of debentures. Earnings for the corresponding quarter ended September 30, 1939 were $710,000 including $377,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries.

Earnings for the nine months ended September 28, 1940, after provision for additional taxes as above, are estimated at $4,810,000 including $1,355,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries and $88,000 profit on purchase of debentures. Earnings for the nine months ended September 30, 1939 were $2,840,000 including $1,355,000 share of undistributed earnings of partially owned non-consolidated subsidiaries.

Acquired Additional Shares

There were outstanding as of September 28, 1940, 136,689 shares of cumulative convertible $100 par value six per cent first preferred stock and 543,870 shares of cumulative convertible $10 par value six per cent second preferred stock. After deducting $286,614 of dividends accrued for the quarter on these preferred shares, the remaining $1,439,386 of estimated combined consolidated and share of undistributed earnings for the quarter represent $.58 per share on the 2,465,927 shares of common stock outstanding on September 28, 1940, which compares with 17 cents per share for the quarter ended September 30, 1939. Computed on the same basis, the estimated combined consolidated and share of undistributed earnings for the nine months ended September 28, 1940, represent $1.60 per share on such common stock outstanding, which compares with 79 cents per share for the nine months ended September 30, 1939.

During the first six months of 1940 the corporation acquired 3,082 shares of its first preferred stock, and during the third quarter, 4,900 shares of first preferred stock and 11,200 shares of second preferred stock, making a total of $910,200 par value of both issues acquired during the nine months.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation this week reported a consolidated net operating loss of $1,075.611 after all charges, including provision of $2,200,000 for reserve against foreign assets, for the 39 weeks ended September 28, 1940. This compares with a profit of $3,152,595 for the first 39 weeks of 1939.

For the third quarter ended September 28, 1940, the consolidated net operating loss, after all charges, including provision of $1,400,000 for reserve against foreign assets, was $1,192,824, compared with the second quarter loss of $236,163, and a profit of $827,069 for the third quarter of 1939.

Foreign Assets Excluded

The purpose of the additions to special reserve against foreign assets is to exclude from current profits, those profits earned during the period in foreign currencies, principally sterling, which are not currently realizable in United States dollars and are therefore not available for use in the corporation's operations in the United States. These profits are now represented by foreign current assets (principally cash) and at such future time when they may be converted into United States dollars, they will be included in the profits of the period in which realized.

No portion of the earnings of National Theatres Corporation is included in the above Fox Films figures since no dividends were declared by that circuit corporation during the first 39 weeks of either year.

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and wholly-owned subsidiary companies, (with the exception of Roxy Theatre, Inc.) reported a consolidated profit and loss statement for the 39 weeks ended September 28, 1940 as follows:

Income:
Gross income from sales and rentals of film and accessories	$34,198,872.59
Dividends	13,155.00
Proportion of profit of controlled company	69,935.37

Amortization of production and other costs	22,432,692.12
Participation in film rentals	3,035,206.36
	$35,720,068.30
Net operating loss before interest, depreciation and federal taxes on income	$ 781,799.27
Other charges:
Interest	$ 1,907.52
Depreciation of fixed assets, not including depreciation of $581,959.29 on studio buildings and equipment, absorbed in production costs	251,404.49
	$ 253,312.01
Net operating loss before federal taxes on income	$ 1,035,111.28
Provision for federal taxes on income	40,500.00
Net operating loss	$ 1,075,611.28

S.E.C. REPORTS STOCK DEALS

Little activity was shown by officers and directors of film corporations in the registered securities of their companies in September, it was reported this week by the Securities and Exchange Commission at Washington.

The Commission's semi-monthly report showed changes in holdings in only four companies, the largest transactions being the disposition of 1,000 shares of Twentieth Century-Fox common stock by Sidney R. Kent, New York, president, whose holdings were reduced to 2,180 shares, and 700 Fox shares by Seton Porter, New York, director, whose interest was reduced to 176 shares.

Next largest transaction was the acquisition of 500 shares of Radio Keith Orpheum convertible preferred stock by the Atlas Company, which at the close of the month held 32,581 shares of the preferred, 327,812 warrants for common and 594,318 shares of common held direct and 268,230 shares held through the American Company.

Acquisition of another 309 shares of Loew's Boston Theatres common stock by Loew's, Inc., giving it a total of 117,783 shares, and acquisition of 100 shares of General Theatres Equipment capital stock by R. B. Larue, New York, officer, giving him a total of 600 shares, were the only other transactions listed.

RKO Nets $317,186

Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, and subsidiaries, reported, Tuesday, a statement of earnings for the 39 weeks ending September 30th, as follows:

Profits from operations, before items listed below	$1,865,142.57
Depreciation and taxes	1,328,374.37
	$ 536,768.20
Provision for dividends accrued during the period on preferred stock of a subsidiary company, in hands of public	219,581.25
Net profit after all charges	$ 317,186.95

The above figures, said RKO, are in part estimated and are subject to audit and adjustment at the end of the calendar year.

Radio Corporation of America this week reported a nine-months net profit of $5,713,943. This compares with $4,066,425 during the first three quarters of 1939.

Earnings per share of common stock doubled during the first nine months of 1940 over the same period of 1939. The figures were $0.238 for the present nine-month period as opposed to $0.119 during the preceding year.

Net profit for the quarter ended September 30 amounted to $1,985,031.89 this year as compared with $1,894,224.15 during the third quarter of 1939. This amounted to $.085 per share of common stock this year, while the 1939 figure was $0.079 per share.

In London, Odeon Theatres, Ltd., reported profit for the year of £473,481 (approximately $1,893,924). The profit compares with one of £509,990 (about $2,039,960) last year. No dividend was declared for the year on the common stock.

The profit is considered unusual in view of the destruction of theatres in London and the sharp reduction of theatre business throughout the country generally as a result of the war.

At a meeting of the board of directors of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, the Delaware corporation, held October 31, consideration was given to the matter of the declaration of a dividend upon the six per cent preferred stock of the corporation, and the board determined to take no action with respect thereto. As of October 31, 1940, the dividends accumulated and unpaid upon such stock were $4.50 per share.

RESTRICTIONS RELAXED, BUSINESS BETTER FOR EXHIBITORS ON BORDER

Passport Regulations Eased Allowing Freer Passage from Canada to U. S.; National Clearance Board Hits Snags

Conditions at the box office have improved for exhibitors on the United States side of the Canadian border in the east. They are now obtaining some patronage from the Canadian side which had been cut off for some time because of war emergencies. Before the war restrictions developed, at least 50 per cent of the theatres business at the U. S. boundary theatres was from the Canadian side. At that time the Canadian dollar was officially worth 99 cents but was accepted at par value.

Original restrictions on the movement of Canadians over the border to the United States, have been slightly relaxed. Passports are still essential but they are now available for one year at $1 or five years at $5. Formerly a large number of passport bearers were turned back at the border and the volume of Canadians crossing the line was considerably reduced.

Complaints from U. S. business men resulted in a freer movement of Canadians across the border, considerably aiding Maine theatres. In this category are theatres in Lubec, Eastport, Machias, Woodland, Houlton, Danforth, Mars Hill, Presque Isle, Fort Fairfield, Caribou, Fort Kent, Van Buren, Madawaska and Calais.

However Canadians are still having great difficulty in getting U. S. money for spending on the U. S. side. Canadian money is at a discount, which fluctuates from day to day and has been as high as 19 per cent. Early this week it was 13 per cent. The Canadian government through an exchange control board has pegged the U. S. currency at 10 per cent for those cashing it and 11 per cent for buyers.

Clearance Board Troubles

Establishment of the new National Clearance Board has run into difficulty. In the first place the Western provinces, entitled to a single representative on the Board, have designated two, N. A. Taylor of Toronto, who was named by the Anti-Protection League as temporary proxy and then ratified by the Winnipeg association, and Fred Guest, of Hamilton, designated to serve by the Vancouver organization.

A. J. Mason, past president of Allied in Nova Scotia, and chairman of the Conciliation Committee there, has informed Toronto that while he appreciates the need of a Toronto representative for the Eastern provinces on the National Clearance Board, Nova Scotia already has a conciliation board with powers to deal with clearance and other problems, which is functioning satisfactorily. Mr. Mason asks if it is the intention of the new National Board to use the Nova Scotia Board, already established, to adjust clearances within the maritime provinces.

The problems are being worked out by H. Alexander, Toronto, representing the Independent Theatres Association, and Thomas J. Brody, Ben Geldaaler and Morris Stein, also of Toronto, who have been named to act for all affiliated theatres in the Dominion.

"Mobilize Industry Quickly"

"The film industry, both in the United States and Canada, can be mobilized very quickly to give assistance during war," N. L. Nathanson, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, said in Montreal last week.

Mr. Nathanson said that not only had film theatres greatly aided the War Savings Drive but that valuable work is being done by the National Film Board and the theatres in presenting films which show the spirit of the Empire's fighting forces and the speed with which war industry is being mobilized. In particular he praised the "Canada Carries On" series and "Convoy," a Navy film.

Mr. Nathanson has been reappointed to the board of governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation for another three year term. Also reappointed was Major General Victor Odlum, who is now commanding Canada's Second Division with the army overseas.

Alan B. Plaunt, one of the original members of the CBC board, has resigned in protest against the policy and management of the network.

For Sunday Films

Two of the four Halifax newspapers are espousing the cause of Sunday motion pictures in all the local theatres. This marks the first time in the Eastern provinces that any newspaper has taken a clearly defined attitude in favor of theatre operations on Sundays. The Morning Chronicle and Evening Star, both published by the same company, are campaigning for Sunday pictures in both the news and editorial columns.

Counter Campaign Launched

The Ministerial Association, of Halifax, has launched a counter campaign opposing Sunday pictures. The national secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance was imported from Toronto to organize the resistance.. The secretary has taken a delegation from the association to a conference with the provincial attorney general, at which a protest in behalf of the ministers of Halifax was submitted not only against public theatre operations, but patriotic entertainments on Sundays. The theatres have been donated for such since the outset of the war and the gross receipts turned over to war welfare funds.

The New Brunswick censor board has issued an order barring all under 16 from attending "They Drive by Night." The order was issued on the third and final day of the film's run at the Strand, St. John.

Premier M. F. Hepburn of Ontario has issued a statement stating that there will be no change in the Government fiscal policy for the year starting April next providing no unforeseen developments arise, and that there will be no revision of taxation or no new levies.

Pioneers To Meet

The first annual meeting of the Canadian Picture Pioneers will be held Wednesday at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, instead of Monday, which is a national holiday in the Dominion, according to Clair Hague, president.

Officials of the American Picture Pioneers, led by Jack Cohn, have advised the headquarters of the Canadian society that they will attend the Toronto meeting which will be followed by a three day rodeo in the Toronto Coliseum under the auspices of the Pioneers. Gene Autry will be featured. The proceeds will be forwarded to the Lord Mayor's Fund for the relief of London bombing victims.

Red Cross Contributions

The film industry in Toronto contributed more than $21,000 in cash to the campaign of the Ontario Red Cross, according to Colonel John A. Cooper, president. The amount was almost double last year's total N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corporation made the highest personal donation, $7,500, apart from that of the circuit. Eight American and Canadian companies already have contributed $500 each.

The Canadian Red Cross has announced receipts of about $35,000 from Katharine Hepburn, Ruth Draper, Robert E. Sherwood and other theatrical personages. Miss Hepburn sent a check for more than $10,000. A recent Canadian tour brought in $16,500. Playwright Sherwood donated $2,300 from the proceeds of his "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" and also royalties from "There Shall Be No Night" in its showing in Canada.

Operating profits of Famous Players Canadian Corporation in the first nine months of the year, were moderately ahead of the same period in 1939, according to a report. Business has steadily improved, with attendance at theatres greater than last year. Premium on U. S. currency is not seriously affecting profits, because film rentals are paid for in Canadian currency.

The Toronto home office of Loew's London Theatres, Ltd., has announced a dividend of 25 cents per share on the seven per cent preferred stock of the company, which operates Loew's theatre at London, Ontario. Payment will be made November 30th.

"Britain at Bay"

"Britain at Bay" is the title of the next release from the National Film Board in the "Canada Carries On" series. It was produced in England and carries a special message by J. B. Priestley, author and radio commentator. Associated Screen Studio's technical staff at the Montreal laboratories have completed both English and French versions for Canadian release. In French the film is titled "Le Lion Britannique."

This year marks a turn to the widest use yet made of theatre screens in Canada for enlistment of public support for Community Welfare Services, according to Associated Screen News, which has completed trailers for distribution throughout Canada. The trailers were produced at the direction of the Canadian Welfare Council, Ottawa.

PATRONS APPROVE MORAL CENSORSHIP

Pittsburgh film patrons approve state censorship of "immoral" pictures, but believe films of a controversial nature should be exhibited, according to results of a poll taken by Dan E. Clark, research investigator for the Post-Gazette.

A cross section of Pittsburgh's population above 21 years of age particularly scored gangster-type subjects in their comments. There were some who objected to the state censor board's ban of "The Ramparts We Watch," although the picture was not mentioned in the questioning.

Sixty-one per cent of those with an opinion favored censorship of morally objectionable pictures, while 87 per cent approved official censorship. Those with no "yes" or "no" opinion were not tabulated in the figures released.

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Miles Goldrick, ERPI assistant general foreign manager now on a tour of the company's Asiatic offices, reports to New York that the following petition was received from an Oriental customer who was a bit short on his payment for a Western Electric audiphone hearing device:

"Many thanks for your kind letter of the 24th Instt. In reply I beg apology for words which displeased and offended you. As I am exceedingly poor I never had before invested so large a sum in my life and as such I was between fear and doubt because I had pawned up my entire ancestral house simply on your assurance.

"Now I have been quite confident of your writing and hope that I will never be put into a loss of money or house by you. From your celestial and pious spirit I still fervently hope you would not mind the defficiency of the price but show me mercy by sending me 38A Audiphone or even more powerful than 38A if any, since I know neither 37A nor 38A or any other but you know better.

"Since I have no other property left to be mortgaged or pawned but I can afford a little more than the price I have already paid for 37A say 4/- or 5/- or so in addition simply on your saying for a very powerful audiphone for my left ear. If I still be cast down of your merciful eyes I shall certainly be ruined and be put to loss of postal expenses, etc., worth for nothing. Hence I would implore if still more is required in addition to the above proposed, should, you, therefore, for Heavens sake —pay from your own pocket for God's sake by way of charity and alms but don't miss in giving me ears otherwise I should be totally ruined. Do please consider my deplorable condition favorably. On my part I will repay yours if I be anything better than the present condition which you will know automatically yourself."

Mr. Goldrick reports that the ERPI office from its "celestial and pious spirit" sent the Oriental gentleman his audiphone.

Louis de Rochemont, who is accredited by some with having sold the film reporting idea to "March of Time" producers, had the same idea years ago, reenacting scenes of news events. In Portland, Maine, when de Rochemont was very young, he served as local "backwoods" correspondent for a Boston newspaper. Missing out on the sensational capture of some robbers he persuaded the police to reenact the chase for his camera.

Lew Heck, columnist scrivener on the Cincinnati Times-Star, who conducts a daily "Notes and Comment" column, has this to say, under caption of "A Theatre's Courtesy."

"Sunday night I met a couple of friends and invited them to go with me to the RKO Paramount to see 'Hired Wife.' Midway in the show (and the theatre was packed) an usher found me and handed me an envelope. It contained a dime, one I had overlooked in picking up my change. The usher, on instructions from the ticket seller, must have spent fully an hour trying to locate me in that theatre. I am keeping that envelope and its contents as a souvenir of modern, streamlined courtesy and honesty."

Alexander Brailowsky, Russian concert pianist, who has often performed in New York, stepped onto the stage of the Municipal Theatre, at Barranquilla, Colombia, in the prolonged applause of the audience.

Brailowsky looked about for the piano.

There was none on the stage.

There was none in the theatre.

The management had forgotten to provide an instrument.

There was no concert.

There's a law forbidding any similarity in uniforms worn by a "public servant" and those worn by the U. S. Army—which law Manager Bernie Hynes, of the Denver theatre, Denver, didn't know about when he selected new outfits for his employees. He found out soon enough.

An army officer bearing a letter from the Adjutant General's office in Washington called on Mr. Hynes and told him a change would have to be made. Hynes said he had had more compliments on the suits than any the men had worn before. "And," said Hynes, "We noticed that a number of army men as well as civilians were saluting the men."

"And the reason for that," advised the Army officer, "is that the ushers' uniform sleeves are those of an army major."

It was purely coincidence, rather than publicity for a forthcoming attraction, of which it had all the earmarks, that the first names of the three Warner theatre managers in Mansfield, Ohio—Frank Harpster, of the Ohio; Bill Dworski, of the Madison, and Gratton Johnson, of the Majestic, are the same as those of the three bad bandits from Kansas in the film, "The Daltons Rode."

The Broadway Association still is awaiting answers to wires sent last month to major Hollywood studios requesting them to take new "stock" shots of Times Square and other parts of New York City, pointing out that their present background "stock" shots are antedated. Some of the feature signs now on the "Great White Way" which do not appear in shots showing Broadway at night, include the new Wilson Whiskey, reputedly the largest animated sign in the world, the Raleigh "race course" sign, the Borden's news display, Toffenetti's restaurant and the New York Theatre.

Some of the landmarks which are shown in present stock shots which are no more on Broadway are: The International Casino, the old Palace theatre front, the Cadillac Hotel. Also dating these shots are the appearance of last year's spectaculars, such as the old Pepsodent, and the Sunkist Orange and Lemon signs formerly on the I. Miller Building.

Metro's Joan Crawford has become a Wilson's Whiskey sign lighter-upper. Last Friday, she turned on the current to light up the Wilson sign, New York's spectacular display. This giant mazda show which is augmented by fountains gushing tons of sparkling water, flashes animated movies across a bulb-packed screen.

A host of celebrities were on hand, and the profiles and silhouettes of these show people were flashed on the screen outside as they posed before a bank of photo-electric cells in the control room.

The new whiskey sign, four stories high, was planned for a full year and in actual construction since May. It consists of three parts: One large central panel and two smaller panels coming to a point underneath. It features a complete program of minute movies projected on a screen consisting of 4,104 lights, eight times the size of any cartoon panel ever built. The method of projection used is accomplished by flashing the pictures—enlarged 100,000 times from a 16 mm. film—on a full sized bank of photo-electric cells in the control room behind the display. Eight fountains, modeled after the World's Fair Lagoon of Nations spurt colored water 20 feet into the air behind transparent frames, and a three-dimensional replica of a Wilson Whiskey bottle, 35 feet high and 10 feet in diameter, is mounted on the sign. The sign has more than 10,000 bulbs and 100 miles of wire and measures 4,000 square feet in area.

John F. Royal, foreign broadcast expert for NBC, in New York, who still treasures a glue pot used by Sarah Bernhardt to adjust her wig when she appeared at the Keith Hippodrome theatre in Cleveland, which Royal managed, in 1918, returned the other week from an inspection trip through Europe. There he discovered that some smarties in totalitarian countries are successfully negotiating short wave reception on home radios, against the stringent rulings of their local dictators. One neighbor merely visits another, taking his portable radio along with him. They place that set in a room near a front window, tune in loudly so that anyone passing believes they are listening to the local governmental station telling about the totalitarian victories and other pish-tosh. Instead of their listening to that program, however, they are in a back room, listening very quietly to shortwave broadcasts from England and America, hearing anti-Axis messages.

Soft Drink and Decorous Behaviour Department, being a Broadway radio press agent's idea of Broadway night life:

"Until she took over radio station WOR's Martha Deane air program, Bessie Beatty had never been in a night club. But out-of-town listeners, she found, want to know something about New York's night life. So the other night she and her husband, actor Bill Sauter, in some trepidation paid a visit to a famous Manhattan nightspot. They expected to see some lurid goings-on. To their surprise, they found night life extremely tame; everybody sipping soft drinks and behaving very decorously."

Robert Zipper, band leader, film and radio singer, has asked the Los Angeles courts to make his legal name Harry Bill Roberts, the one he uses professionally. Zipper, he set forth in his petition, used to be a good, dignified name, not applicable to wise cracks, but that was before zipper manufacturers started making zipper improvements in zipper clothing.

TWO UNIONS FIGHT OVER "FANTASIA" EQUIPMENT

Electrical Workers, IATSE Settle New York Jurisdiction Dispute; Publicists in Negotiation

Walt Disney's musical feature, "Fantasia," will open on schedule, next Wednesday evening, at the Broadway Theatre, New York City, a threatening dispute between two local unions having been settled. The dispute began last week, over the impending installation of the special sound equipment necessary for the film at the theatre. Disputants were Local No. 3, of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and Local 1, of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. Both unions wanted to handle installation.

Contention of Local 3 was that, as a building trades service union, it was entitled to handle new equipment in new theatres. However, the theatre is old, though the equipment is new. The IATSE pointed out its policy of supervising motion picture and stage equipment in theatres.

Meetings with executives of the Hal Horne New York office and RCA, brought the settlement on Thursday night, October 31st, and crews from both unions began installation. It is expected the IATSE will maintain the equipment; and that, after the picture's run, the electrical workers will again participate in moving of the equipment, and re-installation of the equipment it replaced.

Publicists File Employee List

Also in New York this week, the Screen Publicists Guild, asking the New York home offices of the major film companies for recognition as the collective bargaining agency for their advertising and publicity workers, filed a list of employees it deems eligible with the National Labor Relations Board. The action follows informal meetings with representatives of the majors last week and the week before. Similar lists have been requested of the latter. If the companies refuse prompt recognition, an election may be called. The guild is seeking a closed shop and certain pay and working hours.

The International Union of Operating Engineers, Local 30, of New York, has signed a new, two-year contract with a group of large downtown theatres in the city.

In Hollywood, on Friday, November 1st, business representatives of the unions in the studio labor basic agreement, met with Eldred Cocking, of the Wages and Hours Administration. They discussed the new interpretations on sections of the Wage Hour Act, recently announced by the Administration in Washington.

Thirty-seven independent producers signed minimum wage agreements on Monday, with the Sound Technicians' Local 695.

A new studio union has been formed, the Studio Maintenance Guild comprising former members of the Building Service Employees International. Roy Finelli is president.

Extras of the Screen Actors Guild are reported appealing to the American Federation over what they term discrimination against their classification in the guild. They want full voting powers, and the power to deal directly with producers. The Guild recently removed Class B members from its admittance committee.

The Screen Office Employees Guild, which, in the past two weeks, has won National Labor Relations Board bargaining agent elections at many major studios, has been reported ready to file an "unfair" complaint with the board concerning the election at Twentieth Century-Fox, where it was opposed by the Twentieth Century-Fox Studio Office Employees union.

The American Guild of Variety Artists this week was awaiting signing of a closed shop contract with the New York circuits. The pact has been approved by all concerned, and is regarded as a model for possible national agreements. However, it has been held up by the illness of one signatory, Major L. E. Thompson, of RKO, and by some changes.

Theatre Sues Union

In Milwaukee Circuit Court, operators of the Newsreel Theatre, that city, have sued to restrain picketing by the projectionists' local, 164. The operators are Lawrence and Carl Brown, William Moiles, and Mrs. Irene Flagstead. They deny a labor dispute.

New Haven exchange employees may reopen negotiations on their two year contracts, signed last November. The contracts provide for possible reopening this month. No pay increases had been included in the contract. They may be sought.

Independent theatre owners of St. Louis have signed a new two year contract with Local 143, projectionists, Fred Wehrenberg, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of St. Louis, announced this last week, and added the contract is retroactive to August 31st, and provides no changes in conditions or pay. The union is expected to approve the agreement soon.

In Kansas City, the local projectionists' union has signed one year contracts with downtown first run theatres, the Fox Midwest circuit, and with the city's independent theatre owners. Walter Croft, business agent, so announced this week, after return from New York, where part of the contracts were negotiated. They expire August 31, next year, he added.

Officials of the Chicago projectionists' union reported this week that agreement was reached Friday, November 1st, on a new contract, which is expected to follow the existing contract. The union must ratify this week.

The Federal Communications Commission, in Washington, on Thursday, October 31st, turned down a protest by John L. Lewis, head of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, against the refusal of radio station KYN, San Francisco, to renew a C.I.O. contract. The Commission declared it had no authority in contracts between stations and purchasers of radio time.

Form Entertainment Group

The Entertainment Managers' Association, composed of booking agents in southern Ohio, has been organized in Cincinnati for the purpose of assisting buyers of music and entertainment. It is patterned after a similar organization operating in Chicago. Arthur Dahlman has been elected president; Mrs. J. Cavanaugh, first vice-president; Jack Middleton, second vice-president, and Wally Jackson, secretary and treasurer. Directors are Alma Bahlke, Roy Meyers, Morris Jones, Ray Kolb, Ruth Best and Horace Williamson.

Weiser Back in Los Angeles

Martin Weiser, exploitation man for Warner Brothers in the Kansas City territory for the last six months, has returned to Los Angeles in the same capacity.

Royalty Demands Halt Reorganization

Royalty demands of copyright owners of 200,000 phonograph records are delaying the reorganization of the U. S. Record Corp., of New York, it became known this week. The company replied to the demand by saying that royalty claimants must accept a flat settlement or the records would be sold for salvage. They were owned jointly by the Scranton Record Manufacturing Company and the New York firm.

This situation was uncovered after courts in the two cities authorized sale of the discs as part of the reorganization plans of the U. S. Record Corp. Sidney W. Wattenberg, counsel for Harry Fox, agent and trustee, informed all concerned that no provision had been made for royalty payments. Under the court order, the records were to be sold for what they would bring and the proceeds divided equally between the New York and Scranton companies. Mr. Wattenberg threatened that his clients would give their consent to the sale only if their royalties were deducted from the top.

The company now under reorganization, is headed by Charles M. Hemenway, president. It has specialized in dance records and featured such names as Sammy Kaye, Harry James and Johnny Messner.

Managerial Changes in United Detroit Circuit

The creation of three district managers to supervise the United Detroit Theatres circuit has resulted in several managerial changes Robert Corbin, manager of the Michigan, becomes supervisor of all the circuit's first run downtown Detroit houses and the Madison. Joseph Busic will have supervision over the Rivera, Annex, Regent, Norwest and Varsity, while Asher Shaw will take over supervision of the Broadway, Capitol, Vogue, Cinderella, Alger, Ramona, Rosedale and Birmingham, some in suburban Detroit.

Rufus Shepherd, manager of the Vogue, has been transferred to manager of the Fisher; Frank Upton from the Riviera to the State; Donald Dunne from the Ramona to the Riviera; Robert Salters from the Annex to the Ramona; Cassius Smith from the Norwest to the Annex; Seymour Gruber, assistant manager of the Ramona, to manager of the Norwest; Don Kuhn from the Palms State to the Broadway Capitol.

Dow Thompson, who resigned as manager of the United Artists, is succeeded by Frank Perry, manager of the Regent; Gil Green from the Varsity to the Regent; Grand Hawkins, assistant manager of the United Artists, becomes manager; Leo Ward, assistant manager of the Birmingham, succeeds Joe Bonino as manager of the Rosedale, with Mr. Bonino becoming manager of the Alger, and James Easson goes from the Alger to the Vogue.

MGM Promotions

There have been promotions in MGM's Chicago and Milwaukee offices. John Kemptgen has been apointed to the Chicago sales staff. Joseph Imhoff succeeds Mr. Kemtpgen as office manager. Succeeding Mr. Imhoff as Milwaukee office manager is Joseph McMahon. Joseph Kelleher has stepped into Mr. McMahon's post as booker in Chicago.

Sees Independents Driven Out by Consent Decree

The consent decree will drive the independent subsequent run exhibitor out of business, Max A. Cohen, president of New York Allied, which is affiliated with the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, told the members of the Central New York MPTO in Syracuse last week.

Attacks Allied Leaders

"If this decree doesn't give distributors a legal monopoly, then I don't know one," he said. Mr. Cohen revealed that national Allied directors voted eight to four for acceptance of the old Fair Trade Practice Code, in Chicago, more than a year ago, leaving for ratification only the arbitration provisions. Abram Myers and Colonel H. A. Cole, Mr. Cohen said, later "betrayed" the independent exhibitor by reversing this acceptance in the Summer of 1939.

The New York exhibitor leader and A. Charles Hayman, New York State MPTO president, both said the block-sale plan of the consent decree was known in the business 25 and 27 years ago and gave rise to the theatre circuits of today.

Sydney Grossman of Syracuse was elected regional vice-president to the State MPTO by the newly organized local group. He will represent the directorate including J. Meyer Schine, Ray Pashley, Jack Karp, Ray Merriman and Mr. Grossman. A director's place is reserved for Binghamton, N. Y.

Mr. Haymann proposed that the State organization urge the MPTOA to hold its annual convention with the State group at Rochester, N. Y., early in 1941. Sidney Pfeiffer, Buffalo attorney, said 200 theatre memberships are now in the Central division. About 20 exhibitors attended the meeting.

Ohio I.T.O. Reelects Smith

Martin G. Smith of Toledo was reelected president of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio at the final session of the two day convention, held last Wednesday and Thursday at the Deshler-Wallick Hotel in Columbus.

F. W. Huss, Jr., was reelected a vice-president, and Max Stearn was named to replace Robert C. Menches as the other vice-president. Hoy O. Simons was reelected treasurer. P. J. Wood was retained as secretary.

New directors are: C. A. MacDonald, and Henry S. Flinger, who replaces Mr. Stearn. Directors renamed are Charles G. Deckman, Dwight Jones and J. W. Trunk. Mr. Smith was presented with a car at the banquet Thursday night.

The Thursday session was routine, featured by general discussions of the consent decree and other industry problems. At the Wednesday session Sidney Samuelson, national Allied vice-president, told the Ohio members that "exhibitors in unorganized sections are paying a penalty for non-organization through higher film rentals." He pledged Allied's "AID" department to police exhibitor relations with local exchanges.

Hold New Jersey Meeting

Allied of New Jersey was to meet this Thursday at Harry Hecht's Ritz Restaurant in Passaic, N. J. Another meeting has been set by the organization at the Walt Whitman Hotel, Camden, N. J., November 18th, in order to form a South Jersey unit of the organization.

Committee to function at the convention of the Theatre Owners Association of North and South Carolina, which meets in Charlotte December 1-2, are as follows:

Resolutions, M. S. Hill, Greensboro, chairman; Fred J. Powell, Chester, S. C., and O. F. Kirby, Roxboro. Membership, W. C. Ormand Ayden, chairman; H. E. Wessinger, Lexington, S. C., and William Conn, Gastonia. Publicity, George Carpenter, Valdese, chairman; Harold Armistead, Easley, S. C., and A. R. Mason, Laurens, S. C. Reception, H. H. Everette, Charlotte, chairman; E. L. Hearne, Albemarle, Mrs. Ruma Curtis, Liberty, and Mrs. H. T. Green, Manning, S. C.

Harry Brandt, president of the Independent Theatre Owners Association, said this week that the ITOA is willing to join hands with Allied and all independent exhibitor interests to put up a solid front against further obstacles that may be in the way of smooth operation in the industry.

Chicago Warner Dance

The Chicago Warner Club will hold its ninth annual supper dance November 29th at the Hotel Morrison, that city. Larry Stein, club head, is in charge of arrangements.

Merrick with P. R. C.

Joseph Merrick has been appointed manager of the Seattle office of Producers Releasing Corporation.

Wisconsin Newspaper Critic Charges Game of Tag with Censors

Sterling Sorensen, dramatic critic of the Capital Times, Madison, in a recent column charges producers with "cautiously reopening their old game of tag with the censors". His comment follows:

"Perfectly innocent words and phrases are again being used with mischievous intent, and the business of hinting things with an otherwise routine gesture is being developed to a fine point. On the one hand, the writers are having fun with the double word play; on the other, the directors are letting the camera tell the story.

"The censor boards can do very little about it, as a double meaning remark is a hard nut to crack. Suppose a sentence spoken from the screen, as in the case of the last line of 'He Stayed for Breakfast', is interpreted by the censors at its possible worst. Suppose the censors decide to snip it. Then the producers can come into court, strike an attitude of injured virtue, and insist that the writer had no such thing in mind. The producer's lawyer might even make some nasty remarks about seeing what you look for. Besides, no line or situation has as yet seemed important enough to the censors to object.

"There was a gag in 'Gold Rush Maisie' which depended for effect solely on Ann Sothern's walking to a ranch house window and looking out. A few persons in the audience grasped the meaning. For them, that simple glance suggested a ludicrous, slightly bawdy, situation, and they laughed. A majority obviously didn't get it, and the censors would be placed in an awkward position if they tried to stop Miss Sothern from merely taking a look at the Arizona scenery.

"Nor would it have been easy to eliminate Melvyn Douglas' line in 'He Stayed for Breakfast' spoken as follows to Loretta Young: 'Why don't you go to bed—I'm tired'. A similar vein of dialogue was exhibited in 'They Drive by Night'. One example was Humphrey Bogart's apparently ingenious remark: 'I ain't interested in steak'. That particular brief conversation, however, was designed seriously to illustrate the truck driver's character; the humor was incidental.

"It may be that the censors have eased the rules a bit, on condition that the script writers stay within certain limits of good taste. Certainly there has been a tendency to permit plain speaking in a good cause, as in 'Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet' and the more recent 'Dance, Girl, Dance'.

"The little speech that Maureen O'Hara makes to the burlesque audience in 'Dance, Girl, Dance' is a caustic hard-hitting lecture that doesn't mince words.

"These new liberties are unlike the leering, nasty gags and innuendos that plagued the screen before the producers cleaned house.

"It may be that 'Gone With the Wind' started all this. That memorable reconciliation between Rhett and Scarlett gained additional significance from the mere juxtaposition of two scenes. It was the blank between that got talked about, and the censors would be hard put, indeed, to delete a blank."

Dallas Variety Club Sets New Year's Plans

The Dallas Variety Club, headed by R. J. O'Donnell, chief barker, has completed plans for the New Year's celebration at the Hotel Adolphus December 31st. Entitled "An American Party" the affair will be presented under the direction of Paul Short, divisional manager of National Screen Service, who directed the first Smorgasbord Supper Party for last New Year's celebration.

Although the date marks the annual induction of new Variety Club officers as well as the celebration of the New Year, there will be no addresses and speeches. Instead, Chief Barker O'Donnell will conduct brief ceremonies honoring the outgoing and incoming officials

Harry C. Arthur, Jr., Fanchon and Marco executive director in St. Louis, has been elected chief barker of the St. Louis Variety Club. Other offices include Louis K. Ansell, Ansbell Brothers Theatres, first assistant chief barker; Harry Hynes, Sr., Universal, second assistant chief barker; George L. Wiegand, St. Louis Amusement Company, dough guy; and Chauncey B. Nelson, Fanchon and Marco, property master.

One short subject was completed and three started.

Education

One of the most thorough tie-ups made to date between Hollywood and the higher education was concluded this week, the parties concerned being Loew-Lewin and the University of Southern California.

Under a plan worked out by Professor Warren Scott of the University's Cinematography Division and the producers, their forthcoming United Artists picture "Flotsam" will be used as the basis of daily college study.

Through the use of production schedules, call sheets, shooting script, and publicity and adverstising matter, students, it is said, will be able to follow completely the making of a feature film. Also made available will be information on how the picture is sold.

The same procedure is to be followed on "Night Music," which follows "Flotsam" on the Loew-Lewin schedule.

ROMANCE IN CELLULOID

With wars raging abroad, Hollywood is finding romance a handy box office ingredient, is managing to get its idea in many a film title. Currently, almost every studio has at least one picture with "love" in its name.

Paramount's "Arise My Love" is currently in release, and its "Love Thy Neighbor" with Jack Benny and Fred Allen, has been completed. At MGM William Powell and Myrna Loy appear in "I Love You Again," and Miss Loy, with Melvyn Douglas, is also appearing on theatre marquees in the meaningful, romantically speaking, "Third Finger Left Hand."

Columbia has "This Thing Called Love," just finished this week, and starring Mr. Douglas and Rosalind Russell, and Warners contributes its "My Love Came Back," released recently. Universal adds to the list with its "Love, Honor and Oh Baby."

Recent titles with definite leanings toward Eros includes Paramount's "You're the One," MGM's "Come Live with Me" and Universal's "Hired Wife."

Contracts

Hollywood, this week, awarded seven new or extended contracts to players, writers and a director, a process in which four studios participated.

At Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Lewis Stone started his seventeenth year with that studio, his first with the company having taken effect in 1924. Under the new long term agreement, Mr. Stone's first assignment will be in the next Hardy Family picture, with Mickey Rooney as "Andy" and George Seitz directing. Also given a new M-G-M deal was Melvyn Douglas, who reports back to the studio after completion of his role in Columbia's "This Thing Called Love."

Virginia Van Upp, currently working on the screen play of "There's Always Juliet," was given a new five-year contract by Paramount, which also signed Walter Abel to a term contract as a result of his work in "Arise My Love."

Warners exercised contract options on Phillip and Julius Epstein. The brothers have just finished the script for "Four Mothers" and are now working on "The Bride Came C. O. D."

With "The Mark of Zorro" completed and previewed, director Rouben Mamoulian was signed to a two-year deal by Twentieth Century-Fox. His next directorial assignment is to be "Blood and Sand," starring Tyrone Power.

Stories

Three story properties were purchased this week by as many studios, two of them being originals and the other a book.

The last-named was Katharine Brush's "You Go Your Way," first story in a year from the typewriter of the author of "Young Man of Manhattan," "Red Headed Woman," and many another. Paramount bought the property and will begin production in four or five months.

"Bomb Shelter," an original by Ben Markson, was purchased by Warners, with the author set to do the screen play as well. The action occurs in a London bomb shelter and takes place during a single night.

Republic bought "Angel On Earth," a Hope Ross original, and set it for immediate production.

Sweet Charity

Monday, last, some 30,000 film workers assembled in various mass meetings for the 1940 Community Chest drive. Beginning the meetings was a 10-minute radio program during which the main appeal was made by M-G-M's Louis B. Mayer, chairman of the film division of the drive.

At the conclusion of the radio appeal, each meeting was taken over by the head of the individual studio, with all showing the specially made Community Chest film, "Andy Hardy in Los Angeles, a lesson in mathematics and other things," Produced by Harry Rapf and Carey Wilson, the short showed Mickey Rooney and Lewis Stone in a visit to various Community Chest agencies. After its showings at the studio meets, the picture was released to Los Angeles theatres.

Various special committees were also active in the drive, including those of the Artists' Managers Association and a secretaries and stenographers group.

WALTER PIDGEON will appear opposite GREER GARSON in M-G-M's "Blossoms in the Dust," made in Technicolor.

WILLIAM SEITER is to direct DEANNA DURBIN's next Universal film, "Nice Girl."

MAX BRAND is doing the screen play on the next "DR. KILDARE" film at M-G-M.

VICTOR HEERMAN and SARAH Y. MASON are writing the screen play of "The Light of Heart" for Twentieth Century-Fox.

LESLIE GOODWINS has been assigned to direct "They Met in Argentina" at RKO.

LIONEL BARRYMORE and WALLACE BEERY will be teamed in M-G-M's "Bad Man."

Playgirl

(RKO Radio)

An original story and screen play by Jerry Cady, this stars Kay Francis in the role of a woman of the world who has preyed on men for many years and now finds herself becoming too old for the game.

Meeting a destitute young girl, she persuades her to join forces, but relents and goes her own way when the girl, portrayed by Mildred Coles, really falls in love with a wealthy young man enacted by James Ellison.

Also appearing are Nigel Bruce, Margaret Hamilton, George Huntley and Katherine Alexander. Cliff Reid produced on the Lee Marcus side of the studio, and Frank Woodruff directed as he did last on "Wildcat Bus."

Release date: To be determined.

(Formerly called "Debutante, Inc.")

West of Pinto Basin

(Phoenix-Monogram)

"Crash" Corrigan, "Dusty" King and "Alibi" Terhune here appear as the "Range Busters" in the third of the series produced for Monogram release by George Weeks' Phoenix Productions.

The supporting cast includes Jerry Smith, cowboy heard over Des Moines radio station WHO; Gwen Gaze, Tristran Coffin, Jack Perrin and Carl Matthews. The original story by Elmer Clifton concern attempts on the part of a saloon owner to force the price down on neighboring land. He also robs the stagecoach. Both activities are halted by the principal trio. Earl Snell did the screen adaptation.

S. Roy Luby directed the picture, which features a Lew Porter-Johnny Lange song in addition to the specialties sung by Jerry Smith.

Release date: To be determined.

(Formerly called "Triple Threat.")

Let's Make Music

(RKO Radio)

Based on an original story by Edward Dein entitled "Malvina Swings it," this Nathanael West-Charles Roberts screen play is built around Bob Crosby, featured with his Dixieland Band. Elisabeth Risdon appears as a spinster high school music teacher who writes a song so "corny" that it becomes a novelty hit. Despite objections on the part of her niece, Jean Rogers, she joins the band and has a fling at the life she'd previously missed.

She returns to her class room refreshed and happy, after seeing her niece marry the band leader. Included in the cast are Joseph Buloff, Joyce Compton and Grant Withers. Howard Benedict produced as he did last on "Curtain Call," and Leslie Goodwin directed.

Release date: To be determined.

(Formerly called "Let's Find a Song.")

She Couldn't Say No

(Warners - First National)

Roger Pryor and Eve Arden are seen here as lawyers, with the latter working in Pryor's office, and forced through circumstance to try a case against him. Romance, however, overcomes this problem. Cliff Edwards, Clem Bevans, Vera Lewis, Irving Bacon and Spencer Charters are seen, as well.

Directed by William Clemans, the screen play was written by Earl Baldwin and Charles Grayson from a play by Benjamin Kaye. William Jacobs was associate producer.

Release date: To be determined.

Barnyard Follies

(Republic)

This Dorrell and Stuart McGowan screen play is concerned with the thwarting of efforts made to prevent children in an orphanage from engaging in various 4-H projects including the raising of pedigreed stock.

Pappy Cheshire appears as orphanage overseer, whose inheritance of a night club is used to put on a show and save the orphanage. Seen with him are Mary Lee, June Storey, John Archer, Rufe Davis and the Kidoodlers.

Armand Schaefer was associate producer and Frank McDonald directed.

Release date: To be determined.

Flotsam

(Loew-Lewin-U.A.)

First of the Loew-Lewin films to be made for United Artists release, this is a story based on the Erich Maria Remarque novel, with screen play by Talbot Jennings, who last collaborated on "Edison the Man."

The plot concerns the plight of refugees from the Nazi regime, the principals being Fredric March, Margaret Sullavan and Frances Dee, supported by Glenn Ford, Anna Sten and Erich von Stroheim. Death for the husband and wife portrayed by Mr. March and Miss Dee, and the eventual escape for Miss Sullavan and Mr. Ford are the results of the action depicted.

The picture has one of the largest casts of any made recently, with some 98 speaking parts. The 130 sets were designed by William Cameron Menzies, most recently associated with "The Thief of Bagdad," and also production designer of "Gone with the Wind." Louis Gruenberg supplied the musical score, as he did on "The Fight for Life."

David L. Loew and Albert Lewin produced and John Cromwell directed.

Release date: To be determined.

San Francisco Docks

(Universal)

A melodrama of a young longshoreman wrongly accused of the murder of a politician, this is the third picture on which Marshall Grant has been associate producer, the others having been "South to Karanga" and "Diamond Frontier." Arthur Lubin, whose last was "Meet the Wildcat," directed the Stanley Rubin-Edmund Hartmann original.

Burgess Meredih appears as the young man, Irene Hervey as his sweetheart, Barry Fitzgerald as a water front hanger on. These help prove the boy's innocence. The cast also includes Raymond Walburn, Lewis Howard, Robert Armstrong and Esther Ralston.

When the young man is jailed for the murder, his friends finally prove the crime committed by a killer escaped from Alcatraz.

Release date: To be determined.

The Bank Dick

(Universal)

Best indication of the contents of this offering may be gleaned from the fact that W. C. Fields is cast as "Egbert Souse," Una Merkel as his daughter "Myrtle Souse," Cora Witherspoon as his hen-pecking wife, "Mrs. Agatha Souse," Franklin Pangborn as a bank examiner, "J. Pinkerton Snoopington," and Al Hill and George Moran, bank robbers, as "Repulsive Regan" and "Wildcat McNasty," respectively.

Less colorfully named are Dick Purcell, Shemp Howard Grady Sutton and Jessie Ralph. The story has Mr. Fields in the role of a worthless scamp most concerned with being allowed to drink in peace. A series of incidents makes him a hero and allows him to continue his career.

Edward Cline directed the picture as he did the last Fields work, "My Little Chickadee."

Release date: Nov. 29, 1940.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public.

The Mark of Zorro

(Twentieth Century-Fox)

Old Wine in New Bottle

Tonic in all times and tongues has been the tale of the hero who takes from the rich to give to the poor—Robin Hood in Sherwood Forest, the Red Shadow of "Desert Call" on the sands of Morocco, their counterparts in every land—and tonic it is again here, as of the Los Angeles of Old California, as it was in the late Douglas Fairbanks' film of like title.

This time it is Tyrone Power, Number Two in the MOTION PICTURE HERALD-Fame exhibitor poll of Money-Making Stars of 1939, who poses as fop when not riding, fighting and vanquishing in the interests of the oppressed, and ends by putting the forces of evil to rout, restoring justice in the land and marrying the girl of his heart.

Directed by Rouben Mamoulian with emphasis shifting from deeds of daring to passages of romance in a manner to the profit of both, the film makes its points in both departments with definiteness and clarity. It reaches its peak of interest in a duel between Power as "Zorro" and Basil Rathbone as oppressor of the poor, a sequence eclipsing in realism any of the kind seen in years. In this and other scenes Power displays an agility and adroitness associated with this type of hero adown the ages.

Previewed at Grauman's Chinese theatre, Hollywood, to an audience composed of press, profession and public, reaction of all present being of a kind to suggest that ticket-buyers in general will be finding the picture much to their liking.—WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

Produced and distributed by Twentieth Century-Fox. Directed by Rouben Mamoulian. Screen play by John Taintor Foote. Adaptation by Garrett Fort and Bess Meredyth. Based on "The Curse of Capistrano," by Johnston McCulley. Photographed by Arthur Miller. Edited by Robert Bischoff. P.C.A. Certificate No 6797. Release date, November 8, 1940. Running time, when seen in Hollywood, 94 minutes. General audience classification.

One Night in the Tropics

(Universal)

Musical Comedy

What with the Abbott-Costello duo of Kate Smith's radio hour known to but not seen by millions of citizens, a point for showmen to underscore in behalf of this musical comedy is that the comedians, in making their debut on the screen, forfeit none of their effectiveness but add to it. Showmen who inform their customers that these zanies stop the film in each of their interludes will be within the facts.

Other names to feature in copy, apart from the stars, are Jerome Kern, contributor of five songs, and Earl Derr Biggers, author of "Love Insurance," the novel from which the comedy was taken. Dorothy Fields wrote lyrics for four of the songs, Oscar Hammerstein II for one. These are sung by Allan Jones, Jones and Nancy Kelly, and by Peggy Moran.

Directing for associate producer Leonard Spigelgass, A. Edward Sutherland has placed emphasis now on humour, now on music Mary Boland and William Frawley supplying performances in the vein for which they are known. The plot has to do with an insurance man's endeavours to assure the matrimonial success of a client, also his friend, whom he has assured against failure. The picture opens in New York and moves to a Latin metropolis.

Li'l Abner

(RKO-Vogue)

Novelty Piece

Faithful to Al Capp's United Features comic strip, "Li'l Abner," first production of Vogue Pictures, Ltd., is what is known in the trade as an exploitation special." Backed by the popularity of the newspaper strip and the nature of the strip and the film, showmen have material for campaigns that would overshadow five ringed circuses and appeal to young and old.

The film itself is a translation of the cartoon to the screen in terms of the cartoon, not of the motion picture. Its dialogue, action and plot are literally lifted from the mat service. Its chief characters are portrayed, for the most part, by unknown players acting as the residents of Dog Patch and Skunk Hollow, not as players giving their interpretations of what Capp had in mind.

Granville Owen has the title role, with Martha O'Driscoll as "Daisy Mae." Others in the cast include Mona Ray as "Mammy Yokum," Johnnie Morris as "Pappy Yokum," Buster Keaton as "Lonesome Polecat," Billie Seward as "Cousin Delightful," Kay Sutton as "Wendy Wilecat," and Maude Eburne, Walter Catlett, Edgar Kennedy, Lucien Littlefield, Chester Conklin, Al St. John, Eddie Gribbon, Heinie Conklin, Hank Mann.

Albert S. Rogell directed from a screenplay by Charles Kerr and Tyler Johnson, who adapted the original story by Capp. Herman Schlom was associate producer. Head of Vogue Pictures is Lou Ostrow, embarked on an independent production venture after years as a producer at MGM where he launched and carried on the "Judge Hardy" series.

Two Women

(Paragon)

Marital Mistrials

Produced in and around Dunkirk and the Belgium frontier in the final days before the Nazis invaded France, "Two Women" is a film story not of war or international situations but of romance and passion and the complicated lives of a small group. Directed with the Gallic touch of forthrightness, prevalent in many of the French importations, under the guidance of Leonide Moguy the picture has the delicate premise of adult concept and is treated seriously throughout.

The film study revolves around five persons —two girls brought up under the same roof as half-sisters, their husbands from different walks of life and possessing extreme characteristics, and the mistress of the criminally inclined husband. Portraying these roles are, respectively, Annie Ducaux and Blanchette Brunoy, Jacques Dumesnil and Pierre Blanchar as the husbands, and Ginette Leclerc.

The passions and romances of the five principals are neatly balanced in the marriage of one sister to a tavern-keeper-smuggler whose bestial love and criminal instincts drives her to the home of her happily married parental

(Leo Films)

This French importation is billed as a sequel to that illustrious Gallic feature of 1937, "Mayerling". However, the present film does not bear much resemblance to its praiseworthy predecessor either in story or successful execution of production objectives.

Whereas Charles Boyer and Danielle Darrieux were memorable in their portrayals of "Rudolph" and his love, "Marie", John Lodge herein presents a stilted and stuffy front as the "Archduke Ferdinand" and Edwige Feuillere in the role of his morganatic wife performs merely as a pretty vis-a-vis. Technical mounting, direction and writing fail to give the proceedings the high style tone of lyrical and moving tragedy that "Mayerling" possessed. English titles translate the French dialogue for spectators unlettered in the original tongue.

But, for all its failings as a worthy successor, the present picture contains a certain degree of interest because of its connection with "Mayerling" and it may be assumed that patrons who recall the entertainment quality of the predecessor may wish to view the present sequel. An additional point in favor of the saleable strength of the film is its concluding sequence wherein there is staged with dramatic force and historical fascination the assassination of the Archduke and his wife as they attend a celebration at Sarajevo, a tragic event that was to supply the spark for the holocaust of World War I.

Seen at an afternoon performance at the Little Carnegie Playhouse, a small theatre of the intimate art house type, in New York City, where a surprisingly large audience for the time of day was present. The gathering appeared to be interested in the unfolding of the historical events.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN

Escort Racket

Another in the series of pictures exposing the various rackets that flourish throughout the country, this feature is built around the female escort bureaus that have been outlawed in most of the large cities. It is based on a screen play by John Bright under the directorial guidance of D. Ross Lederman.

The story concerns a special investigator, played by Roger Pryor, who is assigned by the local police department to uncover a blackmail ring operating under the guise of an escort bureau. The investigator enlists the aid of a young escort hostess, portrayed by Anita Louise, and between them they reveal to the public how an innocent business man may well become the victim of a plot to smear his reputation if he does not pay the "hush-money."

Supporting Pryor and Miss Louise are June McCloy, who returns to the screen after an absence of some nine years and Don Beddoe and Paul Fix as the operators of the illegitimate escort service. Musical background was supplied by Ben Oakland and lyrics by Milton Drake and Herb Magidson.

Reviewed at the Bryant Theatre in New York.—GEORGE SPIRES.

Produced and distributed by Columbia. Director, D. Ross Lederman. Assistant director, Gene Anderson. Screen play by John Bright. Photography, Franz Planer, A.S.C. Film editor, Viola Lawrence. SHORT PRODUCT

Old New Mexico

(MGM)

FitzPatrick Traveltalk

The purpose of this newest FitzPatrick travel expedition is an inspection of the historical background for the state of New Mexico. Archeological evidence is offered to describe the ancient past of this district. Besides views of ruins, a section of the subject is devoted to a visit to the Indian reservations in that locale. The colorful appearance and mode of living of the redmen are made doubly attractive and interesting through the medium of expert coloring and camera reporting. The material is especially suited for school groups.—Running time, nine minutes.

Waldo's Last Stand

(MGM)

Our Gang Comedy

The latest Our Gang romp has to do with the situation faced by the aristocratic member of the juvenile troupe in merchandising his lemonade supply. When Waldo has been unsuccessful in his beverage salesmanship, "Spanky" and "Alfalfa" hit upon the bright idea of purveying the drinks in a kiddie night club with all the trimmings including singing waiters and an elaborate floor show. Only one customer comes into the establishment and the main business enacted by the children, besides the musical displays, is to induce this single patron to purchase several orders of lemonade. The poker faced resistance of this individual to the group's sales activity provides many of the comic incidents in the miniature. Tactics in breaking down sales resistance include feeding the customer crackers generously dosed with salt and placing beneath his stubborn seat a heating apparatus. Finally, the kid leaves with the complaint that the place is too hot for drinking. No other lemonade prospects come in and the reason is that all of the customers are found to be participants in the floor show.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Quickerin' a Wink

Pete Smith Specialty

A demonstration of the newest advance in trigger quick camerawork, Stroboscopic photography, is reported upon in this current Pete Smith contribution. Due to the development of this magic form of shutter wizardry, action that previously was too fast for ordinary camera focusing can now be photographed. Examples of the quickness of this newest method of catching speedier than the eye activity are plentifully supplied and run the range from watching bullets fly to a study of the speedy winging of a hummingbird. Even if the explanation for the photographic device is a bit too involved for unscientific spectators, the witty commentary of Pete Smith and the amazing and beautiful action shots of the rapid action provide the amateur individual with amusing and aesthetic moments. Science classes and camera enthusiasts should be especially keen about this miniature.—Running time, nine minutes.

Utopia of Death

(MGM)

Passing Parade Number

The mysterious material for this newest paradox picture from the Passing Parade group is concerned with a study of a strange tribe of people who are following a plan for an equally strange form of utopian living. After an explanation of the word "utopia" and a review of some of the famous works composed on such an ideal, the camera travels to the isolated island of Tiburon, which is off the coast of Lower Mexico, a distance of 1,600 miles from Los Angeles. Arriving at this strange port, the spectator sees the peculiar people in their exotic state. The tribe is recognized as being that of the Seri Indians who emigrated from the continent to establish a utopian community. At first the group flourished but at the present moment of visitation the race has diminished to the number of a hundred and plans are practiced for the gradual extinction of the people. The macabre study is fascinating material to view but may be too involved and gruesome in its depiction for the full enjoyment of the average audience.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Colored Cartoon

The adventures that beset a homeless flea when he attempts to set up his abode in the rich underbrush on the back of a dog are amusingly and cleverly set forth in this colored cartoon contribution. The sequences depicting the pooch's attempts to dispossess his unwelcome tenant carry fruitful chuckle material. Another laugh highlight is the business of the flea in establishing living quarters.—Running time, eight minutes.

STATUS OF BRITISH TRADE IN WAR ECONOMY GAINS NEW RECOGNITION

Municipal Authorities Tending to Allow Local Option on Closings; Council Presses Plan to Finance Pictures

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

With Britain and her film industry now launched forth into the second, and certainly not the least critical, year of the war, there are signs in Government and official circles of a realization of the important role the motion picture trade can and will fulfill. Recent developments both in front of and behind the scenes indicate that those less panicky prophets who foresaw the industry carrying on in the face of war at its fiercest were not far out.

Opening Hours Adjusted

Indications of this are seen in more than one field of activity. Certain municipal authorities, notably the London County Council, have shown their appreciation of the picture theatre by helping the exhibitor to adjust his opening hours to meet the new conditions. Conversations between the national exhibitor body, the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Association, and the Ministry of Home Security towards a policy of "self determination" in regard to evening closures seem likely to bring about further satisfactory solutions to a difficult problem. It is hoped the same spirit will be brought to bear upon the CEA plea for a national approval of Sunday opening to supplant the present still somewhat cumbersome machinery.

The recent report of its second year of the Cinematograph Films Council which, though it contains trade representatives also represent the general public, presses particularly for an acceleration of the wartime legislation, though it envisaged particularly the Credit Bank. Not least of all significant factors, of course, is the intensely increasing propaganda use which the Government is making of the motion picture screen both at home and abroad.

As already known to readers of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, efforts on the part of the London CEA have succeeded in persuading the London County Council to alter the opening hours of cinemas in the Metropolis, so that theatres—and audiences—can adjust themselves to the new conditions brought about by the aerial bombardment of the capital.

As the result of conversations London cinemas can now open at 10.30 a.m. provided they close at 9 p.m. The West End cinemas, of course, have been opening at 9.30 or 10 for some years.

Sunday opening, too, has been brought forward, so that instead of opening at 3.30 the exhibitors can open their doors at 1.30 in the afternoon.

As a result, audiences who are debarred from going to cinemas at night time during the week, either by reason of their work or the need for taking shelter, now have the best part of Sunday afternoon to do so. A considerable increase in the exihibitors' revenue is a foregone conclusion.

The opening of cinemas outside the West End at 10.30 a.m. will not achieve sensational box-office results, for the proportion of the populace able to go to the cinemas at that time is limited. The 10.30 a.m. to 9 p.m. regime, however, does allow considerable elasticity of attendance, so that when cinema-going can be developed there is a range of ten and a half hours for the purpose.

Similar moves are already being made in various parts of the country and there is little doubt that the example of London will be followed widely in other districts.

As already recorded in these columns, the CEA, as a national organization, have already approached the Ministry of Home Security with the suggestion that exhibitors should be allowed the option of remaining open or closing at whatever hour they wish. The ethics of this policy of self determination, they contend, are both commercial and social. Nobody, it is suggested, knows better than the exhibitor himself whether people will continue to go to the picture house after certain hours. In some areas, notably the Midlands, Central London and certain Naval and Military centres, there is little trade after dusk.

Local Option Approval Expected

The CEA have asked the Ministry of Home Security to instruct the local authorities to allow exhibitors to decide for themselves whether they should or should not stay open. No action so far has been taken, but it would seem to be the fact that the Home Security officials are convinced of the good faith and good judgment of the picture house operators. The success of the principle which has long been established in London is an arguing point. Approval of the idea is expected.

Meanwhile the CEA are also pressing for the removal of the present machinery through which applications are made for Sunday opening, suggesting to the Home Office that the situation is still a negative one and that a single order from Whitehall would allow exhibitors to open where and when they wished. Here again they have pleaded not only the fact that they can possibly make up on a Sunday much of the revenue they lose on a weekday, with attendant benefits for the Exchequer, but also of the good work which they are doing in sustaining public morale and the morale no less of the fighting Forces.

The independence with which the exhibitor groups approach this subject, however, can be seen from a decision of the Leeds Branch, where the independent group voted against the proposal that the Branch support national action.

As Jack Prendergast pointed out, if Sunday opening was to be considered purely from a commercial angle the exhibitor would have to see that he was going to be able to get product at a price which would pay him to open.

The War, and the need for the industry to continue functioning as normally as possible throughout it, is the dominant factor in the last report of the Cinematograph Films Council recently issued, a precis of which has already been published in MOTION PICTURE HERALD. The keynote of the Council's examination of the year is their conviction that indefinite postponement of their plan for the financing of independent production of British films might lead the industry into the plight it found itself after the last War. With this in view they have actively pursued the matter, seeking "to devise in advance a plan whereby the British film industry will become credit worthy, so that when the propitious moment arrives for embodying this in legislation it can be put into operation with the least possible delay." Only the collapse of France would seem to have called a halt to the scheme with its changing of the whole situation, particularly in regard to the imperative needs of National Defence.

The trade welcomes the contention of the Cinematograph Films Council that "the welfare of the industry cannot but be affected by any prolonged continuation of the present uncertainty; and while we welcome the prospect of constructive action . . . we feel bound to urge that there should be no further delay in completing"—the plans for the Credit Bank.

Film Year Reviewed

Examining the operations of the industry under a year of war, the Council emphasize how the War aggravated existing difficulties and created urgent new problems. Notable amongst the problems raised were, of course, those of the temporary closing of cinemas and the consequent number of defaults of renters and exhibitors.

They insist that when the question of exhibitors' defaults is raised on the Quota Year just passed there must be taken into account the closure of cinemas by Home Office order at the beginning of the War.

Recording that they viewed five films, for which Quota had been canvassed on grounds of their special entertainment value, and rejected all the applications, the Council took a particular kick at producers who considered that the infusion of a propaganda element is justification for a Quota Certificate: "We are continuing to hold that this element should not be regarded as in itself justifying the granting of applications under this Section, but that it should be related to an entertainment value of the film as a whole."

Attack Treble Quota

Reference is made in the Report to the efforts of the Employees' Groups to secure a repeal of the Treble Quota provisions of the Act, under which, subject to certain conditions, films with labor costs of not less than £37,500 counted for Quota at three times their registered length. The Council have been unconvinced that these provisions were superfluous in the encouragement of production for foreign markets, or that the abolition of the provisions would lead to an increase in the number of films produced.

They see as reasons for the difficulty in assuring continuity of production the disturbance of normal conditions by the War with its air raids, etcetera, and the doubt regarding alterations in existing legislation.

They record also the new problem affecting the American companies with subsidiaries here, who have been subject to the regulations on frozen currency. It is following these and following, too, the famous Stanley letter to Sir Frederick Whyte announcing the Agreement and asking the Council to consider formulating new measures to meet wartime requirements, that they emphasize the necessity for materializing the credit scheme in order to preserve the industry, of the importance of whose role they seem emphatically convinced.

SHAW WORKS ON "BARBARA" SET

George Bernard Shaw himself helped Gabriel Pascal last week rehearse the final scene of "Major Barbara" at the Denham Studios. This scene, the last of the play, is a romantic passage between Wendy Hiller (Major Barbara) and Rex Harrison (Adolphus Cusins).

Shaw has made many visits to the studio, where he has taken an active part with producer Gabriel Pascal in oiling the wheels of shooting.

CANCELLATION TIME LIMIT A BURDEN

the exhibitor claims that unwanted features (other than those contained in a particular group), or short subjects, or westerns, or foreigns have been forced upon him as a condition of licensing the desired features, he may arbitrate his claim provided he sends written notice to the distributor at its home office of his claim not later than two days after receipt of the distributor's written notice of approval of his contract. The arbitrator in such a case will have power to make (1) a finding as to whether the licensing of the desired features was in fact conditioned upon the exhibitor buying the unwanted features, shorts, westerns or foreigns, and, if his finding is in the affirmative, to make (2) an award cancelling the contract for (or to the extent that it relates to) the forced products.

It will be recognized that this is a great advance over such proposals in the past which would have required the exhibitor to give notice of his claim within a certain number of days after his application was signed and before it was finally approved, thus endangering his contract as to the desired features. Under those earlier proposals, if the home office cancelled his entire contract, as it was free to do, the exhibitor faced the probability that the exchange in negotiating a new contract would simply add the price of the unwanted product to the product licensed.

But the decree does not stop here. It recognizes that an exhibitor may not want to risk obtaining relief from a contract including forced products. And so it provides that where no license has been entered into, controversies as to whether a distributor has tried to force features, shorts, westerns or foreigns may also be arbitrated. In such cases the exhibitor must give written notice to the distributor not later than five days after the alleged attempt was made. The arbitrator, if he finds that the offer of features was in fact conditioned upon the licensing of other features, shorts, etc., may make an award imposing a penalty of $500 on the offending distributor to be paid into the Arbitration Fund.

Exhibitors may ask why they should maintain a proceeding for the imposition of a penalty that does not benefit them directly. Obviously, a favorable finding by the arbitrator will pave the way for the exhibitor to negotiate a contract for the desired product without further insistence that he accept undesired product. Moreover, the finding and penalty will insure that the exchange in question will be careful not to repeat the offense against the complaining exhibitor or any other. Alert regional exhibitor associations will be interested in the conduct of such proceedings for the benefit and protection of all their members.

Selling in the Exchange District

One of the provisions aimed at curbing circuit buying power is the requirement that no license for features to be exhibited in one exchange district shall include theatres located in another exchange district, and that the licensing of features for exhibition in theatres located in one exchange district shall not be conditioned upon the licensing of a feature or group of features for exhibition in theatres located in another exchange district.

In other words, a distributor in negotiating with a circuit may not include as a part of a single deal pictures to be exhibited in more than one exchange district, nor can the deal as to the theatres in one district be conditioned upon the negotiation or acceptance of a deal for the theatres in another district.

The obvious purpose is to decentralize buying power by requiring a circuit operating in more than one district to make separate deals as to its theatres in each district. The language is too broad to require that the separate deals as to each district must be made within the district. Circuit deals can still be negotiated in New York or at the headquarters of the circuit. But the deals must be separate and one may not be conditioned upon another.

Controversies arising upon the complaint "of an exhibitor thereby affected" may be arbitrated. It can only be supposed that an affected exhibitor would be one who sought to compete with the circuit for the product and failed. In any case, the power of the arbitrator extends only to the making of a finding as to whether the provisions have been violated, and, if he so finds, the imposition against the offending distributor of a penalty of $500 to be paid into the arbitration fund.

This provision becomes effective with respect to features released after August 31, 1941.

Selling on Some Run

A matter of grave concern to exhibitors in some territories has been so-called exclusive selling; i.e., their inability to buy pictures on any run.

The difficulty in providing a remedy for this abuse is that the bars may be let down so far as to require the licensing of pictures to non-theatricals and fly-by-nights. The provision as written is perhaps as good as could be devised.

Again, there is no present sanction in the law for fixing the terms upon which a run may be granted. The authors have attempted to curb the power of the distributor to prevent the granting of the run by merely demanding exorbitant terms. Their solution of the difficulty was to provide that the terms shall not be "calculated to defeat the purpose of this Section."

In barest outline, the provision is that no distributor shall refuse to license its pictures for exhibition in an exhibitor's theatre on some run (to be designated by the distributor) upon terms to be fixed by the distributor (not calculated to defeat the purpose of the Section), if the exhibitor can satisfy "reasonable minimum standards of theatre operation" and is "reputable and responsible," unless the granting of such run "on any terms" to the exhibitor for such theatre "will have the effect of reducing the distributor's total film revenue in the competitive area in which such exhibitor's theatre is located." The burden of proof of showing that the granting of a run will reduce the distributor's total revenue rests upon the distributor.

An exhibitor may arbitrate his claim that he has been refused a run contrary to the Section. If the finding is in the affirmative, the arbitrator may make an award "directing the distributor to offer its pictures for license to the complaining exhibitor...on a run to be designated by the distributor and upon terms and conditions fixed by the distributor which are not calculated to defeat the purpose of this Section."

A distributor against whom an award has been entered may institute a further proceeding to be relieved of the award on the ground that the granting of the run has had the effect to reduce its total film revenue in the competitive area.

This Section becomes effective when the decree is signed.

Cancellation for Cause

An exhibitor may arbitrate the claim that a picture is generally offensive in his community on moral, religious or racial grounds, provided he gives notice of his "election to cancel" such feature, together with a statement of his reasons therefor, to the distributor "not later than ten days after the receipt by the exhibitor of the distributor's written approval of the exhibitor's signed application for such feature." In such event, the feature shall be deemed cancelled unless within five days after receipt of such notice, the distributor notifies the exhibitor in writing of its denial of such claim and its intention to arbitrate the controversy.

The chief criticsm of this Section is that it places on the exhibitor the burden of determining within ten days after the approval of his contract whether the picture is offensive, not to himself, but to the members of his community. Doubt has been expressed whether this would allow sufficient time for public sentiment to express itself.

In defense of the provision it has been argued that there must be some time limit and that since, under the new order, pictures will be trade shown and reviewed before they are sold, the exhibitors will have ample warning. Reliable trade papers, concerned in protecting the exhibitors, will give timely warning of danger points in the pictures reviewed.

If the arbitrator shall find that the picture "is generally offensive in the locality served by the exhibitor's theatre on moral, religious or racial grounds" an award may be made "cancelling the license in so far as it relates to the exhibition of such feature in said theatre."

This Section becomes effective upon the sign-

RESEARCH COUNCIL ATTACKS DECREE

Changes in "blind selling and block-booking" practices under the terms of the proposed New York consent decree were scored as inadequate by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the Motion Research Council, who urged passage of the Neely Bill of which the organization was one of the chief sponsors.

Dr. Wilbur said, "The proposals demonstrate the total inadequacy of our present Sherman anti-trust law to give local communities the power to select their own films." He added, "In order to protect our most precious right to determine local standards, the theatre manager in each community should be empowered to select each and every picture he is to show in his patrons and their children. The proposed temporary settlement permits the forcing of undesirable pictures by tying them together in blocks of five."

The "wide open" escape clause in the consent decree was also attacked by Dr. Wilbur.

From the Washington headquarters of the Research Council a statement was issued saying that the decree was "very disappointing" to those interested in the abolition of compulsory block-booking and blind-selling. "Instead of 'terminating' these two practices, the decree guarantees an experiment for only one selling season," it was said.

ing of the decree but, in the nature of the case, it can only apply to contracts entered into subsequent thereto.

Arbitration of Clearance Disputes

Controversies arising upon the complaint of an exhibitor that the clearance applicable to his theatre is unreasonable, may be arbitrated between the complaining exhibitor and the distributor.

This also is a clear advance over any similar proposal in the past. It recognizes that the right to control clearance resides in the distributor by virtue of its copyright. It refutes the theory that the clearance belongs to circuits by virtue of their buying power.

The prior exhibitor whose clearance is brought into question may intervene and participate in the hearing but the proceeding is initiated by a complaining exhibitor against a distributor. In this way, the authors of the decree have overcome the difficulty of obtaining the consent of the circuits to arbitrate clearance —an unsurmountable obstacle in the proposed voluntary trade practice code.

The premise stated in the Section is that clearance "reasonable as to time and area" is "essential" in the distribution and exhibition of motion pictures.

In determining whether any clearance complained of is unreasonable, the arbitrator will take into account the following factors, according to them "the importance and weight to which each is entitled"—

(1) The historical development of clearance in the particular area wherein the theatres involved are located;

(2) The admission prices of the theatres involved;

(3) The character and location of the theatres involved, including size, type of entertainment, appointments, transit facilities, etc.

(4) The policy of operation of the theatres involved, such as the showing of double features, gift nights, give-away, premiums, cut rate tickets, lotteries, etc.;

(5) The rental terms and license fees paid by the theatres involved and the revenues derived by the distributor defendant from such theatres;

(6) The extent to which the theatres involved compete with each other for patronage; and

(7) All other business considerations, except that the arbitrator shall disregard the fact that a theatre involved is affiliated with a distributor or with a circuit of theatres. (In other words, buying power and "kinship" are not to be regarded.)

The arbitrator shall determine, first, whether the clearance complained of is unreasonable, and if he finds that it is, he may make an award "fixing the maximum clearance between the theatres involved" which may be granted in licenses thereafter entered into by the distributor.

This Section becomes effective upon the signing of the decree and the award may fix such maximum clearance under any then existing franchise or any license entered into pursuant to such franchise between such distributor defendant and any other party bound by the decree; but the award may not affect clearance fixed in any license between a particular distributor defendant and its affiliated theatres as defined in Section XVII.

For example, a complaining exhibitor could arbitrate with M. G. M., Twentieth Century, Warner Bros. and RKO relative to clearance granted by them in existing franchises to a Paramount affiliated theatre, but they would have no right to challenge the clearance granted by Paramount to that theatre whether by franchise or otherwise. Thus the authors have adopted the principle that a distributor may deal with its own affiliated theatres on whatever terms it may see fit.

The question is: If in the case cited the maximum clearance is reduced as to the other four distributor defendants, would it be feasible or practicable for Paramount to lease its film on a different basis? Only experience will tell.

A distributor or an exhibitor affected by an award may institute a further arbitration proceeding for a modification thereof upon the ground that since the making thereof changed conditions warrant such modification.

Conditions imposed in the Section are that no award shall affect runs as distinguished from clearance, or apply to the exhibition of any "special" feature. To be immune, such special must be licensed specially under a contract which includes the special terms and conditions "including such special clearance provision...as such distributor shall fix."

Withholding Prints

It is provided that in booking prints for exhibitors "competing on the same run" a distributor shall not withhold delivery of prints available from one exhibitor "in order to give a competing exhibitor a prior playing date not provided for in his license." Then there is a recognition that distributors "must be permitted discretion in the ordinary course of booking . . . when too few prints are available."

Violations are subject to arbitration, and if the arbitrator finds that the distributor "has pursued a policy" of withholding prints in violation of the Section, he may enter an award directing the distributor to discontinue such policy.

This provision is typical of the kind of meaningless window dressing that has discredited previous attempts to work out a solution of industry problems. So far as we are aware, this Section cures no evil; if there is such an evil, it is doubtful if the Section offers an effective remedy. The evil is in withholding prints from a subsequent run in order to give a prior run a longer clearance than is specified in the contracts. Allied has called this to the attention of the Department of Justice but without avail.

Discrimination in Runs

This Section is aimed at the heart of the Big Eight's monopoly of exhibition, but it wields a sling-shot instead of a rifle.

The most serious complaints lodged with the Department of Justice, and the ones which must have moved it to bring the suit, involved cases where an affiliated circuit invaded the territory of an independent exhibitor and by virtue of its buying power, or, more likely, the mutual backscratching tactics of the Big Eight, took from the independent his product altogether or relegated him to a subsequent, unprofitable run.

Under the Section controversies arising upon a complaint by an independent exhibitor that a distributor has arbitrarily refused to license its features for exhibition on the run requested by the exhibitor in one of his theatres, may be arbitrated.

An independent exhibitor is defined as "one wholly independent of any circuit of more than five theatres and not affiliated by stock ownership, common ownership, common buying or otherwise with a circuit of more than five theatres and whose licenses are not negotiated by a buying combine or common buying agent negotiating for more than five theatres." Thus an exhibitor operating or affiliated with more than five theatres, or a member of a buying combine of more than five, is ineligible to relief under this Section. This is upon the supposition, not borne out in experience in the large cities, that an independent circuit of more than five has sufficient buying power to protect itself.

No award can be made unless the arbitrator finds—

(1) That the complainant is an independent exhibitor and that his theatre was in existence at the date of the decree or replaced such a theatre; and

(2) Distributor's refusal to license on the run requested continued during a period of not less than three successive months; and

(3) Distributor during such period licensed its features on the desired run to a circuit theatre in competition with the complainant (a circuit theatre is defined in the decree as a theatre which is a "component part of a circuit of not less than 15 theatres, or which is affiliated by stock ownership, common ownership, common buying or otherwise with a circuit of not less than 15 theatres or the licenses for which are negotiated by a buying combine or common buying agent negotiating for not less than 15 theatres); and

(4) Complainant's theatre has not available to it features "sufficient in nature and quantity" to enable it to operrate on the run requested; and

(5) (a) Subsequent to July 20, 1935 and prior to July 20, 1940 complainant operated the theatre in question on the same run or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre; or

(b) Subsequent to July 20, 1940 and during two consecutive motion picture seasons immediately preceding the filing of the complaint, complainant operated his theatre on the same run as or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre and during such period exhibited on such run substantially all the features released during such period by the distributor complained against; or

(c) Subsequent to July 20, 1935 and prior to July 20, 1940 the complainant demanded in writing features from the distributor complained against on the same run or on an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre (a complaint filed with a Local Clearance & Zoning Board or a Local Grievance Board under N.R.A. and not disposed of by administrative action prior to May 27, 1935, or a complaint in writing to the Department of Justice are considered to be "demands in writing"); or

(d) Complainant operated his theatre at least one year prior to the entry of the decree, and subsequent to July 20, 1935 and prior to July 20, 1940 a prior operator of the theatre demanded in writing features from the respondent distributor on the same run as or an earlier run than that enjoyed by the circuit theatre (or filed a complaint with N.R.A. or the Department of Justice); and

(6) Such refusal to license complainant was in fact because the theatre licensed to exhibit them on the run requested was a circuit theatre.

Factors for Arbitration

In considering such a complaint the arbitrator shall take into consideration the following factors, among others: (a) The terms, if any, offered in respect of each of the two competing theatres; (b) the seating capacity of each of said theatres; (c) the capacity of each for producing revenue for the distributor; (d) the character, appearance and condition of each, including its furnishings, equipment and conveniences; (e) the location of each of said theatres; (f) the character and extent of the area and population each serves; (g) competitive conditions in the area in which they are located; (h) their suitability for exhibition of the distributor's features on the run requested; (i) the character and ability of the exhibitor operating each and his reputation generally in the industry and in the community for showmanship, honesty and fair dealing; (j) the policy under which each of the theatres has been operated and the policy under which the complainant proposes to operate his theatre if he obtains the desired run; (k) the financial responsibility of the exhibitor operating each of the theatres; and the distributor's prior relations with each of the two theatres and with their owners and operators and any equities arising therefrom.

By carefully noting the "ands" and "ors", which I have underscored, in connection with the findings that must be made by the arbitrator, an exhibitor can determine whether he is eligible to bring such a preceeding; by carefully studying the factors on which the arbitrator will make his decision he can form an estimate as to his chances of success. The obvious purpose of the Section is to adjust the complaints that give rise to the suit without offering any encouragement to other exhibitors similarly situated who did not give vent to their complaints. The limitation that the Section shall only apply to theatres in existence when the decree is signed, or which are replacements of such theatres, shows a purpose to freeze conditions as they will exist when these past grievances have been adjusted. Unlike most anti-trust decrees there are no permanent injunctions looking to the future.

If the arbitrator finds for the complainant, he will enter an order prohibiting the distributor from licensing its features on the run in question in either house otherwise than by a separate contract which shall not be a part of any circuit deal. After a final award in favor of the complainant, such exhibitor may institute another arbitration proceeding on the ground that the award has not been complied with in good faith; and if the arbitrator finds that it has not, he may award the complainant compensatory damages.

If one takes a fine sight on the remedy thus provided, it will be found as leaky as a sieve; but the arbitrator will be wholly impartial, with no axe to grind.

Further Acquisitions of Theatres

The main object of the suit was to compel the distributors to divorce themselves from their theatre holdings.

The proposed decree marks a complete recession by the Department from the position taken by it in the pleadings in the case, in the press release accompanying the filing of the case, in the press release dated December 20, 1939, refuting rumors that the case would never come to trial and in the statement made by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold before a sub-committee of the Senate Committee on the Judiciary last May at a hearing on Senator Neely's bill to separate the production and distribution of motion pictures from the exhibition thereof.

Exhibitors do not now know what influence intervened in the Department of Justice and brought about this abrupt change of front. Gossip naturally centers about prominent personages in the Administration who are directly or indirectly interested in the motion picture industry. But speculation along this line will not settle immediate problems. If sinister influence was exerted, the facts will eventually come to light, as they always do. If no such influence was exerted, then unfounded charges will do more harm than good. For the time being, opposition to the decree must be confined to its lack of merit as a document; it can not go to the motives of those who have framed and are offering it.

Under this Section of the decree the consenting defendants, for a period of three years, will notify the Department of Justice of any legally binding commitments made by them for the acquisition of additional theatres. The decree specifies the information to be included in the reports and the Department is authorized to request such further information as it desires. All such information will be confidential except in case of Court proceedings.

For a period of three years no consenting defendant may "enter upon a general program of expanding its theatre holdings" but this shall not be construed to "prevent any defendant from acquiring theatres or interests therein to protect its investment or its competitive position or for ordinary purposes of its business." Had it not been for the clause here underscored, the standstill would have been similar to that under a temporary injunction, with freedom of action only to protect existing property rights pending final outcome of the case. But the addition of this clause robs the Section of all force, renders the Section so vague that it can not be enforced and marks a capitulation by the Department of Justice as astonishing as it is complete.

The Section goes on to provide that proceedings based on a violation thereof shall be by way of application to the Court for injunctive relief "which shall be limited to restraining the acquisition, or ordering the divestiture of theatres or interests therein, if any, about to be acquired, or acquired, in violation of the Section." That is to say, if the Government can sustain the seemingly impossible burden of showing that such theatres were a part of a general program of expansion and not merely acquired for ordinary purposes of business.

Another Section (XXI) recites that the Government has represented to the Court that "the public interest requires" that the provisions of this decree (except for the provisions in reference to trade showings and selling in groups of five) shall operate for a trial period of three years. Therefore, the decree is to be entered upon the condition that the Government will not seek theatre divorcement as prayed in the complaint, or seek to dissolve or break up any of the affiliated circuits, until three years have elapsed. This provision may have a restraining influence on the defendant distributors during the three year test period. They still will have the threat of divorcement hanging over their heads. If in the meantime they continue their abuses, oppressions and depredations they will chalk up a record that should insure further proceedings for divorcement unless, in the meantime, all witnesses have died or been bought off or the defendants retain sufficient influence with the Department of Justice to enable them to go scot free.

Escape Clause

The escape clause applies to the Sections relating to trade showings and selling in groups of five. While it is an amazing provision to be found in an anti-trust decree, since it involves a principle directly opposed to the Anti-Trust Law, it should afford some measure of comfort to the opponents of the five-group system. It insures that this method of selling will last for only one year.

It provides—

(a) (b) If by June 1, 1942 a decree shall not have been entered against the non-consenting defendants (Columbia, United Artists and Universal), requiring them to trade show their pictures and to sell in groups of five, then such requirement shall be inoperative as to the consenting defendants (Paramount, M.G.M., Warner Bros., Twentieth Century and RKO) except with respect to licenses entered into prior to September 1, 1942 covering features released prior to such date and subsequent to August 31, 1941.

(c) (d) If prior to June 1, 1942 a decree shall have been entered against the non-consenting defendants with respect to trade showing pictures or selling in groups of five, and the provisions of such decree are more favorable to the distributors than the similar provisions of this decree, the consenting defendants may at their election be relieved from the provisions of the consent decree and become subject to the more moderate provisions of the new decree.

(e) In case of a decree against the non-consenting defendants on the subjects mentioned prior to July 1, 1942, and an appeal therefrom by such non-consenting defendants, which appeal shall have the effect to suspend the operation of said decree pending the outcome thereof, then operation of the consent decree so far as it relates to trade showings and groups selling shall also be suspended unless and until such decree shall have become final and binding on the non-consenting defendants. After such decree has become final, the consenting defendants shall have the same right of election as in (c) and (d).

(f) If at any time Congress passes legislation on the subject of trade showings or group

ARNOLD ATTACKS TRADE RESTRAINTS

Thurman W. Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney general and head of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, said Saturday that bottlenecks in business must be destroyed as a means to help national defense. Mr. Arnold was the principal speaker at the biennial meeting in Columbus, Ohio, of the Institute on Credit, sponsored by Ohio State University in co-operation with the National Association of Credit Men and the National Retail Credit Association.

The anti-trust laws were described by Mr. Arnold as the only flexible weapon the Government has to eradicate industrial bottlenecks. He said that the trade restraints could be eliminated "if the consumer wakes up."

'IMPARTIAL ARBITRATORS ONLY WAY'

selling, the consenting defendants may apply to the Court to be relieved from the provisions of the consent decree on these subjects.

(g) At any time after September 1, 1943 any consenting defendant may move to vacate the then effective provisions of the consent decree relating to trade showings and group selling by filing an application under oath stating that during any consecutive twelve-month period either (1) distributors of motion pictures have licensed 25 percent or more of the features released for exhibition in the United States free from the requirements of the consent decree, or (2) twelve and one-half percent or more of the total gross income from licenses for motion pictures in the United States (excluding States rights exchanges) has been derived from pictures licensed otherwise than as required by the consent decree.

Upon such application the Court shall enter an order relieving the consenting defendants of the requirements unless within sixty days the Government (which alone will have all the figures) shall establish to the satisfaction of the Court that during such twelve-months period less than twelve and one-half of the gross income from film licenses (including States rights) has been derived from pictures licensed otherwise than as required by the decree.

(h) At any time after September 1, 1942 any consenting defendant may apply to be relieved upon a showing, satisfactory to the Court, that subsequent to that date and by reason of the competition of persons not selling exclusively in accordance with the provisions of the decree, compliance therewith by the consenting defendant has substantially and adversely affected the applicant's business.

The amazing thing about (g) and (h) is that they are not restricted to the competition of the non-consenting defendants, they may be brought into operation by the competition of new producers and distributors entering the field. One might have supposed that the purpose of the Sherman Law was to foster new competition; but by these provisions the Government engages to protect the existing monoply. This is a strange principle in the enforcement of the Anti-Trust Law and discussion concerning it will not end with the entry of the decree. However, they insure that the selling methods set up in the decree will last for only one season—just long enough to tide over possibility of enactment of the Neely Bill.

Of course, if the Administration should now actively support legislation on the subject of compulsory block booking and blind selling, the industry—producers, distributors and exhibitors alike—may have to choose as between the system set up in the decree and the Neely Bill.

Additional Protective Provisions

Many provisions of the consent decree are aimed at protecting the existing rights or privileges of the consenting defendants, viz:

(a) The decree shall not relate to operations and activities of the consenting defendants outside of continental United States.

(b) It shall not affect the right of a consenting defendant, prior to general release, to roadshow a picture or to arrange for such roadshowing upon such terms as it may see fit.

(c) The decree shall not apply to any franchise signed prior to June 6, 1940 (when the negotiations were begun), or to any license made pursuant to such franchise, except as to the arbitration of clearance as hereinabove explained.

The ambiguity in the draft of October 18 in reference to exemptions from the decree has been eliminated but the several provisions on the subject are confusing. To clear this up, all franchises signed prior to June 6 are exempted except that franchises between one distributor and the affiliated theatres of another are subject to the provision relating to clearance. All contracts and franchises between a distributor and its own affiliated theatres are exempted.

The favoritism, preferences and discriminations which the Government alleged in its complaint are practiced by the Big Eight in favor of one another's theatres are embodied in these sacrosanct franchises. The Department of Justice will never be able to explain its action in immunizing these franchises under the decree.

(d) No consenting defendant shall be deemed to have violated any provision of the decree, if arbitration is provided, unless it refuses to arbitrate or to abide by the award.

(e) The decree shall not limit, impair or restrict the right of each consenting distributor to license pictures on any terms it sees fit (1) in any theatre in the ownership, lease, management, or in the proceeds or profits of the management or operation of which, it directly or indirectly, by stock ownership or otherwise, owns a financial interest at the time of decree and also at the time of such license, and (2) in any theatre in the ownership, lease, management or operation, or in the proceeds or profits from management or operation of which, such defendant acquires after the date of decree and owns at the time of such license, directly or indirectly a financial interest of not less than fifty percent and (3) in any theatre in the ownership, lease, management and operation of which a company in which such defendant owned not less than forty-two percent of the common stock at the date of the decree and at the time of the license, acquires after the date of the decree and owns at the time of the license, directly or indirectly, a financial interest of not less than fifty percent.

To recapitulate immunity under the decree is given to all licenses by a distributor to a theatre in which it at the time of the decree and on the date of the license owns a financial interest regardless of the amount. Similar immunity is given licenses to after-acquired theatres provided the interest of the distributor therein is not less than fifty percent. And, finally, immunity is given licenses to after-acquired theatres operated by a subsidiary of a distributor provided that, at the date of the decree and of the license (a) the distributor has not less than a forty-two percent interest in the theatre and (b) after the date of the decree and at the time of the license such subsidiary owns a fifty percent interest in such theatre. In a word, all licenses by a distributor with its existing affiliated theatres are exempted; with respect to after-acquired theatres, in order for their licenses to be exempt, the distributor must have a fifty percent interest in such theatre or a forty-two percent interest in a subsidiary which itself has a fifty percent interest in the theatre.

Bear in mind that this exemption applies only to licenses or franchises between one consenting distributor and its affiliated theatres; it does not apply to licenses or franchises between such consenting distributor and the affiliated theatres of another consenting distributor.

The apparent reason for these exemptions is the peculiar view taken by Government attorneys (peculiar in view of the charges of combination and conspiracy set forth in the bill of complaint) that a particular distributor may not only operate theatres for the exhibition of its own pictures, but may license such pictures to its own theatres on whatever terms it pleases.

(f) Except as otherwise provided in the decree, nothing shall be construed to limit the right of any distributor to select its own customers, to bargain with them according to law and to license pictures on any terms it sees fit.

(g) The provisions in reference to trade showings and group selling, in reference to licensing within the exchange district, and in reference to discriminating against independent exhibitors, shall have application only to features released in the United States after August 31, 1941.

Policing of the Decree

To secure compliance with the decree, representatives of the Department of Justice shall have access to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, memoranda and other records and documents of the consenting defendants and may interview the officers and employees thereof relating to any of the matters contained in the decree. The decree also specifies certain information which the defendants shall keep accessible for the purpose stated.

The Department of Justice also is given access to all proceedings and records of the arbitrators.

Jurisdiction is retained by the Court (a) to enable the parties to apply for orders and directions for the carrying out of the decree, for the enforcement of compliance, and for the punishment of violations; (b) to enable any party to apply for modifications to conform to any Act of Congress; (c) to enable any consenting defendant to make any application to the Court provided for in the decree; (d) to enable the parties at any time after three years to move for any modification; (e) to enable any consenting defendant after three years to move to vacate the decree, or for any modification, on the ground that changed economic or competitive conditions make the decree or any provision thereof no longer appropriate or necessary; (f) modifications may be made to enable the defendants to comply with State laws.

Arbitration Provisions

The American Arbitration Association is designated the impartial Administrator to set up and administer the arbitration system.

The Administrator will establish and maintain an Arbitration Tribunal in each city in which three or more of the distributor defendants maintain exchanges. This shall consist of a panel of not less than ten impartial arbitrators and a clerk with suitable offices and personnel. The Administrator may appoint and remove members of the panel and personnel.

No person may be appointed on any panel "who has any financial interest in, or has had any connection with, the production, distribution or exhibition of motion pictures, or has had any interest in any motion picture theatre as landlord, lessor, or otherwise."

Criticism has been made of this provision for impartial arbitrators on the ground that since they will have no background of experience in the business the arbitrators will be bewildered by the complexities of the business. This overlooks the fact that the American Arbitration Association has many experienced arbitrators located in all parts of the United States who are skilled in mastering the details of unfamiliar industries and in rendering just decisions.

Aside from this, the use of impartial arbitra-

'DELAY IN ARBITRATION A HARDSHIP'

tors is the only method by which controversies involving clearance, runs and discrimination can be adjusted without the embarrassing obstacles incident to balancing influence on the boards as between the distributors, the affiliated theatres and the independent exhibitors.

However, independent exhibitors will have to be on their toes to see to it that the Administrator in appointing the Clerks to the local Arbitration Tribunals does not select persons who by reason of past association or character defects are likely to be influenced in favor of the affiliated interests and against the independents. These Clerks will be in a position to influence the arbitrators and should be as impartial as the arbitrators, although this is not specified in the decree. It is feared that the Hays Association may try to secure the appointment of former Film Board secretaries, exchange employees, etc., who have assimilated the affiliated point of view.

The expenses are to be budgeted by a committee of three, one to be appointed by the Administrator, one by the distributor defendants and one by the Chairman of the Appeal Board. The expenses of the system, except the fees of the arbitrators and stenographic costs, shall be met by filing fees to be provided for in the Rules, by penalties imposed in accordance with the provisions of Sections IV and V of the decree, and such additional amounts as may be necessary to be paid by the distributor defendants.

Admissible Controversies

The arbitration proceedings shall be conducted as provided in the Rules which are expressly approved in the decree. The Rules may provide for the arbitration of claims and controversies between distributor defendants and exhibitors for the arbitration of which no provision is made in the decree—i.e. controversies growing out of exhibition contracts.

Provision also is made for an Appeal Board which shall hear and determine appeals from awards made by the Arbitration Tribunals. It shall consist of three members, to be appointed by the Court, "each of whom shall be a person of known impartiality and distinction." One member shall be designated by the Court as chairman. This Appeal Board shall have its offices in New York City.

There is grave danger that men outwardly impartial but actually sympathetic with the major interests may be selected unless the other interests affected are permitted to challenge the members before their appointments are made permanent. Allied has opposed allowing the Board to sit in New York, first, because Washington is a more logical and Chicago a more central point, and second, because it is inevitable that the members of any such Board, no matter how distinguished, will be affected by the attentions and ministrations of Big Eight interests intrenched in New York.

Any person having the right to institute an arbitration proceeding under the decree may do so upon the condition that such person file with the Clerk a submission in proper form providing that he will abide by and comply fully with any award which may be entered; a similar submission shall be filed by any intervenor in any such proceeding. The consenting distributors are bound by the decree and this provision is necessary to insure that others do not run out on the arbitration as soon as an award is made against them.

Representatives of the Department of Justice are given access to all books, ledgers, accounts, correspondence, etc. in the possession of the Appeal Board, the Arbitration Tribunal, and of the Administrator, which relate to the arbitration system and to the arbitration of claims and controversies under the decree.

Rules of Arbitration and Appeals

An arbitration proceeding shall be instituted by the filing with the Clerk of the appropriate Tribunal of a Demand for Arbitration and submission, and by paying a filing fee of $10.00. Intervenors must also file the submission and pay the fee.

The Demand shall contain the names and addresses of the parties, the name and address of the theatre involved; the name and address of each distributor or exhibitor whose business or property it is believed may be affected by an award in the proceeding; and a brief statement in simple language of the claim and the relief sought.

A sufficient number of copies shall be filed to enable the Clerk to deliver one to each distributor or exhibitor named in the Demand.

The respondent may suggest the names of others having an interest in the proceeding and they will be given a copy of the Demand by the Clerk. All persons thus interested may intervene.

Between 15 and 17 days after the filing of the Demand the Clerk will deliver to each party an identical list of names from the Panel of Arbitrators, in order that they may indicate their preference. The parties will have seven days in which to return the lists and if any party does not do so, it will be deemed to have approved all names.

The Clerk will then appoint an arbitrator acceptable to the parties. If no name is acceptable to all parties, then the Administrator shall appoint an arbitrator from the remaining members of the Panel.

Not less than 16 days after the filing of the Demand the parties may in writing unanimously appoint one or more arbitrators from the Panel.

Arbitrators disqualified under the rules may be removed and awards made by disqualified arbitrators may be vacated. The Administrator may remove an arbitrator for neglect of duty. The Administrator will fill all vacancies.

It is not clear why the Rules put such emphasis on delay. They even provide that 16 days must elapse in cases where the parties get together and agree upon an arbitrator. This will work a hardship on and tend to deter exhibitors from arbitrating certain classes of cases, as, for example, that a distributor has forced or is attempting to force unwanted products.

This has been called to the attention of the Department of Justice.

Hearings are to be held in the offices of the local Tribunal or at such other place as the parties may agree upon with the consent of the arbitrator. Hearings shall commence as promptly as possible after the appointment of the arbitrator, and the arbitrator will fix the date of the hearing. However, the parties are to be given five days notice of the beginning of the hearing, thus assuring further delay.

The parties may appear personally and be represented by counsel or by others.

Each party shall have the right to examine or cross-examine all witnesses.

Witnesses shall testify under oath (conscientious objecters may "affirm").

An important provision is that "the arbitrator shall have power to require any party to produce such records as the arbitrator may deem necessary to a proper determination of the controversy."

The arbitrator shall be the judge of the relevancy of evidence offered but he is not required to adhere to strict legal rules.

The arbitrator may hear argument and receive briefs.

The arbitrator has 30 days after the close of the hearing in which to file his award.

Thus 24 days may elapse before the arbitrator is appointed; then there must be at least five days notice of the first hearing; and finally 30 days may elapse after the close of the hearing—59 days not including the duration of the hearing!

Certainly the Rules must be modified to allow for a quicker procedure in cases where time is of the essence.

In his award the arbitrator shall assess costs against the losing party or parties or apportion them as he deems just. Costs are limited to the filing fee and the arbitrator's fee.

Just what these costs will amount to may be gleaned from the following: The Administrator will fix the arbitrator's fees not exceed $50.00 per day or part of day spent in attendance at the hearing. Prior to the commencement of the day's hearing, each party shall deposit with the Clerk a sum equal to the arbitrator's per diem fee.

The fees will be paid out of the sums so deposited and the remainder will be returned to the parties entitled thereto.

In a proceeding involving, say, five respondents and intervenors, and in which the arbitrator sat for five days, the complaining exhibitor might stand to lose $300.00 in costs in case he did not make good on his claim.

A distributor by dilatory tactics might conceivably run up such a bill as to compel the exhibitor to withdraw, thus accomplishing a denial of justice.

An exhibitor ought not to be visited with such a loss in a case initiated in good faith, even though the award goes against him.

The Rules so far as they relate to time and costs definitely call for revision if the system is to fulfill its mission.

If one or more parties desire a stenographic record, they must deposit the cost thereof with the Clerk. Any party desiring a transcript shall pay the cost thereof; and if such party did not pay the cost of taking the stenographic record, he shall reimburse the party who did. This is a matter of agreement between the parties and stenographic fees are not taxable as costs.

Filing Fee for Appeals

The filing fee on an appeal is $25.00. The appellant must file with the Clerk three copies of stenographic record. Thus stenographic costs are a condition of the right of appeal. The record on appeal, including the stenographic records, exhibits, Demand, submission and Clerk's entries will be transmitted by the Clerk to the Appeal Board.

Within 30 days after notice of appeal, each party must file its appeal brief. Within another 10 days each party must file any answering brief it may wish considered.

The Appeal Board by agreement of all the parties, or on its own initiative, may order oral argument. Any party may ask to be heard, orally, in the absence of an agreement, and such application will be determined by the Board.

Oral arguments will be heard only in New York, thus underwriting the convenience of the home office employees and attorneys and casting the burden of inconvenience and expense on independent exhibitors located at a distance.

Decisions of the Appeal Board will be accompanied by an opinion thus creating precedents for the guidance of the local Tribunals.

INDUSTRY LEADERS COMPLETE SETUP IN NATIONAL DEFENSE COOPERATION

Schaefer Chairman of Coordinating Committee Through Which Industry Aid Will Go; Studios Opened to Army

Furthering the motion picture contribution to the national defense effort, committees of various sections of the industry were selected last week under the sponsorship of heads of all major film companies. Heading these committees is a Coordinating Committee on National Defense, under the chairmanship of George J. Schaefer, president of RKO.

Meanwhile, the film industry as a whole continued to show the effects of the war crisis abroad and defense efforts at home; many members of the industry are eligible for the conscription; some theatre managers are demanding registration cards for admissions; the Hollywood studios are preparing to aid the production of war training films; some film industry leaders in certain localities have been chosen to serve on Selective Service Boards; the Eastman Kodak Company announced it would return all profits over 10 per cent on Government defense work to the Government; members of the industry are leading to serve with the armed forces and aid to the Red Cross is continuing.

Coordinator Named

On the film industry's Coordinating Committee for National Defense with Mr. Schaefer are Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures; Joseph Hazen, vice-president of Warner Brothers; William C. Michel, executive vice-president of Twentieth Century-Fox; Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, Inc.; and R. B. Wilby, of the Wilby-Kincey circuit. Francis S. Harmon, of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, has been designated coordinator, and will report to the committee. It was announced he had already established the necessary contacts with national defense agencies and that suggestions would be channelled through him.

Sponsors of the plan for various committees are the heads of the major film companies, Mr. Schaefer, Mr. Balaban, and Mr. Schenck; Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia Pictures; Nate Blumberg, president of Universal Pictures; Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century Fox; Maurice Silverstone, general manager of United Artists; and Harry N. Warner, president of Warner Brothers.

Chairman of the theatre committee is Joseph Bernhard, general manager of the Warner circuit. On this committee are A. H. Blank, Harry Brandt, Si Fabian, E. L. Kuykendall, Charles C. Moskowitz, John O'Connor, R. J. O'Donnell, E. V. Richards, Spyros Skouras, R. B. Wilby, and Nathan Yamins.

Chairmen of the other committees are Y. Frank Freeman, studio production; E. B. Hatrick, newsreels; William Clark, short subjects; William A. Scully, distributors; Oscar Doob, theatre publicity.

Mr. Schaefer, commenting on the plan this week, said:

"It is to be emphasized that the voluntary organization being developed by the industry is not intended in any way to limit the initiative, contribution, or service which any elements wthin it may apply to the problems of national defense. The intention is to provide a clearing house for such plans as may best serve our national needs, insofar as the screen is properly concerned."

Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, and Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, last week commended the spirit of the film industry, for the plan. Another who voiced praise was Cordell Hull, Secretary of State.

Headquarters of the coordinating committee is at 28 West 44th Street, New York City, home of the MPPDA.

The United States Army Signal Corps moved into high this week, in its war training film program. Headquarters of that section of the corps which will make such films were moved last week from Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, to near Asbury Park. Heading the section is Lieutenant Colonel Melvin Gillette, assisted by Major Robert Shaw. Fourteen officers have been sent to Hollywood for training. It is planned to make 3,000 reels by July. Army film production formerly was only 30 reels per year.

Studios to Aid Signal Corps

In Hollywood, it was announced last week that the production capital's facilities would be available to the Army. Y. Frank Freeman, chairman of the studio production defense committee, named Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production at Twentieth Century Fox, to head a subcommittee to work with the Signal Corps.

Assisting Mr. Zanuck are Samuel Briskin, and Major Nathan Levinson. Expected this week in Hollywood is Major Richard T. Schlosberg, of the corps, who conferred on Army films several months ago, with Hollywood leaders. The officer was expected to begin work this week or next. Gordon Mitchell, manager of the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, was in Washington last week conferring with War Department officials.

Dr. Leo C. Rosten, director of the Rockefeller-financed Motion Picture Research Project, last week was made liaison officer of the National Defense Commission, for motion picture work. He is head of the motion picture section of the division of information of the commission, and his duties include clearing the way for producers planning pictures on national defense. He will also act as agent for clearing information between producers and the commission.

Mr. Rosten's survey of Hollywood, part of the project, will be published next Spring.

Last week, the film industry learned the names of several men in various Federal agencies who, because of the current war effort, will become "contacts" with the industry. Lieutenant Colonel Ward Maris is acting thus for the War Department; Lieutenant Howard Gordon, for the Navy; Michael McDermott, for the State Department.

Actors In Draft Call

Meanwhile, the conscription lottery in Washington last week affected individual members of the film industry. Some held the first number, 158; others held low numbers, and expected early call. Holding Number 158, in Hollywood, was Sterling Holloway, actor. Some who received low order numbers are Ray Milland, Wayne Morris, William Holden, Phil Terry, Rod Cameron, and Don Castle, Paramount; Henry Fonda, Twentieth Century Fox; James Stewart, MGM; Broderick Crawford, Universal; Richard Carlson, and James Craig, RKO; Richard Fisk, Stanley Brown, Donald Douglas, Columbia; Bob Livingston, Republic.

It was disclosed that 22 film company employees in Hollywood are members of the 22nd Battalion, Marine Corps Reserve, commanded by Major W. S. Van Dyke II, an MGM director. James Roosevelt is a captain in the U. S. Marine Corps Reserve.

Harry Brandt, New York circuit owner and president of the Independent Theatre Owners Association, of that city, was named on Monday, by Governor Herbert H. Lehman, to the Selective Service Board of Appeal for District 6, comprising parts of New York and Richmond counties. Thomas Murtha, head of the Brooklyn IATSE local 4, and president of the New York Central Trades and Labor Council, was named to the board of district 13, Queens County.

Twentieth Century-Fox announced last week its writers were preparing the story "Arise and Shine" to conform to the current draft scene. It will be the first film on the subject.

Following the lead of other unions seeking to guarantee the positions of their members called for millitary service, the Studio Transportation Drivers Local 399 is to authorize its officers to negotiate a change in contracts with studios, to guarantee leaves of absence and the return to jobs, of its drafted members. Insurance and the good standing in the union, of such men, will be maintained.

Sidney Meyer, vice-president of the Wometco circuit, this week announced, in Miami, that its drafted employees would be reinstated at the end of their service; and that draftees and enlistees who receive satisfactory discharges from the Army, will also receive a bonus from the circuit.

The Eastman Kodak Company, of Rochester, last week announced it would refund to the Government any profit over 10 per cent on defense orders placed with it. The announcement recalled that, in the previous World War, the company fulfilled a like pledge.

Ed Kirby, public relations director for the National Association of Broadcasters, in Washington, has been given a leave of absence, so that he can establish and direct the radio department in the Army's public relations division. It is said the Army plans to have separate radio, films, and press divisions, in its public relations work.

Ronald Colman, actor, has donated an ambulance to the British. He is a native of Great Britain.

Among the many people being disenfranchised by the present French Government is Rene Clair, French producer, now in Hollywood, cables to New York from Vichy, France, reported last week. The offense is "leaving the country without permission."

DIETZ ADVOCATES THEATRE SCHOOLS

Howard Dietz, director of advertising and publicity for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, discussing prospects for films and the theatre for the coming winter at a luncheon of music, art and drama critics at the Biltmore Hotel in New York last week advocated a less haphazard organization in the theatre. Mr. Dietz said there should be schools for players and dramatists in the theatre, as there are already in the motion picture industry.

He also expressed a hope for more leniency and understanding in the public's judging of films.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

BEWARE SPOOKS: Joe E. Brown, Mary Carlisle—In this section Joe cannot be beaten for a money maker. In order to seat every one that attended our midnight show, we had to run this show two times. For a spook show, don't pass this one up. I believe this one will draw a house anywhere. Running time, 69 minutes. Played Midnight, October 26.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

FIVE LITTLE PEPPERS AT HOME: Edith Fellows, Dorothy Peterson, Dorothy Ann Seese—Doubled with "Gaucho Serenade" and everybody loved the baby. I'd like to have that chap for a draft exemption if nothing else. Nice picture for the young and old alike, especially the children. Played October 11-12.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

GIRLS OF THE ROAD: Helen Mack, Lola Lane, Ann Dvorak—This is was a very good drawing show and people really liked it.—G. J. Martin, Badger Theatre, Minn. Small town patronage.

OUTPOST OF THE MOUNTIES: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—An average western for cowboy lovers. Yes! A little different as it was mounted police. Did satisfactory business on a dual bill.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

OUT WEST WITH THE PEPPERS: Edith Fellows, Dorothy Ann Seese, Tommy Bond—Played this on weekend double bill with "Bullet Code." Everybody was pleased. Personally, I think little Dorothy Ann Seese has a much more definite personality than and can act rings around Shirley Temple. Let's see more of this kid, but don't sugar her up. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 24-26.—N. W. Mason, Academy Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Laboring class patronage.

TOO MANY HUSBANDS: Jean Arthur, Melvyn Douglas, Fred MacMurray—That trick voice of Jean Arthur's would make any picture enjoyable, but that's about all this picture has; except for a few high comedy moments it is very dull. It doesn't come to an ending it just stops to the evident relief of all. Running time, 84 minutes. Played October 24-26.—N. W. Mason, Roseland Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

U-BOAT 29: Conrad Veidt, Valerie Hobson—Not so hot. People were disgusted. Hard to understand.—G. J. Martin, Badger Theatre, Badger, Minn. Small town patronage.

First National

TORRID ZONE: James Cagney, Ann Sheridan, Pat O'Brien, Andy Devine, Helen Vinson—A rambling plot is held together by a good cast and excellent dialogue. When the two women get together, the wisecracks fly fast and furious. It drew average business with a lot of competition when doubled with "One Million B. C." Running time, 87 minutes. Played October 25-26.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BALALAIKA: Nelson Eddy, Ilona Massey, Frank Morgan, Charles Ruggles—This production very much enjoyed by my patrons. Can recommend this for town patronage more than the country folks. Running time, 10 reels. Played October 19.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

BOOM TOWN: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr, Frank Morgan—Great business at advanced admission. No kick on 40c here. Picture well liked. Regular admission 20c. Running time, 105 minutes. Played October 15-17.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

CAPTAIN IS A LADY, THE: Beulah Bondi, Billie Burke, Helen Broderick, Charles Coburn, Helen Westley, Marjorie Main—A little picture, but infinitely satisfying. Played two-day date on double bill with "Safari." Patrons want to know why we don't have more of Helen Broderick and Marjorie Main.

In this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 4-5.—N. W. Mason, Roseland Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

EDISON, THE MAN: Spencer Tracy, Rita Johnson, Lynne Overman, Charles Coburn, Gene Lockhart—Spencer Tracy in anything means good box office here and in this one he turns in his usual good performance. All round good cast. Running time, 106 minutes. Played October 10-12.—N. W. Mason, Roseland Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

GOLDEN FLEECING: Lew Ayres, Rita Johnson, Lloyd Nolan—A very good picture. I think it a poor title, though. Business fairly good. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 16-17.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

I LOVE YOU AGAIN: William Powell, Myrna Loy, Frank McHugh, Edmund Lowe—Plenty good. We all like this team, and business was above average. Running time, 99 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

PRIDE AND PREJUDICE: Laurence Olivier, Greer Garson, Mary Boland, Maureen O'Sullivan, Edna May Oliver—Fair picture to average business. Too long for no action. We must have a little action all along for every one to like them. Running time, 118 miutes. Played October 20-21.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Joan Crawford, Frederic March, Rita Quigley, Rose Hobart, Rita Hayworth, Ruth Hussey, John Carroll, Bruce Cabot—Excellent entertainment for any intelligent adult with a sense of dramatic fun. A certain columnist to the contrary notwithstanding, Joan Crawford gives a splendid performance in a difficult role, ranking with any of Hollywood's best. Audience enthusiastic. Running time, 116 minutes. Played October 7-9.—N. W. Mason, Roseland Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

SUSAN AND GOD: Frederic March, Ruth Hussey, Joan Crawford, Rita Quigley, Rita Hayworth, Bruce Cabot, John Carroll, Marjorie Main, Rose Hobart—Metro should have titled this "Susan," as I am quite sure God would not want to be mentioned in the worst picture I ever run. If Metro had filmed the inmates of an insane asylum in and out of strait jackets, there would have been more entertainment than in this two hours of silly, sacrilegious bunk. Fredric March gives a good performance and Ruth Hussey is charming, but I shall certainly steer clear of any more Joan Crawford pictures. After running this three nights to a practically empty house, I felt as though I would scream if I had to hear her say "my darlings, my darlings, my d-a-r-r-rlings" again. It isn't drama; it isn't comedy; it isn't mystery: it is just talk, talk, talk about nothing. It made what I hope is an all-time Sunday night low and had a lot of walkouts. I hiked to the projection room so I wouldn't have to meet them when they came out. Marjorie Main furnished all the comedy there was in the entire two hours. Crawford is through here. Running time, 117 minutes. Played October 18-20.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

WATERLOO BRIDGE: Robert Taylor, Vivien Leigh—What I never expected to see, a picture with a sad ending that pleased 100 per cent. Robert Taylor gives his best performance. Vivien Leigh is superb. The supporting cast flawless and nothing but favorable comments. Running time, 100 minutes. Played September 27-29.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

Monogram

GENTLEMAN FROM ARIZONA, THE: Craig Reynolds, John King—This is the first time in six years we have written to you about "What the Picture Did for Me." I do so now because I feel any exhibitor who reads will profit if he acts. I haven't been running Monogram pictures for years, so this year I bought a few "westerns." The first one was "The Gentleman from Arizona" and imagine my surprise. It certainly would do justice to Metro, Fox or any major company and was sold very cheap. The sound, projection, color and general excellence of the story and production was "top notch." If these small companies are going to make pictures like this, I'm going to stop worrying about increased rentals. I intend to give Monogram a chance.—Charles T. Wolfe, Park Theatre, Constantine, Mich. General patronage.

SHOULD A GIRL MARRY? Anna Nagel, Warren Hull—Played this on a weekend with Charles Starrett western. The two pictures drew well and satisfied our farm lads, who are getting their hogs shot as we have an epidemic of cholera, so we lose our bacon. —Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SKY BANDITS: James Newill, Louise Stanley—Just another "Renfrew of the Mounted." Good draw for small town on Friday-Saturday. Running time, 57 minutes. Played October 18-19.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN: Jack Benny, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine, Phil Harris—A very entertaining picture. Benny has plenty radio fans in this section and they were not entirely disappointed. "Rochester" took care of situation nicely. I still don't know why Harris is in pictures. Running time, 82 minutes. Played October 13-14.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

DR. CYCLOPS: Albert Dekker, Janis Logan—Played on Bank Night to good business. It scared a few of the women away. The photography was very good and I'd like to see how they do it. Played October 15.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

EMERGENCY SQUAD: William Henry, Louise Campbell—Fifty-nine minutes of action that was enjoyed by our patrons. A very good picture, but a little short on the running time. Played on same program with Warners' "Flowing Gold." Running time, 59 minutes. Played October 24-26.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

GHOST BREAKERS, THE: Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard—Laugh for laugh, this compares with any thrill comedy for years. Hope and Goddard a good team at the box office. Running time, 85 minutes. Played September 19-21.—N. W. Mason, Roseland Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

MOON OVER BURMA: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston, Preston Foster—Swell picture for small town. Dorothy Lamour is tops here. In our opinion she has more drawing power than any feminine star in business today. Played October 27-28.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

RANGERS OF FORTUNE: Fred MacMurray, Patricia Morison, Albert Dekker, Betty Brewer—Good picture; good business. Pleased all. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 25-26.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SAFARI: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Madeleine Carroll—Not much for the jungle action that we expected. It will stand a Bargain Night. Why waste these stars on this material. Running time, 81 minutes. Played October 16-17.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town rural patronage.

TYPHOON: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston,

Lynne Overman—A lovely lady in color and a good name makes a combination that usually clicks. The tidal wave and forest fire together was marvelous in its greatness. Good business and good picture. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 9-10.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

TYPHOON: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston, Lynne Overman—This picture did well on Foto-Nite, but let us down very badly the second night. Reports from the audience were quite favorable.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Producers

GUN CODE: Tim McCoy—Okay for Friday-Saturday program. Average business. Pete Sinios, Virginia Theatre, Bakersfield, Calif. General patronage.

Republic

DARK COMMAND: John Wayne, Claire Trevor, Walter Pidgeon—I must say that this picture is tops for John Wayne and a very good supporting cast to help him along. Played to a very good house which could have been better. A fair picture, but don't bet on this to do big money. Running time, 96 minutes. Played October 27-28.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

GAUCHO SERENADE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Story—The usual story about an Autry western. Capacity business and they all liked it. "Frog" is fun and Autry the music. Don't fail to keep "Frog" in every one of Autry's westerns. I'm afraid of the consequences. Running time, 66 minutes. Played October 11-12.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

GRAND OLE OPRY: Weaver Brothers and Elviry—Very good for small town. Top business. We like this kind of show.—G. J. Martin, Badger Theatre, Badger, Minn. Small town patronage.

RANCHO GRANDE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—A little old and having played all around us, but still did the money. Played to a capacity house all day in spite of Carnival being located just behind the theatre. Gene Autry was fair, but carried excellent supporting cast. Running time, 64 minutes. Played October 26.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

YOUNG BUFFALO BILL: Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Pauline Moore—Average Rogers western, which means plenty good. Hope Republic can keep digging up historical western names to tack on this series. It does help a lot at counting time.—C. E. Fismer, Jr., Lyric Theatre, Hamilton, Ohio. Family patronage.

RKO Radio

ABE LINCOLN IN ILLINOIS: Raymond Massey, Ruth Gordon, Mary Howard, Gene Lockhart—This show was well liked by every one. Did a grand business. Running time, 80 minutes.—G. J. Martin, Badjer Theatre, Badjer, Minn. Small town patronage.

CROSS COUNTRY ROMANCE: Gene Raymond, Wendy Barrie—Just a fair show. Okay for Bank Night. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 22-24.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

DREAMING OUT LOUD: Lum and Abner, Frances Langford, Frank Craven, Bobs Watson—Personally found the picture pleasing and the greatest Sunday crowd in years ate it up. Boys, here is a box office natural. Give it your best time. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 27-28.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

QUEEN OF DESTINY: Anna Neagle, Anton Walbrook, C. Aubrey Smith—This was rebooked more than once. It should have been left on the shelf. Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 15-17.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

CHARLIE CHAN AT THE WAX MUSEUM: Sidney Toler, Joan Valerie—Played on double bill with "River's End" to top business. Played October 23-24.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

ELSA MAXWELL'S PUBLIC DEB NO. 1: George Murphy, Brenda Joyce, Ralph Bellamy, Mischa Auer, Charles Ruggles, Elsa Maxwell—Good picture; fair business. Running time, 79 minutes. Played October 22.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GRAPES OF WRATH, THE: Henry Fonda, Jane Darwell, Dorris Bowdon, John Carradine, Charley Grapewin—This picture did plenty of business, such as business is in this town. If properly advertised should go good anywhere in this territory. I notice a lot of exhibitors have been "panning" Fox product. Where they get it I don't know. It's the best product I have played this year. What other company has a "Stanley and Livingstone," "The Rains Came," "Little Old New York," "Swanee River," etc. Metro's the only other company to compare with Fox and personally on the current product give me Fox. Played September 1-3.—J. K. Burgess, Iris Theatre, Velva, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

I WAS AN ADVENTURESS: Zorina, Richard Greene, Peter Lorre, Erich Von Stroheim—Not much of a picture and the box office was poor. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 6-7.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

MARYLAND: Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter, John Payne, Brenda Joyce, Charles Ruggles, Hattie McDaniel—Excellent picture, swell cast. Well appreciated by patrons. Certainly clicked here both days. Sell out early on "Bank Night." Very good music in this feature. Color very attractive and easy on the eyes. Should do business everywhere. Running time, 91 minutes. Played October 17-18.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

STANLEY AND LIVINGSTONE: Spencer Tracy, Richard Greene, Nancy Kelly, Walter Brennan, Charles Coburn, Henry Hull, Sir Cedric Hardwicke—Fox most generously exchanged this for some of our two-year-old product and, although it is still old, it is a wonderful picture. We didn't enjoy the business we should have, but historical pictures don't just seem to click.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SWANEE RIVER: Don Ameche, Al Jolson, Andrea Leeds—Old, but if you haven't played it, don't miss this fine picture. Will outdraw some of new ones today and when the show is over you can stand out and say good night to your customers. Swell show. Played September 4-5.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

YOUNG PEOPLE, THE: Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie, Charlotte Greenwood—Fair picture; poor business. No one came, but the women and children. Running time, 78 minutes. Played October 23-24.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

United Artists

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT: Joel McCrea, Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, Robert Benchley, George Sanders—Grand entertainment that only the screen can provide. Hitchcock suspense as remarkable as ever. Good performance by everyone, but especially Albert Basserman as the Dutch diplomat. Many favorable comments. Running time, 120 minutes. Played September 30-October 3.—N. W. Mason, Roseland and Academy Theatre, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

KIT CARSON: Jon Hall, Lynn Bari—A better western to good Sunday-Monday business. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 13.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, Le Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

KIT CARSON: Jon Hall, Lynn Bari—Played to two capacity crowds and they all enjoyed it. The stage show packed them in and they were satisfied with this action picture. Played October 23-24.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

OUR TOWN: William Holden, Martha Scott, Frank Craven, Fay Bainter, Thomas Mitchell, Beulah Bondi, Guy Kibbee, Stuart Erwin—No business after the first day's showing and the few that came did not like it. Running time, 89 minutes. Played October 21-23.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

SOUTH OF PAGO PAGO: Jon Hall, Victor McLaglen, Frances Farmer, Olympe Bradna—Here is an excellent picture with plenty of action, suspense, etc. Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 15-17.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Universal

HIRED WIFE: Rosalind Russell, Brian Aherne, Virginia Bruce, Robert Benchley—Smart comedy enjoyed by good crowd. Lot of laughter at Robert Benchley. Running time, 100 minutes. Played October 20-21.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

HOT STEEL: Richard Arlen, Andy Devine—"Hot Steel" was well liked by everyone. It gives you something to think of really, how hard men work in steel mills. Andy Devine always comes in with some fun, is well liked here. A swell short to D. B. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 11-12.—R. A. Poage, Lyric Theatre, Brooksville, Ky. Rural patronage.

SANDY IS A LADY: Baby Sandy, Nan Grey, Tom Brown, Eugene Pallette, Edgar Kennedy—Played with "You're Not So Tough." A double feature program that pleased and delighted a big crowd both nights. Running time, 62 minutes. Played October 24-25.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

YOU'RE NOT TO TOUGH: "Dead End Kids, Nan Grey—Played with "Sandy Is a Lady." A double feature program that pleased and delighted a big crowd both nights. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 24-25.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

Warner Brothers

CITY FOR CONQUEST: James Cagney, Ann Sheridan, Frank Craven—Good picture; good business. However, this is not Cagnay's best picture so don't expect too much. It's mostly about boxing. Played October 27-28.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FLOWING GOLD: Pat O'Brien, John Garfield,

Frances Farmer—A very good picture that did not draw very well. Running time, 82 minutes. Played October 13-14.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

FLOWING GOLD: John Garfield, Pat O'Brien, Frances Farmer—A very good picture that did above average business. Played with Paramount's "Emergency Squad" as the added feature. Running time, 82 minutes. Played October 24-26.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

MY LOVE CAME BACK: Olivia de Havilland, Jeffrey Lynn, Charles Winninger, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman—A very good picture. Should please all music lovers, as it combines swing and classical music as it never has been done before. Running time, 85 minutes. Played October 18-21.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

RIVER'S END: Dennis Morgan, Elizabeth Earl—This type story always appeals. Good entertainment to good business. Running time, 69 minutes. Played October 22-23.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

Columbia Short Features

COMMUNITY SING: Don Baker—Another good sing with organ accompaniment. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

FIREMAN SAVE MY CHOO CHOO: Andy Clyde—Another good comedy starring Andy Clyde. Running time, 17 minutes.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

FLOATING ELEPHANTS: Cinescopes—A very good and very timely subject, showing England's protection against air raids. Running time, nine minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

GLOVE SLINGERS: Noah Beery, Jr., Shemp Howard—All that I can say is that it's good comedy. But I find that the people like this comedy really better than the Stooge comedies. Running time, 17 minutes.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

MASTER OF THE CUE: Willie Hoppe—"Master of the Cue" is a very good short in respect that it is a change from the balance that we run all the time. It gives the customers a chance to relax while enjoying this kind of short subject, billiards. Running time, eight minutes.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

MUTTS TO YOU: Three Stooges—Good Stooge comedy.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Leggers and mill workers patronage.

FOUR CONTRIBUTORS JOIN DEPARTMENT

Four new contributors this week sent reports to the What the Picture Did for Me department. They are:

G. J. MARTIN, Badger Theatre, Badger, Minn.

N. W. MASON, Roseland, Academy Theatres, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia.

CHARLES T. WOLFE, Park Theatre, Constantine, Mich.

PETE SINIOS, Virginia Theatre, Bakersfield, Calif.

Read the reports of these and other contributors to the department in the adjoining columns.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

SAVOY IN THE ALPS: Columbia Tours—This is just another travel talk. N.G. for the majority in this town. Running time, 11 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

CAT COLLEGE: Pete Smith Specialties—This Pete Smith reel on the training of lions is interesting, clever and exciting. Clyde Beatty is featured in it so advertise the fact. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

DAD FOR A DAY: Our Gang—Good single reel of the Gang Kids. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Gengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

EYES OF THE NAVY: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—An excellent picture and very entertaining. And Uncle Sam is being fully prepared as will be seen in the picture. Be sure and book the "Eyes of the Navy." Running time, 22 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

HOMELESS FLEA: Cartoons—The flea wanted a home and the dog furnished the home but didn't like the would-be lodger. Very funny and entertaining. Running time, eight minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

PAPA GETS THE BIRD: Cartoons—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SEATTLE, GATEWAY TO THE NORTHWEST: FitzPatrick Traveltalks—Good. Of course, this one would be good here. Running time, 10 minutes.—Rey Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

TRIFLES OF IMPORTANCE: Passing Parade, No. 15—Good short. Running time, 11 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

WALDO'S LAST STAND: Our Gang—Another good one from this bunch of clever kids. Running time, 10½ minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BLUE BARRON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—One of the best band shorts that it has been my pleasure to offer to our audience. It has variety, two male singers, one of which is Russ Carlyle, a female singer, a member of the band who whistles from the throat and a lithe dancer. The last mentioned caused our audience to roar so loud that the music could not be heard. If you want to treat your audience to a really fine band short, don't delay: show Blue Barron today. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

BUSY LITTLE BEARS: Paragraphic—Cute picture. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronge.

DESERT ADVENTURE, A: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Don't let this fool you. It's very good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 14—30,000 Canadians in Army now. Willkie invades New England. Roosevelt on midwest inspection tour. R.A.F. strikes at Aix Airplanes in Africa. Football games. An excellent news review. Running time, nine minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

POPEYE MEETS WILLIAM TELL: Popeye the Sailor—A fair Popeye. Running time, seven minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

SUGAR WIND: Paragraphic—An interesting short on the sugar industry in the Barbados.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS, No. 5—A substitute for No. 4, it proved to be very entertaining. Of particular interest to our audience was Gene Autry (they had never seen him before) and his horses, the landscape painter who does her "painting" with nature's materials, and stamp collecting. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

RKO Radio

HATS: Reelisms—This is just about the poorest excuse for a short we have ever played. RKO must be running out of material to make anything like this. Running time, nine minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

HE ASKED FOR IT: Leon Errol Comedies—Another laugh getter from Errol. Running time, 18 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

HURDLE HOPPERS: RKO Pathe Sportscope—Training horses to jump is presented in a little better manner than usual. Good where they like horseback riding. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

INFORMATION PLEASE: No. 12—This extra long one of the series has some extra drawing power because of the appearance of Willkie. It is up to the usual standard but I wish they could improve the sound more. The sound in this one was a little worse than usual or else I had a bad print. Lots of applause. Running time, 12 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ESKIMO TRAILS: Father Hubbard's Alaskan Adventures—This is our first one of this series. Quite interesting. Running time, 10 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

PROFESSOR OFFKEYSKI: Terry-Toons—We do not think very much of these cartoons and this one is just average. Running time, seven minutes.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

RUPERT THE RUNT: Terry-Toons—Very good cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

VACATION TIME: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—A good sport from Ed. Thorgersen with very good color. Running time, eight minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

CANDID CAMERA: Merrie Melodies—A very entertaining and amusing cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

DOGS YOU SELDOM SEE: Sports Parade—Interesting one reel in colors, showing various kinds of rare dogs.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HOLIDAYS HIGHLIGHTS: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoons in color. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MALIBU BEACH PARTY: Merrie Melodies—A good carton with caricatures of motion pictures stars. Running time, eight minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls. Minn. Small town patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

A REASONABLE COMPARISON

It is perfectly understandable that the man striving to get ahead is not satisfied to mark time. Thus, Thanksgiving or no, your Chairman has no intention of bringing up the old hackneyed argument that one should figure himself well off, if for no other reason than he is doing better than others less fortunate. Of course, we all know of managers who rate a better break than they are getting and no pitching from this corner is intended to convey that, come Christmas, there will be a Santy Claus in every pot.

There should be little objection from the audience, however, if a comparison is directed at the unenviable situation of brother-theatremen now taking it on the chin about as hard as mankind can endure while managing to be amazingly cheerful about it.

The folks we have in mind are the overseas Round Tablers—those splendid British showmen.

This morning arrives a note from Aubrey Flanagan, in London, having somewhat to do with campaigns put on to the relentless accompaniment of falling bombs. From the tone of Aubrey's letter, the terrible punishment has yet to deter the theatremen from keeping the public informed.

In a lesser degree, the European war provides timely comparison in the instance of foreign theatremen forced from their jobs and homelands and finding refuge over here. Two names come up immediately, of Round Tablers who held top jobs in their own countries. While talented and well-equipped for their theatre operation, language barriers present obstacles not easily overcome. Yet, these men have gladly accepted minor positions, one a doorman's job, while learning our language and ways.

So what? So this: Considering the catastrophe overseas, suppose all of us, on the eve of this Thanksgiving, give some study to our foundations and the thought that things could be a lot less desirable. Mebbe we all have much to be thankful for. It's six-two and even that we do, considering the toughest things we have to duck right now are taxicabs and pass-hounds.

ENOUGH SHOULD BE ENOUGH

The money-back offer widely seized upon by advertisers to plug their merchandise is hardly new to the theatre. Showmen do it with a refund policy, accepted as a goodwill gesture in placating dissatisfied patrons. In other words, something that better be done than not, but not to the point of advertising the service as a box-office come-on. Now arrives an ad which stresses money-back to those who do not agree with the management in voting the picture one of the year's best.

Leaving aside whether or not advertising of this nature might react negatively, your observer is firm in the belief that since today's motion picture theatre gives more than "full value received" in entertainment, there seems little reason for encouraging the public to expect anything more.

IT'S GETTIN' ON TIME

From the date of this issue, December is just a step and a hop away and getting near high time to consider what's to be done about it. Stores are set with their holiday lines. It won't be long now before everything breaks out in a Christmas shopping rash.

The coming month promises to be a fat one for the retailers. In the same breath, let's say it can be a satisfactory one for theatres—providing the boys get aboard early and start pitching.

Round Table In Pictures

Through tieup effected by Ward Farrar on "Strike Up the Band" at Loew's, Indianapolis, with local music store, guest admissions were offered to all children under 16 for a special morning showing of the picture. In addition, cooperating merchant devoted entire window, as shown above, to display of various musical instruments. Background featured cutouts of Whitman, Rooney and Garland.

Reported as running the "Deadwood" line back in 1849 is the stagecoach shown above which was used by Ed Long for his "When the Daltons Rode" date at the Ritz, in Pawnee, Okla. Loan of coach was promoted by the theatreman from the famed Indian scout, who is a local resident. Appropriately bannered, the bally toured the city and surrounding area.

By way of heralding his New Season's product at Loew's, in Houston, Texas, Manager Francis Deering erected effective lobby setpiece illustrated at left. Utilizing 8 x 10 star stills in colors for highlighting, under each was listed the star's name and title of forthcoming attraction in which star is listed to appear at the theatre.

To vary the regulation sidewalk 24-sheet stunt, Round Tabler Tom Ward for date on "Boom Town" at the El Raton, in Raton, Texas, secured police permission to paint the sidewalk in front of his theatre in vari-colored squares. Each square carried either autograph of the stars or theatre credits.

Contrived by Larry Graburn for "North West Mounted Police" premiere at the FPC Capitol Theatre, in Regina, Saskatchewan, was a fort building contest tied up with the local Boy Scouts unit. Above are members of the winning patrol whose "Mountie" fort brought them first prize in the activity.

Brought out only for unusual short subjects is Carmon Phillips' ingenious standee display which he uses out front at the Onate Theatre, in Belen, New Mexico. The frame held by the figure is made so that the cards can be changed for whatever shorts Phillips wishes to advertise. Round Tabler says it is a natural and a sure-stopper.

Action was the keynote of lobby setpiece conceived and executed by Jack Lexey for his date on "The Sea Hawk" at the Warner Broadway, in Philadelphia. Flanked on either side of medallion carrying "see" copy, were cutouts of the stars. Scene stills were spotted below.

Promoting furniture, silver service, etc., for lobby display on "He Stayed for Breakfast", Moon Corker, L. & J. city manager, for date at the Palace, Athnes, Georgia, arranged lobby display above. At the same time, theatreman also promoted doughnuts and coffee.

Worked out in complete cooperation with the Cleveland Police Department was Louie Lamm's lobby display at the Warner Uptown ahead of "They Drive By Night". Stressing the safety angle, police blanketed the city with cards calling attention to the opening.

Thanksgiving Day Celebrations Set by Metropolitan Circuits

Inquiries here and there in regard to theatre activities for Thanksgiving indicate different approaches to the holiday. Some theatres will celebrate the first Thanksgiving Day on the 21st, others the 28th as well. Arrangements to signalize the day take diverse forms.

RKO Theatres plan special children's matinees for the 21st date in which comedy and cartoon subjects will be favored and wherever possible, feature bookings will be in keeping. Patriotic shorts bearing on the holiday and other historic events are also being considered. Lobbies will be appropriately decorated with proceedings in general given a festive background so that "a good time will be had by all."

In the Randforce theatres, of Brooklyn, on the Saturday before, the usual turkey and holiday basket giveaways will be supplemented with costume contests at the different houses. Prizes are to be offered with managers allowed to make local tieins for extra awards. The Skouras metropolitan houses will concentrate on turkey giveaways, two to three days ahead. Consolidated intends offering holiday poultry and baskets in conjunction with the regular prize games. As concerns lobby decorations, newspaper advertising, trailers, etc., the holiday atmosphere will be emphasized in the traditional manner with turkey art, pumpkins and other reliables which identify the date.

Chamber of Commerce Tied To Morris' "Happiness Week"

As an offshoot of the Schine circuit "Happiness Week" promotion to send off the new season, Seymour Morris, in Lockport, N. Y., tied the local Chamber of Commerce to the campaign at the Palace, selling his "Week" as an ideal start of the city's fall shopping season. This led to a merchants' meeting to approve the project and a general letter sent out by the Chamber urging cooperation by all the businessmen.

The "Week" was featured in the inaugural Shoppers Number of the local paper which got behind the plan with fulsome publicity. This featured a proclamation by the Mayor endorsing the "happiness" slant. Window streamers were supplied to the merchants as were stickers for packages and envelopes. Stores also carried ad underlines in newspaper displays and participaped in page co-op distinguished with a special art layout.

Featured commercial tiein made by Morris was the official unveiling of the new Oldsmobile on the stage of the theatre. In exchange, the dealer broke out with a series of co-op ads and purchased tabloid heralds on the picture of the week, "The Sea Hawk," paying for the printing and distribution.

Star Wires from Coast Aid Brown on "Sea Hawk"

For his lobby display on "The Sea Hawk" at the Grand, in Circleville, Ohio, Harry Brown, Jr., secured congratulatory wires from the stars, which were used conspicuously ahead of run. In addition, copies of the wires were also on display in windows of cooperating telegraph company. Roto heralds were distributed within a radius of 20 miles and announcements on the picture's opening were made from stage ahead.

For his show, Kinskey Players and "Sandy Was a Lady," Harry secured cooperation of the Mayor who presented the players with the key to the city, which was put on display at the theatre. Window cards were planted profusely.

Tompkins Promotes Mayor For Hallowe'en Prizes

Among the first Hallowe'en Saturday matinees to be reported, the party put on by Chick Tompkins, at the Hoosier, Whiting, Ind., proved to be a big time in every way, with the costume contest successful enough to fill the stage eight times in the eliminations. The youngsters were advised of the event two weeks ahead with trailer and program copy. In addition, Tompkins spread the word among the schools which proved the best medium of publicity.

Ten prizes were given in the costume competitions and other awards for the traditional holiday games. While apple ducking, pie and cracker eating were warmly greeted, Chick topped these with another wherein the children, with their hands tied behind, were required to duck into a barrel of flour for pennies. Everything was promoted, writes the manager, the Mayor, who is also a leading grocer, supplying everything needed, including the prizes.

Lead in "Ramparts We Watch" Makes Personal for Kirsh

Radio coverage on "Ramparts" at the Aldine, Wilmington as arranged by Dick Kirsh included interview over WDEL of Col. Stowell who plays the part of the Congressman in the picture. During the run, spot announcements were made following important news broadcasts. Since Col. Stowell arrived day ahead of opening, a press luncheon was held to which film critics and editors were invited, stunt being covered in cooperating papers.

Schools were contacted, especially history teachers, who urged their classes to attend show. Heads of Veterans of Foreign Wars and American Legion were contacted and they plugged the picture at their meetings and on bulletin boards. With unlimited phone service, Kirsh called all members of the clergy who cooperated. Window tieups were numerous and the title was sold over all on his marquee with "Complete Uncut Version" copy.

Miniature Plates Offered by Brien

Grosses on "They Drive By Night" as well as business the entire week in advance were built up appreciably for the date at Warners Prince, Ambridge, Pa., on Lige Brien's prodigious tiein with Goodrich Tire, for free distribution of miniature auto license plate key chains. The giveaways were exact reproductions of patrons' auto plates, carrying individual license numbers, letters, and state designation. Over 2,000 were distributed seven days ahead at the theatre by the following procedure:

Patrons were asked to register name, address, city, state and plate number on special blanks furnished by Goodrich, the company also providing lobby displays on the tiein allowed by Brien in exchange. These also plugged the picture. The names listed also were used by the Round Tabler for his mailing list.

Another promotion that spread the word widely was a hookup for thousands of packages of book matches, supplied by a manufacturer of a special auto light. The manufacturer's line "Why Take Chances" across the face of the books was appended by Lige with a tiein "see" copy for the picture. The payoff for the light company was the placing of a number of the advertised spots on the marquee plus credit card. This also helped to attract as the lights were varicolored to make an arresting flash.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Mickey Mouse Birthday Party Arranged by Green in Detroit

By way of selling his Saturday afternoon matinee, Bill Green at the Varsity, in Detroit, held a Mickey Mouse birthday party as a special buildup. Trailers were run two weeks in advance and display in lobby was a birthday cake. To make the celebration authentic, Green arranged for a Mickey Mouse "best wishes" book to be planted in his lobby. Guests were invited to sign, book later being mailed out to the coast to the "star." Stunt worked out so well it is reported that it will be adopted in other of the United Detroit theatres.

TWEDT DISCARDS BEARD FOR LOBBY GOLF STUNT

That atmospheric exhibitor with the beard, "Doc" Twedt, of the Lido, Manly, Iowa, revived the miniature golf course idea for a tiein with Universal's short, "Swing With Bing". Box, 3 feet wide by 18 inches long, was filled with sand, with small piece of looped pipe in center and golf hole at far end. Putters were supplied and patrons invited to "hole out in one". Those who did were rewarded with free admissions, the feature being "Boys from Syracuse".

"Doc" doubled the value of the stunt for the following attraction, with cards reading, "After seeing 'Swing With Bing', swing to see 'Argentine Nights'."

"Can't Beat 'Em, So They Jine—"

In common with other situations whose grosses were affected by this year's election campaigning, the Bonham, in Fairbury, Neb., was hit by a constant stream of speakers for office, who, writes Jimmie Redmond, drew big at all hours of the day. So, after suffering through it for two weeks, Manager Kempkes and Redmond decided to do something about it.

Discovering that there was to be a giant Democratic rally with the Governor and candidates for office in attendance, the theatremen had a few thousand coupons struck off with copy that presentation of the coupon and 20 cents "will admit a Democrat to see Boys from Syracuse." These distributed widely at the rally brought capacity business to the last show after the meeting, and aided the grosses the following day, last of the date.

The stunt went well enough to rate repetition at a following Republican rally, the increase in attendance more than making up for the temporary reduction in admission prices, according to the Round Tabler.

Soap Sculpture Contest Aids "Parade" for Unterfort

Aimed at student patronage on "Spring Parade" at the Keith Theatre, in Syracuse, Harry Unterfort arranged a contest with the art department of the Syracuse Schools in the form of a soap sculpture of Deanna Durbin in any pose. Entrants were arranged in three classes, grade schools, high schools and city normal school pupils with cash and ticket prizes going to winners. Second contest was arranged with local music store whereby folks submitting list of the most songs sung by Durbin in all her pictures received tickets plus a recording as a prize.

Promoted flowers were distributed to the first 1,000 women attending opening day, radio coverage included tune and picture plugs over Stations WFBL and WSYR. Numerous merchant tieups were arranged and a wheel of fortune in front of five and ten which plugged the picture, stars and playdates, had a boy in attendance announcing that it was Deanna's eighth picture and anyone spinning the wheel and having the pointer stop at the number eight would be awarded tickets.

AWARD TO PRESSBOOK ON M.O.T.'S "RAMPARTS"

For excellence in commercial printing on the pressbook for "Ramparts We Watch", March of Time was awarded a Special Merit at the sixth annual printing exhibition of the New York Printers Association. The award was one of 70 made among 1,500 entries of printing in various fields.

The pressbook was prepared under the direction of "Al" Sindlinger, M.O.T. ad head and early Quigley Awards plaque winner.

Lee Honors Home Teams With "Knute Rockne" Nights

In connection with his date on "Knute Rockne" at the Capitol, Wilkes Barre, Fred Lee concentrated on the high schools and football fans in his vicinity by setting aside four separate nights to honor as many of the high school elevens as possible at a special program. Each night, the bands, cheer leaders and squad from the respective schools marched to the theatre with appropriate banners and were introduced from the stage. In addition, historic bits about the school were read from the stage by the emcee on the respective nights.

Personal letters were sent to principals calling attention to the merits of the picture. These letters followed up with posters on bulletin boards during chapel periods. All scholastic football games were covered by boys carrying banners during halves, and promoted football novelties were distributed at the gates. Radio included plugs five days ahead over WBRE along with free spot announcements and special preview for newspapermen resulted in generous stories and art.

Candid Camera Contest Tied to "Town" by Rosen

To usher in "Our Town" at the Kingsbridge Theatre, in the Bronx sector of New York, Manager Bob Rosen featured a candid camera contest whereby prizes went to winners. To build interest in the stunt, entries were on display in front of theatre.

During the recent world's series, theatre porter in uniform toured streets carrying a portable radio tuned in on the game together with a score card which was kept up by innings, and included a plug for current attraction. Rosen says this stunt is sure-fire since it can be used on busy thoroughfares with any special broadcast.

EXPLOITATION BRIEFS FROM A-FIELD

For his engagement on "Rhythm on the River" at the LeClaire, in Moline, Ill., Manager Francis Gillon, through cooperation of local music shop planted a record player in his lobby. Doorman stood in attendance playing any Crosby record requested by the patrons. For further attention, Gillon distributed heralds carrying the words to the songs from the picture. These were handed out at football games and other spots.

Promoting a stretcher, dummy figure and head from a nearby milliner, Ansel Weinstein of RKO Proctor's 58th Street, New York, sent two lads out dressed as internes carrying the stretcher which bore copy reading "She laughed her head off at 'Hired Wife.'" This was followed by theatre and playdates.

When his local county recently inaugurated a special safety traffic campaign, Chris Chamales at the Roxy, in Delphi, Ind., promoted candy firm which sponsors an "Elmer Layden Safety Club" to tie in with his theatre and supply him with membership cards, etc., which were distributed at his kid matinee. In addition firm supplied leaflets for giveaway containing official rules and regulations.

Measuring approximately four by 14 inches, is the cardboard movie calendar gag being used successfully by W. S. Samuel at the Rio, in Nederland, Texas. With space for his seven weeks' programs, the theatreman offers guest tickets to those cutting out the theatre ad each week from the house program, pasting them in correct order, and presenting them at the boxoffice.

As part of his "Brigham Young" date at the Esquire Theatre, in Kansas City, Joe Redmond dressed his assistant, Foster Thornhill, as the star in the picture and had him drive in bannered covered wagon with eight gals dressed as the Morman's wives. Driving through the downtown area, each of the girls carrying title lettered suit cases, went into popular restaurant for attention.

Duplicating an exact replica of a chemical laboratory for the center of his lobby display on "Dr. Cyclops," John D. Young, general manager of Vision Theatre, in Cebu, Philippines, included test tubes and other paraphernalia. Flashing neon lights and a combination of green and red spots gave an impression of slow moving, glowing colors.

LAUNDRY HOOKS COPY TO "DIVORCE" TIEIN

To stir up the folks on "I Want A Divorce" at the Strand, Holyoke, Mass., Manager Milt Wainstein used the four-day series of personals suggested in the pressbook. These had to do with an exchange of criticism by the leads, with the husband's main plaint emphasizing "my shirts are all ruined".

On the last day, one of the laundries was tied in to run an added personal addressed to both man and wife, stressing that divorce was unnecsesary if the shirts were sent to the advertiser.

For several hours each day for five days ahead of "The Mortal Storm" at the Prince, in Ambridge, Pa., members of Lige Brien's staff made a house-to-house canvass carrying picture message. Gaining much attention for the date was photo planted in papers of Lige with James Stewart, taken on the "Storm" set when the former as a Quigley Awards winner visited the coast last year.

Gag which is reported to have gone over well for Bill Yeakle at the Kentucky, in Danville, Ky., for "The Sea Hawk" was his distribution of imprinted pay envelopes in which were inserted rubber pen knives. Copy on outside read: "You may use this knife, as the old saying goes, to cut yourself a grand slice of entertainment," etc., etc.

Reported as an eye-attractor is the lobby poster display arranged by Robert Busch for his forthcoming attractions at the Midwest Theatre, in Oklahoma City. In order to get as much punch selling out of the one-sheet space he has in his lobby for advertising, Busch clips sock full page ads appearing in Motion Picture Herald and inserts them in his show case, and replaces the pages as big pictures come up.

Parade ushered in "Great McGinty" at the Plaza Theatre, in Stamford, Conn., when Manager Mort Kresner promoted automobile agency for fleet of new cars which appropriately bannered toured downtown area to theatre along with American Legion band, and theatre employees carrying red and green torch lights. In addition, 1,200 shopping bags were promoted and imprinted and merchants came through with windows done in election atmosphere.

Street stunt ahead of "Boom Town" as arranged by Tom Muchmore of the Fox West Coast, in San Bernardino, consisted of visiting Santa Claus. Krinkle covered downtown area covering large window cards addressed to the Mayor, chief of police and other city offices which were tied to letter boxes for mailing. Back banner carried copy to the effect that he couldn't wait until Christmas to come down to see the picture.

Effective book store tieup was arranged by Manager J. F. Rogers of the W&V State Theatre, in Harrisburg, Pa., for "Howards of Virginia." In addition bookmarks bearing theatre imprint were widely distributed, while couple dressed in period costumes were used for street bally.

Planting a large mirror in the lobby of the Strand Theatre, in Uvalde, Texas, for "I Love You Again," Manager Boyd F. Scott stood a card alongside with copy reading: "Can you recognize yourself? William Powell couldn't; you'll get loads of laughs when you see, etc., etc. In addition, small pay envelopes were distributed containing laugh pellets, which if taken were guaranteed to change the blues into rosy hues while enjoying the picture at the Strand.

Man-on-street broadcast aided W-Clyde Smith to sell "Lucky Partners" at the Paramount, in Hot Springs, Ark. Tied up to station KWFC, guest tickets were offered to those participating and answering questions relative to the picture. Stressing the premiere teaming of Ronald Coleman and Ginger Rogers, stories and art were planted in local dailies well ahead.

To usher in his new kiddie club, just recently formed at the Columbia Theatre, in Sharon, Pa., Round Tabler Pat Notaro has promoted local shoe merchant for prizes to be awarded winners of his weekly amateur contest held at the theatre. In addition, merchant pays for newspaper ads and plugs the tieup storewide.

Attractor was the street bally used by Manager Bill Harwell for "The Sea Hawk" at the Ohio, in Canton, Ohio. Promoting truck, theatreman bannered each side with picture title and playdates, while mounted atop was giant cutout of Errol Flynn in action pose.

Dressed in loud checkered suit, man with back banner heralding opening of "The Great McGinty" was part of Arnold Gates' campaign for that date at Loew's Park, in Cleveland. In addition bally distributed tinted bookmarks bearing cut and picture copy.

A 12-day serialization of "Knute Rockne —All American" was planted in the morning daily by Frank Shaffer in advance of that picture's opening at the Warner Dixie. With plenty of football interest in the air, Frank advertised the film widely, distributing heralds and window cards.

For "In Old Missouri" at the Melba, in Batesville, Ark., Bill Headstream converted his entire front into rustic dwellings. At either side of box-office small wooden huts were built from the doors of which emerged cutout characters in hillbilly attire. For "Men Against the Sky," Headstream dressed man in aviator's uniform, who covered downtown streets. On back, bally wore muslin outlined airplane which carried title, playdates and picture copy.

Levy Stages Bouts For 'Gloves' Date

One of his most ambitious efforts recently, on behalf of "Golden Gloves" at the Commercial, Chicago, was the series of boxing bouts put on by Manager Milt Levy in cooperation with the neighborhood Y.M.C.A. Inaugurated three weeks ahead, the buildup was aided by prizes contributed by local merchants who also participated in a double-truck under the banner line "Knockout Values."

Daily newspaper stories stimulated interest in the competitions open to novices, the bouts, in eight divisions, held two days ahead at the "Y" with prominent boxing figures acting as officials. At the theatre, Levy displayed various types of boxing gloves and accessories and on the streets had two boys in athletic togs wearing "golden" gloves and mixing it at busy corners. Back signs tipped off the reason for it. Milt secured some good windows for added showings and planted a display in the main lounge of the "Y."

For "Cross Country Romance," the Round Tabler promoted the use of de luxe trailer out front that drew constant crowds. Tiein sign announced that the background of the picture had to do with trailers, the vehicle displayed a day ahead and during the run.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Special College Night Held By Starsmore on "Many Girls"

Larry Starsmore's campaign on "Too Many Girls" at the Chief theatre in Colorado Springs, Colorado, included everything from a special College Night to a Beautiful Legs Contest in which a score of pretty co-eds competed for a loving cup and cash prize.

The College night included a tie-up with the local radio station KVOR in which a 15-minute evening period was given over to special college tunes and the interviewing of the coach of the winning football team. The team was also guests of the theatre.

Additional advertising space was used as well as special radio announcements and an ancient jalopy was resurrected and used to parade the downtown streets carrying one college boy and a bevy of girls carrying signs reading "Too Many Girls."

"THANK YOU" CARDS SUGGESTED BY RYAN

In a recent issue of the Warner hicago zone house organ, a smart suggestion is made by Charles H. Ryan, assistant to James Coston, for theatres with parking lot facilities. The idea is a card to be placed under the windshield wiper of patrons' cars, with the copy faced in to be read easily when the driver gets behind the wheel.

Decorated with appropriate art of usherette tipping hat and pointing to copy, the card reads, "Thank you for your patronage. We have cleaned your windshield." Theatre and manager's name follows.

Theatre Area Named "Boom Town" On Shopping Tiein With Stores

Starting in the middle of the month and to run for three weeks including date on the picture, at Warners' Frolic, Chicago, Manager Ben Cohn and his assistant, F. J. Buckles, are working out a campaign to call the seven blocks around the theatre "Boom Town". Already so titled by Mayoral proclamation, some 54 merchants in the area have banded together to make the drive one of stimulation for local business, with all expenses being met by the participating storemen.

Highlights of the promotion include selection, by vote, of the most popular merchant to serve as "Mayor of Boom Town", ballots to be deposited in the lobby of theatre. Winner will be honored with signs by decoration of his store as the drive's "City Hall", and the neighborhood Mayor will then send congratulatory wires to the Mayor of the city.

Before Thanksgiving, merchants will be furnished with streamers reading "Shop and Save with Merchants in Boom Town". From then on, new banners will be supplied to stress early Christmas shopping. Lamp-posts are to be strung with colored pennants lettered with "shop" copy, and at the beginning of the "Boom Town" area "Welcome" copy will be elaborately displayed. At this point the campaign will be opened with a ribbon-cutting ceremony by local Aldermen.

Also planned by Cohn is a missing letter contest with the neighborhood daily to run three weeks. And, among other ideas, merchants and house staff will wear lettered hats; cardboard arrows will be placed on posts, sidewalk stencils planted on corners. Tiein announcements are also set over Station WAAF. In addition to theatre displays for the promotion, one-frame trailers will be run to plug the Thanksgiving and Christmas shopping periods.

Prytz Stresses Comedy Angle In "Scatterbrain" Campaign

Using a special front with cartoon effect predominating, thus did Roy O. Prytz at the Granada, Duluth, sell his date on "Scatterbrain." Trailer 10 days ahead stressed the local Sunday edition on special rotogravure. Five and dime store filled principal window with display of nuts, cutouts and appropriate tiein copy in addition to plugging it likewise inside the store. Salesgirls distributed bags of nuts, copy on outsde calling attention to the picture's opening, same envelopes used for street giveaway. Newsboys handed out heralds in exchange for free show which merited newspaper mention and word-of-mouth advertising, since the kids praised the comedy.

For "Ramparts We Watch," Prytz circularized civic groups and used special trailer stressing fact that the "Baptism of Fire" sequence would be shown despite bans. Street stencils were used for the occasion and with a large Finnish population, theatreman arranged for Finnish radio commentator to endorse the picture.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Street Bally Used on "Villain Pursued Her"

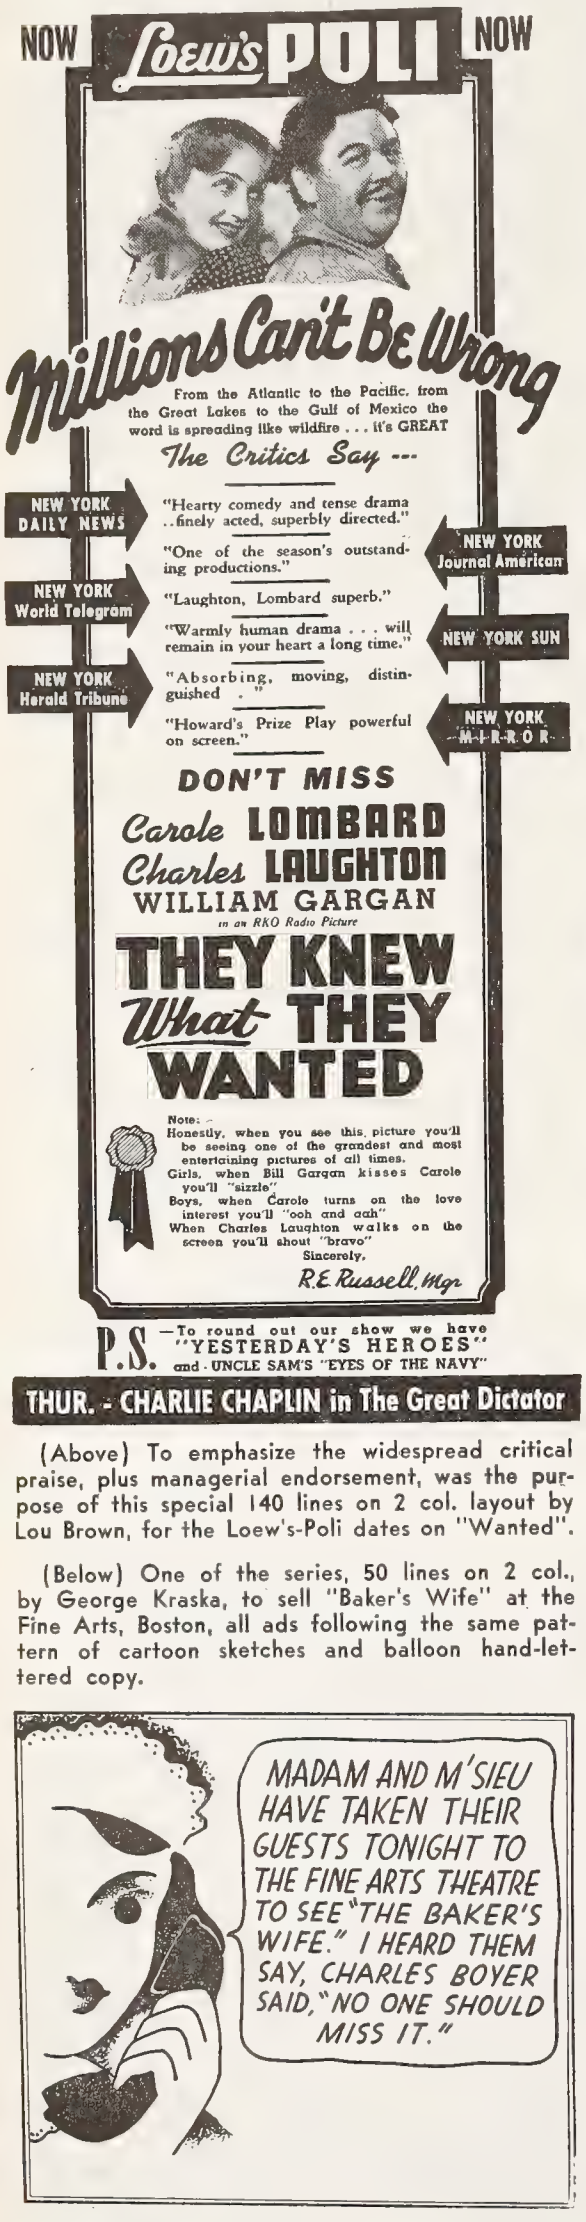
The management of the Paramount Theatre, Los Angeles, used an effective street ballyhoo for its campaign on "The Villain Still Pursued Her" in the form of a bicycle-built-for-two. A girl was on the front seat and she was "pursued by the villain," appropriately labelled as was the rear wheel of the machine.

A second novel phase of the campaign was the use of five lovely girls engaged to distribute pretzels on street corners. To the pretzels were attached cards reading "He's as crooked as a pretzel!" Theatre credits were carried. This inexpensive stunt drew wide comment.

Waggoner Joins with Fair On "Coming 'Round Mountain"

With the annual West Texas fair going full swing during Ted Waggoner's date on "Coming Round the Mountain" at the Majestic, Abilene, Texas, Ted painted an old model Ford car with picture copy. Seated in the jalopy was part of his staff dressed in hillbilly attire, car joining the parade and touring entire city. Since the Fair booked Johnny "Scat" Davis, Ted brought him over to his house directly after the Fair closed, officials mentioning the fact on their radio broadcasts.

Also going great guns for the theatreman is what he calls his "Revival Nights" held each Tuesday. Through use of trailer, lobby and newspapers, Waggoner advises that Tuesday night is their night and that he is bringing back pictures of their choice over two years old.



"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Smith Promotes Co-op Page On Theatre Anniversary

To celebrate the fifth anniversary of the Paramount, in Hot Springs, Ark., city manager W. Clyde Smith promoted a full page of congratulatory co-op ads, center of which carried message of thanks from the theatreman to the readers for their patronage. Through the courtesy of local baker, birthday cake was promoted for lobby with attendant on hand to serve guests. While newspaper coverage included story on ace pictures which had been shown at the house during the past years and plug for the forthcoming attractions.

On "The Sea Hawk," Smith used a man-on-the-street broadcast over KWFC for guest tickets, serialization was planted in newspapers and display boards in hotels plugged opening. In addition, numerous windows were promoted.

LATE NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENTS

James Farrell

James P. Farrell died in Carbondale, Pa., October 28. He was a brother of Luke Farrell, Carbondale theatre owner, and uncle of Al Farrell of the Comerford Theatres booking office in Scranton.

George H. Seward

Funeral services for George H. Seward, 67, television pioneer and founder and president of the Hollywood Television Society and the Television Engineers Institute of America, were held Friday, November 1st, in Hollywood.

Joseph Rubenfeld

Funeral services were held Friday in New York, for Joseph Rubenfeld, manager of Loew's Oriental theatre in Brooklyn. Mr. Rubenfeld had managed the theatre for eight years.

Henry C. Wall

Henry C. Wall, 58, owner of the Richmond and Little theatres in Rockingham, N. C., died of a heart attack. Mr. Wall was former chairman of the board of county commissioners. Surviving are his widow and a sister.

Thomas Waltenbaugh

Thomas J. Waltenbaugh, theatre executive of Canton, Ohio, died in St. Thomas' hospital in Akron after an illness of several weeks.

Charles A. Stone

A former director of Pathe Film Corporation, Charles A. Stone died in Troy, New York, on Sunday. He was an investment broker.

Noise Injunction Sought

A suit has been filed in the common pleas court in Cincinnati, Ohio, by Julius Fleishmann, John J. Emery and Louis Schulte against the Midwest Drive-In Theatres, Inc., seeking an injunction to enjoin further operation of their theatre until the volume of "irritating noises" has been reduced.

Suspend Buben's License

License of F. C. Buben, operator of the National Theatre, in Akron, Ohio, has been suspended for 30 days by the Ohio Tax Commission because of Mr. Buben's alleged failure to pay $426 in admission taxes and assessments on the National and Palace Theatres. The latter was formerly operated by Mr. Buben.

Delaware Corp. Dissolves

Griffith Dickinson Theatres, Inc., a Delaware corporation operating theatres in Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska, has been dissolved, as has the Dickinson Realty Company, also a Delaware corporation.

Warner Wins Tax Appeal

Jack L. Warner's claim for exemption of gift taxes of $4,586 for 1932, 1933 and 1935, has been upheld by the U. S. Board of Tax Appeals, at Washington.

Remains Defendant

A motion by Western Electric Company to dismiss the suit against itself as co-defendant with Universal Pictures in the action brought by Samuel Posen, was dismissed on Monday by Supreme Court Justice William T. Collins in New York.

In denying the motion, the court held that Western Electric was chargeable with the acts of its subsidiary, Erpi, and that the complaint stated a cause of action against the latter company. The ruling, however, does not affect any other defendant.

IN COURTS

United Artists Retains Proskauer in Goldwyn Suit

United Artists has retained Joseph M. Proskauer as special counsel, with O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery and Schwartz & Frohlich continuing as associate counsels, for the Samuel Goldwyn breach of contract suit against the company.

United Artists will move for the dismissal of the Goldwyn action in the near future on the ground that Mr. Goldwyn has failed to comply with an order issued by Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell directing Mr. Goldwyn to state separate causes of action. The producer is represented by George Z. Madalie who succeeded the late Max D. Steuer as his attorney.

RKO Hearings Reopened

Federal Judge William Bondy ordered the reopening of hearings Friday, November 1st, on allowances in the RKO reorganization proceedings awarded to George L. Schein, attorney for the Schein protective stockholders' committee; David Stock, attorney for H. Cassel and Co.; and Abel Gottheimer and Bernard Bercu, accountants for Mr. Schein. They claimed that the awards granted by Judge Bondy were inadequate for their services. Earlier in the week Kommel and Rosenberg, attorneys for H. Cassel & Company filed a notice of appeal from a decision of Judge Bondy. The court ruled that they were not entitled to allowances for services.

Henie Suit Starts

Trial of the $92,000 breach of contract suit of Dennis R. Scanlan against Sonja Henie started last Thursday, October 31, before Aron Steuer, justice of the New York supreme court. Mr. Scanlan seeks the financial restitution allegedly due as the 15 per cent commission under an agency contract.

Loew's Wins Point

Loew's, Inc., won a point in the $10,000 breach of contract action in the New York supreme court brought against the company by Kurt Pilzer, assignee of Walter Reisch Filmgesellschaft of Austria. It is claimed that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer purchased the English rights to a remake of the film "Silhouetten," produced by the plaintiff's assignor in 1936, but failed to pay the $10,000 agreed upon.

Copyright Suit Legal

The block copyrighting of features and comics was held to be legal by Daniel W. O. Donoghue, justice of the Washington, D. C., district court, on Friday, November 1st, in a case instituted by King Features.

Letter Suit Review Denied

The United States Supreme Court has refused to review the decision of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals by which the patent of Wagner Sign Service, Inc., Chicago, on notch-flange type silhouette changeable letters was declared infringed by the notch-flange letter then manufactured by the Adler Sign Letter Company, also of Chicago. The Supreme Court denied on October 28 an Adler petition for a writ of certiorari.

THE RELEASE CHART

INDEX

The number immediately following the title is the production number. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com.-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. Color is indicated by "C" in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com.-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

THE CHART

Productions are listed under distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed as "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) indicates the 1940-41 season. Asterisk (*) after title denotes first appearance.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed. Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

SHAKE HANDS WITH SUCCESS

Smart advertising and good business go hand in hand because smart advertising is NEWS and big news, at that. ★ This is as true in show business as it is in merchandising. As true in your theatre as it is in your retail stores. ★ The masses may not understand advertising but they succumb to its wiles . . . the better the advertising the more they succumb. They may not know a layout from a layette . . . or a headline from a clothesline . . . but you know when a combination of layout and copy hits them where they live, because that's the combination which makes them step up and buy . . . that's the combination you want in your theatre . . . that's the combination we give you in TRAILERS . . . LOBBY DISPLAYS and STANDARD ACCESSORIES . . . ★ And that's why we say "give yourself the breaks . . . Use All Three".

Extra! THE NEW ESCAPE CLAUSE!

In the event that a picture should immediately establish itself as a sensational box-office attraction —

For instance, if it should be playing a 3rd week at Radio City Music Hall, N. Y. and continue to do outstanding business—

Likewise, if in all early bookings such as cities like Philadelphia, San Francisco, Detroit, Denver, Akron, Cleveland, Harrisburg, Reading, Memphis, etc., it should be an extraordinary commercial success —

In such an instance, it is agreed that the showmen of America should clear their booking schedules to permit long and successful extended engagements of such a picture.

Such a picture is M-G-M's "ESCAPE" starring NORMA SHEARER, ROBERT TAYLOR with Conrad Veidt, Nazimova, Felix Bressart, Albert Bassermann, Philip Dorn, Bonita Granville. A Mervyn LeRoy Production. Screen Play by Arch Oboler and Marguerite Roberts. Based on the novel "Escape" by Ethel Vance. Produced by Lawrence Weingarten. Directed by Mervyn LeRoy.

ADVENTURE IN COSMOS

OPENING this week in Broadway, and soon to roadshow the land is the most complete and competent exploration of the capacities of the film-sound art in the more remote ranges of expression.

It is "Fantasia", Mr. Walt Disney's magnum opus, builded out of the riches of experience and resources discovered for him by that infinitesimal giant, Mickey Mouse.

"Fantasia" is the dream flower of madly artful wishing empowered by the genii of electrons and optics. It is adventure in sound, form, color—all meaning quite as much or as little as the spectator can take to it in capacity in either literacy or sensitivity. The spectator may either think or feel, or both, but if he is not accompanied by himself he will not know he has been to a show.

Measures of the enterprise in terms of showmanship and technology, by others, are appearing elsewhere in these pages. This consideration here is farther removed from today's practicalities. In view of the nature of the production and the conditions surrounding its exploitation, its principal significance to the existing motion picture screen, is in influences that it may have on the art of tomorrow.

Inescapably, it would appear, "Fantasia", by reason of its special challenges to attention, can widen the angles of motion picture acceptance. It must inevitably contribute to the dignity of the art, to its serious consideration among those who can be entertained by processes related to intellectualization. And that has nothing to do with all the entertainment that may also be had by the less conscious components of the audience.

In spite of the modesty of Mr. Disney in presentation of Leopold Stokowski, of Deems Taylor, and of the music of Bach, Tchaikovsky, Dukas, Stravinsky, Beethoven, Ponchielli, Moussorgsky and Schubert—and Mickey Mouse—it is dominantly Disney-the-dreamer.

FANCY, if you will, an ardent young man a-lolling one mellow afternoon on a sunny hillside, under maybe an apple tree in bloom, a-thinking of this and that and paying no heed save to his wonderings. He might be wondering how high is up, and how did the world begin, and what does purple, pink or blue sound like, and how did snowflakes get that way? Are the little piping notes of the piccolo like sparks in the limpid blue of the sky, and do the woodwinds mean bosky, sprite invaded dells? Suppose that fairy girls, needle slim, should string jewels on spider webs and go to skate on azure lakes!

And then for a dash of blood and thunder, too, battling dinosaurs, maelstroms, the same kind Edgar Allan Poe dreamed about, too, in nightmarish splendors, storm, earthquake, cosmic disaster, cosmic synthesis, volcanoes, amoebas—remember that ancient story of "when I was a tadpole and you were a fish"? Consider that pictured with so lavish a store of fancy as that young man a-day-dreaming in the orchard, and then you'll be seeing what that Mr. Disney has done with Hollywood tools.

Here is the impingement of a very young man, very much free of fetish of the cinema's slight but hard tradition, saying what he has damned well wanted to say—and painting, in Kiplingesque technique "with brushes of comet's hair".

Mr. Disney dreams so—and it will be best for him and his world, and all the motion picture too, if he never wakes up. He has found escape into infinity where yesterday telescopes with tomorrow in a snarl of rainbows.

OUR New Orleans correspondent reports on a Kiwanis club speech by Mr. J. Leroy Johnson, advertising manager for Walter Wanger Pictures, finding him saying: "The days of glamour in American motion pictures are gone . . . the trend in pictures is to get down to facts . . . "

This judgment arrives in curious contrast with the concurrent advent of Mr. Disney's dream-storm adventure in music, form and color.

Further, when glamour is gone the theatre is gone. "Down to facts" is the business of laboratories, dissection rooms, courts, text books, banks, adding machines—not the scene or materials of entertainment.

Says Mr. Johnson, "Hollywood has sensed that this is the trend of living all over the world and it intends to lead the way."

The "trend all over the world," if you will have a look at it, seems to be toward a mess of war and hunger in which no one is having a good time. Hollywood is not addressed at all at any such program. Hollywood intends to make some entertainment to sell seats, and it is not addressed at any program of making the motion picture theatre either a hall of debate or a night school.

PERENNIAL ROOSTER

THE arrival of the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of Pathe News brings to mind the fact that it is the oldest surviving product of the screen. It has been through several changes of ownership and many changes of policy, but in three decades it has never missed a release date. It began as Pathe Weekly and evolved into a bi-weekly. Also there was a time, brief and experimental, when Pathe tried issuing a daily release. The difficulty was that the exhibitor was not that much interested. The Gallic Pathe rooster was the first great trade mark. When sound came Pathe News spent $1,200 to make the rooster crow. Close to two million prints of the rooster and the newsreel have gone to the screen in the thirty years. Multiply that by the average number of runs per print and you have an astronomical circulation figure.

ANOTHER item to make the war seem closer—over in West Orange, New Jersey, a bomb-proof vault is being built to house the archives of Thomas A. Edison. Happily, in a larger sense, the works of Mr. Edison are so spread around the world that not until there is complete blackout of all the technology of civilization can the memory of his contributions be obscured.

'Fantasound' and 'Vitasound'

THE Radio Corporation Tuesday night in New York closed the switch for the first public hearing of what it calls "a new revolutionary sound," which it demonstrated to the Broadway press in advance of its world premiere, Wednesday, in conjunction with the first public showing of Walt Disney's new "Fantasia" at the Broadway theatre at 53rd Street, reports on which appear on pages 21 and 40.

"Fantasia" is described by its sponsors as requiring a special RCA mechanism to reproduce "Fantasound" and it is admitted that only a few reproducers can be made available within the period of normal motion picture circulation.

A few hours before the Broadway press gathered in New York Tuesday for its first hearing of "Fantasound," Warner Brothers in Hollywood announced it had "Vitasound" —described by Warners as "a completely faithful reproduction of original sound without violent and expensive changes in theatre and studio equipment."

The Warners intimated "five years of secretly conducted research" for "Vitasound," crediting Major Nathan Levinson, its Burbank studio sound head, with supervision.

"Vitasound" will first be heard at the opening of Warners' "Santa Fe Trail" December 14th, at the first theatre installation in the New York Strand and Warner theatres in Hollywood and Los Angeles; other key Warner houses are to be equipped subsequently.

"Vitasound," it is claimed, utilizes two sound tracks and, says Warners, requires the installation of a $40 attachment to film printing machines and theatre equipment additions costing about $1,500. It was said that a film prepared for "Vitasound" could be exhibited normally on a projector not equipped with "Vitasound" apparatus.

Stage-Film Truce

AMENDMENTS to the basic agreement between the League of New York Theatres and the Dramatists Guild which opens the way for purchase of film rights to Broadway plays by film companies prior to their opening, were unanimously approved, on Tuesday, at the annual meeting of the Guild in the Music Box Theatre, New York.

The amendments go into effect on Friday, this week, for an experimental period of one year.

The new changes place a limit of $200,000 upon the amount to be paid to the author and manager out of the gross of a film-backed play, further payments to be made out of profits, and based on the play's run.

They also give a film company an opportunity to cancel its purchase by abandoning its first payments; permit the film companies to use a manager from its own employ if two regular Broadway managers refuse to produce a play in which the company is interested.

Box Office 'Needle'

INCREASED competition from other amusement and sports fields, has caused members of Northwest Allied, an exhibitors' organization with headquarters in Minneapolis, to start a "back to the box-office movement."

The exhibitors have launched a campaign with trailers on the screens of all member theatres, stressing "Go to Movies." Valances and special banners on individual films and newspaper campaigns, Postal cards and other media will be employed. There will also be campaigns directed at special groups which might be interested in certain films.

Citing the fact that "the keenest kind of competition has come into the industry," Fred Strom, Allied's executive secretary, said that competing for the public's "entertainment dollar," are night clubs, taverns, bowling alleys, basketball, night baseball and football, hockey and ice shows, carnivals, festivals, better radio programs, industrial shows, etc., etc.

Outstanding pictures will be booked for extended runs to encourage production of better product. Notwithstanding, said Mr. Strom, the exhibitors would continue their campaign for lower rentals.

Eastman's Bonus

DIRECTORS of Eastman Kodak, Wednesday, in Kodak Park, Rochester, voted for employees a 1941 wage bonus-dividend of $2,625,000, payable March 24. The sum represents a $262,669 increase over 1940.

A quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on common stock also was declared, along with the regular one and one-half per cent dividend on the preferred stock, amounting also to $1.50 per share.

Kodak employes in U. S. Military Service will participate in the new bonus, even though they are not at work on the date of payment, provided they are otherwise eligible.

The dividend was the 29th since the plan was inaugurated in 1912. It will bring the total Kodak wage-dividend payments since that time to some $48,275,000.

Plays Into Films

FOR the first time on the record a complete Broadway production, "Journey to Jerusalem," has been filmed, in its stage version. Direct shooting was at the Fox-Movietone studios in New York, in a few hours, comparatively. The Playwrights Producing Company play recently closed on Broadway after a brief engagement.

Joseph Pollock, former executive of National Screen Service, who retired in 1930, produced the film. He declared Tuesday that he had not decided on the manner or method or field of distribution, although in all likelihood the film and others will be distributed through regular 16mm. channels, of churches, schools, institutions and elsewhere, in 16mm. width.

50 Turn to Cash

THE competitive situation between independents and circuits in Chicago is getting no place fast. Added this week to the long and sometimes bitter argument over multiple features and other argumentative practices was the sudden decision, Wednesday, by Allied States of Illinois, Jack Kirsch, president, to resume Screeno cash giveaways in 50 independent theatres of that organization. This form of cash giveaway returns there after four years.

At midweek, the heads of local individual theatres or circuits not affiliated with Allied were either uncommunicative or undecided as to what they would do to compete with the independents' unexpected decision to use anywhere from $25 to $50 to be given away as another inducement to gain patronage.

Roebuck Plan Fades

WHAT appeared four months ago an idea which might spread, applicable to any theatre, and with Sears, Roebuck Company participating, has bogged down where it started—in Philadelphia, at six independent neighborhood houses.

The idea: a giveaway, by the theatre owner, of a coupon with each admission, redeemable in goods at the local Sears, Roebuck store, at the cash value of one, two or five cents, as stamped on the coupon. The exhibitor bought coupons from Sears at face value, distributing them in numbers and in the cash value he saw fit. Sears paid for advertising and promotion.

The public relations department of the home office of Sears, Roebuck, and Company, in Chicago, this week said, "The whole experiment has been dropped." It added that the Philadelphia trial had "not panned out well."

The plan was started in the Philadelphia houses, June 3rd. A special "outside" corporation, to market coupons to exhibitors was set up. In this, were Robert F. Bogatin, Charles Golfine, and Moe Verbin, all of Philadelphia.

The War & Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD'S participation in National Defense moved forward Monday when Colonel A. D. Bruce, U.S. Army General Staff, and Major Robert Schlosberg, of the Army Signal Corps Photographic Division, arrived in the production capital, from Washington, with Gordon Mitchell, Academy Research Council director, to confer with Darryl F. Zanuck, of Twentieth Century-Fox, on the next move toward the production of training films for Army service men.

The military commission interviewed screen writers with a view to commissioning junior writers for service at the Signal Corps' film-training base at Fort Monmouth, N. J., where they would write scripts for the films to be supplied for instruction.

A full meeting of Hollywood's Producers' Committee for National Defense, under Y. Frank Freeman, of Paramount, committee chairman, was set for later in the week.

"Hollywood's Own," a United States Marine detachment composed of several in motion picture production, arrived at San Diego, Cal., this week, for training, commanded by Major W. S. Van Dyke II, with Captain James Roosevelt as adjutant.

Major L. E. Thompson, RKO Theatres, reported Monday that between 8,000 and 9,000 theatres in the U. S. were engaged in the two weeks' drive to help put over the Annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross, from November 11th to 30th—the call this year stressing war relief activities.

England receives three more war ambulances from the U. S., from the Karl Hoblitzelle Texas theatre interests—one donated in the name of Mr. Hoblitzelle, one from Interstate Circuit, the third from Texas Consolidated Theatres.

The British Problem

DISTRIBUTORS' foreign sales heads, and their presidents, and officers of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, are still mulling British proposals anent remittance of money to this country, proffering counter proposals, and at midweek were expecting further advice from London. Both groups on Friday, November 8th, at the headquarters of the MPPDA, in New York, heard Will Hays report his conversations with Joseph P. Kennedy.

It was understood that Mr. Kennedy brought news that the British would allow American companies to remit from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 in the coming year, replacing the agreement which expired October 31st, and ending a hiatus during which the Americans have not been able to withdraw any money. Under the old agreement, $17,500,000 was allowed to be sent here.

Other factors under discussion with the British were the possibly enforced purchase, by the Americans, of British pictures for release here; and restrictions, by them, of American investments, in blocked sterling, in British theatres. The Americans are represented as feeling that, if the British are allowing less money to be withdrawn from their country this year, they can be more lenient in other of the items which will comprise the total agreement.

Griffith Show

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH became officially classic when this week the Museum of Modern Art and its Film Library in New York opened an exhibition reviewing his work for the motion picture screen from 1907 to 1924.

Predominant was attention to "The Birth of a Nation," but included are documents, stills, and data concerning a total of twenty-two pictures.

Mr. Griffith's pictures are to be shown in a cycle of ten programs, running till January 5.

Incidental to the Griffith story, at Tuesday's opening, Billy Bitzer, cameraman extraordinary to Biograph and Griffith for many a year, displayed and demonstrated the camera that helped so much to make Griffith's fame.

Warners vs. Sparks

THE split which came nearly two years ago between Warner Brothers and the Sparks Circuit of Florida, over their inability to get together on terms for the selling and buying of Warner pictures, resounded again, on Monday, in New York, in an announcement from the Warner home office which stated:

"The only independently operated first run theatre in Jacksonville, Fla., is now under construction as the first of a chain of theatres to be operated by the St. Johns Amusement Corporation, which is planning a series of first run theatres throughout Florida, some of which will be in opposition to the Sparks Circuit in this territory.

"Arthur J. Siegel, who recently resigned from Warner Brothers Pictures, will be the operating head of the newly formed circuit.

"After over a year and a half, during which time Warner Brothers-First National features have not played the Sparks Circuit, Jacksonville moviegoers will have an opportunity to see on the screen some of their favorite stars." The statement continued to mention its stars and pictures which have been kept out of the Florida city.

Venezuela Freezes

THE Venezuela Government has adopted regulations which make it mandatory for American distributors doing business in that country to obtain an export license before they are permitted to take any funds out of the country, it was learned in New York this week. Thus do foreign earnings of U. S. distributors become further frozen in a world where nearly all foreign income is frozen.

Also, the Municipal Council of the Federal District of Venezuela has adopted regulations providing for motion picture and theatrical censorship.

HOW THE INDUSTRY IS RE

THIS map constitutes the new divisional setup of the motion picture industry in the United States, as drawn by the American Arbitration Association, for application under the consent decree. It is officially called "Map of Arbitration districts of the American arbitration tribunals of the motion picture industry, to be maintained and operated by the American Arbitration Association".

Local arbitration tribunals will maintain headquarters in 31 key cities. Arbitration district lines do not necessarily follow the boundaries of the old exchange territories. Arbitration districts have been formed by county lines, with consideration given to population of each area and transportation facilities to the key city.

Heavy black lines (———) indicate the district boundaries.

Broken lines (• — • — •) are the State borders.

Black dots (●) mark the key cities where the boards will meet.

U. S. SUB-DIVIDED INTO 31 DISTRICTS UNDER DECREE

Government, Distributors and AAA Approve Remapping; Exhibitor Organizations Continue Last Ditch Opposition

The United States Government, the American Arbitration Association, Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, and the "Big 5" distributors this week approved a re-mapping of the motion picture market of this country, defining 31 districts for the purpose of applying supervision and arbitration under the consent decree, in the settlement of the Government's key anti-trust suit—the new map of the U. S. industry appears on pages 12 and 13. The AAA drew the map.

On the eve of the public hearing on the decree before Judge Goddard, Thursday morning, at the Federal Courthouse, Foley Square, New York, local and national exhibitor organizations prepared arguments to present in opposition to the compromise settlement, and the defense counsel was studying the Department of Justice' amended complaint, which charges that all existing film contracts are illegal. The complaint had been filed last Saturday.

Exhibitor groups opposed to the decree and planning court protests included National Allied, Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, New York Allied, New York Independent Theatre Owners Association, MPTO of North and South Carolina, Northwest Allied, MPTO of Connecticut, Allied of Connecticut, MPTO of Western New York, UMPTO of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, certain Paramount partners. Also Columbia and United Artists were to oppose the amended complaint which they claim is directed against the non-consenting defendants.

Three additional exhibitor units sent representatives to New York Wednesday to oppose the entering of the decree. They are: the MPTO of Virginia, represented by Robert T. Barton, attorney; the Texas Theatre Owners Protective Association, represented by Judge Roy L. Walker, and the Robb & Rowley and Jefferson Amusement Company circuits of west Texas, represented by Michael Rice.

Arbitration Details Worked Out

Arbitration machinery details, meanwhile, were worked out at a conference Wednesday afternoon between Judge Goddard, representatives of the Department of Justice and the American Arbitration Association. One of the chief topics of discussion was the map of the arbitration districts and tribunal centers which are to be administered by the association. Previously the five consenting companies had approved the map. The Government's approval was given at the Wednesday meeting.

Pictures of executive heads of the American Arbitration Association are on page 19.

NEELY MAY STAY IN U. S. SENATE

Matthew M. Neely, Senator from West Virginia who was elected governor of his home state at the recent election, may postpone taking office and remain in the Senate, it was reported this week from Washington. He was said to be in line for the chairmanship of the Senate Judiciary Committee. In the motion picture industry Senator Neely is known as the author of the anti-block booking bill which bears his name and for a bill advocating theatre divorcement.

The map which establishes a new division of the country for motion picture purposes and supersedes, in many respects, the traditional exchange territories, has 31 districts. The cities selected for headquarters of the local arbitration boards are exchange cities but the lines of the arbitration map, which follow county boundaries, are not those of the old exchange districts in every case. Due consideration was given to means of transportation, population and other factors in determining the size and shape of the various districts.

The official map is a Cleartype county-town trading center map showing all towns over 10,000 and copyright by the American Map Company, Inc.

Tribunal Cities Listed

Beginning in the northeast section of the country districts and local arbitration tribunal cities are:

Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island—Arbitration tribunal headquarters at Boston.

Connecticut—New Haven

Southern New York and Northern New Jersey—New York City

Oregon (with the exception of two counties)—Portland

Braden To Tour Country

On Saturday J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the American Arbitration Association, will start a tour of the country, beginning at Los Angeles. He will be gone about a month and following his inspection he will make recommendations to the arbitration committee of the association which will pick the panels for the individual districts. Shortly after this is done Mr. Braden will make another trip to the 30 districts outside of New York to instruct local personnel in their arbitration work.

Arbitration as provided under the decree will probably go into effect sometime late this winter, probably in February, if the decree is signed.

The clerks for the individual boards will be selected on the same basis, as far as background is concerned, as the arbitrators. No one with previous connection with the industry will be appointed. An attempt will be made to choose, for the position of clerk, men with extensive legal or business experience, or those experienced in both.

MPTOA In Court

On Tuesday, after a poll of directors, the MPTOA decided to make a court appearance Thursday in opposition to the decree, Ed Kuykendall, president, announced. Henry G. Gray of the New York law firm of Gray, Sage, Todd & Sims was retained to represent the organization at the hearing.

Other lawyers retained to protest to the court against the decree included Edward C. Raftery, of O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery, for United Artists; George P. Aarons, for Eastern Pennsylvania MPTO and will assist Mr. Gray; Herman Levy, for Connecticut MPTO; Sidney B. Pfeiffer of Buffalo, for the MPTO of Western New York; L. B. Schwartz, Northwest Allied; Paul J. Ziegler, Los Angeles, for the Pacific Coast Conference; Jacob Schechter for Allied of New York; Milton Weisman, New York ITOA; Louis D. Frohlich and Herman Finkelstein

NORTH WEST MOUNTED POLICE

IN TECHNICOLOR

"NORTH WEST MOUNTED POLICE" is turning in grosses in its second week that equal or exceed the first week record grosses on "Union Pacific" . . . Playing to smash business at advanced prices from coast to coast . . . Why? Because it's DeMille's greatest! Because it's the industry's greatest, in Technicolor! Because there never was such a cast in a single picture starring GARY COOPER, MADELEINE CARROLL, PAULETTE GODDARD with Preston Foster, Robert Preston, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, George Bancroft, Lon Chaney, Jr., Walter Hampden. Produced and directed by Cecil B. DeMille.

"Harvest Moon" at the Box Office!

"MOON OVER BURMA" . . . "Typhoon" did plenty at the nation's box office . . . and this new Lamour Love Drama is banging right along in the same money class. "DOROTHY LAMOUR'S best picture" say the smart boys. And, of course, ROBERT PRESTON and PRESTON FOSTER, her co-stars, get extra marquee power with their triumph in "N.W.M.P." Doris Nolan and Albert Basserman head the supporting cast of this jungle thriller. Directed by Louis King.

Tops with the critics... tops at the box-office

"★★★★" N. Y. Daily News

"ARISE, MY LOVE" Raved about by every critic. Topping all pictures for a year in its three weeks' triumphant run at the N. Y. Paramount. (Booking of "N. W. M. P." prevented longer run.) Topping "Buck Benny Rides Again" in ten other keys. CLAUDETTE COLBERT'S best since "It Happened One Night." RAY MILLAND'S best ever.

A triumph for Producer Arthur Hornblow, Jr. A triumph for Director Mitchell Leisen . . . A triumph for Paramount, the company which seems to have all the winning numbers this year . . . Screen it and you'll understand why THIS DISTINGUISHED AND UNUSUAL PICTURE IS SUCH A BOX OFFICE SUCCESS.

JACK BENNY and FRED ALLEN together on the screen for the first time! That alone places "LOVE THY NEIGHBOR" right now in the "N. W. M. P." class. For they are the two biggest names in radio. And right now they are starting to plug this big Mark Sandrich (Producer-Director) comedy with music to their millions of air fans by starting a great pre-selling job of aiming the famous Benny-Allen radio feud at selling tickets for this big holiday show. And don't miss the big box office fact that this is MARY MARTIN playing for the first time on the screen just as she played her success role on Broadway (she sings "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," as well as three new hit parade songs). Add Rochester to this . . . Add the famous radio Merry Macs . . . Add a million Laughs . . . Add terrific production numbers. It's another Paramount bonanza.

U. S. CALLS ALL CONTRACTS ILLEGAL

of Schwartz & Frohlich, Columbia and Abram F. Myers, Allied States.

Mr. Kuykendall said Tuesday, "The MP-TOA is vigorously opposed to parts of the consent decree in its present form. We feel that it will work a tremendous hardship on exhibitors, particularly the small, independent exhibitor. We will fight to the limit to prevent it from becoming a law."

Despite exhibitor protest it was reported that Judge Goddard would probably sign the decree within a few days after the court hearing Thursday. In similar cases in the past the court has usually taken the position that the decree, if acceptable to the Government and by some or all the defendants, must be satisfactory, it was said.

Colonel H. A. Cole, president of national Allied and Allied of Texas, expressed disappointment with the Government's course in the consent decree on Tuesday at the opening of a two-day convention of the State organization in Dallas. He said that the decree has "many good and many bad points." The struggle of the independents for relief will eventually succeed because of "increasing pressure," he said.

Last Saturday the Government served notice on defendants in the key New York anti-trust suit that it would ask to file an amended complaint. The new 70-page document will replace the original complaint filed in July, 1938, if the Judge Goddard gives his permission.

The new complaint which is intended to bring the "Little Three," Columbia, Universal and United Artists under the terms of the consent decree lists seven points to support its contention that all existing exhibition licensing agreements are illegal. The Government's reasons were as follows:

1. License terms are fixed in contracts before an exhibitor has had a fair opportunity to estimate the value of a film.

2. License agreements fix clearance, run and minimum admission prices on large groups of pictures simultaneously.

3. The licensing of one film or group of films is conditioned on the licensing of another film or group.

4. The licensing of films in one theatre is conditioned on the licensing of films in another theatre or group.

5. Agreements on clearance are calculated to suppress competition between exhibitors rather than to protect distribution revenue.

6. Distributors frequently refuse to license a run on any terms in order to protect an exhibitor from competition.

7. Prints are arbitrarily withheld on license contracts to give an exhibitor a prior play date not provided for by agreement.

Although the proposed amended complaint repeats many of the original charges made in the complaint filed over two years ago, such as attack on "integration" of production, exhibition and distribution, the alleged talent pool.

The Government now asks for the organization of a "nation wide system of impartial arbitration tribunals" in order to secure "adequate enforcement" of the decree.

Other alleged violations of the anti-trust laws made by the Government included the loan of personnel; exclusion of independent producers from the first run market; concerted action on fixing license terms; discrimination on license terms; and finally, coercive selling practices such as minimum admission prices, forcing of shorts and newsreels, overage and underage, score charges, advertising allowances and contract modifications.

The proposed consent decree is not mentioned in the new complaint. It is understood, however, that if the decree is signed, the five consenting companies will be dismissed from the suit.

Government statistics mentioned in the decree include the following: the five theatre owning companies received about 70 percent and the three other majors 25 percent of film rentals in five years; net worth of the majors, with the exception of United Artists, in 1939 was $57,000,000. The Government also claimed that the five theatre owning companies had 80 percent of the Class A films and the other three companies only 15 percent in the past five years. It was further alleged that in the same period no other distributor had more than one percent of the Class A pictures.

Other Government figures were: a good picture usually has 10,000 or more playdates and grosses over $1,000,000 and a poor picture has about half as many playdates and grosses only $200,000; the average cost of Class A product is $500,000; that by 1930 the defendants were producing most of the product costing over $250,000; 80% of first run metropolitan theatres are affiliate theatres and 95 percent of the product shown in those theatres is made by the defendants.

It was reported that attorneys for the "Little Three" speaking against the amended complaint at the court hearing would state that nothing has occurred in the way of changes in trade practices and policies since the suit was filed two years ago to justify an amended complaint.

LaCrosse, Wis., Case Postponed Again

Sudden illness of Robert A. Hess, counsel for the LaCrosse Theatres Company, LaCrosse, Wis., forced postponement of the hearing in U. S. district court at Madison, Wis., November 7th on the theatre firm's $1,472,000 damage action against Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox, United Artists, Welworth Theatre Company, and the Minnesota Amusement Company. Hearing in the action was started October 31st before Federal Judge Patrick T. Stone and a jury of twelve. The case was adjourned November 1st until November 6th and only one day's testimony was taken during the second week of the trial. Mr. Hess was removed to a Madison hospital.

TICKET TAX RISE INSTEAD OF CUT IN EXEMPTION SEEN FOR U.S. DEFENSE

Morgenthau Discloses 3-Point Government Fiscal Program, Which Is Expected to Force Upward Revision of All Levies

Washington observers concluded this week that additional taxation might be expected on motion picture tickets, along with all other taxed amusements, to take the form of an increase in the present emergency rates, created last July 1st, rather than a reduction of the present taxable minimum of 21 cents. It is expected that exhibitors would pass along any additional tax to the public, thereby increasing the cost of films for patrons.

New Revenue Sources Needed

The conclusion came quickly on the announcement of the Administration's admission that new sources of revenue are needed for huge defense spending ahead, an announcement that was made on Thursday, November 7th, in Washington, by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, who disclosed a three-point government financial and fiscal program involving a drive to remove the tax-exemption privilege from future issues of government securities, raise the debt limit to between $60,000,000,000 and $65,000,000,000 and the possibility of additional taxes.

"We have just begun to rearm," Secretary Morgenthau said in announcing financial plans for the third-term administration.

He did not go into detail regarding taxes, but the experience of Congress this year in attempting to set up new sources of revenue indicated that "important" money can be raised only by increasing existing levies. There are few sources of revenue not yet tapped, it was found.

It was assumed that President Roosevelt would make a statement on the subject soon rather than wait until he delivers his budget message for 1942 on January 4 or 5.

The national defense tax bill to motion picture theatres is already running at about an additional $36,000,000 a year, under the July 1st enactment of taxes on all tickets above 20 cents; previously, the exemption ran up to and included 40-cent admissions. In Washington, this week, it was estimated that the reduction, four months ago of the Federal admission tax exemption from 40 to 20 cents, is bringing in nearly $3,000,000 a month more than was collected formerly, showing the amusement field to be an important source of revenue.

Secretary Morgenthau revealed only the broad outline of his financing plans and did not go into detail as to where the additional tax revenue would come from. In informed circles, however, it was said that the pressure for additional revenue may be so great as to force an upward revision of all existing levies.

Last Spring, immediately prior to enactment of the legislation which reduced the exemption to 20 cents, there was considerable discussion in Congressional circles over the possibility of reducing the exemption to 10 cents.

When the legislation was passed, exhibitor leaders expressed the belief that it was extremely likely that the exemption would be reduced to 10 cents by January 1, next. Exhibition interests throughout the country without exception accepted the tax exemption reduction without question, deeming it a patriotic duty to assist in the collection of the additional levy, since it was designed to aid in the financing of the national defense program.

On Monday, Treasury officials indicated they were seeking about $1,000,000,000 of additional tax revenues from new levies, this time mentioning such items as soft drinks and securities and increased levies on individual income and corporate excess profits.

They said that, although Secretary Morgenthau already had committed the administration to seek more revenue from the next Congress, no definite tax plan had yet been agreed upon. Congressional leaders probably will be consulted before any decisions are made. While such conferences are in progress, however, Mr. Morgenthau will present his plan for increasing the Federal debt limit.

Caught in probably the shortest period on record—seven days—between Congressional enactment of an admission tax bill, last June, and date of actual application, on Monday, July 1st, the United States Treasury speeded through rules and regulations for the existing tax operations for exhibitors, even before actual Presidential signature, was affixed to the bill, for adoption by exhibitors.

Majority of Theatres Affected

Thousands of film theatres, running by far into the majority of the country's 15,000 houses which previously were not subject to Federal ticket taxation, came under the new law which reduced the minimum tax exemption from 40 cents to 20 cents.

House and Senate conferees finally settled their differences by agreeing to a 20 cent minimum exemption, and, on Saturday afternoon, June 22d, both houses voted the bill.

Sixty millions in additional revenue was the estimate to be collected annually from all amusement tickets—most of it from movie tickets—for the five-year life of the measure, a total of $300,000,000 for armaments and national defense against the growth of European totalitarians. The tax brought to the Government a three hundred per cent increase over the $20,000,000 annual ticket tax revenue averaged in late years.

Faced with little opportunity to give any lengthy consideration to the source of collection, i.e., whether it should be the theatre itself or the customer, nearly all exhibitors and circuit operators decided immediately to pass the levy on to their patrons.

In order to preclude any dissatisfaction among customers by first absorbing the tax themselves and then finding it necessary, because of economic conditions, to later pass the tax on to patrons, most exhibitors charged the tax to the patron at the outset.

It was felt in many exhibition quarters that theatre business did not allow for any admission price reductions, which would, in effect, be the case if the owner absorbed the tax.

Ohio Rental Tax Delay

The suit of John V. Bostick, a taxpayer, of Columbus, Ohio, asking a mandamus order against the Ohio Tax Commission to compel collection of three per cent sales tax on film rentals since the law became effective four years ago, probably will not be heard in the Appellate Court until Spring.

The State Tax Department maintains that film rentals are tax exempt, according to a ruling by the Attorney General, despite an opinion of the Tax Board that these rentals come within the classification of taxable commodities.

If the case is decided against the Tax Commission, the tax would be paid by the exhibitor, but collectible by the distributor, who would remit to the State. This means that the distributor would be forced to pay taxes for such exhibitors who had discontinued business.

The ITO Ohio and distributors have intervened as interested parties to the action.

Cut-Rate Tickets Are Subject to Tax, Revenue Commissioner Rules

Persons admitted free to a motion picture house, or admitted at reduced rates under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons, are subject to an equivalent Federal admission tax based on the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar seating accommodations.

So rules the Commissioner of the United States Department of Internal Revenue in a reply to P. J. Wood of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio at Columbus, responding to a request for a declaration on the matter of specially priced student tickets, as used by hundreds of theatres all over the country. The Internal Revenue Department ruling follows: "It appears that one theatre has an established price of admission to adults of 30 cents and admits high school students for 20 cents. In one case, the established price of admission to adults after 7 P.M. is 25 cents, the price of admission to juniors, which includes children through the high school age, is 20 cents, and the price of admission to children is 10 cents.

"Section 1700 of the Internal Revenue Code provides that in the case of persons (except bona fide employees, municipal officers on official business, and children under 12 years of age) admitted free or at reduced rates to any place at a time when and under circumstances under which an admission charge is made to other persons, an equivalent tax shall be collected, based on the price so charged to such other persons for the same or similar accommodations.

"The setting aside of a certain section for students does not operate to exempt the students from the tax."

Exhibitor groups are planning to appeal the decision, Northwest Allied taking the lead.

WALT DISNEY'S 'FANTASIA' BOWS IN WITH NEW 'FANTASOUND' BY RCA

New Feature Opens in New York, Other Showings Must Await Equipment; "Painting with Motion" Describes Film

"Fantasia," a Walt Disney revolutionary motion picture featuring eight classical music selections reproduced by special RCA sound equipment and illustrated in color, had its first public performance at the Broadway theatre in New York City Wednesday evening. It is Disney's third feature cartoon, the world's fourth.

The film, which cost about $2,200,000, will not be released in the usual sense of the word, but in the next two and a half years it will be roadshown in about 75 cities. For each engagement the RCA reproducing equipment, developed in collaboration with the Disney engineers, must be installed.

Eleven Units to Be Built

Only one sound unit, which cost about $200,000 to develop and perfect, according to Mr. Disney, has been completed. Eleven other units to cost between $30,000 and $40,000 have been ordered and as fast as these are available the picture will open in other key cities, including Los Angeles, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Minneapolis, San Francisco, Seattle, Salt Lake City and Miami.

At least for several years, according to plans, "Fantasia" will be shown in only one theatre in a large area. New York newspaper advertisements on the premiere pointed out that the film would not be presented in any other theatre within 100 miles.

Since the picture is not to be released, Walt Disney Productions and not RKO Radio will handle all exhibition deals. The availability of theatres in the selected key cities will determine whether, as in the case of New York, a house will be leased by the Disney company or an arrangement will be made with a local exhibitor.

The picture is being shown on a two-a-day, all reserved seat policy. The price scale is from 55 cents to $2.20.

"Fantasia" was built around orchestral selections directed by Leopold Stokowski. The Disney Studio supplied visual effects to the music, reversing the usual order. Most of the music was recorded in Philadelphia months before any drawings for the picture were made.

The film is unusual in other respects also. There are no titles on the screen. Including an intermission, the program lasts about two hours and a half.

For the recording of the RCA "Fantasound" in "Fantasia" nine channels were used, eight of which received sounds from separate parts of the orchestra and one took the whole range. A total of 33 microphones were used. The music was re-recorded on three sound tracks and a fourth track controls the sound. The effort is to give special characteristics to the sound.

The system is somewhat similar to that demonstrated last spring, without pictures, by the Bell Telephone Laboratories. The story of "stereophonic sound," which started the new sound race between RCA and the telephone company, appeared in the April 13th issue of Motion Picture Herald.

RCA believes other producers ultimately will become interested in three-dimensional sound. In the future other companies, like Disney, may acquire a number of special sound reproducers built to recreate definite effects on special productions, it was said. Another future possibility is that leading theatres will install a simpler type equipment, if the method is successful and used in many pictures. RCA officials pointed out that the possibilities of the system were almost unlimited. Walt Disney Productions, being the first to try the method, will probably have first call on future use.

Trace "Fantasound" History

Tracing the history of the "Fantasound" development RCA in an official statement explained that a part of the new system, described as "multiple channel recording" was first used by RCA engineers in 1937 in "One Hundred Men and a Girl" (Universal), in which Mr. Stokowski was featured. RCA said: "Early in 1938 Mr. Disney, with the cooperation of Stokowski, decided to do a similar job in a pictorial interpretation of Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice." Preliminary results were so successful, it was said, that the producer decided to develop the 10-minute short into a feature, including other musical compositions.

In the summer of 1939 Mr. Disney decided to incorporate the sound track idea, it was said. Details were discussed then by William E. Garrity, technical director for Mr. Disney, and M. C. Batsel, head of the engineering department of RCA Photophone.

In the system finally adopted the one control track handles the functions of four controls, it was said. Special printers and reproducing equipment were developed to take care of the four sound tracks. The picture is on one film and the sound tracks on another.

From the 420,000 feet of music recorded at the Philadelphia Academy of Music by Stokowski and his orchestra, 18,000 feet are used in the completed picture.

Mr. Disney said Tuesday, "Many persons will appreciate the improved sound and recording and reproduction in "Fantasia," even though they are not exactly music lovers." He also remarked, "Fine music is lasting and has a universal quality that all can enjoy. We in Hollywood have been inclined to neglect its importance in making motion pictures."

Mr. Disney said "Snow White" cost about $1,800,000, including prints, and "Fantasia" approximately $2,200,000 without prints. Because the latest feature will not be generally distributed, the print cost will be relatively less. He added that he would be satisfied if he got his investment back.

There are no sound tricks in the film, Mr. Disney pointed out. It was said that the chief advantage of "Fantasound" over the usual sound system is that it creates greater diffusion of sound waves, resulting in smoother reception. About 60 horns carry the sound at the Broadway theatre.

"Natural" for South America

Because there is no spoken dialogue, "Fantasia" will be a "natural" for South American distribution, Mr. Disney pointed out. The only change necessary for showing in non-English speaking countries would be a substitution of a native tongue narrative for Deems Taylor's introductory description.

Leopold Stokowski in an interview Monday backstage at the Broadway theatre where the "Fantasound" equipment was being installed, said: "We hope that this is the beginning of a new type of art." He added: "Its purpose is not to supersede the present types of arts, but to add one more type. "Fantasia" is a form of painting with motion."

Other similar productions are planned, Mr. Stokowski said. The works of other composers would be included in new Disney features on the same pattern.

"There is nothing popular in "Fantasia," but we hope it will be popular," the conductor said. He emphasized that the visual interpretation of the "sequence of examples of the greatest music of all types" in the picture was only one of many possible interpretations. Color, he believes, has added much to the music. The new sound development can also stand alone without pictures, he remarked.

The official premiere on Wednesday was sponsored by the British War Relief Society.

Produce 16mm. Subjects For Schools and Clubs

In order to bring music, played and sung by noted musicians and singers, to the attention of schools, clubs and music groups, Artist Films, Inc., headed by Rudolph Polk, of the Artists Bureau of CBS, has produced a series of 16 mm films which were to have been previewed at the Chanin Auditorium, New York, on Thursday, November 14th, by Walter O. Gutlohn, Inc., distributors, in co-operation with the Schools Motion Picture Committee. The committee consists of a group of public-spirited citizens who make weekly recommendations of pictures suitable for children.

The series consist of two three-reel subjects, the first group comprising of an introduction by John Erskine, piano solos by Jose Iturbi, noted pianist; solos by Margaret Dilling, harpist, and selection by the Coolidge String Quartet. The second group consists of solos by Igor Gorin and Emanuel Fuermann and a piano duet by Messrs. Bronsky and Babin. The two groups of shorts run about one hour.

Sunday Films Gain In Pennsylvania

Sunday films gained ground in Pennsylvania the final election returns show. Although citizens of 82 cities, boroughs and townships voted against Sunday motion pictures, 47 rescinded their bans on Sabbath day shows. In addition, 12 other communities, which were voting on their stand taken five years ago, decided to keep Sunday films, while six others that had voted then to let theatres open, decided to ban them.

Opponents Continue Fight

However, in spite of the gains made on election day, the Reverend Dr. William B. Forney, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, which has been leading the fight against the Sunday shows, said his group now proposes to go after 167 other communities, which voted for Sunday films five years ago. He said that the Alliance will start a move at once for a 1941 referendum.

In the wake of an intensive campaign this year, with theatre managers and religious groups taking opposing stands, advocates of Sunday films scored major gains in winning such large cities as Allentown, Bethlehem, Hazleton, Lancaster, Lebanon and Johnstown. Opponents of the open Sunday were victorious in such major centers as Harrisburg, Altoona, Pottsville, Williamsport, Greensburg and numerous college towns, including State College and Lewisburg, home of Bucknell University.

Of the communities that already permitted Sunday shows, Lock Haven, Carnegie, Crafton, Springdale, Turtle Creek, Reading, DuBois, Ellwood City and Easton voted to continue them while Tarentum, Brackenridge, Wilkinsburg, Castle Shannon, Bellevue and Harrison township (Allegheny county) voted to rescind such permission Curwensville also voted to close film houses on Sunday and these towns lifted their restriction:

Wilson borough (Northampton county), Cooper township (Clearfield county), Brentwood, Munhall, New Brighton, Beaver Falls, Troy, Doylestown, Johnstown, Palmerton, Mauch Chunk, Summit Hill, Connellsville, Brownsville, Marienville, Jenks township (Forest county), Taylor, Clarks Summit, Lancaster, New Castle, Lebanon, Allentown, North Whitehall township (Lehigh county), Coplay, Hazleton, West Hazleton, White Haven, Conyngham township (Luzerne county), Stoneboro, Abington township (Montgomery county), Conshohocken, Ambler, Jenkintown, Narberth, Pennsburg, Pottstown, Bethlehem, Mt. Carmel, Ashland, Hallstead, New Kensington, North Belle Vernon, Arnold, Northumberland, Wilson borough and Bryn Athyn.

Towns Retain Ban

Communities that refused to rescind the Sunday ban included: Kittanning, Leechburg, Rochester, Boyertown, Topton, Kutztown, Altoona, Hollidaysburg, Tyrone, Butler, Evans City, Petrolia, Zelienople, Ebensburg, Lehighton, Weatherly, State College, Philipsburgh, West Chester, Parkersburg, West Grove, Phoenixville, Downingtown, Rimersburg, Clarion, Knox, Osceola Mills, Berwick, Catawissa, Harrisburg, Williamstown, Greensboro, Orbisonia, Indiana, Blairsville, Homer City, Columbia, Ephrata, Palmyra, Emaus, Whitehall township (Lehigh county).

Also, Slatington, Catasauqua, Kingston, Williamsport, Jersey Shore, Muncy, Stroudsburg, East Stroudsburg, Norristown, East Greenville, Danville, Bangor, Hellertown, Northampton, Nazareth, Sunbury, Upper Augusta township (Northumberland county), Shamokin, Pottsville, Minersville, Tamaqua, Monroe township (Snyder county), Meyersdale, Lewisburg, Emlenton, McDonald, Greensburg, Mt. Pleasant, Derry, Latrobe, Ligonier, Vandergrift, Manor, Clearfield, Houtzdale, Brookville, Shickshinny, Manheim township (Lancaster county), Bellwood (Blair county) and Lansdowne and Prospect Park (Delaware county).

Attorneys in several suburban cities have requested a legal ruling on the referendum on the ground that a number of voters wrote "Yes" on the ballot instead of marking an "X." These ballots have been declared invalid by the election board. The official decision may decide the issue in Western Pennsylvania where the vote was close.

Other Sunday Results

Two more New Jersey communities have approved Sunday films. Westfield passed the Sunday measure, 4,265-3,624, and Livingston, 2,023-265. North Ridgewood, however, rejected Sunday shows for a third time, 4,395-2,925 Sunday films lost out in Bridgeton, Woodbury and Paulsboro, N. J.

California has again voted down a daylight saving time proposal. The proposition was defeated by two to one. The voters in 1930 turned down the proposal and the state legislature has defeated it five times. All major studios contributed short subjects shown in virtually all theatres calling for the defeat of the plan.

Civic Groups Join St. Louis Campaign

The St. Louis Better Films Council, one of the strongest of its kind in the country, and one of the few public groups in recent years to conduct a militant campaign for the elimination of multi-feature programs, is rallying the public through "Minute Men" speakers who are touring the city "in behalf of the cause."

Several civic groups have joined in the campaign, declared Mrs. Artemus F. Burt, Council founder and leader, who declined, however, to disclose the identities of the new supporters at this time.

She said that "about a dozen" local exhibitors, answering a request for a position on single versus multi-feature bills, had indicated a willingness to abolish double and triple bills—provided St. Louisians can be persuaded to accept a single feature.

The Council's "Minute Men" speakers have addressed the campaign message to another dozen clubs and civic groups, urging their support of singles. In addition, printed literature on reasons against doubles are now being circulated widely.

Triple bills are the principal targets at the moment. Nine independent, neighborhood houses now operate under that policy —half of them being F. and M. houses, the rest, independent.

What was described as the first effort to inject triple-bills in a local major house took place this week, when the Fox theatre, seating 5,000, a downtown, de luxe operation of Fanchon and Marco, started featuring two pictures and the Laurel and Hardy traveling stage revue. Fred Wehrenberg, president of the MPTO exhibitor organization in St. Louis, charged this was nothing more than a triple feature bill, running three and a half hours. Previously, the Fox and other F. and M. theatres, when featuring a stage revue, screened only one feature.

Council Answers Arthur

The Council answers Harry Arthur's recent statement that a six-week test of singles at his circuit's key Ambassador theatre was unsuccessful, with the charge that F. and M. was unfair in raising admissions for the test. Regular price scales should be maintained for single bills, Mrs. Burt added. The Ambassador, it will be remembered, conducted a test whereby certain specially selected "streamlined" single bill showings were conducted for "the pick of the current crop," at increased admissions.

The double bill situation was also given public attention in Milwaukee, last weekend, when the matter was brought before that city's Better Films Council, in a meeting of the YMCA there. L. Roy Pierre, district manager of the Fox Wisconsin circuit division, responded with the charge that local patrons want doubles and that exhibitors there who have attempted to supplant them with singles have experienced a sharp drop in patronage.

Quadruple features started this week in Hamilton, Ohio, where the Northio Palace announced midnight shows for Saturdays, showing the current week's double bill and the two features booked to open the next day—four pictures for 28 cents, seven cents apiece, with shorts and whatnot thrown in.

Mrs. Exhibitor, do you have husband trouble?

Pardon me, but . . .

Are You One of the 84% of 35,000 Wives I have questioned personally who are sore because your husband always waits to clean up until dinner is on the table?

Are You A Delicatessen Widow, forced to wait at home in a lonely kitchen while your husband squanders the family budget at the corner delicatessen?

Are You One of the 64% of the 35,000 Women I questioned personally who wants to brain her husband on account of he thinks he's a Mechanical Genius Around the House?

Ahhhhhh . . . I thought so. Then let me advise you right now to put your foot down and make him book my first Paramount release immediately. It will make a new man of him . . . a happier one, too. For his box office will be absolutely mobbed by what I like to call my fans.

LOEW REPORTS NEWSPAPER ADS SIX TIMES BETTER THAN DIRECT PLAN

Doob Reports Directory Campaign in New York Success After Three Months' Test; Now Running in Seven Dailies

Loew's has concluded a three-month test of newspaper advertising versus direct mail as a medium for reaching the most persons satisfactorily, and reports the campaign media a success, after having used direct mail for 21 years.

The company abandoned direct-mail and theatre distribution of its programs in its 70 neighborhood theatres in the New York metropolitan area last July, in favor of a movie directory in daily and Sunday New York newspapers. It reports the new system working satisfactorily, and anticipates that it will be continued indefinitely.

Doob Sees Results Favorable

Oscar A. Doob, director of advertising and publicity for Loew's, said "We are satisfied with the results of the directory as a successor to the former method of distributing information about our shows by direct mail. While the changeover was something of an experiment, the results, so far as we can ascertain, have been favorable, and, therefore, we are inclined to continue it."

Mr. Doob pointed out the difficulty in tracing tangible results from the change, and said only general results could be used to measure the efficiency of the directory. Slight improvement of business, this year, over last year, he added, cannot be directly traced to the change in advertising media, and might be due to many other factors such as improved product, the weather, better economic conditions, or others.

The $325,000 annually spent for the bulletin is now being invested in newspaper advertising in the metropolitan papers. This is in addition to the $100,000 a year previously spent for neighborhood theatre newspaper space, and $500,000 for Loew's downtown, first-run houses. Mr. Doob said "our present newspaper schedule quadruples the amount of space we previously used, and brings us nearly six times the circulation we reached with the weekly bulletin... at no extra cost. And we 'contact' that circulation six or seven times a week instead of once. We are convinced," he added, "that newspapers are doing a swell job."

Loew's ads appear every day, in space ranging from 250 to 450 lines, two columns wide. Other New York circuits have since inaugurated newspaper film directories of their own, and still others are said to be contemplating similar plans.

One of the aims expected to be achieved by adopting the daily directory was to decrease the volume of telephone calls to the circuit's theatres. Regarding this, Mr. Doob said:

"There has been a noticeable decrease in the number of telephone calls since we inaugurated our Movie-Guide in the daily and Sunday newspapers. We haven't kept a check on the number of calls, but we do know that there has been a decrease.

"We have observed, too, that the type of question asked by the telephone inquirer of our theatre attaches has changed. Heretofore, they used to ask, 'What are you playing?' Now, they ask, 'What time does the feature go on?'

Mr. Doob made it clear that the $400,000 formerly earmarked for the printing, mailing and distribution of Loew's Weekly, had been transferred to the advertising appropriation for the Movie-Guide, and that the change had not been made for reasons of economy.

The only claim to novelty which Loew's directory may have, said the circuit executive, is that it attempts to inject humor into its copy, in an effort to avert a dry-as-dust or "wooden" style.

In a recent contest to ascertain how the directory could increase its value to newspaper readers and Loew's patrons, 1,000 letters were received. Many of the letters described why they preferred the directory over other media and suggested ways of improving it.

An outgrowth of these recommendations is the inclusion in the directory of play dates, except where it would create confusion. Mr. Doob pointed out a surprising lack of information, on the part of movie patrons, as revealed in the contest, about a theatre's policy, even though it might have been effective a long time.

Dozens of letters, received, he said, indicated that the directory should include play dates and specify when a new show is to open.

Loew's Weekly reached a circulation of approximately 750,000 late this summer, just prior to the launching of the new directory. Some 375,000 to 400,000 of the programs were mailed every week, the balance being distributed in the circuit's theatres. Three years ago, about 1,200,000 copies of Loew's Weekly were distributed weekly.

The weekly was abandoned when Loew's officials reached the conclusion that the program was not justifying its expense. The first Movie-Guide appeared in the Journal-American August 1st.

Other newspapers followed, until now the directory is carried in every daily and Sunday newspaper in New York, except the Herald-Tribune. The "city zone" circulation of the New York papers, upon which Loew officials based their calculations, follow:

Daily News	1,458,000
Mirror	565,000
Times	291,000
Post	210,000
Sun	242,000
World-Telegram	365,000
Journal-American	479,000

This provides a "city-zone" circulation total of 3,610,000, upon which Loew's Circuit theatres draw their business, according to Loew's executives.

The "city-zone" circulation of the New York Sunday newspapers follows:

News	1,968,000
Mirror	535,000
Times	287,000
Journal-American	433,000

It was reported that the circuit signed 100,000 line minimum contracts with each of the New York newspapers. A new "directory advertising" rate, lower than existing amusement rates, was created for the Movie-Guide.

Due to space limitations of the ads, time schedules are not included. Many patrons emphasize the need for this information. Consideration of this problem is being given and a solution is expected shortly. Copy in current advertising, recognizing the demand for more detailed information on play dates, includes this data, although not as completely as in the discarded programs.

Since the advent of Loew's Movie-Guide, Skouras theatres has also adopted a movie directory. RKO has increased its space considerably, also, and is using a directory type of advertisement in the dailies. Donahue and Coe, Inc., advertising agency with offices in Radio City, is handling the directory account for Loew's.

PITTSBURGH PLANS MARQUEE BAN

The Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce this week renewed its petition to the City Council to prohibit theatre marquees so that all are dismantled by 1943. The petition also envisages the ban of all lighted street signs.

Dr. James H. Greene, representing the organization said: "The whole question is whether we are going to make the downtown look like Times Square or like Fifth Avenue in New York." Supporting the move are the Building Owners and Managers' Association and the Downtown Business Mens Association.

Objectors are: the Electrical Workers and Sign Painters Unions, various sign manufacturers, a hotel manager, unnamed, and Councilman Edward Leonard.

Delay Action on Use of "Star" Symbols

Whether the ban against further use of star symbols in exploiting pictures playing in Broadway theatres, would be renewed by a "gentlemen's agreement" concurred in last week by advertising and publicity directors of seven major companies hinges upon the decision of Robert M. Gillham, Paramount advertising chief, who was expected back from a Florida vacation, on Friday, this week.

Mr. Gillham was reported willing to discontinue the practice if the Rivoli and Globe Theatres do likewise.

Reaffirmation of the agreement took place last week at a meeting of the advertising and publicity executives in the MPPDA office in New York. Absence of Mr. Gillham, who was out of town, left the situation unchanged, however, since the Rivoli, not a party to the agreement, renewed use of the symbols. The Globe Theatre, also, is not a party to the agreement.

Executive in charge of operation of the Rivoli and Globe Theatres could not be reached for comment.

In the New York Times November 8, the Paramount Theatre featured the four-star symbols in an advertisment on "North West Mounted Police."

Directors of MPDDA, on the same day, deferred action, after discussing the proposed ban, pending the return from the coast of Barney Balaban, Paramount president.

Meanwhile, Loew's, a party to the original pact in force since 1935, threatened to scrap the agreement in its city-wide circuit advertising if the other theatres did not desist.

COLUMBIA TO TUCSON FOR 'ARIZONA', MGM RETURNING 'GWTW' TO ATLANTA

Columbia Picture Premiere Friday to Climax Week of Festivities; "North West" Sets Records; Demonstrate "Sonovox"

Not immediate, yet strident in the continuing procession of news anent world premieres and special attention to showmanship in the field was the news this week that MGM's "Gone With the Wind" will have a second, a "general release world premiere" in Atlanta, on December 12th one year after its advanced admission opening. The news emanated from the company's New York home office, which also noted that the film would start its popular price showings in January, and reiterated that its running time would not be reduced from three hours and 45 minutes.

Meanwhile, more immediate in the never ending chronicling of openings, were the world premiere of Walt Disney's "Fantasia" and the Radio Corporation of America's "Fantasound" (see pages 21 and 40) at the Broadway Theatre, New York, on Wednesday evening, before a "full dress crowd," the opening of Columbia's "Arizona" in Tucson, Friday evening, after much radio ballyhooing, and with the attendance of stars, newspapermen, and state and Federal officials, in four theatres; more pre-release engagements of Paramount's "North West Mounted Police," etc.

"Arizona" in Tucson

In Tucson, Arizona, the State, Rialto, Lyric, Fox and Temple of Music theatres were sold out for the world premiere, on Friday, of Columbia's "Arizona." All the mayors of the state, and the Governors of six adjacent states have been invited. There will be local celebrations, personal appearances by cast members, and a broadcast of the Kate Smith Hour over the Columbia Broadcasting System network from Tucson, with Jean Arthur of the picture, broadcasting.

A special train was to transport some 250 newspaper and magazine writers, stars, and the company's executives from Hollywood. Delegations were expected from El Paso, Phoenix, and other cities.

Governor R. T. ("Bob") Jones issued a proclamation designating the entire week as Pioneer Week in Arizona, and urging every citizen of the state to re-dedicate himself to the "glorious tradition of the pioneers." The schools will be closed Friday.

Jean Arthur, star of the picture, will make personal appearances at all theatres, and Charles Ruggles, of the cast, and brother of producer-director Wesley Ruggles, will be master of ceremonies.

On the day of the premiere the festivities were scheduled to start at one minute after midnight Thursday with the Clock Ceremony at the Tucson Court House. Governor Jones, Mayor Jaastad and Miss Arthur were to turn back the hands of a giant calendar clock from the present to 1860, the time of the picture's action, and the Mayor proclaimed the town to be "as of 1860" for the following 48 hours.

A parade to the site of the all-night Menudo Party and Barbecue was to follow. Receptions and parades were to continue through the day with the festivities to be climaxed by the premiere of the picture at the theatres.

SEES NEED OF STATE THEATRE

The salvation of the legitimate theatre lies in the establishment of a state theatre, Eddie Cook said in Atlanta this week. Mr. Cook, in Atlanta for the showing of John Golden's "Skylark", starring Gertrude Lawrence, said the legitimate theatre in the United States was a forgotten art.

"We have made provisions for art collections and literature," he said, but have done nothing about promoting the future of live actors on the local stages. The stage teaches English but we have forgotten that. We've forgotten that the present generation has never received the benefits of the performances of Bernhardt and the other great actors and actresses. We have become a people of boiled hams insofar as the appreciation of the theatre is concerned."

Saturday was to be devoted to guided tours of old Tucson.

Among other members of the cast expected to attend were Porter Hall, Warren William, Regis Toomey, Paul Harvey, Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, Paul Lukas, Jack Holt, Johnny Mack Brown, Fay Wray, and Guy Kibbee.

Additionally to the Kate Smith broadcast, other radio programs which will plug the picture are the "Vox Pop" and "Hollywood Whispers." The former will originate in Tucson on the evening preceding the premiere, with Wally Butterworth and Parks Johnson interviewing cast members.

Executives of Columbia started leaving New York for Tucson, on Monday. Expected in attendance, among these are Harry and Jack Cohn, president and vice-president respectively; Abe Montague and Rube Jackter, Nate Spingold, Louis Weinberg, Louis Astor, Max Weisfeldt.

Demonstrate "Sonovox"

On Monday evening, at a cocktail party on the Starlight Roof of the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, Gilbert Wright, son of novelist Harold Bell Wright, and Kay Kyser, star of the new RKO film, "You'll Find Out," demonstrated the "Sonovox," of which Mr. Wright is the inventor. The demonstration was a prelude to the opening of the picture at the Roxy Theatre, in New York on Thursday. The "Sonovox" is used in the picture. It consists of two metal cases applicable externally to the throat, connected with, and activated by, electrical apparatus, and the effect of which is to enable a person, who moves his lips in the typical motions used to produce words, to "speak" those words in the tone of whatever musical or non-musical instrument is being carried and emitted by the electrical apparatus.

It was predicted one of the chief applications would be the production of films in foreign languages. It was shown that while one voice may be talking English on a sound track, another person, moving his lips in another language, may duplicate the message for another sound track, in the original voice tone.

On December 12th, evening, exactly one year after its world premiere, David O. Selznick's "Gone With the Wind" will return to Atlanta, MGM, its distributor, announced in New York City this week. The theatre will be the Loew's Grand; the opening will highlight the general release of the film in January, at popular prices; and proceeds of the special premiere will go to a charity designated by Atlanta officials. Reports from that city this week indicated that the British War Relief Fund might be the main beneficiary.

The film will play at the theatre for a limited time. The opening may be attended, as was last year's, by some film stars. It will certainly be attended by many of the city's notables; and, it was rumored, perhaps by the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Mayor Hartsfield, a citizens' committee, and MGM exploitation men are arranging a special program of "events" to accompany the "general release premiere."

There will be no cut in the film's running time, the distributing company has announced. The running time is three hours and 45 minutes.

"North West" Sets Records

Meanwhile, Paramount's "North West Mounted Police" set boxoffice records at the New York and Hollywood Paramount theatres, as the company continued its local premiere ballyhoo celebrations, and announced that national release would be on December 27th instead of November 21st, because of the many-pre-release engagement requests.

In its first week at the New York Paramount, the picture brought in $74,000. This is, by more than $3,000, the best business the theatre has rung up since it began its stage-screen policy five years ago. In Hollywood, the film grossed $30,000.

The Paramount field sales force has been advised not to allow the picture to be booked between December 14th and 25th, so that it will not suffer from the usual pre-holiday slump.

The picture opened at the Colonial Theatre, Richmond, Thursday, November 7th, with a personal appearance by Preston Foster, Paramount star, and his introduction to the theatre audience by James H. Price, Governor of Virginia. Other appurtenances to the opening were a press luncheon, radio appearances, a procession through the streets, and a banquet.

Charles Chaplin's United Artists release, "The Great Dictator," has played 111 weeks in its first 40 engagements, the distributor announced in New York this week.

Warner Brothers' "All This and Heaven, Too," was scheduled to open in Brazil on Friday. Theatres are the Odeon and San Luiz in Rio de Janeiro, and the Rosario and Bandeirantes theatres, Sao Paulo. It will be the first four theatre premiere in South American history.

"Sante Fe" Plans

The same company is planning another one of those local "world premieres" which will use all of a region's exploitation resources, for December 14th to 16th, in Santa Fe, New Mexico. Picture to be released there is "Santa Fe Trail." Three theatres will be used; tickets will be $2.20 top; Errol Flynn and other Warner stars will appear.

Warner Brothers' "The Letter" was to open for a pre-release engagement at the Fox theatre, San Francisco, Thursday.

Monogram's "Take Me Back to Oklahoma" will have a world premiere at Tulsa, that state, Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday. Tex Ritter, star, will appear, and participate in local celebrations.

Oregon Votes Down Games Amendment

A proposed constitutional amendment in Oregon, which would have legalized Bank Night, Bingo and other games, was defeated Election Day by two to one. Proponents had made a deliberate play for theatre support by including Bank Night. However, pin games as well as punchboards would have been legalized had the vote been favorable.

Illegal in Pennsylvania

In an important decision, the Pennsylvania State superior court last week ruled that Bank Night in theatres is illegal. The high court upheld a decision of the Beaver County courts against J. C. Lund, who operates two houses in Aliquippa and was convicted last March for setting up and operating a lottery. He was fined $500 and appealed the court's findings, contending the lottery element was ruled out since some patrons attended the drawings on passes and had the same chance of winning as those paying a regular admission.

Reserve Decision in Ohio

The Ohio supreme court has heard arguments and taken under advisement the case of Troy Amusement Company, Troy, appealed from the common pleas and appellate courts, both of which have ruled that Bank Night is a lottery.

The original suit was filed by Andrew Attenweiler, a taxpayer, seeking judgment for $500 exemplary damages, plus $10 admission refund over a stipulated period, and asking that Bank Night at the Mayflower in Troy be discontinued on the ground that it violates the Ohio lottery law. The defense contended that no element of lottery was involved. The decision will have a far reaching effect, since it is expected to establish a precedent in Ohio, where similar cases attacking the constitutionality of Bank Night are being held in abeyance pending outcome of the Troy case.

The game Lucky, as played in the Stoneham theatre, Stoneham, Mass., has been adjudged a lottery, according to a Massachusetts supreme judiciary court decision upholding a fine of $10 on William McLaughlin, theatre owner. The police made a complaint against the theatre last May in a test case.

Bingo has been restored to the Bahn Frei hall, Milwaukee, against which Charles L. Aarons, circuit judge, as the result of action brought by Charles W. Trampe, Milwaukee exhibitor, issued an injunction November 2, 1939. His ruling was sustained by the State supreme court in January and he had suspended Bingo until its leasing recently to the Grand Army of the Republic Drum Corps, which is conducting weekly games at the hall.

Police called the attention of the violation of the injunction to Herbert J. Steffes, district attorney, who in turn referred the matter to Judge Aarons. The latter said that it is up to the district attorney and not the court to institute action against the operators of the hall.

Restored to Former Status

Bingo has been restored to its former status in Middletown, Ohio, and will for the present, continue unmolested through a temporary injunction granted the St. John Church by P. P. Boli, common pleas judge.

The action is a sequel to a similar procedure instituted previously by Northio theatres, which obtained a temporary restraining order in common pleas court to prevent police interference with Sweepstakes at the Paramount theatre in Middleton.

Both Sweepstakes and Bingo were discontinued when a City Council ordinance, making operation of the games illegal.

Paramount Studio, Distribution and Theatre Executives Confer on Coast

PARAMOUNT studio, home office and distribution executives and the company's theatre partners were conferring this week in Hollywood about problems in production, distribution and exhibition created by the U. S. trust suit consent decree and adjustments which must be made in operations under the decree, and the future of television.

The coast conference, described by Paramount as the beginning of "the most important series of executive meetings to be held on the west coast" in the company's history, opened Monday with Neil Agnew, vice-president in charge of sales, presiding at a meeting of theatre representatives at the Ambassador Hotel and Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, and William LeBaron, production executive, conferring with home office executives at the studio on product remaining on this season's schedule.

Continuing Tuesday, the conference was adjourned for dinner and reconvened for a session that ran into the night, preventing all save Mr. Freeman from attending a scheduled test preview of "Love Thy Neighbor" at San Diego.

Wednesday morning at 9:00 the third meeting was called to order in the studio's new conference room with all 'phone communications cut off, luncheon ordered sent in and another night session in prospect as indications that effects of the consent decree had become the principal topic of discussion, mounted.

Saturday was to see the departure of a small contingent whose affairs necessitated their presence elsewhere, but the meetings were to continue over the weekend and into next week.

Mr. Freeman was to be host to visiting and studio executives for dinner on Friday at Ciro's Restaurant.

Those attending the conferences include Barney Balaban, president; Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee: Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board; Russell Holman, production head in New York; Paul Raibourne, Leon Netter, Claude Lee, Sam Dembow, Leonard Goldenson, Robert Weitman; also the following theatre partners: M. A. Lichtman, John Balaban, Robert O'Donnell, Ralph Branton, J. J. Fitzgibbons, E. J. Hudson, Sam Pinanski, M. J. Mullins, J. J. Friedl, Tracy Barham, Harry David, Harry Neece and J. P. Rubens.

Stopping off at Chicago last weekend, en route to the coast conferences, the Paramount partners exchanged ideas on efforts and campaigns to be used in "The Barney Balaban Drive". Operating methods and policies of Balaban & Katz in Chicago were considered. John Balaban was one of the principal speakers.

U.S. TALKS WITH COAST UNIONS ON LABOR ACT

Wage-Hour Reclassification of Studio Workers Continuing; Extras Vote on Limitations

Continuing his talks with Hollywood labor groups and executives, the aim of which is to clarify for them the recent reclassification of workers by the Federal Wage-Hour Act Administration, E. M. Cocking, Los Angeles regional administrator, met on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday with representatives of the studio locals of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees. Following this, he was scheduled to meet with others next week.

Meanwhile, also in Hollywood, the Screen Actors Guild board of directors announced a forthcoming referendum among extra players. They are to vote on their standing committee's recommendations that the number of extras be limited, that there should be priority in casting calls for players of more experience, and that the Central Casting Corporation should handle all casting.

Harry Mayo has become chairman of the guild's Class B Council, which governs extras' affairs.

Publicists Guild Negotiating

In the East, the New York unit of the Screen Publicists' Guild continued pressure for a closed shop contract in the home offices of the major companies. Representatives of all film companies except Universal met with guild counsel at the headquarters of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America November 8th.

Pat Casey, producers' labor contact, attended the meeting. Mr. Casey left New York for the Coast over the weekend, having spent two weeks on otherwise undisclosed business.

The publicists' guild last week was assured the support of the American Newspaper Guild, by Jack Ryan, organizer for the latter.

New contracts, renewed contracts, wage adjustments, elections of officers and the like in projectionists' unions fill the labor news columns this week.

In St. Louis, about 50 members of the Local 143 have received approximately $15,000 in back wages from the St. Louis Amusement Company circuit, under an amendment to a wage contract lately made. The circuit operates 24 houses.

The same local has renewed a two-year agreement with the city's independent operators. This renewal does not provide a wage increase.

The United Theatrical and Motion Picture Service Employees Union has won a New York State Labor Relations Board bargaining agency election held last week at the Venus, Graham, and Radio theatres in Brooklyn, the board announced on Friday, November 8th.

In Chicago, the projectionists have agreed to a new contract, which provides minor adjustments at some theatres, generally no change in wages, and omits the vacation provisions the union had asked.

Theatre operators of Hammond, East Chicago, Indiana Harbor, and Whiting, in Indiana, last week rejected projectionists' demands for more money, and vacations with pay. There were to be more conferences between the two factions.

That the new 44-hour week law be made effective in Cuba's theatres was asked of that country's Secretary of Labor last week by the Confederation of Workers.

In Pittsburgh, the City Council is considering an ordinance which would require licensing of projectionists operating any type motion picture machine. The proposal is being assailed as an attempt to force membership in the projectionists' union even upon persons operating a home machine. It is being defended as a check on subversive or immoral pictures, and as a regulator of proper film projection.

The ordinance would require amateur projectionists to serve as apprentices under licensed amateurs for six months, pass a city examination, and pay a $2 fee.

Negotiations Halt Stage Show

Three stage shows at the Loew's State, Cleveland, were never put on, the circuit officials stated last week, because the musicians' union asked a 20-week contract, and refused a compromise which would have given 10 weeks employment. They added that vaudeville probably would not be presented this winter. One of the projected shows was transferred to Columbus.

William Finegan has been reelected business manager of the city's stagehands' local. He heads the city's Federation of Labor. John B. Fitzgerald was reelected president of the local.

Other officers reelected are: John Zitello, vice-president; Clarence Gugle, secretary-treasurer; Jerry Goodman, sergeant-at-arms; William Ables, Robert Potts, Delbert Mulcahy, Zish Shiffer, and John Underwood, executive board.

The Milwaukee Building Service Employees Union, No. 150, has signed a three-year contract affecting janitors in the city's theatres. Janitors received an immediate five cents per hour wage increase, and are to receive a boost of two and one-half cents per hour on October 1st, 1941, and a similar increase the same date in 1942.

The Philadelphia Film Exchange Employees Union has nominated officers for the December 13th elections. Nominees are: For President, Harry O. Cohan, Harry Dressler, James A. Flynn, and William Z. Porter; for vice-president, Fred Fortunate, and James McWilliams; for secretary, Mollie Cohen, and Mr. McWilliams; for treasurer, Marie Hause; and for business agent, Messrs. Cohan and Flynn.

Nominations for officers of the city's musicians' union, Local 77, have also been made, for elections also to be held on December 13th. Charles McConnell and Frank P. Liuzzi will run for president; Romeo Cella and Ralph Kirsch, for vice-president; A. Rex Riccardi and Lewis Ingber, and Glen Coolidge, for secretary. Joe Bossle is unopposed for treasurer.

To Demand Purge

The American Federation of Labor, meeting in New Orleans next week, expects to hear demands from one of its strongest internationals, the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, that it purge itself of criminals. It is anticipated that cases during the past year, in which officers of some locals and internationals have been denounced, convicted, and sentenced, because of present or past criminalities, will be recalled; and that, among these, will be the instances of Willie Bioff, West Coast IATSE leader, who served out the remainder of a six months jail term in Chicago, originally imposed in 1922, and of John P. "Big" Nick and Clyde Weston, deposed president and business agent, respectively, of the St. Louis projectionists' union, Local 143, who two months ago were convicted in that city's Federal court of racketeering, fined $10,000 each, and sentenced to five years in prison.

Lipton Appointed Columbia Ad Head

David A. Lipton, Universal studio publicity manager, has been appointed advertising and publicity manager for Columbia, succeeding Maurice Bergman, who resigned to become advertising manager at Twentieth Century-Fox.

Mr. Lipton, who was in New York last week conferring with Columbia home office officials, has returned to the coast to wind up his affairs at the Universal studio preparatory to taking over his new post January 2d. His resignation at Universal becomes effective December 14th. He will spend the intervening two weeks in the Columbia studio to coordinate plans with Lou Smith, Columbia studio publicity director.

Mr. Lipton was associated with Balaban & Katz in Chicago in publicity capacities for several years, was publicity representative for Sally Rand and Major Edward Bowes and was associated with the Universal home office publicity department before going to the coast as studio publicity manager under John Joseph, Universal advertising and publicity director.

Mr. Bergman will assume his new post of advertising manager under Charles E. McCarthy, head of advertising and publicity, on December 2d.

National Decency Legion Classifies 10 Pictures

Of 10 pictures classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week four were approved for general patronage and six were listed as unobjectionable for adults. The films and their classification follow:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie," "Fugitive from a Prison Camp," "Riders on Black Mountain," "So You Won't Talk." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Charter Pilot," "Lady with the Red Hair," "Magic in Music," "Mark of Zorro," "Moon Over Burma," "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?"

Kirkley Said It

Remarks made recently anent the producer and censors, and reproduced in the MOTION PICTURE HERALD of November 9th, page 29, under the heading "Wisconsin Newspaper Critic Charges Game of Tag with Censors," originated in the column "Film Notes" by Donald Kirkley in the Baltimore Sun. They were used, in quotation, by Sterling Sorenson, in the Capitol Times, Madison, Wisconsin, and were reproduced as such in the HERALD. The two are film critics for their papers.

"Wrath" Award

A plaque, signifying that the company had made the best film from a book this past year, was presented to Nunnally Johnson, of Twentieth Century Fox, Friday evening, November 7th, at the Book Ball, Manhattan Center, New York City, by J. Donald Adams, editor of the New York Times Book review section. Mr. Adams represented the judges, in a competition sponsored by the Book and Magazine Guild, under whose sponsorship the ball was held, and by the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Another new dimension in motion picture presentation was introduced the other night, at the Vogue theatre in Detroit, when "for the first time anywhere," 'Dramatic Zephyrs' were added to the projection of a motion picture.

"Dramatic Zephyrs" are 'perfumes' which are wafted into the auditorium to match the action being depicted on the screen. Why they call 'em 'Dramatic Zephyrs' was not explained. Some persons call them "smellies."

Following four years of experimentation by the Aromatix Company, of Detroit, the device introduces suitable atmospheres for outdoors, waterfronts, forests, night clubs, flowers, fruits, food, etc. The possibilities seem limitless.

Bob Griffith, the other day, presented "Adrienne—International Psychic," at his Lex theatre, on East 63rd Street, Chicago. He invited the neighborhood to test Adrienne's "sensational prophecies" of present and future. One patron asked, "Where did my mother-in-law put her savings?" Adrienne answered another question, "Will I suffer any evil consequences from a visit I made last night?" with a pert "No, because there were two doors."

Liquor, beer, cafe and cocktail lounge advertisements appear frequently in the columns of the current issue of the Screen Actors Guild Magazine in Hollywood, as they do in so many magazines of the day. Tucked neatly among them was one cheery commercial message, inserted by the Hygeia Sanatorium, announcing: "Complete facilities for care and hospitalization in treatment of ALCOHOLISM. Confidential, understanding."

The recent arrival of Buddy De Sylva's new musical, "Panama Hattie," on Broadway, brought with it the story of the Hollywood beginnings of little Joan Carroll, who was imported from the film city for the purpose.

Seems that Joan, believed to be a certain follower in the footsteps of successful Shirley Temple, was sent to Fox's Darryl Zanuck for an interview. Zanuck had been told much, beforehand, of the "new find," of her strong histrionic capabilities at such a young age. The producer saw her, was probably impressed, when the child pulled one of her favorite jokes —she coughed, sputtered, clutched her throat and groaned: "Guess I'll have to give up cigarettes." Zanuck, in rage, they say, roared that somebody was trying to put over a midget on him.

Did you ever see the gold watch which John Hay (Jock) Whitney gave to producer David Selznick, shortly after the release of "Gone With the Wind," the picture in which Whitney and Selznick participated, so profitably, as sponsoring partners? The timepiece bears the inscription, in Whitney's handwriting: "David—Xmas. Praise de Lawd. Jock."

COMPETITION WHAT IS COMPETITION

Many a saloon has stood on each of the four corners of a street intersection, but we've never seen, nor even heard of four theatres, one standing smack in competition to the others on any four corners of any street intersection.

To Oklahoma City goes the distinction of having the Reno, the Isis, the Pix and the Gaiety theatres standing on each of the four corners of where South Robinson Street meets Reno Street. And they're all owned and operated by Griffith Amusement Company!

The four houses "eat up" 22 feature pictures a week, some 1,114 annually. Each charges 15 cents; each uses double bills, except the Gaiety, where a single feature and a tabloid musical comedy is the policy.

Rudolph Smith, operator of the Royal theater at Mountain View, Okla., sells tickets and operates the projection machine in his theater at the same time. His cashier goes home at 9 P. M. every evening and patrons who wish to be admitted to the Royal after that time knock on the locked door and Smith lowers a string with a clothespin attached to one end down to the patron in the lobby. The patron puts his money between the jaws of the clothespin, Smith pulls it back up into the booth and then lowers a ticket in the clothespin.

Straight from Hollywood, where he spent the night before with a vacuum cleaner on his neck, Richard Arlen arrived in Oklahoma City, the other evening for the Oklahoma City Chamber of Commerce "heads-up" week and festivities.

Arlen appeared to be anything but festive.

"This is the longest I've gone without sleep in my life," he said. "Forty-eight hours!

"The studio said they wanted to finish my new picture, 'Who Killed Doc Robbin?' They wanted to introduce a new scene in it. A vacuum cleaner catches my tie and chokes me to death!

"I spent the last night there on the floor with a vacuum cleaner on my neck, with sound effects . . . 'Eeeeeek!'"

"What a way to make a living," he observed, "with a vacuum cleaner on my neck, saying 'Eeeeek!'"

Arlen reported he still is making pictures but he finds aviation is taking more and more of his time. He operates the Arlen-Probert Aviation Corporation with a partner, and is interested, through his company, in instruction, charter work and other lines in aviation.

"We're working on this pickup mail service now," he reported. "We hope to get the contract." This service involves picking up airmail from smaller cities by means of hooks on a plane, which grab mail sacks as the pilot flies by, like the pickups by express trains.

And speaking of the mixed opinions on the future, as expressed after last week's election, we borrow the observation of Mr. McLandburgh Wilson, who once remarked: "Twixt optimist and pessimist the difference is droll; the optimist sees the doughnut, and the pessimist sees the hole."

When the silence was finally broken, U.A. exploitation general Monroe Greenthal inquired, 'And what's the connection?' John Joseph O'Connor, RKO vice president in charge of theatres, in New York, has been presented with the rosary of the late Patrick Cardinal Hayes. Monsignor Vincent Arcese, in charge of St. Joseph's Boys Camp, at Monticello, New York, who made the presentation to Mr. O'Connor, said that the rosary was in the Cardinal's hands when he died, two years ago.

For years, Mr. O'Connor has been supplying the youngsters at the camp—which was a favorite of the Cardinal's—with weekly screen shows. The other Sunday afternoon, the RKO Circuit executive, stopped off at the place. It was then that the Monsignor bestowed the gift.

HOLLYWOOD TURNING TO ORIGINALS FOR STORY MATERIAL SURVEY SHOWS

Trend Apparent Despite Occasional Purchases of Outstanding Plays and Books; Increase of Series Films Is Influence

Harassed by a war now threatening to engulf all of Asia Minor as well as Europe and Africa, Hollywood's studios are more than ever putting pressure on their story editors to concentrate on original scripts tailored to domestic entertainment needs of the moment and to the talents of individual players.

From 1935 through 1940 seven major companies purchased 1,135 original stories, compared to 319 novels, 222 plays and 174 magazine tales, the other principal classifications. Although, during the period, producing companies bought comic strips, radio programs and other sources of material, their numerical total is negligible, accounting for only two per cent of the 1,850 properties acquired.

While westerns are not included in the canvass, they are, of course, almost always originals, that group contributing 59 per cent of the total, novels 17 per cent, plays 13 and magazine stories nine.

Although the sale of important literary and dramatic works to the industry continues as always, as in the case of Paramount's recent purchase of Ernest Hemingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" at a price in excess of $100,000, and while Hollywood is also making many pictures of the anti-Nazi type based on books such as "Escape," since it considers the European market dead anyhow, originals bid fair to be even more important this season and next than at any previous time.

One reason for this is the large number of series pictures now being made, with this type story creating more than 10 per cent of all product from the majors for the 1940-41 season. While these films are typically based on a character or situation already familiar to the public through previous appearance in another form, the continuing screen versions are almost invariably original stories written "to order" around the central character or theme.

Additionally, pictures are now being made with an eye to hemisphere, rather than world wide, audience consumption. Pictures patently designed to appeal to South as well as North Americans are currently much in favor with the production community, one of the latest being the original now being written on the ilfe of Simon Bolivar by Dore Schary for MGM. And Cecil B. DeMille's "North West Mounted Police," also an original screen play, was not without its appeal designed for Canadian theatres.

An analysis of each studio's purchases, from 1935 on, follows. In some cases the breakdown is in terms of the fiscal, in others the film year. Paramount led during the period with 342 properties bought, representing almost 20 per cent of the total. Warners was next with 339, followed by RKO with 324, MGM with 241, Twentieth Century-Fox with 204, Universal with 199 and Columbia with 191.

U. S. PRODUCT REPLACING FRENCH FILMS IN CANADA

French Population Urged to Learn English; City Censor Post Abolished by Montreal

The lack of new French product and developments in international affairs coupled with the fact that French Canadians, who have strongly supported French pictures because of their persistent use of the French tongue, now are being urged by their own leaders to learn English has made new audiences available for U. S. product.

The French Canadians, who have isolated themselves with their patois, have been told by newspapers and speakers that they must use English and that they must adopt eye and ear methods of catching up on the English language if they are to take their places in commerce and industry.

Abolish Censor Post

The Montreal city council executive committee has decided to abolish the post of city motion picture censor left vacant by the death last week of Joseph Philias Filion, noted character actor. Salary pertaining to the post was $2,800 a year.

A meeting of the Film Section of the Toronto Board of Trade has been called for Tuesday for consideration of the whole clearance board situation, probably with the film exchanges included. Three delegates from the circuits and three delegates from the independents will attend.

Copyright Trouble Looms

Copyright trouble looms for the broadcasting studios of Canada in the intimation from the Canadian Performing Rights Society that the schedule of fees for use of the many compositions controlled by the society will be increased January 1st, providing the increase receives the approval of the Copyright Appeal Board of the Dominion Government which will hold a hearing after December 1st.

The society has advised the film industry that no change is contemplated in the scale of fees to be collected from Canadian theatres in 1941 for performing rights but a battle appears to be in the making in connection with the use of copyrighted music by the broadcasters, which include not only the independent stations but the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. The latter comes under the jurisdiction of the Federal Department of Transport, hence the Dominion Government may appear to have a direct interest in prospective developments.

The Canadian Society is affiliated with the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers but for some time, it had been believed generally that the threat of trouble in the States would not spread to Canada. There had even been the promise that Canadian stations would be able to continue the use of popular and classical compositions which might be dropped by U. S. stations because of differences with ASCAP. The statement had been made that "Canadian stations are separately licensed and will continue to use any and all musical numbers except in international exchange programs. This may give Canadian stations an increased number of United States listeners unless matters are straightened out. Some U.S. programs may even seek time on border stations in Canada to cover the northern states."

The Canadian broadcasters now find themselves in the same boat with the U. S. networks and it has been implied that a Canadian branch of Broadcast Music, Inc., may be formed to provide material for the studios independent of the society's extensive repertoire. The zero hour in the Canadian situation will be reached December 1st when the society is required by regulations to file its proposed rates for the coming year with the Copyright Appeal Board. This application, incidentally, will probably give an inkling of ASCAP demands on U. S. networks for 1941. The independent stations are organizing for the fray under the direction of Harry Sedgwick, head of Station CFRB, Toronto, who, at one time, was general manager of Famous Players Canadian Corporation.

All theatre managers of London, Ontario, have become members of the London Theatres Association, with W. K. Trudell of the Capitol, a circuit theatre, as chairman, and Jack Whitehouse, manager of the Centre, independent, as secretary.

The first moves of the organization, which is the first of its kind in the Dominion, was to clear up the charity appeal situation and to obtain a daily film section in the local newspaper, the Free Press, the display advertisements being moved from the obituary page. Local exhibitors had been swamped with requests for cooperation from all types of welfare and patriotic societies but now every application for theatre help is being passed upon by the managers as a body.

The industry in Toronto, through its special campaign committees, headed by Gordon Lightstone for the exchanges and N. A. Taylor for the theatres, has handed over more than $23,000 in cash subscriptions as a result of the campaign of the Red Cross Society of Canada. Colonel John A. Cooper, president of the Ontario Branch of the Society, accepted the donations which were handled by the Motion Picture War Services Committee, of which N. L. Nathanson is president.

Equipment Dealers Form Association

The Theatre Equipment Dealers Protective Association has been formed in Chicago with H. W. Graham of Graham Brothers Theatre Equipment, Denver, chairman-secretary.

The dealers who formed the association represent an annual sales volume of $8,000,000 in theatre equipment and supplies and an invested capital of $2,000,000 in their respective states situated in film centers.

The purpose of the association is for the "mutual protection and improvement of this industry and a central point where all grievances against the manufacturers can be aired and then steps taken to remedy the situation," according to Joe Goldberg of Joe Goldberg, Inc.

Dues have been set at a figure of $10 yearly for each member. Among those who were present at the forming of the group were Joe Hornstein, New York; Ray Smith, Milwaukee, and Roy Colvin of St. Louis.

Starr Opens Office

Martin Starr, motion picture and theatrical press agent, has opened an office in the Chanin Building in New York. Mr. Starr will do free-lance work, including beauty pageants sponsored by state and city officials.

Indiana Meet Set For November 25

The 14th Annual Convention and Trade Show of the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana, Inc., will be held at the Antlers Hotel, Indianapolis, November 25-26. Originally scheduled for Monday and Tuesday of this week the dates were changed to avoid conflict with Armistice Day.

Myers To Speak

Among the speakers scheduled to address the meeting are Abram F. Meyers, general counsel of national Allied, who will discuss the consent decree and the various phases of it including the "blocks of five" selling plan and the arbitration set-up; Sidney Samuelson of Philadelphia, chairman of national Allied's AID Committee who will give a report on the second national film survey; Troy G. Thurston, president of the Indiana Association of Public Certified Accounts will discuss and answer questions on the new Federal Tax Laws. Also in attendance will be H. M. Richey, in charge of exhibitor relations for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Among those reserving exhibit space are RCA Manufacturing Company, Burch Manufacturing Company, Kroeohler Manufacturing Company, American Seating Company, Confection Cabinet Corporation, Indiana Theatre Equipment Corporation and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

The convention will close with a trade banquet at which time the world premiere of the Indiana-produced color featurette "No Information Please" will be presented. The film was produced at Columbus, Ind., by the Rembusch Productions and features many well known Indiana exhibitors.

Arangements for the convention are being handled by a committee consisting of Marc J. Wolf, chairman; Trueman Rembusch, Ernest L. Miller, Roy E. Harrold and Don R. Rossiter.

Attendance Drive

A theatre attendance drive in the Minneapolis territory is to be undertaken in a campaign sponsored by Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest. Institutional trailers furnished by Alexander Film Company will be circuited through Allied districts as part of the plan.

Virginia MPTO Sets Date

The Winter convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Virginia will be held at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D. C., February 2-3.

Connecticut MPTO To Meet

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Connecticut will meet November 26th at Ceriani's Cafe Mellone, New Haven, with Arthur H. Lockwood presiding.

The Associated Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania, Inc., has elected ex-President M. A. Rosenberg as chairman of the board of directors, to succeed Dr. C. E. Herman.

Norfolk Managers Elect

Roscoe B. Drissell, manager of Loew's State, has been elected president of the Norfolk, Va., Theatres Managers' Association. Stanley Barr, manager of the Colonial, was named secretary and treasurer and a committee consisting of Langhorne Welfor, Copeland Arnoff and Edward Levine were appointed to aid Mr. Drissell in formulating plans for another jamboree to raise money for the organization's annual Christmas Joy Fund. It was decided to hold a Wednesday luncheon meeting weekly until the jamboree.

With only a few scenes yet to be shot, "Kitty Foyle," Christopher Morley's Natural History of a Woman, will soon hit the screens of the country. It's just one of the big ones on the way from RKO Radio, including shows like the smash musical romance, Anna Neagle, in "No, No, Nanette"; Carole Lombard and Robert Montgomery in the Alfred Hitchcock-directed "Mr. and Mrs. Smith"; and Orson Welles, as "Citizen Kane."

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Up Again

Production spurted again this week as nine films were finished, 10 put in work and 37 remained before the cameras. Last week there were six, eight and 36 in the corresponding categories.

Being prepared were 16 pictures, three less than in the previous stanza, and 75 were being edited, three more than in the preceding week.

Warners has announced the annual release of "Teddy, the Rough Rider." The short subject was first released last Washington's birthday in 115 theatres, a new high. A series of test runs made on October 27th last, on Theodore Roosevelt's birthday, indicated its popularity. A new order for prints to be used for the 1941 season has been given.

GRIST FOR THE MILL

As it did the preceding seven days, Hollywood this week bought three stories for filming.

Purchased from galley proofs by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was "Random Harvest", new novel from the typewriter of James Hilton. Already brought to the screen have been Hilton's "Lost Horizon" and "Goodbye, Mr. Chips". The new story deals with the philosophy which led England to war, as opposed to that which might have saved the country from conflict, as illustrated in the careers of two men.

"Unexpected Uncle", an Eric Hatch story recently published as a serial in Liberty magazine, was purchased by RKO Radio. A romantic comedy, the tale chronicles the adventures of an elderly man who poses as a millionaire but who actually lives by his wits.

Warners bought "Night Hawks", an original dealing with young flyers in the R.A.F. by Leonard Hoffman. Mr. Hoffman will do the screen play as well.

Comedy is In

Wars and totalitarian threats are conspicuous by their absence in a large share of MGM product, as a survey this week showed comedy ruling the Culver City lot insofar as winter production is concerned.

Following her role in "Third Finger, Left Hand," Myrna Loy will appear in another farce, "Mr. Co-Ed," with William Powell. "Comrade X," Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr co-starring film, is a comedy about a newspaper man in Russia, while Miss Lamarr's "Come Live With Me," in which she co-stars with James Stewart, is plentifully supplied with comedy, as well.

Then there is the latest of the Marx Brothers pictures, "Go West," scheduled for release shortly, and "The Philadelphia Story," starring Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn and James Stewart, is set for release around Christmas. "Maisie Was a Lady," latest of the Ann Sothern series, is nearing completion, and Frank Morgan's latest, following the recent "Hullabaloo," started last week.

A new series featuring Ann Rutherford and John Shelton is being inaugurated by MGM. The first will be "Keeping Company," with Virginia Weidler. Director will be S. Sylvan Simon.

Winter Peak

With eight pictures, involving the services of 12 stars and 28 featured players, currently before the cameras, Warners is close to top production this week.

Working are "The Wagons Roll at Night," with Humphrey Bogart, Sylvia Sidney, Eddie Albert and Joan Leslie; "Footsteps in the Dark," starring Errol Flynn; "The Case of the Black Parrot," and "Far Horizon," starring Bette Davis and George Brent.

James Cagney and Olivia de Havilland star in "Strawberry Blonde," Edward G. Robinson in "The Sea Wolf." Also on the sound stages are "Father and Son" and "Invitation to a Murder."

Fantasia

(Walt Disney Productions)

Screen Poetry

"Screen poetry" perhaps best describes Walt Disney's "Fantasia."

Other motion pictures have had beautiful and charming scenes and have used color to enhance pictorial effects, but this latest production from the workshop which brought forth "Snow White" participates in the essence of beauty, both in sight and sound. In other words, it bears a closer relationship to poetry than anything hitherto presented.

The box office value of "screen poetry" is an unknown quantity.

There is a charm in many of the images created by the vivid imaginations of Mr. Disney and his fellow workers which is without equal in previous motion pictures. Whether a visual representation of music adds or detracts from the enjoyment of the music itself is a point which will probably be in dispute for some time.

The picture is built around eight classical music selections played by the Philadelphia Orchestra under the direction of Leopold Stokowski. Deems Taylor supplies the discussions of music which link the individual pieces. To produce the music by what he considered the best possible means Disney used a special RCA system now called "Fantasound."

"Fantasia" begins without any titles. Before the curtain is drawn back the shadows of musicians are seen taking their places and sounds are heard. In a few moments the commentator steps forward and addresses the audience from the screen. The first number is introduced and Stokowski, the conductor, takes his position.

With characteristic boldness and courage Disney attempted the most difficult task first, picturing "formless" music, music which has no story or no quasi-story. "Toccata and Fugue in D Minor," by Bach, was visualized in terms of various figures and colors. The effect, while it may be hailed by devotees of impressionistic and futuristic art, will probably be puzzling to the audience.

During the second selection, Tchaikovsky's "The Nutcracker Suite," many poetic images in Mr. Disney's screen representation of the ballet were received with applause. "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," by Dukas and featuring Mickey Mouse, was more like the usual Disney short than any other part of the program. "The Pastoral Symphony," by Beethoven and illustrated with flying horses, fauns, centaurs and other fanciful Disney characters was one of the most entertaining numbers.

"Rite of Spring," by Stravinsky, showed the power of the new sound system. In Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours" a light effect was given by featuring elephants and rhinoceroses.

The two concluding selections, "Night on Bald Mountain," by Moussorgsky, and Franz Schubert's "Ave Maria," followed one another without any interruption and the contrast was impressive. Both were visualized with particularly striking images. In the latter special sound effects of cathedral bells and a choir high in the distance were used.

The comments by Deems Taylor between the musical selections are handled in a light, informal manner which gives a pleasant interlude between some of the serious pieces. The appearance of a "sound track" was an amusing interruption.

Previewed at the Broadway theatre in New York to an audience of some 1,500 members of the press and other invited guests who, after being puzzled in the beginning, enthusiastically applauded artistic and technical triumphs in other numbers, and at the end of the program were speculating about its box office possibilities.—MARTIN QUIGLEY, JR.

Fantasound

by GEORGE SCHUTZ

Editor of Better Theatres

The motion picture has ever been seeking, in its spare moments, the third dimension, and the efforts of sound technologists to achieve the effect of variable distance and direction, plus a realistic volume, were inevitably to bring the phrase "third-dimensional sound." The term is apt to be confusing, and we get no clarification of it from Walt Disney's "Fantasia."

The characteristics of the sound of "Fantasia" which distinguish it from that produced by regular methods are, with one exception, to be identified with those possessed by regular sound of today's highest standards, but they represent greater refinement of processes. The exception is the flexibility, the directional effects procurable, through the complex transmission system involving speaker networks in various parts of the auditorium as well as three horn systems behind the screen. (The details are given in a descriptive account of "Fantasia" sound processes in the accompanying issue of Better Theatres).

In regular sound available today, we have achieved greater undistorted output, giving us more realistic volume. "Fantasia" volume exceeds, whenever dramatic and musical treatment calls for it, any such regular volume levels by far, yet with highly agreeable and entirely convincing tonal quality. In this connection it is to be noted that the low frequencies get fuller reproduction than is ordinarily the case, which doubtlessly accounts in some substantial measure for the impressive sense of "presence" attained in "Fantasia" sound.

Also, in regular sound today we have refined recording, with greater selectivity and more sensitive recording devices. In recording the music of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra for "Fantasia," Stokowski selected from seven different tracks, ultimately re-creating, to his liking, the original music. And reproduction is entirely by push-pull pickup.

The fundamental difference between regular sound methods and those of "Fantasia" lies in the use of three distinct channels with horn systems behind the sides of the screen, as well as at the center, and also distributed through the auditorium. Sound sources, cut in and out by a control track, can thus be more closely identified with their pictorial sources, while all sorts of "trick effects" are available. The material and pattern of "Fantasia" are so special that the significance of this arrangement to motion pictures in general evades measurement. "Fantasia" is itself a "trick picture," and such flexibility—particularly in the continual directional "movement" of the orchestral music among the screen speakers—is highly effective in the creation of this uniquely imaginative offering of the unique Disney genius.

The Letter

(First National)

Murder in Malay

Customers with elastic memories may recall the 1929 cinema composition of W. Somerset Maugham's play portrait of sin in Singapore. The murder-mystery, underscored with psychopathological principles, has attention compelling power, be it fresh or repetitive. The decoding of the meaning behind the plot structure may be phrased in a style too sordid and stiff for audiences accustomed to light, happy-ending screen fare. But what was reported concerning the initial film may be said about this current transcription. The production, as it stands, is a "woman's picture" and seems destined to be definite bait for female patronage at the box office.

Bette Davis, following the tradition of Katharine Cornell on the stage and the late Jeanne Eagles in the initial film production, from her past and expert experience in portraying neurotic females, reaches top form in making an unsympathetic and sordid character fascinating and real. Miss Davis introduces several innovations in the presentation of her part, playing one important scene of extensive length with her back to the camera and several other intense sequences behind glasses.

An impressive and well trained array of players support the star. Herbert Marshall as the innocent and ruined husband, who incidentally through a trick of casting appeared in the first film as the murdered lover, James Stephenson, as a family friend and attorney, who sacrifices the honor of his profession by defeating justice, and Gale Sondergaard in the role of the Eurasian wife of the victim (the 1929 screen version cast the character as his mistress) are outstanding.

Director William Wyler catches the tragic, dramatic spell of the story. From the opening shot of the "Crosbie" rubber plantation, under a drowsy and portentious moon, through the tightened and intense maze of the narrative to the very end, when "Leslie Crosbie" is murdered, the mood and movement is knowingly sustained. Camera manipulation of light and shadow, set decoration and musical background contribute considerably.

The peace and silence that hangs over the "Crosbie" plantation is shattered by rapid gun fire as "Leslie Crosbie" shoots "Jeoffrey Hammond." She tells her husband, his attorney and the police, the act was in protection of her honor. Her acquittal seems certain until there comes news about a letter the woman had written to her victim inviting him to visit her the night her husband was away. The incriminating evidence is held by the widow of the murdered man. "Leslie" is forced in one of the film's tensest sequences to buy back the note. Acquittal is finally won by "Leslie," but, when her husband later hears the truth from her and demands to know if she still loves him, "Leslie," in a terrifying and dramatic scene, reveals her affection for the man she murdered. At this point of the narrative the story changes from the first film rendition. "Leslie" is lured into the garden and is murdered by the widow of the man she loved.

The Lady with Red Hair

(Warner-FN)

Biography of Mrs. Leslie Carter

This is the story of Mrs. Leslie Carter, and of David Belasco to the extent that his career touched hers, and the story of these personalities and their times has that quality of authenticity which sent such pictures as "The Great Ziegfeld" and "The Great Barnum" to peaks of audience satisfaction and box office revenue. Like them, it is a story of the theatre and the theatrical, its tensions, emotions, objectives and devices those of the backstage world before the movies came. Which seems to suggest that the variety of showmanship employed for its predecessors may be expected to produce a like result.

Veracity of the story is a point showmen may emphasize by citing as source the memoirs of the late Mrs. Carter and as a further circumstance the fact that Lou Payne, her husband during 36 years of her career, served as technical advisor in production of the picture, inclusive of coaching Richard Ainley, who portrays him in the film. Screenplay by Charles Kenyon and Milton Krims, from the N. Brewster Morse-Norbert Faulkner story, stresses accuracy.

The film opens with the incident of the actress' divorce trial and separation from her son, to regain whose custody she enters show business under the producer's auspices, failing in her first play and succeeding in her second. Failing to regain her boy's regard, however, she goes on to greatness on the stage, breaking with her producer years later to marry an actor with whom she tries to go forward producing her own plays. In an ultimate emergency Belasco rejoins her and a happy ending is achieved.

Miriam Hopkins as Mrs. Carter and Claude Rains as Belasco dominate the picture, Helen Westley turning in a character portrayal that drew applause from the preview audience.

Bittter Sweet

(MGM)

Musical Romance

From the opening Jeanette MacDonald-Nelson Eddy duet to their last, which closes the picture, the essence of "Bitter Sweet" remains the Noel Coward musical score.

Credit goes to Mr. Coward for the original play as well as the music and lyrics, with the Lesser Samuels screen play differing from the original and the 1933 film version in omitting use of the flashback technique as a story medium.

This Technicolor version deals, without preamble, of the love of an English girl for her Viennese music teacher, of their elopement on the eve of her marriage to another man, their life and struggles in the gay Vienna of the 1890's, and his death in a duel just as his operetta was at last due for a hearing. The Victor Saville production, directed by W. S. Van Dyke II, includes in its cast such names as George Sanders, Felix Bressart, Lynne Carver, Ian Hunter, Edward Ashley, Diana Lewis, Fay Holden, Sig Rumann and Herman Bing.

Herbert Stothart had charge of the musical direction, with "I'll See You Again," "Dear Little Cafe" and "Zigeuner" among the numbers included from the original score. The last named was featured in a sequence done in white and tones of sepia which brought forth spontaneous audience applause and evoked post-preview comment.

You'll Find Out

Jazz and Jitters

That merry and mad maestro, Kay Kyser, and his equally zany troupe of instrumentalists, after their sprightly and successful screen debut in "That's Right, You're Wrong," return for an encore in this combination of melody and mystery. The juxtaposition of songs and shivers makes a welcome dish of picture entertainment.

The offering gains additional saleability by grouping en masse those three bad men of the screen, Boris Karloff, Peter Lorre and Bela Lugosi, and the sound track all but hisses. In addition to what amounts to a menace monopoly, the picture sports Helen Parrish, looking much too attractive for anyone to plot evil against, Dennis O'Keefe, as her romantic protector, and Alma Kruger lending her beautifully intonated voice to the role of a dowager aunt. Mr. Kyser's orchestral crew is much concerned in the spook sequences, particularly the cutely called comedy character, Ish Kabibble, looking like a fugitive from a Three Stooge lineup or a Disney cartoon creation. Jinny Simms is also on hand to offer her good looks and tuneful vocal talents.

From a laugh and suspense filled script replete with sliding panels and spirits, producer-director David Butler, who co-authored the script with James V. Kern, opens the proceedings with a chuckle introduction to one of the Kyser "College of Musical Knowledge" broadcasts. From there the orchestra boys move to the mansion of "Janis," a perfect setting, as one of the picture personnel remarks, for a murder. There in the course of playing for the young lady's twenty-first birthday celebration, the lads, particularly Kay, become mixed up with murderous efforts directed at the girl's person. Kay and his crew soon settle matters with the homicidally intentioned gentlemen, "Fenninger," "Judge Mainwaring" and the bogus seance slinger "Prince Saliano," and "Janis" is left untouched to enjoy her family inheritance.

A specially invited audience in New York roared with enjoyment over the comic interludes of the scenario, with some of the more squeamish of the ladies present giving voice to fright during the creepy transactions. Applause greeted the several interludes devoted to instrumental and vocal specialties.—J. F. C.

wood and paying the Carroll tariff will be supported by the production in their promises.

Principals in the cast, which for some reason does not list Earl Carroll as an actor although he plays himself in the story, are Ken Murray, as master of ceremonies and fixer, the Brenda and Cobina of Bob Hope's Radio program, as themselves, Lillian Cornell, J. Carrol Naish, Rose Hobart and Betty McLaughlin. The film maintains a tempo that permits of no lagging.

The story by Lynn Starling opens with a group of mayors entering the restaurant, gathers momentum when a gangster kidnaps Carroll and his cast of principals by way of embarrassing the mayor of Hollywood, generates tension as emcee and hostess improvise means of continuing the show until the kidnappees are released, ending with the gangster in custody and the show going on. There is no break in the film as it is at Earl Carroll's plus a mite of dressing.

Give Us Wings

(Universal)

Topical Comedy

Universal's "Give Us Wings" is a topical story of a group of boys whose primary ambition is to pilot planes. Their desire lays them open to exploitation by a shady operator of a "crop dusting" firm, which uses condemned planes to fly over fields spraying chemicals to destroy insects.

Comedy is tempered with air thrills and tragedy, the climax coming in unique fashion when one of the youths, to prevent the criminal from escaping, sprays his speeding automobile with a blinding fog of chemicals from an airplane and then later clouds the refugee's plane in the same manner.

Billy Halop, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsley and Bobby Jordan, "Dead End" kids, portray the youths, and are supported by Wallace Ford, Anne Gwynne, Victor Jory, Shemp Howard, Milburn Stone, Harris Berger and Billy Benedict.

Production values above budget are given the film by Director Charles Lamont and Producer Ken Goldsmith. Arthur T. Horman and Robert Lee Johnson wrote the script from an original story by Eliot Gibbons.

Girls Under 21

(Columbia)

Drama of the Slums

"Girls Under 21," a melodrama of the slums, featuring the female counterparts of the "Dead End Kids," is replete with the wisecracks of sophisticated and delinquent 'teen-age girls, who steal because they want nice things to wear, not because of innate perversity. This in spite of Paul Kelly, a kindly school teacher who defends the honor system in the school to which the quintet of delinquents go.

Primarily suitable to urban situations, the film is from an original story and screen play by Jay Dratler and Fanya Foss. It marks the return to the screen of Rochelle Hudson. Bruce Cabot plays the gangster husband of Miss Hudson, and Tina Thayer enacts the role of "Jennie White," leader of the girl delinquents.

"Frances White" marries a gangster, and is immediately set up as a model by the young girls in the slums who proceed to emulate her. However, she soon tires of the sordid life and leaves him, determined to get a job and support herself. She obtains one in the bargain basement of a department store. A short time later the delinquent girls, who had previously stolen small items from neighborhood stores, effect a grand shoplifting haul from Miss Hudson's counter in the department store.

In the getaway, one of the girls acting as lookout, is killed by an automobile. Miss Hudson, because of her questionable past, is arrested as a material witness. Through the intervention of Mr. Kelly, who pleads with the girls to confess their part in the theft, Miss Hudson is freed. The film ends happily, when the girls are placed on probation, Miss Hudson and Mr. Kelly plan to marry, and the latter's honor system at school is vindicated.

Missing People

(Monogram)

Murder Mystery

Produced in England with Will Fyffe in the starring role "Missing People" is a mystery melodrama based on a story by Edgar Wallace. With all of its veteran talent—Edgar Wallace with some two hundred novels to his credit and Will Fyffe with fifty years experience in show business—the picture holds only moderate interest for the avid mystery film fan.

Being a mystery picture the film keeps its secret well until the end, but the superfluous detail throughout diverts the interest of the audience. Fyffe returns to the screen again as the gentleman-detective "J.G. Reeder," the role he portrayed in "The Mysterious Mr. Reeder," in this he appoints himself official investigator to unearth the cause of the disappearances of twenty-seven well-to-do citizens whose absence under similar circumstances arouses his suspicion. With the aid of "Peggy Gillette" (Kay Walsh) whom the detective uses as a decoy "Mr. Reeder" tracks down and exposes the murder ring.

Unlike the American produced mystery films this production has little romance, but rather emphasizes the analytical ability of the star. Jack Raymond directed from a screen play by Lydia Hayward.

Reviewed at the Central theatre in New York where an afternoon audience, comprised mostly of men, showed little interest in the proceedings—GEORGE SPIRES.

Produced in England and distributed in the United States by Monogram. Produced by Charles Q. Steel. Directed by Jack Raymond. Based on a story by Edgar Wallace. Screen play by Lydia Hayward. Running time, 69 minutes. Release date, November 6, 1940. General audience classification.

Lone Wolf Keeps a Date

(Columbia)

Crime Comedy

With Warren William as the stamp collecting hobbyist who foils criminals and twits the police and with Eric Blore as his aide, "The Lone Wolf Keeps A Date" is a combination of thrills and laughs involving the solving of a kidnapping, the return of the victim and of the $100,000 ransom.

Based on a work by Louis Joseph Vance, creator of "The Lone Wolf," the screenplay by Earl Felton and Sidney Salkow moves with rapidity to its climax. Supporting William and Blore in this, the fourth of Columbia's "Lone Wolf" series, are Frances Robinson, Bruce Bennett, Thurston Hall, Jed Prouty, Fred Kelsey, Don Beddoe, Lester Matthews, Edward Gargan, Eddie Laughton and Mary Servoss.

Salkow in addition to his work on the script directed the offering.

Sandy Gets Her Man

(Universal)

Rollicking Rompers

Fourth starring vehicle for two and a half-year-old Baby Sandy, this places her in predicaments both dangerous and comic, ends with having her saved from a burning building by the fireman whose reward is marriage to her screen mother.

As the only daughter of a town councilman who has to choose between the police and fire departments in awarding $250,000 for improvements, Una Merkel is loved for herself alone by Fireman Stuart Erwin and Policeman Jack Carson. When Police Chief William Frawley and Fire Chief Edgar Kennedy learn of her identity, both departments enter the contest for the lady's hand, and ultimately the grant of the money.

Edward Brophy and Wally Vernon are chief mischief makers in the fire department, going so far as to cause a blaze in the chapel where the girl is to marry the policeman, with Sandy disappearing in the confusion and leading both departments and all others concerned a merry chase.

The original screen play by Sy Bartlett and Jane Storm was directed by Otis Garrett and Paul Gerard Smith, with Burt Kelly as associate producer.

Previewed at the Alexander Theatre, Glendale, to audience approval. The baby, making her first public preview appearance, was the cause of delighted cooing and gurgling on the part of the pre-view crowd.—W. S.

Little Nellie Kelly

(MGM)

A "Darling"

Now, lads and lassies, here is a "darling" picture to warm the cockles of any movie goer's heart, whether Hibernian or otherwise. Sure, it is set straight for the enthusiastic endorsement of Gaelic gatherings and yet it carries universal entertainment appeal.

Inspired from the musical offering of George M. Cohan, the picture offers several substantial surprises besides its rich, warm Irish wit and sentiment. Showmen may remember it was considered important enough news to herald Deanna Durbin's coming of age with her first osculatory screen experience. Now, Judy Garland advances to maturity by playing a dual role of mother and daughter. Such an incredible track of casting is soon remedied by the early elimination of the maternal angle and Miss Garland is viewed in a role more in keeping with her juvenile years and talents. George Murphy plays husband and father to July's dual assignment and on such a double level is natural and appealing. Much of the humor and humanity exuding from the story's script comes from the rollicking, rambunctious characterization of Charles Winninger as "Nellie's" grandfather. Douglas McPhail lends his fine baritone tones and young appearance to accommodate Miss Garland in several musical and romantic interludes.

When the marriage of "Nellie" (nee Noonan) and "Jerry Kelly" is opposed by old man "Noonan," the couple sail for the land of liberty with the obstreperous father in tow, even though he has sworn never to speak to his son-in-law again. Even the death of his daughter in childbirth does not soften him. As little "Nellie" grows up to be the image of her mother, it becomes the life's work of the girl to reconcile her father, now a graduate from a motorman to a police captain, and her grandfather. When "Noonan" objects to "Nellie's" friendship with young "Dennis Fogarty," daughter and father oppose his stand and the grandfather is brought around only after he leaves the house, gets himself a job as a carriage driver, and then returns repentant and wiser. Many of the comedy highlights stem from the old man's faked heart attacks in order to avoid employment.

Friendly Neighbors

(Republic)

Comedy-Drama

The newest of the Weaver Brothers and Elviry pictures has plot material from a source already made familiar to motion picture audiences in the Paramount production "The Arkansas Traveler" and in pictures before and since the Burns vehicle—the theme of utilizing tramps from all parts of the country in establishing a not-so-prosperous community.

The story concerns the Weaver family and their flight from a drought ridden area to more welcome land; their meeting with the tramps and difficulties with the local constabulary; the development of a ghost town and their efforts in convincing the governor of the state that they can profitably operate the community if he will cooperate. All these factors plus romance entwined throughout the story make an interesting and humorous picture.

As in previous productions for the company the Weaver Brothers and Elviry are given ample opportunity to render their slapstick-hillbilly songs and comedy on clap-trap musical instruments. Armand Schaefer is again associate producer with Nick Grinde directing this latest Weaver vehicle.

Prairie Schooners

(Columbia)

Western Melodrama

The days of the covered wagon, Indian raids and pioneers are brought to the screen again in this, the first in the Bill Elliott series of Western melodramas for Columbia in which the star portrays the famed character of the old west, "Wild Bill Hickok."

"Prairie Schooners" unfolds in a small Kansas town during the drought of 1847. The farmers of the area in an effort to rid themselves of their worthless land and burdened by the demands of unscrupulous money-lending outlaws organize for a trek to the more fertile country of Colorado. Enroute they are attacked by Indians who are led by the outlaws to believe that the newcomers are a menace to the Indian territory. Under the guidance of "Wild Billl" the Indians are driven off.

Supporting Bill Elliott are Evelyn Young as the romantic interest, Dub Taylor handling the comedy, Kenneth Harlan as the leader of the outlaws and Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete, portraying the Indian Chief. Sam Nelson directed the picture from a screen play by Robert Lee Johnson and Fred Myton for Columbia.

The Devil's Pipeline

(Universal)

Oil Field Melodrama

The team of Arlen and Devine in their newest action-comedy offering is concerned with investigating crooked business practices in a foreign oil field. Arlen is more active than ever with his fists and demonstrations of general he-man activity and Andy is in top form with his gravel toned patter. Concerned with Messrs. Arlen and Devine, either for or against the combine, are John Eldredge, Jeanne Kelly, James Flavin and Francis McDonald. Christy Cabanne, experienced in handling the Arlen-Devine act, paces the film with a tempo that alternates a laugh interlude with a slugfest sequence.

Dick and Andy are dispatched by the Peerless Indies Corporation on a scouting project to investigate the organization's holdings in the East Indies. The boys attempt unsuccessfully to gain employment in the company's oil fields. They are eventually shanghaied on a trumped-up charge into working in the oil district and they soon learn that, with the connivance of the local police official, the field superintendent is hiring cheap prison labor and pocketing the savings in salaries. With the resources of their inventive wits and fists, the situation is soon remedied.

Gallant Sons

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Melodrama for Juniors

Featuring the youngsters in the cast as heroes of such Hawkshawings as are daydreamed by adolescents, this film comes to showmen as an item with which to bid for the highschool trade. It is written, produced and directed with the freedom of a 1940 Dick Merriwell's wish-fulfillments.

The story, by William R. Lipman and Marion Parsonnet, opens in the manner of adult melodrama with an innocent gambler sentenced to prison for murder. Then his son, who turns out not be his son, which turns out to be why he couldn't testify fully in his own defense, and his son's classmates set out to prove the gambler's innocence and do so, after a number of adventures, risks and deductions beyond the ken of their elders, by staging a play, inspired by "Hamlet," written by one of them in such a manner as to provoke a confession from the suspect.

Frederick Stephani as producer and George B. Seitz as director cooperated in keeping the film flavoured to the appetite of the 'teen-age customers.

Heritage

(French Films Import)

Love in Spain

This French importation is concerned with a tale of Spanish love. The actors look to be indigenous to the scene and the backgrounds for the narrative canvas appear to be localized accurately. However, the original dialogue of the script vocalized in Gallic inflection, sounds strangely at odds with the authentic atmosphere of the production.

The work will appeal principally to the clienteles of foreign films and art theatre establishments. Despite some shoddy manifestations of careless editing and technical dressing, the picture is so simply presented as to be impressive. At first concerned with the problem of watering arid farm lands and the state of vested interests in securing favored preference in obtaining priority rights to irrigation resources, the plot switches to a love triangle theme. After the boy has seriously wounded his rival in a duel and thus is forced to flee the country, the girl in the case to gain clemency for her lover nurses the wounded man back to momentary health. The patient falls in love with his ministering angel but graciously bows out of the scene when he learns that his days are numbered.

A plentiful supply of English titles is offered.

SHORT PRODUCT

The Trouble With Husbands

(Paramount)

Benchley's Best

The first of a series of six short subjects for Paramount starring Robert Benchley, has the comedian in the dual role of off-screen commentator and living example of what the woman of the house has to endure from a husband whose idiosyncrasies continually ignite the fuse to the marital powder keg. Following the introduction by the nonchalant Mr. Benchley, the man of the house practises economy, after lecturing to his wife, by going to the store for butter and returning with an armful of expensive delicacies. Also exemplified is the "delayed ablutions" husband who waits until dinner is on the table before getting ready and then complains because it is cold. Finally, his efforts around the house not only disturb his wife but cause injury to his pride and person. Mr. Benchley, already made familiar through motion pictures to the audiences throughout the country, is at his best in this initial short subject for Paramount.—Running time, eleven minutes.

Newport News House

The Indian River Amusement Corporation, of Newport News, will begin construction next month of a new theatre at 34th Street and Washington Avenue. The company now operates the Palace and Wythe Theatres in the same town.

Replace Maxwell

Replacing the late John Maxwell, R. G. Simpson has been appointed chairman, and Eric Lightfoot, managing director, of Associated British Pictures Corporation, Ltd., London advices said on Monday.

Hellborn and Rich Added

Louis Hellborn has been made exploitation representative for MGM in Omaha and Des Moines. Gene Rich was appointed assistant to W. G. Bishop in Chicago.

Rochester Set for SMPE Meeting

The Spring Convention of the Socieity of Motion Picture Engineers will be held at the Sagamore hotel, Rochester, May 5-8, in the home town of Eastman Kodak Company, whose West Coast manager, Emery Huse, will preside for the first time since his election recently in Hollywood as president.

Sylvan Harris, chairman of the papers' committee, and Arthur C. Downes, editorial vice president, are beginning the preliminary work of preparing the agenda and arranging for technical papers to be read at the meeting. The date was selected because it coincides with the meeting in Rochester of the Acoustical Society of America. Joint sessions may be held.

One of the proposed features of the S.M.P.E. meeting is expected to be the showing of "stereophonic" sound, with the co-operation of Bell Telephone Laboratory and Erpi.

Louis Blumenthal, of H. & B., Dies

Louis Blumenthal, pioneer exhibitor and theatre builder and lately active in real estate development in Westchester, N. Y., died Tuesday, November 12th, at his home, 130 Puritan Avenue, Tuckahoe, N. Y., after a long illness, at the age of 56. He was a partner of the Haring and Blumenthal Circuit.

In 1934, he reopened the Earl Carroll Theatre in New York as the Casino Theatre. In 1916 he founded the Exhibitors Trade Review, with the late Lee Ochs. In recent years, he had devoted a greater part of his time to real estate and building activities.

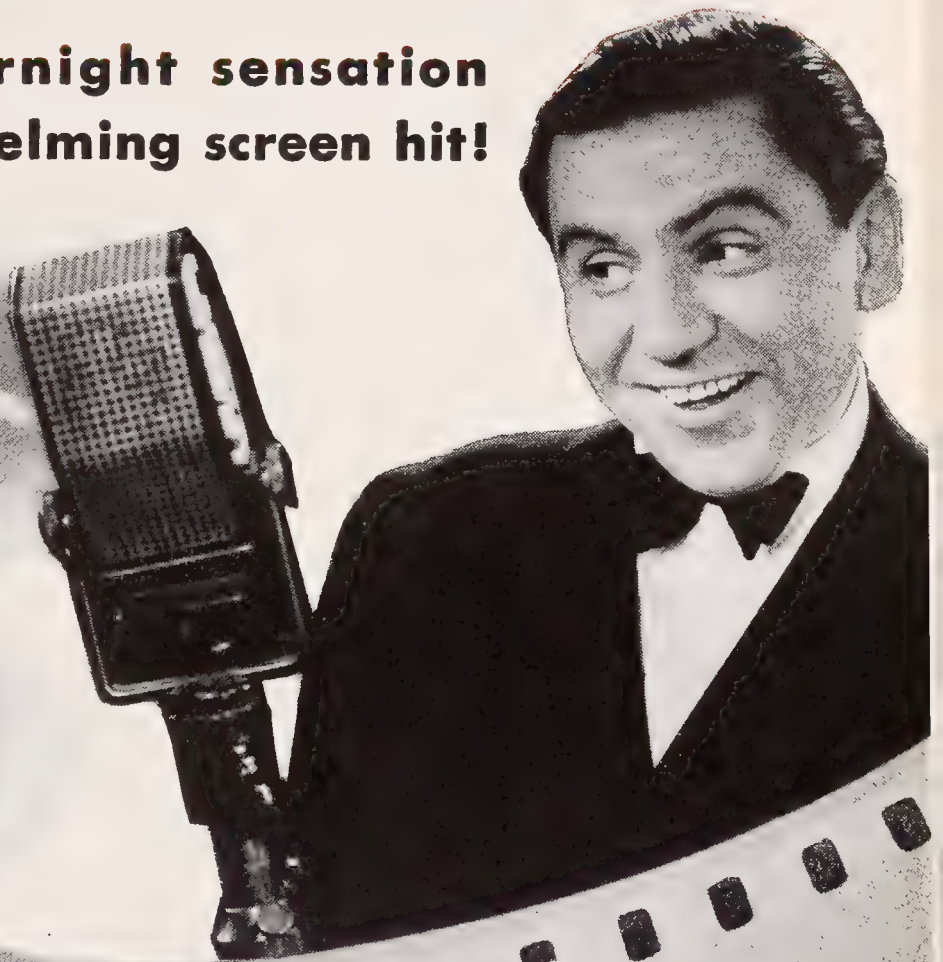
In addition to his circuit interests, he was president of Haring and Blumenthal Home Service Corp. of New York.

Mr. Blumenthal is survived by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Haring Blumenthal; a brother, Leon, and a sister, Mrs. Somerfield. Funeral services were set for Friday.

Personnel Changes In Parker Circuit

The J. J. Parker's Theatres has made several changes in its personnel. J. J. Parker continues as president and general manager of the Oregon circuit. Calvin Heilig has joined the circuit. Grover F. Hadley becomes assistant general manager. William B. McCurdy has been appointed manager of the Broadway; Robert Main of the United Artists theatre, Portland; William Fitzhenry, for many years associated with Fox West Coast, returns to Portland as booker for the Parker houses; Sid Phillips has been named manager of the United Artists in Pendleton; W. C. Hoard, Riviera, Astoria, and Forest Everett, manager of the United Artists, Astoria.

Transfers to Miami



H. W. Pettengill, formerly with the Schine Circuit, has been appointed publicity and advertising manager for Paramount Enterprises, Inc., at Miami. He succeeds Karl Roller, who resigned some weeks ago.

WAR BRINGS CHANGES IN FOREIGN PERSONNEL

Robert Schless To Fill Morris' Post at Warners; Lowered Revenue Causes Other Changes

Economic dislocation in the foreign film market resulting from World War II has brought many changes in the executive personnel of the foreign departments of major distributors. Among the most recent are the resignation of Del Goodman, for 15 years Far Eastern manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, the transfer of Arthur W. Kelly, former United Artists vice president in charge of foreign operations, to head domestic distribution for the company, and the appointment of Robert E. Schless to head foreign sales at Warners.

Walter Gould, Mr. Kelly's former assistant, this week, was named head of the foreign department, by Murray Silverstone, chief of world-wide operations of United Artists. Thomas P. Mulrooney, foreign sales manager, will continue in the same capacity, as Mr. Gould's assistant.

Mr. Gould joined UA's foreign department in 1926 and, for the past eight years, was division manager for Latin-America. He returned to New York, recently, following a four-months' visit to the company's exchanges in Central and South America, where he presided at a convention in Buenos Aires on October 20th.

Also resulting from the foreign situation were the prolonged sojourns in the United States of Laudy Lawrence and Frederick W. Lange, respectively Continental European managers for MGM and Paramount, besides many others. Both have recently returned to their posts in Europe after spending several months in New York, conferring with home office executives.

Staffs Shifted

Apart from changes among key executives in charge of Europe and other areas, there has been a gradual readjustment of personnel from parts of Europe affected by the conflict to other areas not so hard hit; also shifts of personnel from Europe to South America, etc.

This situation, it was pointed out, is the natural concomitant of a contracting market, where receipts from rentals have been drastically curtailed, making it necessary to reduce staffs to conform to changed conditions.

Appointed to head Warners foreign distribution on Monday by Harry M. Warner, president, was Robert E. Schless, the company's European manager. He succeeds Sam E. Morris. Mr. Schless' assistant will be Joseph S. Hummel, who has been general foreign sales manager.

Mr. Schless was formerly in charge of the Continent with headquarters in Paris, and when First National and Warners consolidated its forces in England, took over that country as well. He has been in New York about two months.

MGM has shifted certain of its executive personnel, formerly assigned to Europe or other foreign countries, to South America, wherever a vacancy existed or wherever further expansion was possible. It was pointed out by a spokesman for MGM, however, that the South American market had been cultivated assiduously for the past 20 years and that further increase in personnel was unnecessary.

Ben Miggins, European manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, with former headquarters at Paris is now in New York, conferring with home office executives and awaiting further orders.

Morgan to Trinidad

W. B. Morgan, former managing director of France, this week, was temporarily appointed manager of Trinidad. Mr. Morgan, who returned to the home office shortly after the Nazi conquest of France, was to sail, on Wednesday, this week, for Port-of-Spain where he will establish headquarters. J. V. O'Gara, former manager of Trinidad, has been shifted to Chile, where he replaces Manager A. Ruscica, resigned.

W. E. van Beveren, who was appointed assistant to Mr. Miggins, last April, has been temporarily substituting for Otto Bolle, managing director at Johannesburg, South Africa, while the latter is in New York.

Meanwhile, R. A. Kreier still retaining his title of assistant European manager, was named managing director of Spain some months ago.

Paramount's Frederick W. Lange, general foreign representative, recently returned to his headquarters at Barcelona, after spending several months in the United States in conference with home office executives.

Lewis E. Buddy, general manager of Paramount News in Europe is still in New York, however, awaiting further assignment. The unsettled conditions in Europe have made it virtually impossible for Mr. Buddy to carry on his activities, it was said.

At the Universal home office in New York, this week, it was reported that Louis Foldes, Eastern European representative remains on the job and in contact with his superiors. On the other hand, Ernest Koenig, Western European manager, now in Paris, has been unable to maintain steady communication with his home office. The last letter received from Mr. Koenig was a month ago.

Living in Paris, in the Nazi-occupied portion of France, Mr. Koenig's activities have been virtually at a standstill. He was visiting Brussels, when the Nazis invaded Belgium and it was only after a gruelling trip that he reached the French capital.

George Canty, Universal's general European manager, resigned in June, 1939, three months prior to the outbreak of the war and a successor has not been designated.

Aside from closing the Polish, Austrian and Belgian branches, RKO's executive set-up in Europe remains unchanged. The Holland and French branches are operating as before. Max Westebbe, Holland manager, is now in this country on a visit, where he told of having pressed Nazi army trucks into the service of transporting RKO film when the Netherlands was over-run by the invaders.

Reginald Armour, European general manager for RKO, is now in New York.

Praises Chaplin Film

Dr. J. B. Fishman, general manager of Fishman Theatres, Inc., New Haven and Fairfield, circuit, has adressed an open letter to Charles Chaplin, assailing the selling policy on "The Great Dictator," but lauding him "for tackling the most vital problem in the world today, courageously and fearlessly," and "performing the greatest service to the people of America."

National Board Holds Its 17th N. Y. Conference

The 17th annual conference of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures opened Thursday, at the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City. Delegates from 37 States, representing Parent Teachers Associations, the Daughters of the American Revolution, Better Film Councils, and other organizations, were expected.

The general subject of this year's three-day meeting was "New Frontiers for American Movies." The organization announced that "important aspects of the motion picture as entertainment and as an educative social force" would be discussed. The new frontiers for the American motion picture, according to the Board, are "new audiences, new uses of film, new subjects."

The annual meeting of the 4-Star Clubs and Young Reviewers was held in conjunction with the National Board of Review conference.

Attend "Fantasia" Screening

At the opening session Thursday morning the conference theme of "New Frontiers" was introduced. As a special feature the first day of the meeting the delegates attended a special screening of Walt Disney's "Fantasia." Thursday evening the delegates were guests of New York University and attended a session of the regular motion picture course. "The Power and the Land," Rural Electrification Administration picture; "The Face of Britain," documentary film made in England by Paul Rotha and "Valley Town," made by Willard Van Dyke were shown. Dr. Frederic Thrasher in charge of the motion picture course was host. Richard Griffith of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library introduced the program.

For the first time the Friday conference sessions were to be open to the public. Speakers scheduled were Judge Stephen S. Jackson of the Court of Domestic Relations; Oliver T. Griswold and Vyvyan Donner. Judge Jackson was to talk about children and motion pictures. Mr. Griswold was to explain the films made by the Federal Government.

On Friday afternoon Ilka Chase, fashion commentator, was scheduled to open the meeting. Other speakers were Margaret Farrand Thorp, author of "America at the Movies" and Catherine Edwards, Parents' Magazine. Also a representative of the Gallup Institute of Public Opinion was to discuss audience polls.

The Saturday morning session will be devoted to the activities of the Young Reviewers and their public school affiliate groups, the Four Star Clubs. Films made by members of the organizations will be shown. The Conference will close with the annual luncheon on Saturday. Stars and other film celebrities in New York were invited to attend the meeting.

Officers of the National Board of Review are Dr. A. A. Brill, president; J. K. Paulding, secretary; George J. Zehrung, treasurer and James Shelley Hamilton, executive director.

Mohawk Closes Two Deals

Deals for its 19 features have been closed by the Mohawk Film Corp., with Edward Klein of the Bay State Film Co., of Boston, for that territory and with Harry Gibbs, of Connecticut Film Distributors, New Haven.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

HE STAYED FOR BREAKFAST: Loretta Young, Melvyn Douglas—This was a good picture and a good team of actors in my mind and also good business drawing power for Maplewood-Malden. Fast moving story and many a good laugh from audience. Running time, 89 minutes. Played October 29-30.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

HOWARDS OF VIRGINIA, THE: Cary Grant, Martha Scott, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Richard Carlson—Cary Grant does a marvelous job in this. A natural for tie-ups with all schools. The teachers and parents will get behind this for you. Little Martha Scott is a great little actress and she plays a heavy role and a very important role in this picture perfectly. Sir Cedric Hardwicke, as usual, is very impressive and handles his role with the skill of past-master of such roles, which he is. Running time, 114 minutes. Played October 2-4.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

MAN THEY COULD NOT HANG, THE: Boris Karloff, Roger Pryor—Played for a midnite show and drew a very large crowd. Best yet with Karloff. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 31.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

MILITARY ACADEMY: Tommy Kelly, Bobby Jordan—Played with "Lucky Cisco Kid." We did a poor two days business. Played October 27-28.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

SPOILERS OF THE RANGE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Sons of the Pioneers—A poor western. The only good thing about it was the songs and music of the Sons of the Pioneers. These boys are very good add well liked. Running time, 58 minutes. Played October 24-26.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

TOO MANY HUSBANDS: Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray, Melvyn Douglas, Harry Davenport—This picture provided considerable laughter and seemed to please about 90 per cent of our men. As was expected, those who were dissatisfied with the film declared it was much too silly in parts and for them reached the point of boredom. However, any picture that pleases so many of our critics can be considered satisfactory entertainment in any man's language. The men who appreciated this type of comedy laughed from the moment the picture started until it was concluded, and could have sat through several more minutes of it. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 26.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—Booked this one an extra day so that I might get children Saturday matinee. Fine picture, well acted by Rooney and Garland. Everyone spoke well of this picture and business was exceptionally good for entire run. Exhibitors better get this one if they want to smile again soon. Running time, 89 minutes. Played October 24-26.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

BALALAIKA: Nelson Eddy, Ilona Massey, Frank Morgan, Charles Ruggles—Nelson Eddy and Ilona Massey excellent in this picture. Played this to a very good house. Several came back to see it a second time. Play it any place. Running time, 102 minutes. Played October 24-26.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

BROADWAY MELODY OF 1940: Fred Astaire, Eleanor Powell, George Murphy—Playing a little late might have hurt this picture but did very well. An excellent cast. Running time, 101 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

STRIKE UP THE BAND: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra, June Preisser—Great. I don't have to say anything about this picture. The exhibitor who hasn't pegged this one as top box office is six feet under the ground. Running time, 120 minutes. Played October 6-12.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

THIRD FINGER, LEFT HAND: Myrna Loy, Melvyn Douglas, Raymond Walburn, Lee Bowman, Bonita Granville, Felix Bressart—An epic of what marriage is and how it should end and not as it begins. Myrna Loy is seen at her very best in excellent acting. She always was very good but is seen in a performance unparalleled in this very funny and pleasing picture. Melvyn Douglas makes the perfect lover, who would not take "no" for an answer and as usual all is well that ends well. Excellent support is Raymond Walburn, Lee Bowman, Bonita Granville, Felix Bressart, et al. A very pleasing picture that will please all kinds of patronage. Running time, 96 minutes. Played November 1-7.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

TWENTY MULE TEAM: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau—How they went to town on this one. Broke my house records for this season. Can recommend this for any spot as mine here. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 24.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

TWENTY MULE TEAM: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Rambeau—Teamed with "In Old Missouri." A good picture but fell down badly. Played September 19-21.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

WATERLOO BRIDGE: Vivien Leigh, Robert Taylor—Vivien Leigh can fill our theatre any time. This picture, though pretty "corny" as to story, made every one feel pleasantly sad. Robert Taylor is still a very inept player. Running time, 108 minutes. Played October 17-19.—N. W. Mason, Roseland and Academy Theatres, New Glasgow, Nova Scotia, Canada. Industrial town and rural patronage.

WYOMING: Wallace Beery, Ann Rutherford, Leo Carrillo, Lee Bowman, Joseph Calleia, Bobs Watson, Marjorie Main—One of the most spectacular outdoor thrillers since "Northwest Passage." Wally's in love with a lady blacksmith (a regular "Calamity Jane") and she lends Wally $2.00 with which to purchase the license. While Beery, Leo Carrillo and Marjorie Main (a "Calamity Jane") are just about the whole show, the wild west comes back in very realistic form and the cattle rustling, train robbery, wild Indians on warpath and Uncle Sam's regulars on the job, the picture should please all classes and patronage everywhere. Running time, 89 minutes. Played October 25-November 1.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

Monogram

MYSTERY OF MR. WONG: Boris Karloff, Dorothy Tree—I certainly wish we hadn't played this. My advice if you haven't played this, pass it up. Business very bad.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

OLD SWIMMIN' HOLE: Jackie Moran. Marcia Mae Jones—Pretty fair picture but my audience, what there was of it, did not warm up to it as I expected they would. I believe the kid stars need more help than they get to put a picture over. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 31.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

Paramount

BUCK BENNY RIDES AGAIN: Jack Benny, Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, Ellen Drew, Andy Devine—Business normal and everybody liked the picture. Nothing sensational, however. Played October 10-12.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

GOLDEN GLOVES: Richard Denning, Jean Cagney—A rather good co-feature with a purpose and a good plot for those who are interested in boxing and racketeering combined. Miss Cagney carried her role well. Business held up well both days of run but think "My Love Came Back" feature was the reason. Running time, 70 minutes. Played October 31-November 1.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

I WANT A DIVORCE: Dick Powell, Joan Blondell—Comments on this one were very good. Everyone in the cast turns in a good job. Title was a great factor in selling this picture. Plenty of laughs intermingled with pathos makes it a natural to please everybody. Runnning time, 92 minutes. Played November 2-5.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

QUARTERBACK, THE: Wayne Morris, Virginia Dale—Good little picture which pleased on family night. Running time, 69 minutes. Played October 29.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ROAD TO SINGAPORE: Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour—Best business any musical has ever done in this house. Patrons wild about Crosby-Hope combination. Played September 26-28.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

SAFARI: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Madeleine Carroll, Lynne Overman—Doug. Fairbanks, Jr., and Miss Carroll show their talents off well in this one, supported by comedian Lynne Overman. No sellouts on this feature but business was fairly good for middle week run. Running time, 81 minutes. Played October 22-23.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

UNTAMED: Ray Milland, Patricia Morison, Akim Tamiroff, William Frawley—This is well acted story with a plot that keeps one interested 'til the end. Ray and Patricia make a splendid team with Akim Tamiroff carrying off the supporting part and with William Frawley as comedian. Business held up fairly well both days of run. Running time, 83 minutes. Played October 20-21.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

Republic

CAROLINA MOON: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Story—This was a light story but Autry is by far the best western money maker for this part of state. Republic certainly is making no mistake having Autry on its payroll. Children go wild over his singing. Business fairly good for middle of week run. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 22-23.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

GANGS OF CHICAGO: Lloyd Nolan, Lola Lane, Barton MacLane—Very good in gangster line. Very fine acting on Nolan's part. Drew a very fine crowd. Running time, 72 minutes. Played November 1.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

KANSAS TERRORS, THE: Three Mesquiteers (Robert Livingston, Raymond Hatton, Duncan Renaldo), Jacqueline Wells—This one is not quite as good as some we have played from this series. Played Fox's "Honeymoon's Over" on the same program. Running time, 56 minutes. Played October 31-November 2.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

RIDE, TENDERFOOT, RIDE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—My customers surely flock in for Autry and I distinctly find that June Storey is beginning to steal the show from Gene and Smiley, but who cares. The combination is money in your office. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 25-26.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

SCATTERBRAIN: Judy Canova, Alan Mowbray, Ruth Donnelly—A good comedy with plenty of laughs. Okay for Sunday in small towns. Running time, 71 minutes. Played October 13-14.—Joe Schindale, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

THREE FACES WEST: John Wayne, Sigrid Gurie,

Charles Coburn—There's not much that I can say for this production, only John Wayne's not up to par. Does not carry a very good cast. Skip this one if you have the chance. We did nowhere the business we expected. Most of the scenes are too dark. Running time, 84 minutes. Played October 23-24.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

YOUNG BUFFALO BILL: Roy Rogers, George "Gabby" Hayes, Pauline Moore—Good western to good Saturday crowd. Running time, 60 minutes. Played October 26.—M. D. Stewart, Texas Theatre, De Leon, Texas. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

MY FAVORITE WIFE: Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott, Gail Patrick—What a picture. Our audience went for this in a big way. Business above normal. Played October 13-14.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

QUEEN OF DESTINY: Anna Neagle, Anton Walbrook, C. Aubrey Smith—This is a well-done English film with understandable dialogue and good color. It is the life of Queen Victoria and in addition to fine acting caries a deep feeling of authenticity. It is especially appropriate right now. I did quite well with it, partly because of the college and partly because of the fact that the preceding runs in the neighborhood seem to have passed this up. Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 31.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

QUEEN OF DESTINY: Anna Neagle, Anton Walbrook, C. Aubrey Smith—A marvelous production! Superbly acted! Anna Neagle is a great dramatic actress and Walbrook has all the femme fans raving! Walbrook is smooth, natural and always at ease and this man deserves top roles in any dramatic epics. This picture seemed to please the audiences 100 per cent. Running time, 96 minutes. Played October 5-8.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BARRICADE: Warner Baxter, Alice Faye, Charles Winninger—A fair show with a few thrills. Our patrons came to hear Alice Faye sing and were disappointed. Running time, 71 minutes. Played September 9-11.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

BRIGHAM YOUNG—FRONTIERSMAN: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers—Good picture and good business. The older people came out for this one. Running time, 114 minutes. Played October 30-31.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN AT THE WAX MUSEUM: Sidney Toler, Joan Valerie—This series is no good since Warner Oland died. This Toler has not the technique that Oland had. The public is not supporting them. At least, we are not getting the play that we did when Oland headed the cast.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

ELSA MAXWELL'S PUBLIC DEB NO. 1: Brenda Joyce, George Murphy, Ralph Bellamy, Mischa Auer, Charles Ruggles, Elsa Maxwell—Pleased the patrons all the way through. Brenda Joyce and George Murphy create a lot of laughs and these two do a splendid job. Murphy always turns in a fine performance without trying to "mug" his way through a picture. Wonder if George ever heard of "Haybelly Murphy" from Chicago? Running time, 79 minutes. Played September 21-24.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

GAY CABALLERO, THE: Cesar Romero, Sheila Ryan—Good picture; good business. Running time, 60 minutes. Played November 1-2.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GIRL FROM AVENUE A: Jane Withers, Kent Taylor—I'll be a monkey's uncle if this isn't "The Brat" remade and I tell Fox and the exhibitors that if this is the best that they can give Jane in the new season, I can see the swan song winging her way as it did for Shirley. It is cheap, trite and many walked out on it. Not so good. It does not augur well for Fox's one remaining juvenile star.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

GREAT PROFILE, THE: John Barrymore, Mary Beth Hughes, John Payne, Gregory Ratoff—Failed to draw or to please. Many walked out; said it was too silly. I pulled it the second day. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 3-4.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HONEYMOON'S OVER, THE: Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver—An average program picture. Double billed with Republic's "Kansas Terrors." Running time, 66 minutes. Played October 31-November 2.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

LUCKY CISCO KID: Cesar Romero, Evelyn Venable, Mary Beth Hughes—I personally like this series in its western style and Romero carries the part off well, but it is definitely not a box office drawing card. Might do well with a good feature but with "Military Academy," Columbia, as a co-feature, we did a poor two days business. Running time, 68 minutes. Played October 27-28.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

MARYLAND: Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter, Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charles Ruggles, Hattie McDaniel—Swell picture, but no stars. However, biz. was above average. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 13-14.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

RETURN OF FRANK JAMES: Henry Fonda, Gene Tierney, Jackie Cooper, Henry Hull—Good picture and I did not think that Fox could repeat on another "James" series. But, what will they do now for another one, if and when, for "Jesse" has been avenged and the "Fords" have been wiped out.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

SHOOTING HIGH: Jane Withers, Gene Autry—Biggest week-end for some time. This boy Autry is tops with us. Jane Withers also good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

YOUNG PEOPLE, THE: Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie, Charlotte Greenwood—Good picture, but no business. Shirley has lost her drawing power in this spot. Glad this is the last one. Played October 25-26.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

United Artists

CAPTAIN CAUTION: Victor Mature, Louise Platt, Leo Carrillo, Bruce Cabot—Very much of the same type as "Sea Hawk" in different eras. Both good but neither did business. In this modern age of relief and boon-doggling it appears that these historical sagas don't attract. They both had action, drama and tense situations, so why the failure to draw?—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT: Joel McCrea, Laraine Day, Herbert Marshall, Robert Benchley—This is tops in the type of picture that it is, foreign locale with American cast. But it has action, suspense and well directed. Speaks a lot for unit production as is the custom with United Artists. But with five picture mess that the Government has crammed down the throats of the exhibitor, looks like they will all have to unit from now on. I don't like it.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

ONE MILLION B. C.: Victor Mature, Lon Chaney, Jr., Carole Landis, John Hubbard—The imaginative type of picture like "Dr. Cyclops" and this one usually do fairly well here. Although this is slow at the beginning, it certainly makes up for lost time in the last half. The trick photography is very excellent and the whole crowd was spellbound during the last 40 minutes. It drew about average with lots of competition when doubled with "Torrid Zone." Keep up the experimental work in films, Mr. Roach. The plot was carried along without dialogue in a very good manner. That is not an easy thing to do because even silent films had titles. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 25-26.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

REBECCA: Laurence Olivier, Joan Fontaine, George Sanders, Judith Anderson—One of the best pictures we have played so far this year. Comments were favorable. Some came the second time to see it. Running time, 130 minutes. Played September 23-25.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

SOUTH OF PAGO PAGO: Jon Hall, Frances Farmer, Victor McLaglen, Olympe Bradna—While this picture is a little better than we expected, it just missed being a big picture. Business just average. Running time, 100 minutes. Played October 28-30.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

THERE GOES MY HEART: Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly—Well liked, especially Patsy Kelly. Hope to see more of her. Title didn't help business.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

WESTERNER, THE: Gary Cooper, Walter Brennan,, Doris Davenport, Fred Stone—Business good. Cooper turn in another good job but the people come out raving about Walter Brennan's great performance. This fellow Brennan is truly a great character actor. Running time, 99 minutes. Played October 30-November 1.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

Universal

BOYS FROM SYRACUSE: Allan Jones, Joe Penner, Rosemary Lane, Martha Raye, Irene Hervey, Charles Butterworth—A scream with the audience. Very good business. To me, Shakespeare's "Comedy of Errors" was his funniest and this was treated perfectly for the screen. The title was a great selling factor which was a smart move by Universal. Got to hand it to Nate Blumberg and his gang at Universal. The audiences got a big bang out of the trumpet fanfare in the picture. Running time, 75 minutes. Played September 28-October 1.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

FIRST LOVE: Deanna Durbin, Helen Parrish, Robert Stack, Eugene Pallette, Leatrice Joy—A very good picture, although not her best by far. She sings well but the people in the small towns want something else besides opera, such as "I Love to Whistle." Running time, 84 minutes. Played October 21-23.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

FUGITIVE, THE: Ralph Richardson, Diana Wynward—Gentlemen, I got well taken in on this picture. If you have a clientele who go for English pictures and actors, all well and good, but I doubt very much if you have. I thought I had some in this community, but no sirree. We still love America and American pictures, I assume. Running time, 76 minutes. Played November 4-5.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

HOT STEEL: Richard Arlen, Andy Devine—Arlen is very good. One of my favorites in certain roles. However, my patrons are seeing so many of this series they are tiring of them, and rightly so. Hope Universal will ease up on them soon. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 25-26.—Ken Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

HOUSE OF SEVEN GABLES: Margaret Lindsay, Vincent Price, Dick Foran, George Sanders, Nan Grey—Poor business and poorly received. Made a mistake in giving it a Sunday date. Played September 29-30.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

IT'S A DATE: Deanna Durbin, Kay Francis, Walter Pidgeon—Deanna is well liked here and while we did no extra business on this picture, don't blame it; rather blame "Virginia City," with which it was teamed. Played to more nice old ladies than usual. Played October 17-19.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

BROTHER ORCHID: Edward G. Robinson, Ann Sothern, Ralph Bellamy, Humphrey Bogart—This is an unusual story that contains action, comedy and sentiment. Advertise it as something quite different. The audience seemed to like it and I enjoyed it myself very much. The draw was about average. Running time, 88 minutes. Played October 24.—W. Varick Nevins III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

FLOWING GOLD: John Garfield, Pat O'Brien, Frances Farmer—Played this picture instead of "City for Conquest." A good action picture with interesting scenes of oil drilling. Should suit in any spot. Running time, 82 minutes. Played October 31-November 1.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

KNUTE ROCKNE—ALL AMERICAN: Pat O'Brien, Gale Page, Ronald Reagan, Donald Crisp—Tops? It's terrific. Held over to the biggest business we have had in years! We tied up every Catholic church and school in the town. We wanted to put this one over big for Jimmie Coston and we did! Couldn't help but put it over. It was a natural! This one is the proverbial mortgage lifter. Running time, 98 minutes. Played October 13-19.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

MY LOVE CAME BACK: Olivia de Havilland, Jeffrey Lynn, Charles Winninger, Eddie Albert, Jane Wyman—This was a swell feature picture with a fine cast. Miss de Havilland is certainly a fine actress and did herself justice in this one. Eddie Albert also carried his part well. Think this picture would draw business elsewhere. Business held up two days here. Running time, 85 minutes. Played October 31-November 1.—George O. Wiggin, Maplewood Theatre, Malden, Mass. Neighborhood and transient patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BLACKBOARD REVUE: Color Rhapsodies—Passable.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

COMMUNITY SING: Well liked by our patrons. Gene Morgan's humorous remarks help. Waiting for the next one. Running time, 10 minutes.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

MONEY SQUAWKS: Andy Clyde—Very good and pleased everyone. Clyde is dependable.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

SAVING STROKES WITH SAM SNEAD: Sport Thrills—Definitely only for golfers. Running time, 11 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 4—An off the set look at several of Hollywood's outstanding actresses, actors and directors, to mention a few, Cary Grant, Rosalind

Russell and Frank Capra. Cary and Rosalind put on an Alphonse-Gaston act that provoked much laughter. We intend to show more of this series. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 8—One of the most interesting to date. It shows the Hollywood stars on skates and they skate very well, some of them. Running time, 10 minutes.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

TAMING OF THE SNOOD, THE: Buster Keaton—What a lifer. It really bucked them up. If you're looking for comedies, here is one.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

CAPITAL CITY, WASHINGTON, D. C.: Fitz-Patrick Travel Talks—Another traveltalk. Metro sure has slipped on these. Positively N.G. for small towns. Running time, eight minutes.—Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

CAPTAIN SPANKY'S SHOWBOAT: Our Gang—An excellent short. Alfalfa's singing very good. Very entertaining to all. Running time, one reel.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

FISHING BEAR, THE: Cartoons—A very good colored cartoon. Pleased every one. One of the best we have played. Running time, eight minutes.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

HOMELESS FLEA: Cartoons—Very amusing cartoon in color. All about a dog and a flea. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HOME ON THE RANGE: Cartoons—This one went over big. Running time, nine minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

MIRACLE OF SOUND: Special—Even the human voice can be photographed and produced in sound. The inner workings of MGM's engineering department photographed and reproduced for your inspection and pleasure. Running time, 11 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

SPOTS BEFORE YOUR EYES: Pete Smith Specialties—Some good comedy scenes allow Pete Smith to show how to remove spots of many kinds. My wife copied the suggestions down as they came along and plans to give copies to some in the audience who have asked for them. That's an idea that could be developed further. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small town and rural patronage.

TOM TURKEY AND HIS HARMONICA HUMDINGERS: Cartoons—Good harmonica music and good animation do not make this color cartoon as entertaining as it should be. The antics of Borrah Minnevitch and his gang are easily recognized. It would appeal only to adults. Running time, eight minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Paramount

ANTS IN THE PLANTS: Color Classics—Just an average cartoon in color. Running time, eight minutes. A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

ARTIE SHAW'S CLASS IN SWING: Headliners—The jitterburg craze here is dying and don't believe that this short sold any tickets. However, it pleased. —Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

BOWLING SKILL: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Dandy bowling reel that could be used for tie-ups with bowling clubs. Trick shots are amazingly shown. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small town and rural patronage.

BUSY LITTLE BEARS: Paragraphics—With hunting season on, a natural. One of the year's outstanding animal shorts.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HAVE YOU MET YVETTE?: Headliners—Had Paul Baron and his orchestra played one or two of the modern popular numbers of today, our audience would have placed this short above the "fair" category. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trentoy, N. J. Prison patronage.

FRESH VEGETABLE MYSTERY, THE: Color Classics—Real pleasing.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HAVE YOU MET YVETTE?: Headliners—Very nice band number. Also the blonde. What became of Clyde McCoy? He made two real good band numbers for us.——Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

KING FOR A DAY: Gabby Colored Cartoons—"Gabby" is still the vociferous, pleasing personality. Remember the impression he made in "Gulliver's Travels." He was king for a day but both his and the real king's troubles end happily. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

LISTEN TO LARRY: Headliners—Larry Clinton's orchestra in an average band short. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

NATURE'S NURSERY: Paragraphics—Very good one reeler of animal life which has some comedy. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 16—National Guard units head for training posts. Dykstra directs draft. Willkie-Rooosevelt campaign. Football, Minnesota vs. Ohio State, Fordham vs. Pittsburgh. Conscientious objectors face Federal jury, et al. Very entertaining. Running time, 11 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

POPULAR SCIENCE: No. 2—Good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SNUBBED BY A SNOB: Color Classics—Here is a Hunky and Spunky color cartoon that is very good. However, the slow-burn bull steals the show and gets the main part of the laughs. Running time, eight minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

SPORTING EVERGLADES: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Entertaining picture of life in Florida. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

TOUCHDOWN REVIEW: Paragraphics—Several action shots taken from many of the outstanding collegiate grid contests of the 1939 season. Wherever football is liked, this short is bound to please. The side-stepping done by Butler of Tennessee, the slight swivel-hipped back and the speed of Northwestern's De Correvant highlight the short. Running time, 10 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

RKO Radio

INFORMATION PLEASE: No. 2—Another fairly good one of this series but, why, oh, why can't they improve the recording? Running time, 10½ minutes. —Joe Schindele, Granite Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

INFORMATION PLEASE: No. 13—Elmer Davis is the guest star in this one. The whole series is liked here and this one has some excellent humorous ad lib lines in it by Oscar Levant. The sound has been greatly improved over the last few I played. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 2: Britain's R.A.F.—Another timely issue of the March of Time. They are all well received here and they go over much better when they are played new. This one was right out of the can and therefore up-to-date. This does not tell you anything new but it is interesting just the same. Running time, 18 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 12: Spoils of Conquest—Dutch East Indies—An excellent subject. Very timely. Best of the product. Play it. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 13: Gateways to Panama—Another timely and well-done issue of a fine series that is always applauded here. This emphasizes defense of the Panama Canal and does not spend time on scenes of the canal itself. Most of the scenes are of islands in the Caribbean. Running time, 18 minutes. —W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

MR. MOUSE TAKES A TRIP: Walt Disney Cartoons—Mickey Mouse is again featured in a dandy color cartoon with plenty of action. Pluto's cramped position in the suitcase is a riot. Running time, eight minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

SLIGHTLY AT SEA: Edgar Kennedy Cartoons—If for no other reason, I would book Kennedy for my own special entertainment. But everyone likes him, too, so he's always an OK booking.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

SOCIETY DOG SHOW: Walt Disney Cartoons—Very good Disney cartoon in color.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STRAY LAMB: Reelisms—A little story featuring only animals and plenty of them. The photographer must have had plenty of patience to get some of the sequences in this one. It would be a very good short for children. Running time, nine minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

SUNK BY THE CENSUS: Edgar Kennedy Comedies—Another typical Kennedy comedy with plenty of laughs. Running time, 18 minutes.—Joe Schindele, Avalon Theatre, Granite Falls, Minn. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

LURE OF THE TROUT: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—Entertaining picture of fishing in color. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Universal

GOING PLACES: A very good series. Couldn't wish for better. Running time, 10 minutes.—Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

STRANGER THAN FICTION: Always well received by our patrons. Running time, nine minutes. —Fred Basha, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

CONFEDERATE HONEY: Merrie Melodies—A very good cartoon. Vitaphone always puts out a good cartoon.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

FOOTBALL HIGHLIGHTS: Hollywood Novelties—The best place for this is a week or two before "Knute Rockne—All American" but it is a good short at any time. It has some good old shots of Rockne and shows some of the plays and tactics that made him famous in football. Play it while football is still in the air instead of pneumonia. Running time, 10 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural partonage.

GOOD NIGHT ELMER: Merrie Melodies—Average cartoon in color. Good music but kinda silly. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GUN DOG'S LIFE: Color Parade—A very good short, especially for animal lovers and hunters. Kids will like it, too. Running time, 10 minutes.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

LONDON CAN TAKE IT: Quentin Reynolds—Play this as soon as possible! It's great! And wait until you hear the words of praise from your patrons after they view it! It shows the present day routine of London, working by day, hiding from bombs by night. Quentin Reynolds' voice narrating makes every scene stand out vividly! What a job he did with this short! Running time, 10 minutes.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

MATTY MALNECK AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—This orchestra short is plenty hot and will please. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

POINTS FOR POINTERS: Color Parade—Good short about dogs in color. Men will love it. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PONY EXPRESS DAYS: George Reeves—Swell color and plenty of action makes this an outstanding short. It has everything and more than the average western feature. I cannot see what the features do for the extra hour they run. It is the story of some of Buffalo Bill's younger days. Running time, 20 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

SCREWBALL FOOTBALL: Merrie Melodies—A good short. Very amusing to everyone. Running time, 10 minutes.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

SERVICE WITH THE COLORS: Technicolor Specials—This is another excellent color featurette from Vitaphone showing in beautiful photography what army life is like. It is a very high rating short and should be publicized. One of the new Mobile Recruiting Trailers was following this print around and developed plenty of interest in themselves and in the film. The head of the Recruiting Office said a few words from the stage before it came on the screen. For gosh sakes, do something special with it. It is worth it. Running time, 20 minutes.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Serials

Universal

PHANTOM CREEPS, THE: Bela Lugosi—Just a so-so serial. No particular pull that I can notice.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

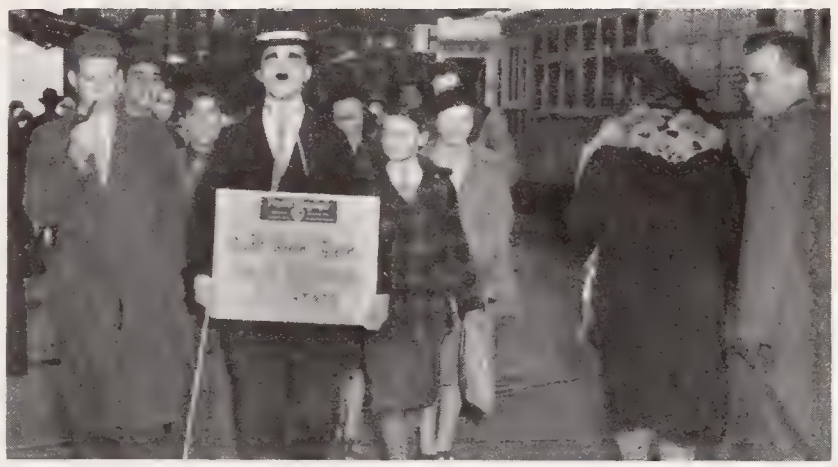
WHY "OLD"? WHY "NEW"?

Theatremen who have been around a few will have no difficulty in placing the photo reproduced on this page. The shot, of course, is a Chaplin impersonator followed by the usual crowd. It was used by Ed McBride for "The Great Dictator", as it was by other members on the same date.

Probably Mac served up the same dish on the last Chaplin and those that came before. If the comic makes another picture, the Loew-man will turn loose the same kind of ballyhoo. And why not?

Along in this section is illustrated a shorthand novelty by Arnold Stoltz for "Hired Wife". The stunt is hardly virgin, as Stoltz himself hastens to note. In fact, the Round Tabler took it from the very same idea he found effective on another boss-and-secretary picture some years back. And when Arnold's next "office picture" rolls along, it's a cinch the local stenogs will be similarly intrigued by another batch of the same. Again, why not?

Judged by the success Round Tablers have been having with the mistermed "oldies", it is long past time for those who make unwise distinctions between old and new to revise their thinking. Sufficient instances similar to the above have been set down in these pages by now to affirm that the shrewd showman regards his exploitations as stock in trade, as permanent moulds to be employed again in modeling ideas to fit.



Expert theatremen are not concerned with the pains suffered by ambitious managers laboring to deliver brand new exploitations. The realists find it more profitable to concentrate on nursing the exploitations already in the family.

FIFTY CENTS, PLUS SWEAT

In celebration of the theatre's thirty-eighth anniversary, Ben Stewart put on a campaign for the Gorman, in Framingham, Mass. It was a campaign. Included was the stage appearance of the championship V.F.W. Blue and Gold Band, in uniform, and other entertainment. A popular radio commentator acted as master of ceremonies. The band paraded to the theatre. The local and nearby Boston papers went for the event in photos and feature material. Writes Ben:

"After the smoke of battle cleared away, I found that the whole stunt involved a 50 cent investment for a parade permit. Everything else was strictly promotional."

Will Ben protest if we take exception? The campaign certainly cost much more than the half-buck he mentions. The added expenditure, of course, is in the hours and hours, the old-fashioned sweat it took to get the program lined up, to plant the publicity, to do the hundred-and-one chores the occasion called for.

The most effective promotions are those adding up to plenty in terms of ingenuity and hard work. Which is as it should be. Often, the "50 cent" campaigns are those to study in determining how much a manager has on the ball.

THAT HELPING HAND

Some years back, a printer of Walton, N. Y., working from an idea by Manager C. Houck, of Smalley's Theatre, started a weekly "shopper" which has grown to be an important source of publicity. Now the sheet helps in putting over the Round Tabler's campaigns, a recent instance being a Girl Scout benefit, plugged all through the pages.

Theatremen are called upon, and respond generously, for ideas to aid businesses outside their own. Though they expect little in return, Houck's experience is another instance of "bread on the waters" coming back as boxoffice cake.

Round Table In Pictures

Hitch-hikers, each carrying lettered suitcases, covered main highway leading into Philadelphia as part of Round Tabler Artie Cohn's advance exploitation for "Howards of Virginia" at the Warner Roosevelt Theatre. Copy on one suitcase read "Cars preferred going to the", followed by theatre name.

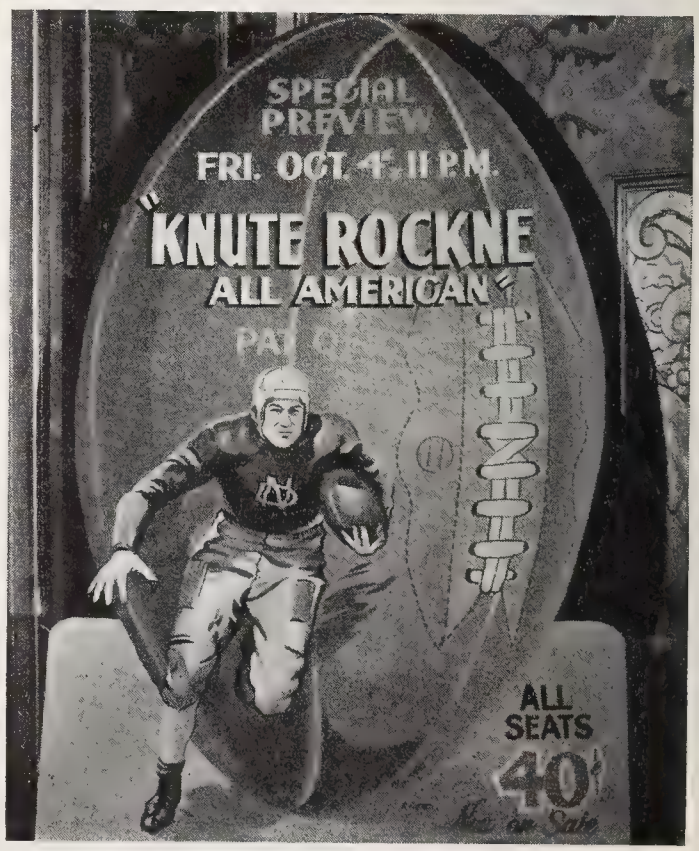
For world premiere of "Mark of Zorro" at the RKO Albee, Cincinnati, Manager Joe Alexander dressed 25 lads in appropriate costume with masks and chest banners for street bally. The "Zorros" covered the downtown areas.



Effective was the front constructed by Louie Lamm at Warners' Palace, in Lorain, Ohio, for his date on "No Time for Comedy". Scene stills graced either side of boxoffice. Newspaper coverage included movie quiz for tickets.

An actual stream of colored water, simulating discharge of oil, forced from the top of derrick by concealed circulating pump formed basis of Dick Stoddard's lobby on "Flowing Gold" at the Esquire, Davenport, Ia. Rest of the display, in miniature, represented an oil field in operation, with background in keeping for added atmosphere.

Pigskin lobby setpiece was erected in the Warner, Erie, Pa., theatre by Ken Grimes as his advance on "Knute Rockne—All American". Superimposed on the football was action cutout of a player, together with title, playdates and cast.

Amateurs Contest Tied to Band Date

Booked for a two-day stand at the Indiana, Washington, Ind., the date of Rudy Bundy and band was spotlighted by "Kal" Kalberer with a newspaper contest inviting local girls to audition for single-performance appearances with the orchestra during the engagement. Young women over 18 ambitious to "sing with a band" were requested to register at the newspaper for the auditions to take place the night before opening. Here, the band leader selected the four best entries for the four shows at the Indiana. Additional prizes were term passes.

For outside distribution, "Kal" tied in with local dairy to pay for photos of the band head in exchange for copy mention on photo backs, which also included line-up of high school football game taking place the Saturday before. This brought permission for passing out of photos at the stadium. Imprint on photo invited holders to have them autographed by the bandsman on the opening night of the date.

Publicity in and out of the city was comprehensive and topped with a plant engineered by the Round Tabler on finding that most of the orchestra was of draft age. This was sold to the dailies by having the boys register locally, landing a front-page mention and back-page three-column cut and story. Advertising was started three weeks ahead with day-ahead display featured with a personal endorsement from Kalberer on the strength of the entire show.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Animated Lobby Display Sells "Argentine Way"

Conceived by his house electrician was the lobby setpiece used by Ed Fitzpatrick for "Down Argentine Way" at Loew's Poli, in Waterbury, Conn. consisting of cutout figure of Carmen Miranda. Highlight was device attached to cutout so that hips of the star swayed in rhythm with music played over concealed machine. For entire week of showing, two dancers from local studios taught the latest rhumbas and congas in the lobby. Street bally consisted of two fellows in Argentine costumes, plugging song hits from the picture.

Theatre photographer snapped 25 photos of crowds at football games. Certain of these faces were circled and posted on display board in front of theatre, guest tickets going to those identifying themselves. Station WBRY held an Ameche musical quiz on his former films for guest tickets, papers running stories of appearance of Ameche on the program. WATR came through with tieup on morning women's program for three days ahead, programs devoted to South American food recipes with plugs.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Hosts Karson Descendant

Discovering a living descendant of Kit Karson in Bridgeport, Morris Rosenthal at the Majestic Theatre in advance of that date, had the gentleman interviewed by local daily for story running currently with opening. Local angle gave the picture added news value and the Round Tabler garnered additional breaks by inviting Mr. Karson and his family opening night.

Hat and Mustache Back As Charlie Rides Again

"Dictator" Campaigns Spotlight Chaplin Costume

The traditional derby and Chaplin costume as to be expected, return in campaigns for "The Great Dictator" as the members tell about it in sweeping promotions. In Waterbury, Conn., Ed Fitzpatrick found the old reliables still so, for the date at Loew's Poli, the theatre staff in advance wearing derbies to which were attached the title. Trick mustaches completed the dress-up. Some 50 of the derbies were left upturned on restaurant tables, in phone booths, etc. Stickers inside read: "If found, please return to Charlie Chaplin at Loew's Poli, Friday."

The city's busses were also worked by members of the personnel carrying standees of the comic. Boarding the busses in the rush hours, the boys acted as though they were delivering the standees to a destination. The snapper came about with the boys dropping off and leaving the standees behind. Called for later at the lost-and-found department, the cutouts were used for the same stunt again.

Co-op Page Quiz Attracts

Star stuff was built up further with an animated lobby display showing the comic tipping his hat. Figure was boxed in to allow for a phonograph which played a laughing record. In between, one of the staff made announcements of the picture. Street stunts were appended with a clever Chaplin impersonator who covered the main streets with a back banner.

Newspaper tieins were topped by a co-op Chaplin movie quiz. In each ad was planted a question having to do with the characters and background of the story. Cash and tickets were offered as prizes. Full page pictorial layout and ads made up another spread in a second daily.

Postal Telegraph Cooperates

Postal Telegraph was promoted on a miniature blank idea, the messages having to do with the date, and distributed by the messenger boys. The wire company also provided a giant window display to follow up. The schools were contacted through the coloring contest heralds on a Board of Education tieup. To this end, announcement cards were placed on all school bulletin boards. Special inserts in weekly picture magazines were noted by signs carried on delivery truck of cooperating news distributor and cards on all newsstands.

Colored strip blotters were circulated in offices, libraries, etc., huge streamers in windows, and fan photos given to the youngsters in hook in with leading children's shop. Store called attention to the giveaway in large window display. The five-and-tens also came in with windows backed by giant Chaplin heads, other stores capitalized on Goddard fashions. Streamers were also planted on window fronts all around town and factories worked with imprinted time-cards.

McBride Plugs "Chaplin Talks"

That for the first time, Chaplin talks was seized upon by Ed McBride for his date at Loew's State, Providence, in selling a "talking front." Mac got one of the local announcers to make up a transcription, obtained the rest of the reproducing equipment together with a radio beam pickup, publicized the flash vigorously viat the "radio beam lite" as something new in Providence.

Frontal decorations were given a new twist by a reproduction of the New York lobbies wrapped in cellophane. Attention-value was added with hundreds of action stills that blanketed the front. All copy stressed "Chaplin talks" and 40-foot lighted date announcement over the marquee was sufficient to attract all passing foot and moving traffic.

Women's Clubs Enlisted

Tiein advertising was topped with a six column full, run three times and for deluxe window cards Eddie introduced the Chaplin gold-edged insert reprints, mounted on six-ply Bristol board. For direct mail, one of the special two-column ads was reproduced and forwarded to a select list. Outside lists were employed further by the cooperation of the leading women's clubs in with an "endless chain" phone hookup. Called on the phone about the picture, each one so addressed was asked to call two other members until the list was covered.

Impersonators for street attention were also spotted here in advance, during the date, and on the stage for the theatre's Hallowe'en Jamboree. Situated so that the house can be seen as far away as three blocks, Eddie rigged up an 80-foot valence transparency to take advantage of the distance in attracting added attention.

Coloring Contest Draws

Under the heading "The Genius of Charlie Chaplin," Frank Murphy at Loew's State, Syracuse, landed an editorial anent "The Great Dictator" day ahead of opening. Contest angles were covered through coloring contest and scene stills which were run in cooperating paper, tickets going to those supplying best gag remarks supposedly said by Chaplin or Oakie.

LYKES SERVES COFFEE TO "DICTATOR" LINE

Since the house opened at 9:00 o'clock for "The Great Dictator" premiere at Loew's Valentine, Toledo, Jack Lykes tied in with a hotel next door to serve early morning coffee and doughnuts to those waiting on line at the boxoffice. In addition, Lykes arranged with a local orchestra to play from the score of the picture to beguile the early arrivals.

Stunt attracted sufficient attention to pack the streets and to land a sizable newspaper story.

SHOWMEN'S LOBBY LAFFS

Another incident in the tumultuous career of the fabulous Marquee Mike, as depicted here by his creator, Glenn Franke of Cheviot, Ohio.

Rockne Week Proclaimed By Mayor for Taylor

If folks in Buffalo weren't aware of the opening of "Knute Rockne" at Shea's Theatre, it was no fault of Charlie Taylor, who literally covered the town with his publicity and exploitation. Starting in with the mayor's proclamation of a Rockne Week, newspapers covered the event well ahead and during run. A reported first time was the three-column cut used by the Catholic Union and Echo with theatre credit in cutlines.

Tinted paper megaphones with cut of O'Brien were widely distributed as were bookmarks. Leading restaurant came through with special menu during the week, cover of which carried outline of football with appropriate tiein copy. Another giveaway consisted of 1940 football schedules with picture copy and newspaper coverage started a couple of weeks ahead right through to opening.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Miller Plugs Anniversary With Birthday Campaign

Playing fourth-run in the East Liberty section of Pittsburgh, Pa., Manager Henry T. Miller, Jr., recently staged the seventh anniversary of the Harris Family in first-run fashion, topping his campaign with a number of smart "thank you" tieins. These were planted in newspaper and herald copy, the latter stressing invitations to the cutting of the birthday-cake, promoted from baker.

Another stunt that worked out well was an offer of free admissions to patrons presenting Lincoln pennies of 1922, the theatre's first year. Further attention was attracted with a street parade of a local boys' brigade marching to the theatre.

For exploitation on the accompanying picture, "Haunted House," Miller promoted match folders with tiein copy on the scare slant, hung skeletons in the lobby. These were animated by whirling fan beneath and colored with green and blue lights on flasher. For a general giveaway, Miller reports quick acceptance of sample boxes of cough drops promoted by the Round Tabler.

NATIONAL PROMOTION FOR "SANTA FE TRAIL"

Students who hope to attend a world premiere are now offered the opportunity in the tiein made by Warners with Scholastic Magazine on "Santa Fe" Trail". Hookup is built around a contest requiring 25- to 50-word conversations that might have taken place between the two lead characters in the picture.

Winner, with his or her teacher, will be taken to the opening in Santa Fe, New Mexico. Many other prizes are offered for the runners-up. Current issue of the magazine carries full details.

Manila Celebrates 'Hawk' Premiere

While concerned with the current involvements in the Pacific, folks in the Philippines are turning a ready ear to pictures as attested to in the recent campaign on the twin-run of "Sea Hawk" at the Lyric and Capitol, in Manila. Sponsored by Manager Almy, the date was given box-office emphasis by a special eight-page newspaper supplement of the Manila Herald in honor of the premiere in addition to other extensive exploitation. This included a two-page roto spread in the Tribune.

The special, distributed also to all exhibitors in the Islands, featured a series of banner heads throughout on the opening and colorful publicity for the attraction. Co-op ads with leading firms were numerous as were photos of the crowds and costumed personnel. Usherettes were dressed in keeping with the picture background, and, in typical Hollywood fashion, flood-lights were employed for the opening.

Almy's campaign started two weeks ahead with giant banners planted on the face of downtown buildings. Cashiers distributed slips about the date and imprinted napkins planted all over town as were heralds. Leading shops carried elaborate displays, taxis, special cards and radio were employed for announcements the week in advance.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Wheeler Promotes For Kid Matinees

Through the cooperation of a dog food company, Ray Wheeler while at the Roxy in LaPorte, Ind., promoted 12 kiddie coaster wagons for giveaway at one of his regular Saturday matinees. Wagons were spotted in theatre lobby week ahead and screen trailer advertised the event in advance. Special pluggers were distributed to kiddies at all schools, public playgrounds and rural schools throughout entire trade areas. Six local grocers carrying the dog food featured window displays of the wagons and distributed heralds and lucky number coupons. As a further buildup, announcements were made from theatre stage in advance and weekly programs devoted space to the event.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Local Boy's Part in "Ramparts" Stressed in Harrison's Date

Much was made locally over "Ramparts We Watch" opening by Ed Harrison at the State, Waterville, Maine, since a town boy had a part in the picture. Newspapers covered the date with stories and the Mayor issued a proclamation advising all to see the film. This was run in papers and the original mounted and displayed in window. Announcments of the show were made at all civic clubs and highschools in addition to classes in history at college.

With Colby College nearby, Harrison sent letters over his sig to each student calling attention to his shows and urging their attendance as his guest. In addition a second letter was mailed to his patrons listing the comforts of his house and forthcoming attractions.

Ohio State Night Tied to "Rockne"

With the support of the local Notre Dame Club and cooperation of the Ohio State football officials on an elaborate stage program, the premiere of "Knute Rockne," at the RKO Palace, Columbus, was tied in successfully for a university pep-rally and Rockne dedication reported by Johnny Barcroft as one of the most successful programs in local theatre history. The house was cleared for the nine o'clock show when the big doings went on, tickets for which were disposed of in advance.

Opening with a medley of college songs by the theatre organist, the program swung into high with the introduction of the college brass band of 120 pieces and the university of cheer leaders to whip up enthusiasm. Leading members of the local and national Notre Dame alumni, team, coaches and players spoke before the gathering, as did the Mayor of the city. State participation was extended in a "Rockne Week" proclamation from the Governor. Others on stage were every member of the university team, campus prominents and heads of the local professional club. Pep talks on the coming game were followed by tributes to Rockne, the stage program closing with playing of the Notre Dame Alma Mater song.

For exploitation on the date, equipment used by former South Bend football "greats" was displayed in the lobby, lettered football sweaters were worn by the usherettes, displays planted in all sports stores. All Notre Dame alumni were informed of the event and announcements placed on bulletin boards in fraternity and sorority houses. College songs over the house p.a. system and lobby pennants also contributed to the atmosphere.

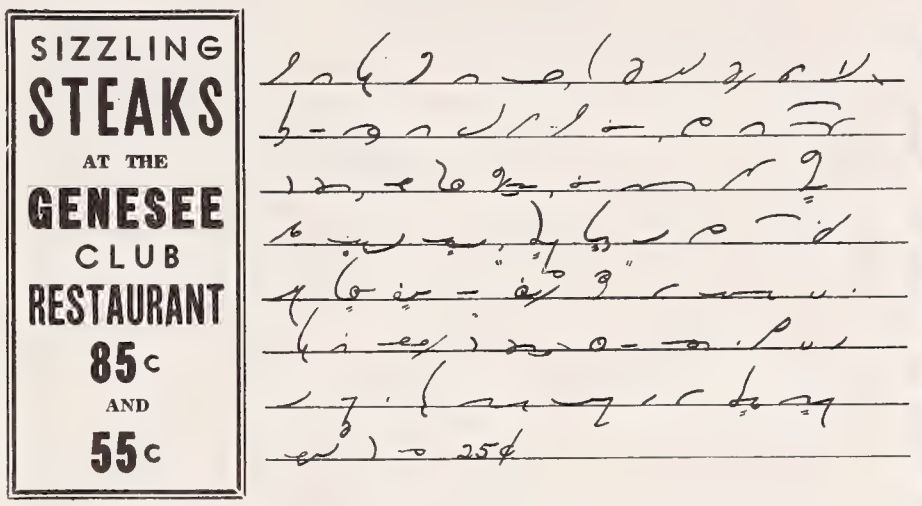
Robinson Teaser Copy Builds Prevue Show

Out in San Bernardino, Cal., where studio prevues are a frequent part of theatre program, Manager John Robinson at Warner's Ritz worked out an intriguing campaign in advertising a recent showing of this nature. In advance, the Round Tabler distributed a herald in which were listed four of the newer productions, the copy headed "you will see one of the following."



The teaser slant was followed out in the Warnerman's newspaper advertising in which, in question form, he listed a half dozen possible prevue attractions with wind-up copy reading: "Well, anyway, it is one of the pictures listed above. Be smart, don't miss it." Success of the slant is noted in the fact that the house was filled to capacity an hour and a half before the special showing.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Peterson's "Picture Patter"

Another Round Tabler to turn columnist is N. Bernard Peterson, of the Falls, in Little Falls, Minn. Under the heading "Picture Patter," column appears twice a week in the local daily and Peterson in addition to running the usual Hollywood gossip and local theatre activities, manages to get in plugs for his current attractions.

Shorthand Copy for Stenogs Sells "Hired Wife" for Stoltz

Tied in with a nearby restaurant which paid all costs in exchange for copy credit was a blotter put out by Arnold Stoltz for "Hired Wife" at Warner Avon, Utica, N. Y. Framed on both sides by panels, one an ad for the picture, the other for the restaurant, the center of the blotter was a reproduction of a page from a stenographer's notebook with seven lines of shorthand. Transcribed, the shorthand read:

"Tell your boss, if you like, but we thought we'd use shorthand just in case that you want to tell him that your grandmother is sick next Friday afternoon when you go to the Avon to see Rosalind Russell, Virginia Bruce and that grand heart-throb, Brian Ahern in "Hired Wife", the romance of a boss who married his secretary. Why not make a day of it and enjoy a business girl's lunch at the Gennessee Club Restaurant for only 25 cents."

Street Parade Held By Grimes for "Hawk"

Local Sea Scouts marched to the theatre en masse for Ken Grimes' opening of "Sea Hawk" at the Warner, in Erie, Pa. Giant cut-action photo of Errol Flynn was displayed prominently in his lobby and title street stencils were used in area surrounding theatre. Newspaper coverage included coloring contest for children in addition to contest whereby tickets were awarded to those correctly reading copy in jumbled conversation balloons. To celebrate the first anniversary of his kid club, Grimes promoted a double truck in which leading merchants cooperated, directing their ads to mothers and kids alike. Featured was a two-column story on the history of the club together with cut of Grimes and the part he played in the formation of the organization.

Folks in Waterloo, Iowa, were excited a bit on a teaser stunt contrived by Maurice Crew at the Strand, the manager distributing simulated metal wedding rings to which were attached small cards. Copy read: "Place this on the Third Finger, Left Hand, then call 220".

The number, of course, was the theatre 'phone, and the many who called were told the stunt was to remind them to see the picture. Cast and starting date were also given.

Prickett Arranges Advance Citywide "Westerner" Search

Teaser contest planted in his dailies ahead of the "Westener" opening at the El Rancho, Victoria, Tex. by Ken Prickett consisted of a voting contest whereby readers were invited to cast their ballots for some localite who possesses most of the characteristics of a range-bred Texan. Daily for a week ahead the stunt was plugged winding up opening night when the winner was announced and awarded with the title of "The Westerner." Ceremonies were held on stage with prizes to winners.

Reported as a first time was full cooperation of privately owned library, which tied on the date, plugs were received over radio and atmospheric front and lobby were set up for the occasion.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Sweethearts Owl Show Featured by Murphy

Tying in "He Stayed for Breakfast" and "The Golden Fleecing," Frank Murphy, at Loew's, in Syracuse, staged an all-fun sweethearts owl show, starting his late complete show on Saturday night at 10 P. M. Admission tickets were sold to women only, with the stunt staged as a salute to Syracuse women, urging them to bring their boy friends.

Screen trailer plugged the occasion week ahead, special lobby display was built, sidewalk board was used, newspaper stories planted and radio announcements made over WFBL and WSYR. For attention, Murphy used a ballyhoo man at the boxoffice on night of show.

EXPLOITATION BRIEFS FROM A-FIELD

Herald summonses were distributed by W. S. Samuel, Rio Theatre, in Nederland, Texas, as advance exploitation for his date on "The Westerner," cut in center featuring action scene still on which were superimposed title and cast. Another gag used by the theatreman was for "Sandy Was a Lady." Heralds were also plugged with special coupons attached for "rolling in the aisles," and copy to effect that the laughing section was in any seat.

A natural for his patrons at the Fox, in Burlington, N. J., was Gene Stutenroth's lobby display on "They Drive by Night" which involved a contest angle. Planted on the setpiece were photos of the stars appearing in the picture and a series of lights under each. To patrons, who with one turn of the switch were able to turn on all lights, autographed photos were awarded. Doorman in attendance controlled light switches.

Gag which is reported to have gone over well for Bill Yeakle at the Kentucky, in Danville, Ky., for "The Sea Hawk" was his distribution of imprinted pay envelopes in which were inserted rubber pen knives. Copy on outside read: "You may use this knife, as the old saying goes, to cut yourself a grand slice of entertainment," etc., etc.

Dressing a lad as an oil worker, Milton Wainstein for "Flowing Gold" at the Strand Theatre, in Holyoke, Mass., had him distribute tinted cards with copy reading: "Oil Claim. I stake my claim that 'Flowing Gold' is the best show in town." In addition, fleet of oil trucks were appropriately bannered.

Promoted entirely costless was Charlie Moyer's cooking class conducted at the State Theatre, in Hanover, Pa., recently. Sponsored for four weeks by the makers of Spry, their home economist was present to conduct the classes and do the cooking and demonstrating. Weekly minor prizes were awarded and for a grand gift given the woman holding the lucky number accumulated over the four week period a de luxe range was awarded.

In connection with the recent M. & P. Moreau Week, J. K. O'Donnell at the Haines Theatre, in Waterville, Maine, featured street broadcasts in front of his house with guest tickets to participants. Cashiers concentrated ahead on calling all telephone subscribers advising them of the week's programs and personal letters were mailed to all leading women's clubs. Theatre front was dressed in gala attitre for the occasion, special trailer was made up 10 days ahead and full page co-op ads and classified contest landed.

THEATRE NAME TIED TO "LEFT HAND" STUNT

For "Third Finger, Left Hand" at Schine's Ohio, Fostoria, Ohio, Bill Burke had a boy and girl as bride and groom ride about town in an open car without any advertising. At traffic stops, the couple would break into an argument and the crowd would collect.

When it did, a youngster handed out novelty cards, copy headed with "Ohio's Own Howlarious Hit". The snapper that commanded attention was the replacing of the two O's in the theatre name with simulated wedding rings of the same size, all held together with paste and clips.

Gotten out specially for his physicians' list were the Government postcards mailed out in advance of "Dr. Kildaire Goes Home" by Arnold Gates at Loew's Park, in Cleveland. Sent as a reminder that the picture was playing, end portion of card, which was perforated, was for patrons' convenience on which to enter their seat registration.

Pickets dressed as ghosts walked up and down in front of the Blair Theatre, Hollidaysburg, Pa., as part of Douglas W. Mellott's advance bally for "The Ghost Breakers." Covered with sheets which had grotesque faces painted on them and carrying signs reading: "Unfair to Ghosts" the men attracted considerable attention and laughs.

Taking over during Don Johnson's vacation, Assistant Herb Gatzke at the Gayety, in Chicago for "Wagons Westward" promoted an old wagon, which appropriately bannered was driven through the streets day ahead of opening. For contrast Gatzke tied up with automobile agency which toured several of its new cars through the downtown area also bannered. For window display, the theatreman promoted various rifles and guns which were featured with explanatory copy.

LAMBERT JUMPS TOWN ON REGISTRATION

With a noon deadline, the daily in Racine, Wis., could not await the draft numbers. The radio station, pressed for time, would not announce them. So Stanley Lambert, at the Rialto, walked off with Registration Day honors in a tiein with the station by listing the numbers in the lobby as they came off the wires.

Announcements were made that as the numbers were reported they would be posted at the Rialto, this jamming the theatre area completely the entire day and the next.

Tying in with the recent elections, Frank Murphy at Loew's State, in Syracuse, planted giant star photos in his lobby, each carrying picture title and copy. Above all and stretching entire length of his foyer was banner reading: "Vote a straight Loew-M-G-M ticket."

Effective was the home-made "Flowing Gold" lobby setpiece arranged by Clara Schmitt for that date at the Yazoo, Yazoo City, Miss. Small house built out of cardboard was surrounded by miniature derricks, about six feet high, strung with small electric lights and two cans painted silver to represent oil tanks. For further animation, several cars and tractors ran around tracks at base.

Reported as a first time he was able to secure a permit for a street parade was stunt arranged by Francis J. Faille at the Paramount, in North Adams, Mass., for "Strike Up the Band." Members of local drum corps marched through streets appropriately bannered on opening day, holding a brief concert out front before entering theatre. In addition local daily carried stories in advance of the parade.

Co-op ad page was promoted by Ed Benjii at the Capitol, in Madison, Wis., with each store's ad carrying three questions pertaining to its merchandise. Guest tickets went to those correctly answering all queries. Contest was also plugged in windows and on counters of those tied in to the stunt.

Since Frank and Jesse James were well known around his territory, Hiram M. Meeks for that date at the Rialto, Morrilton, Ark., used a covered wagon bally at the local county fair then in session during run of picture. For front, two huge standees were planted on either side of boxoffice, 24-sheet pasted to sidewalk and silk valance used for the marquee.

A personal letter from Frank Morgan to Jack Simons and Lou Cohen, Loew's Poli Theatres, Hartford, was good for a column in the Hartford Times as advance ballyhoo for "Hullabaloo."

Lady patrons were invited to participate in a nail-driving contest in front of the theatre as part of the "Wyoming" campaign put over by Francis Deering, Loew's State, Houston. The stunt was good for news breaks in both the Post and the Press.

Executed by Manager John LaDue of the Warner Strand, in Akron, Ohio, was his false front setpiece for "Flowing Gold," which was stationed in his lobby. Title letters were done in flitter, cutout heads of the stars were featured and scene stills used profusely.

YOU ARE INVITED TO JOIN UP

ARNOLD M. NATHANSON

began in showbusiness as an usher at the Lake Theatre in Cleveland, Ohio, and was moved to the Hippodrome in the same vicinity, in the capacity of chief of service. Thereafter, Arnold came on to Warner's local office and for about a year worked in the theatre department poster room. He was then promoted to be the assistant advertising man in Warner's advertising and publicity department, where he is now located.

is connected with the Associated Theatres circuit and acts as manager of the Trenton Theatre in Trenton, Mich. He has been in this spot about a year, having been promoted from the job of assistant manager. Doorman duty, then head of the floor preceded these activities. Please let us know what you are doing for the box office, Redick, so that the other members and readers may be told.

started in 1937 as usher and apprentice, and then was made assistant operator. He made rapid strides for it wasn't long before he became chief operator. Early this year Roger was promoted to assistant manager and we now hear from him from the State Theatre, Madawaska, Maine. Keep us informed of your doings, Roger, at not too infrequent intervals.

belongs to the Golden State Theatres circuit and is the assistant manager of their Uptown Theatre in San Francisco, Calif. His entrance into showbusiness dates to 1932 and his first job was that of an usher at the Alexandria Theatre. When he moved to El Rey he served as chief of service and at the Coliseum he was appointed assistant manager. Fred absented himself from the moving picture industry for a year to study music. However, he returned to his first love and secured a job as doorman at the Uptown, being appointed chief of service next and then assistant prior to attaining his present post.

is with the Anas Circuit and manages the Cove Theatre in Hollidays Cove, West Virginia. Although he is in show business for but three years he has been doing a fine job of work and has been working as manager of the Cove Theatre. Please let us hear from you, Conrad, for undoubtedly much of what you are doing would be of interest to our other members.

is the house manager at the Elton Theatre in Norfolk, Va. In 1939 he entered show business as doorman of this same house and shortly thereafter moved to the State Theatre, acting as house manager. A transfer brought Ralph to his present position, from where we hope to receive reports of his activities.

LEO P. RYAN started as an usher for Affiliated Theatres, Inc., before going with Warners in western New York. He left and for a short period worked with various bands throughout that territory but returned to once again join with Warners. Leo was at the State Theatre, Olean, N. Y., and was then transferred to several theatres as assistant and relief manager. After being affiliated with this company for four years he worked for Harris Bros. at the State Theatre, Hartford, Conn., as house manager. The next moves brought him to manage the Marble Hill Theatre in the Bronx, N. Y., for Cocalis, then the Genessee Theatre for Basil Bros. At the present time, Leo is with the Prudential Circuit in the capacity of manager at the Hicksville Playhouse in Hicksville, Long Island, N. Y.

is the assistant manager of the Majestic Theatre in Rotan, Texas, which house belongs to the Robb and Rowley United circuit. In 1925 and for seven years thereafter, Ollie acted as operator and display man at the Rex in Purcell, Okla. Road show work was his next undertaking. In 1934 he was affiliated with the Palace Theatre in Burkburnett, Texas and then joined the Griffith Amusement Company until last year.

was initiated into his present career when he was given the job of usher at the Strand Theatre, Erie, Pa., in 1928. He left there to act as doorman at the Aris house, in the same vicinity. Moving again, in like capacity, he went to the Perry Theatre. In 1931 Bob was promoted to the position of chief of service at the Deluxe Warner Theatre, Erie and after three years was placed in the assistant manager's job. A transfer brought this able showman to the Columbia in Sharon, Pa., as acting manager and then he moved to Ridgway and was the skipper at the Strand Theatre.

began as an usher for Pantages Theatres in Spokane, Wash., about 12 years ago. He was made doorman and then assistant manager of the Fox house, then transferred to the Orpheum, also as assistant. Willard bought the Rialto Theatre in Spokane and after selling the house sold pictures out of Seattle for a year. He returned to Spokane as assistant at the Orpheum and then was promoted to a manager's post at the Liberty. Again he went back to the Orpheum, as manager this time, and is now at the State, in a like job.

was employed at the Ritz Theatre in Brantley, Alabama, acting as manager of the house and also being in charge of advertising, exploitation and sign painting. A change placed him at the Ga-Ana Theatre in Georgiana, Alabama, from where we now receive reports of what he is doing for the box office.

IN COURTS

Theatre Building Actions In Florida and Kentucky

Actions on the right to erect theatres are current in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Pineville, Ky. In Ft. Lauderdale, E. R. Bennett, denied permission to erect a theatre building on Las Olas Boulevard, has appealed the building inspector's decision to the board of adjustment.

In Pineville, a suit has been filed to compel the city council to act immediately on a proposal to erect a new theatre by Don Reda, who has already broken ground for the theatre. One protest asked that the building permit be denied by the city as a protection to local industry.

20th Century-Fox Against Century Circuit Settled

The suit of Twentieth Century-Fox against Century Circuit, New York, for $70,000 damages claiming violation of contracts to play Twentieth Century-Fox films during 1938-39 and 1939-40 seasons was settled and discontinued in New York supreme court Friday, November 8th. Century had counter-claimed for $75,000, claiming breach of contract by the plaintiff.

Terms of the settlement were not disclosed but attorneys said that Century would continue doing business with the plaintiff.

UA Seeks Dismissal Of Goldwyn Action

Dismissal of the suit of Samuel Goldwyn against United Artists for cancellation of the plaintiff's contract, damages and an accounting is to be sought from John W. Clancy, federal judge, in New York Friday, according to a notice of motion filed in federal court last week.

The motion asks for dismissal on the ground that the plaintiffs in filing an amended complaint failed to comply with a recent order of Judge Vincent T. Leibell requiring the complaint to be separately stated and numbered. Alternatively, United Artists, demands that Mr. Goldwyn serve a new complaint complying with the court order.

Plaintiff's Motion Granted

Motion to strike out the answer of the defendant, Joseph F. Shulman, operator of the Plaza, Windsor, Conn., has been granted in the clearance case of Lampert Theatres of Windsor, Inc., against Warners brought to the superior court in New Haven last February. Plaintiff asks $25,000 damages, reformation of the contract, and an injunction against Warners restraining it from performance of a second run contract, which it entered into in a violation, it is claimed, with the plaintiff, operator of the Windsor.

Set Tarkington Trial

Trial of the suit of Booth Tarkington for $100,000 damages against Warner Brothers Pictures has been set for January 8th in federal court in New York after Warners filed an affidavit. Claim is made that the defendants breached a contract providing for the sale of a number of Tarkington stories by producing "Penrod and His Twin Brother." Warners has counter-claimed for $35,000, claiming that a number of stories were not subject to sale as being in the public domain.

$77,113 Awarded Agent

A New York supreme court jury this week awarded $77,113.44 to Dennis R. Scanlan, who had filed suit against Sonja Henie for 20 per cent of her earning, claiming that Miss Henie had obtained her Twentieth Century-Fox contract through him.

Fear Awarded $50,000

A jury in federal court in Los Angeles has awarded Ralph Gordon Fear, inventor of a laboratory process, $50,000 damages against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for alleged violation of a contract under which the company was to have the use of the process for its own pictures only.

Title Action Filed

Producers Laboratories, Inc., filed suit Friday in New York supreme court to restrain Universal from distributing "Hired Wife." An accounting also is asked. Producers claims it owns a film titled "A Hired Wife" and contends that Universal's picture "violates its exclusive right" to that title. The Roxy, which showed the film, also is made a defendant.

To Examine 20th Century-Fox Men

Sidney R. Kent, Walter J. Hutchinson and Ben Miggins, Twentieth Century-Fox executives, were directed this week by Isidor Wasservogel, New York supreme court justice, to testify before trial on November 26th in the suit of Marion Palmer as assignee of M. J. Messeri, who claims $6,112 part salary as manager in Spain.

THE CHART

Productions are listed under distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed as "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) indicates the 1940-41 season. Asterisk (*) after title denotes first appearance.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed. Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

THEY'RE ALL TALKING ABOUT THE "One Kilowatt" ARC!

THEATRE OWNERS SAY:

"Those new 'One Kilowatt' arcs are the best investment I ever made. The box office figures show it. Fifty per cent more screen light, comfortable vision at all times, and color that is really natural — I tell you, people notice those things. No theatre in town puts on a better show than mine. But you'd be surprised how little it cost."

PROJECTIONISTS SAY:

"We projectionists try to put the best possible picture on the screen. That's our job. But it takes snow white, high intensity light to do it. These new 'One Kilowatt' high intensity arcs give us small theatre projectionists a break. Better black and white projection — tops for color — as cheap to run as low intensity — Boss, they've got what it takes!"

PATRONS SAY:

"Your pictures are a lot better since you put in those new lamps you were telling me about. Mary and I were saying they are as good as we've seen in any theater. That color feature was as natural as life but what I like most is finding a seat without playing 'blindman's buff.' Believe me, we're steady patrons now."

is the air in your theatre sweet?

You know this fact as well as your competitor:

You must create and maintain an atmosphere in your theatre that is comfortable and healthful; otherwise you are bound to lose patrons. Objectionable odors . . . drafts . . . improper humidity and temperature — these are the bugaboos of any man's box office.

WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT: Just do what the Walt Disney Studios and thousands of theatres throughout the country did. ONE: Call in a good local contractor or consulting engineer. TWO: Insist that the equipment you install is top-notch and dependable — like equipment by General Electric!

You can get the complete equipment — all the apparatus you need for a complete system — from G-E! There is a size and type of General Electric Air Conditioning equipment to meet your needs — to give your patrons the comfort they demand. G-E condensing units, for example, are available in varying loads. By using multiples of 20, 25, 30, 40, 50 or 60 hp., economical operation is obtained for theatres of all seating capacities. General Electric equipment is reasonably priced — low in operating cost — dependable!

Read this free brochure — "Air Conditioning for Business"

It gives you the answers to many of your problems — facts that may save you many dollars. Send the coupon for your copy — then talk to your local contractor or consulting engineer about a G-E installation for year 'round comfort!

Yes Sir, Ole Man Low Is Dead!

Ole Man "Low Intensity" passed out trying to project a good picture in an 800-seat theatre. Today's dense films and color pictures were just too much for him. They demanded twice as much light as he could project.

But no one will mourn the passing of Ole Man Low, because the fine new Simplex High Projection Arc produces modern snow-white light—the kind your theatre needs today—for just 2c more per hour.

Your National Theatre Supply Company representative will show you the Simplex High in your own theatre. Ask for a demonstration and see the difference.

FLUORESCENT INLAYS

FOR Striking Decoration

WHEN John Eberson designed the Farragut Theatre in Brooklyn, he used panels behind the drinking fountains with inlays in fluorescent Formica. When illuminated with "black light" the designs may be made to fluoresce or glow brightly, producing striking and interesting effects.

Formica is not only highly decorative but also highly practical when used in theatres. It makes beautiful doors, lobby wall covering, and ticket booth paneling. Yet it is very easy to keep clean. The surface is durable, holds its color, and will never need refinishing.

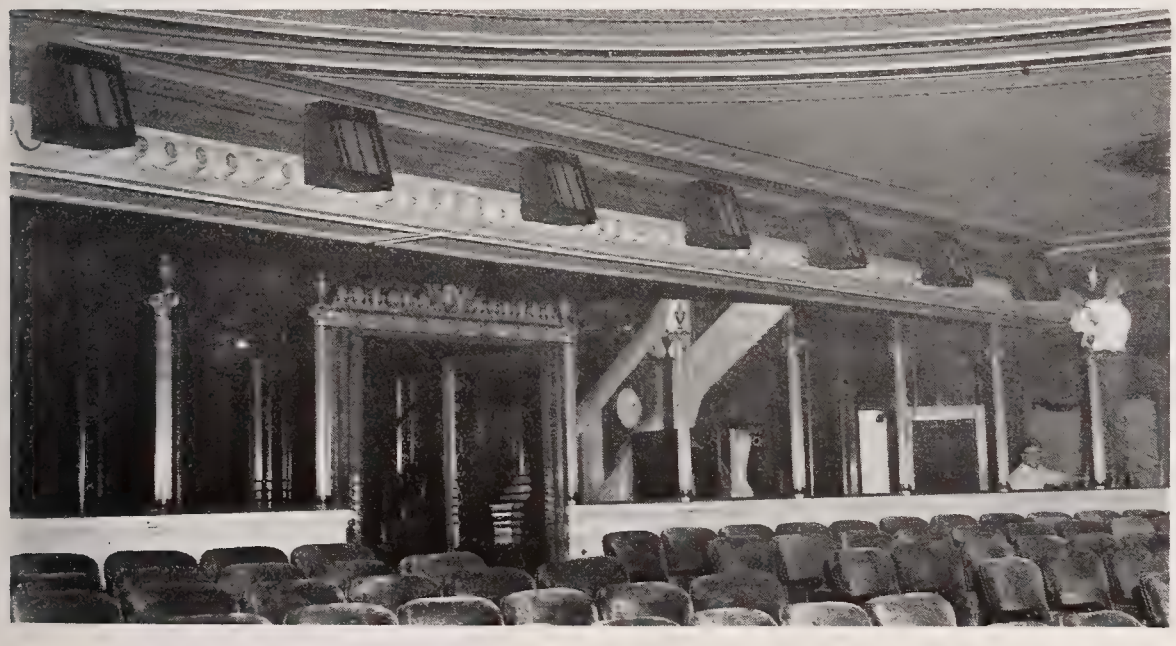
"Fantasia" Sound: Its Processes and Their Portent

View of special soundhead employing four photocells in pickup system—one photocell for each sound track, and one for the control track.

WALT DISNEY, who can do so much with some actors that we never saw before, has brought us, in "Fantasia," more than another picture. He has brought us, it would seem, something to think about in relation to motion pictures in general. The system of reproduction used at the Broadway theatre, New York, for "Fantasia," represents by far the most drastic change ever introduced into commercial motion picture sound practice.



We are concerned here with the gadgets of the method. But to understand these, we ought to consider the effect. In result, the system brings the sound right out into the audience. Its sources is not rigidly fixed at the center of the screen. At times the source cannot be located. The sound appears to come from nowhere in particular.

At other times, the source of sound is very clearly and audibly identified with the person or object on the screen which is supposedly creating it; when that person or object moves about the screen, the source of the sound moves also; when the visual source of origin moves off-screen, the audible source does likewise and is heard coming from the wings. A new realism, and effects previously impossible, are created.

Among the effects is one produced by speakers located along the sides and rear of the auditorium, which cause the source of sound to move about the body of the theatre. In an experimental try-out in Los Angeles, a Walt Disney bee flew off-screen and circled about the darkened house with such convincing intensity that some spectators, if we are to believe W. E. Garity, chief engineer of the Disney Studios, actually ducked. Mr. Garity, incidentally, contributed importantly to the development of the new system, which was worked out through prolonged collaboration between Disney engineers and the staff of RCA, over a period of experimentation extending through more than two years. In the matter of artistic and dramatic effects to be realized through the new system, the engineers were guided by Walt Disney and by Leopold Stokowski, famed orchestra conductor.

The new system involves much more than a change in theatre apparatus—in fact, the theatre equipment cannot be understood without some realization of the practices followed in making the sound tracks.

▶In the recording, for example, of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, led by Stokowski, for the making of "Fantasia," seven different sound tracks were made, each covering only one section of the orchestra. Thus the strings, brasses, woodwinds, and so on, were selected out of the body of the orchestra by directional microphones, each microphone being wired to an individual recording channel. In the rerecording that followed, the conductor himself supervised the blending of these tracks to form three master tracks. The three master tracks are what reach the theatre, recorded across the full width of a 35-mm. film, together with a fourth, or instruction track, to be explained later on in this account.

Speaker system across rear of auditorium.

The Theatre Equipment

Backstage of the theatre there are three complete sets of loudspeakers, each set consisting of eight low-frequency units mounted on a folded baffle, and four high-frequency units feeding into a trumpet-cluster. One such set is located behind the center of the screen, constituting a standard speaker installation; the other two sets are located to the left and right of the screen, respectively, and play through the side masking, which is of thin, porous fabric.

In the projection room are three independent channels of amplification, each constituting an individual, standard theatre amplifying system, and each supplying one of the sets of speakers.

Thus, working backward from the stage to the projection room, the system this far appears to be nothing more than an ordinary theatre sound system in triplicate. The greatest divergence from standard practice takes places at the source of sound pickup.

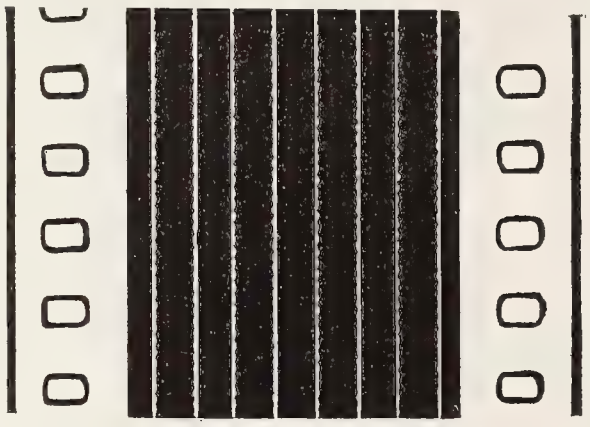
Sound Track Arrangement

In this system the working sound track is not on the same film with the picture. There are three working sound tracks (each push-pull, incidentally) plus an "instruction" track, all four placed on a separate film. The separate (sound) film is run through an independent soundhead, consisting of a pedestal, a soundhead of special construction, an upper and lower magazine, and a drive motor. There is no projector in this assemblage, and of course no lamphouse.

▶The film carrying the picture is complete with a standard soundtrack for reproduction in the ordinary way; it is run through a standard projector and standard soundhead; but sound from its track is used only for emergency purposes—it does not reach the audience. The audience hears sound from the special four-track film operating in the special soundhead unit. The motor driving the projector and the motor driving the special soundhead unit are electrically interlocked.

The Special Soundhead

The special soundhead is equipped with two exciter lamps (regular and emergency) and four push-pull photocells. Prisms divide the exciting light between the four push-pull tracks. As an added refinement, the exciter lamps are not mounted vertically, but at an angle to the vertical, eliminating reflection of light from the rear glass surface of the lamp. Three of the photocells reproduce the three soundtracks carrying speech and music, and each in turn supplies its output to one of the amplifying channels.



The fourth photocell reproduces the "instruction" track. This consists of a number of pure frequencies in a single push-pull track. It is made at the time the conductor fuses the original multiple recordings into their three final channels. Each frequency on the instruction track represents, by its volume, the volume to be reproduced by one of the three working channels. After amplification, these "instruction" frequencies are separated from each other by filters and become separate alternating currents. Each current is rectified by rectifiers attached to the channel of amplification it is intended to control. After rectification, the instruction current consists of d.c. of varying strength, and as such is used to modify the grid bias of one of the tubes in its amplifying channel. It therefore governs the amplification of that channel automatically. In this way the instruction track automatically and instantaneously modifies the volume of sound from the three sound tracks.

Control operated by the "instruction" track; also special soundhead with sound film magazines.

Directional Effect Produced

When the same sound as heard in the right-hand set of speakers grows louder,

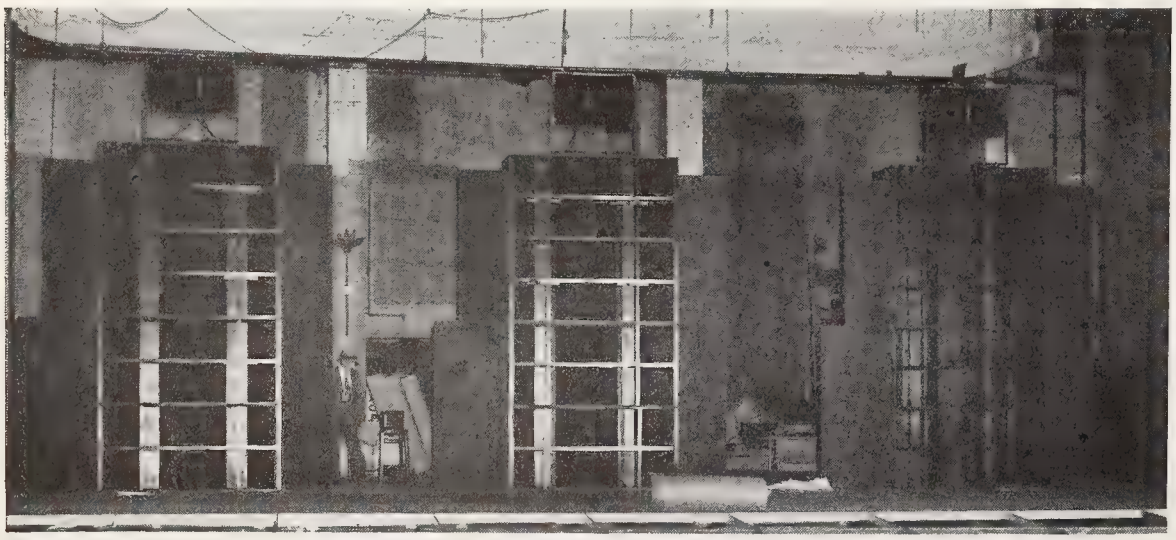
while it grows proportionately weaker in the left-hand set of speakers, the audience receives the impression that the sound source is moving from left to right. If sound is heard in the right-hand speakers alone and grows progressively louder, the audience receives the impression that the source is off-screen to the right, and is approaching the screen. If the visible source of sound moves off-screen toward the right, sound is heard from the right-hand speakers alone, and grows progressively weaker, indicating that the object or person producing it is moving farther and farther away.

▶In producing these effects, the projectionist has no controls to operate, no responsibility; they are created automatically by the action of the "instruction," or governor, track on the sound film in modifying the amplification given to each of the three sound tracks.

Because there are three separate tracks, as well as three separate sound channels, one sound can be made to die away toward the right, while another approaches from the left, or from the deep background by way of the middle speaker bank in the stage horn system.



Auditorium Speaker System

The speakers located about the sides and rear of the auditorium are of the permanent magnet dynamic type. They are divided electrically into two groups, associated with the right-hand and left-hand stage speakers, respectively, and are normally silent. In the system installed in the Broadway theatre, New York, these speaker banks are substituted by manual control of the right-hand and left-hand stage speaker systems — the only manual operation involved in reproducing the new sound effects. Each set of these auditorium speakers, much resembling those used in theatres for public address work, is poled 180° out of phase with the speakers at the opposite side of the house. This way of wiring them produces the illusion that the sound is coming from nowhere in particular, fulfilling the prescription of Shakespearian magic: "Sometimes a thousand twangling instruments will hum about mine ears; and sometimes voices."

▶Complex acoustical work, however, may be required in locating and pointing the speakers to avoid "dead" seats at places where the opposing sound waves meet in nearly equal strength.

An effect produced in "Fanstasia" by this system relates to a choral rendition of "Ave Maria." The soloist is heard only through the central speaker bank at a con-

MOISTURE AND temperature changes, over relative wide ranges, are the cause, or perhaps the most serious causes, of the deterioration of buildings. In other words temperature changes result in expansion and contraction.

The process opens up first small, then larger cracks and crevices, moisture then penetrates into the crevice, where it freezes; water, in freezing, expands and this process makes the crevice larger; finally, it may result in a crack through the wall. If the moisture does not freeze, it still damages the building by dissolving out of the mortar all the lime from the bond between the bricks, or rusting of reinforcing steel, or rotting the plaster on the inside of the wall. Consequently at this season of the year it is important that the theatre building be water-tight.

The common conception is that a leaky wall results from using bricks or concrete blocks that are so porous that water passes through them. As a guess, probably less than 5% of the trouble is from this source. Leaks are caused by a lack of continuity in the exposed surface of the building. Expansion and contraction cracks are definitely breaks in the continuity of the wall surface.

If the problem were purely one of porosity, it would be an easy matter to seal the pores of brick, stone, tile or block surfaces of a building. Holes and cracks in a wall cannot be sealed by a water-proofing treatment aimed at stopping up the pores of the building material.

Assuring Dry Walls

It has often been said that masonry walls breathe, and by capillary attraction suck moisture into the wall. This is true, but it works both ways: during a rain the moisture is sucked in, and when the rain stops and the sun comes out the moisure is sucked out. The "breathing" wall dries faster.

Experience has convinced me that walls of medium, not excessive, porosity withstand the elements for a longer period than those which, by selection of material or by treatment, are of very low porosity. The walls of the very old buildings found in many communities both north and south, that were made of hand-made soft-burned bricks seem to bear out this contention. In brief, masonry units that absorb water rapidly give it up rapidly, and units that absorb it slowly give it up slowly.

A dense wall is more affected by frost, when subjected to a sudden drop in temperature, as it contains more water in proportion to its porosity.

The outer course of brick of any building is the answer to whether the interior wall will be dry. The outer course of brick is backed up by the remaining thickness of the wall for structural strength; it contributes very little towards a dry wall. The resistance of any wall to moisture is the exterior surface, and it naturally follows then that the thing to do to obtain dry walls is to repair and recondition that outer surface. Therefore a good tuck pointing job with a good rich mortar mix, filling in all holes and replacing all bricks that have become dislodged, is the best protection that you can give the walls of your theatre at this season of the year.

Buildings in temperate and warmer climates generally survive many more years than would the same type of building if erected in a climate where it is subjected to many months of freezing, damp weather. Consequently, the protection of the structure itself, including the walls, is of prime importance to the theatre men who own and operate in the northern half of the United States.

It may be added that a building is no better than the walls surrounding it. To maintain walls is not necessarily expensive. The old adage, "A stitch in time saves nine," paraphrased to read, "A good pointing job now will save many dollars in future maintenance," can very definitely be applied to theatre buildings. It is neglect over a long period of time that runs the cost of wall maintenance to exorbitant figures.

For your information mortar too rich in cement is not as good as a mortar that has some lime in it. It has generally been believed that a straight cement mortar was the best; however, the Portland Cement Association recommends a mortar of one part cement, one part lime, and six parts of properly graded sharp sand.

Spaces Between Frames

The next point to look at on the exterior of a building is the space or joint between door frames, window frames, and fresh air and exhaust grilles where these openings occur in outside walls. Realize that at this point the builder and the architect have had to face the problem of joining together two totally dissimilar materials. This is always the problem, because the coefficients of expansion of materials very seldom coincide, therefore as time goes on these materials will tend to pull away from each other.

Various mechanical means have been used to protect against this normal action; however, the old reliable solution is to use a caulking compound which is injected into this space under pressure of a caulking gun. These guns are not expensive and caulking is not necessarily a job requiring special skill. If the crack between the frames of such openings is substantial, it is best to caulk these openings first with okum. This is a soft rope-like material made of hemp fiber treated with pine tar. It is the same material that is used aboard ship for caulking decks. A wide flat metal tool that is relatively dull or rounded can be used to drive this material well into the crack or crevice. This okum treatment should be left at least ¾-inch below the surface of the crack and the caulking compound should be forced into this space under pressure of the caulking gun.

There are many good caulking compounds on the market. A good caulking compound is one that works easily and can be injected into the space and will remain in a plastic or semi-plastic condition for a period of years. It is not necessary for a theatre operator to pay a high price for caulking all openings in his exterior walls.

Roof Maintenance

The third location in the theatre to look for trouble from the weather is the roof. If the surface of the roof is in good condition, the flashing, which is the real connection between the roof and the walls, should be thoroughly examined and put into proper condition. Much has been previously printed in BETTER THEATRES describing good roofs and bad roofs and their maintenance and care, and it is recommended that the operator or manager review some of this information before inspecting the roof.

Exterior electric junction boxes, such as those that might serve the electric wiring of the marquee and exterior signs, should be inspected to see that their covers fit tightly and that they are weather-proof. This inspection and repairing at this time may save you a fire and an expensive electrical repair job. Because of the great variety of electrical installations in the theatre it is a little difficult to mention specific conditions of exterior wiring that may cause trouble. Common horse-sense, with the experience which theatre managers have had, should enable the manager to detect conditions in his exterior junction boxes and wiring which might cause trouble. After all, these junction boxes are made of metal, exterior conduit is made of metal, and rust is the great destructive force of all exterior metal, therefore these portions of the electrical system should be scrapped and painted every so often.

Keeping Out Grit and Water

With the exterior of the building weather-tight and free from leaks, the manager should anticipate the great wear and tear on his carpet and other floor coverings due to the moisture that is tracked into the theatre. Whenever moisture is tracked in, additional grit and dirt usually accompanies it. Excessive moisture or dampness is very detrimental to carpets, and especially to carpet padding.

The thoughtful theatre manager will have storm mats, ready for placement in the outer lobby. Mats in this location are not to protect the tile or terrazzo, but to give these smooth surfaces a non-skid rough-surfaced covering so as to prevent falls and to remove dirt and water from the shoes so that when their feet strike the carpet the soles of their shoes are relatively dry and free from grit. A thoughtful arrangement of storm mats will many times pay for itself in just one winter's operation.

Avoiding Plumbing Ills

For some reason plumbing repairs always are more expensive in winter than in warmer weather. I believe that this is primarily because most plumbing repairs require digging up waste lines and other pipe lines and this can more easily be done when the ground is not frozen. Therefore it is important to make a careful check of your lavatories, toilets, slop sinks, and drain lines before severely cold weather has set in. This includes the down spouts from your roof. See that these lines are clear, because you will have sufficient trouble at best to protect these lines against freezing without having to fight reduced capacity of these lines to handle waste water, due to clogging.

Care of Heating System and Boilers

There are two kinds of boilers most commonly met with in heating: (1) cast-iron sectional boilers, and (2) horizontal tubular boilers (steel).

Cast Iron Sectional Boilers

Before starting up, wash out well with Sal Soda, using about 10 pounds per boiler dissolved in a bucket of warm water. Remove safety valve or some other convenient connection and pour into boiler. Allow it to boil for several hours. Next morning blow off about two gauges, or until water just shows in bottom of glass. This should be repeated every day until water blows off clean.

Remove ashes from ash pit and grates. Be sure that ashes are removed clear up to the rear wall of ash pits and grates.

Open all clean-out doors and thoroughly brush clean throughout the full length of the boilers.

Clean out breeching from boiler to chimney. There is usually a door here for this purpose.

Open clean-out door at base of chimney and remove soot.

Main steam valves should be packed.

Water glasses should be renewed if dirty and leaky. When glasses are renewed, be sure to use new washers.

Fusible plugs should be renewed.

All broken parts on boiler and fittings should be replaced, such as broken wheels on valve stems and fire and ash pit door parts.

Paint boiler base and front with black asphaltum.

Breeching to chimney should be painted to prevent rusting. Use a heat resistant black graphite paint.

Before leaving boiler fill with water, as it is very dangerous to leave this type of boiler empty; someone is likely to come along and build a fire of paper, rubbish, etc., and these sections are very easily cracked.

The manager should satisfy himself that the boiler has been thoroughly cleaned. He should provide his men with several good brushes and see that they are used—also a good portable light. By having someone hold this light in the clean-out doors at rear of boiler, and opening front clean-out doors, it is possible to look through the interior of the boiler and see conditions. The importance of cleanliness around a boiler really can never be emphasized too much.

To keep your heating costs at a minimum, do not permit soot to accumulate in boilers. Soot-clogged boilers not only cause poor drafts and poor combustion of fuel, but greatly reduce the boiler efficiency in general. The table below shows loss in conductivity of boiler plate due to difference in thickness of soot deposit:

Thickness of Soot	Loss Per Cent
Clean	0.0%
1/32-inch	9.5%
1/16-inch	26.2%
1/8-inch	45.2%
3/16-inch	69.0%

Horizontal Tubular Boilers

On a return tubular boiler, the same general rules on cleanliness should be observed. On this type of boiler the tubes should be scraped; front flue sheet and doors be brushed down; ash pit, fire box, combustion chamber and back connection be thoroughly cleaned out. The rear head, up to back arch, and underside of boiler should be swept clean.

Renew fusible plugs. Examine brick work for air leaks, also fire brick lining in fire box. It is very important that this be taken care of to prevent fire from getting at the foundation walls of boiler.

Draw water off boiler and remove manhole and handhole plates. Get a good 3/4-inch hose and wash out interior of boiler. Scrape around manhole and handhole openings and paint. When putting covers back on, use new gaskets covered with a mixture of graphite and oil.

Grates should be examined and badly burned and warped ones replaced.

Breeching from boiler to chimney should be examined for air leaks. These are most likely to be found in joints and at doors. They should be closed up with fire cement. If you have been experiencing trouble with poor draft, this should be looked over carefully. All the air that goes up the chimney should be drawn through ash pit doors or over fire box. Any leaks in boiler setting, chimney, etc., short circuit this air and reduce the draft.

All radiator valves on system should be left open and water allowed to return to boiler. There is usually a draw-off valve on the lowest point of return lines at rear of boiler for the purpose of draining water out of heating system. This valve should be opened and all the rusty, dirty water that has lodged in the low points of heating system allowed to drain off.

If the system is equipped with a vacuum or condenser pump and receiver, now is the time to look this equipment over. Examine and clean motor, look over pump and repack glands. Tighten up on all foundation bolts drawing up evenly all around. Remove strainers and give them a thorough cleaning, replacing wire mesh if broken. Paint the equipment.

Oil burners and pumps or gas burners and valves should be gone over. All parts should be washed in kerosene. Worn and broken parts should be replaced. If burner has not been working right, an expert on this type of burner should be called in to look it over.

All appliances on boiler, such as damper regulator, feed water regulator, safety valves, dampers, etc., should be checked up and put in proper condition.

MATERIALS FOR MAINTENANCE . . .

An explanatory check-list of cleaning and sanitation aids adapted to theatres is given in this issue in an article beginning on page 26. It has been authoritatively prepared with reference to theatres of all sizes, as a guide to what each should have for efficient maintenance and good-will-building sanitation.

"BLACK LIGHT" GROWS as a SOURCE of THEATRE CHARM

■ After tentative, experimental beginnings not much more than a year ago, luminescent decoration has become accepted as a means of lending new interest, added charm to the motion picture theatre, and accordingly, the materials and equipment are being extended. . . . Well illustrating the appeal of luminescent decoration to designers and showmen alike, is the "Fluorescent Room" of the Farragut theatre in New York's borough of Brooklyn, pictured at right. Located immediately off a foyer that extends around the rear of the auditorium (comparable to fairly broad standee area), this room, measuring about 16x8 feet, is essentially a secondary lounge (the main lounge is on the balcony level) in which has been placed the drinking fountain. The fountain enters into the luminescent scheme by the use of a remarkable new material, Fluorescent Formica, in a colorful Formica splash panel. The floor is covered with fluorescent carpeting, while plaques and framed pictures on the walls are picked out in luminescent pigment. The photograph indicates, by the constrasts in tone, the general effect, though it falls far short of expressing the arresting beauty of the room since the camera, unlike the eye, is sensitive to ultraviolet radiation as well as to the visible light reflected by the luminescent materials. Lighted only by "black light" sources (four 100-watt units placed above the arched entrance to the room), this "Fluorescent Room," has a quality of fantasy. The carpet (an Alexander Smith Crestwood pattern, the fluorescent elements of which are shown more precisely on page 14) is rust, gold and blue on a black ground, with the gold glowing vividly under ultraviolet light. . . . The Farragut, constructed in an existing building, is a unit of the Century circuit, prominent Brooklyn operators.

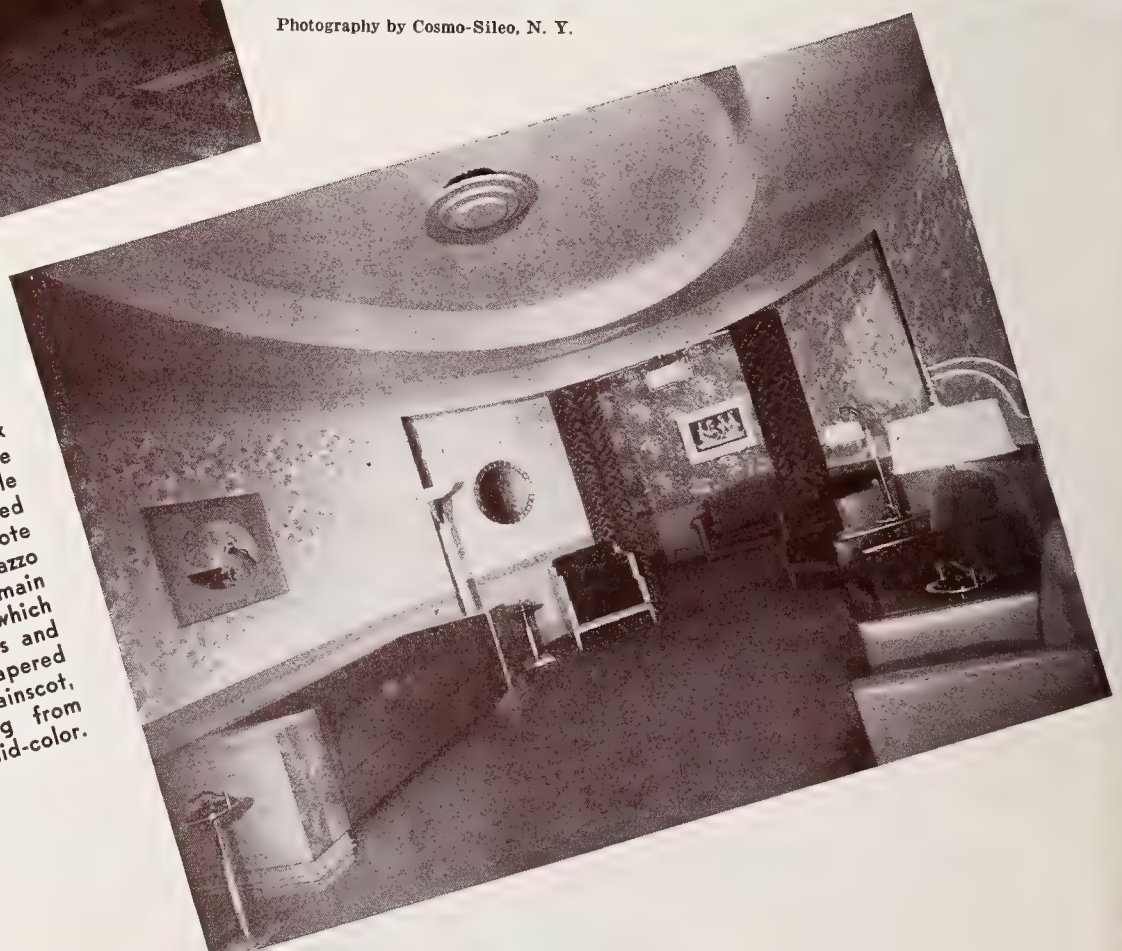
FLUORESCENT ROOM, FARRAGUT THEATRE, BROOKLYN, N. Y.
JOHN EBERSON, Architect

In employing Fluorescent Formica for the splash panel mural of this "Fluorescent Room," Mr. Eberson has made the first use in a theatre of a new member of the large Formica family of decorative and protective finishing materials. This material, like all Formica, is a laminated plastic, and was recently awarded one of the top prizes in the architectural group of a modern plastics competition. It is made by mixing fluorescent chemicals with the resinous materials forming the composition of Formica.



■ Luminescent decoration in the auditorium of the Farragut theatre. At the center of each side wall, which is finished in blue, figured damask laid over rock wool, is a recessed mural with selected outlines and surfaces in luminescent paints and lighted by two 100-watt units concealed in "box" at bottom. Then above an exit arch at each side of the proscenium opening (below) is a recessed luminous mural of similar character, but much larger, lighted by three 100-watt units concealed by the lower plaster framing. The luminous colors are green, red, purple and yellow. The general color scheme of auditorium and foyers is predominantly blue, suggested by the bluish cast of "black light."

Two other views of the Farragut theatre, which brings a luxurious playhouse of modern appointments to an outlying shopping district in a metropolitan community of small incomes. Above is shown the box office arrangement in a vestibule triangular in shape due to the angle of the plot. The wall shown is finished in Cararra structural glass. Note directional pattern of the terrazzo floor. . . . At right is the main lounge on the balcony level, which leads, at either end, into men's and women's toilets. Walls are papered above a painted plaster wainscot, while the carpeting, varying from that used elsewhere, is a solid-color.

STATE THEATRE, ELK RAPIDS, MICH. STEWART-KINGSCOTT, Architects.

■ What is said to be the first application of "black light" to theatre decoration in the state of Michigan, has been made in a town of only 680 people. It is Elk Rapids, Mich., located 20 miles from Traverse City. Here E. C. Loomis, after a career as a newsreel cameraman and transient exhibitor showing to a group of rural communities, opened a theatre in a store-room in 1934, with seating consisting of 35 kitchen chairs. But as the theatre prospered, improvement followed, until nothing further remained except to give the good showtown of Elk Rapids an entirely new theatre. The resulting State theatre, which is constructed of two courses of cinder block, laid in ashlar pattern to form finished interior walls of the auditorium, seats — and, incidentally, the seating (by Ideal) has 42-inch row spacing. . . . The application of luminescent decoration to the State theatre makes full use of the utilitarian possibilities of "black light" —that is, the amount of luminescent decoration on the ceiling supplies all the running illumination necessary beyond that provided by the screen light. Luminescent elements also include aisle carpeting, so no aisle lights are used. The ceiling pattern, which is by Robert J. Spinner of Kalamazoo, Mich., is done in Conti-Glo luminescent lacquers glowing as pearl white, salmon pink, jade green and sea blue. The carpeting (Alexander Smith Crestwood pattern the fluorescence of which is indicated on page 14) has luminous figures in tans and gold on a non-luminous red ground. Both ceiling and carpeting are activated by Keese units: for the ceiling, four 250-watt units, and two 100-watt units, are spaced along the walls, one concealed in each of six ornamental fixtures (shown in detail photograph) designed by Mr. Loomis and made of brass with a silver-plated band and trimmed with Lucite rods, which are themselves made faintly luminous by a 10-watt incandescent lamp; the carpeting is activated by 100-watt units behind apertures in the ceiling, three to an aisle, with parabolic reflectors to cut the beam at the seating line. The arrangements for luminescent decoration followed, it is instructive to note, much experimentation by Mr. Loomis himself during construction of the theatre; the final scheme, as described here, he finds entirely successful.

. . . and these are theatre patterns now available in fluorescent carpet

■ Since the first designs made up in fluorescent carpeting, others have been gradually added to the Alexander Smith line of Crestwood Velvet for the application, both directionally and decoratively, of "black light" to floor coverings. These pictures show, first, fluorescent designs now obtainable as they appear under visible light, with their full pattern and coloration showing; and, second, the elements of the patterns which are visible under near-ultraviolet light, in the absence of regular room illumination. The group at top presents: First, a modern floral abstraction in rust, gold and blue on black ground; second, a diamond-and-star design in gold on copper-rust; third, a traditional arabesque design in rust and tans on a ruby ground. Immediately beneath, these same designs are pictured as photographed under "black light," showing the pattern elements that fluoresce. Note that the deeper tones disappear, while light shades become even brighter. . . . Below a similar comparison is made of two designs, one (left-hand) executed in tans on a red ground, the other in tans, gold and rust on a brown ground. . . . The first pattern in the upper group is that used in the Farragut theatre in Brooklyn, the left design below in the State, Elk Rapids.

Plant Modernization to Obtain Better Results at Lower Costs

• Here is an actual demonstration of the advantages of today's air-conditioning practice cited in a previous article—and guidance as to methods proved effective

By J. T. KNIGHT, JR.

AN ACTUAL air-conditioning installation which will illustrate the points I brought out in my article "Why It Pays to Replace Old-Type Air-Conditioning Systems," in the February issue, is that in the Saenger theatre in New Orleans, completed last summer. It is an installation which should be extremely interesting to theatre owners and managers the country over, and especially those who are experiencing the many "headaches" and heavy operating costs of older types of plants.

The Saenger theatre, operated by the Paramount-Richards Corporation, seats 3,400, and it covers an area amounting to 75% of a city block. The building was initially air-conditioned during its construction in 1927, and it has continually used this equipment up to this time. The equipment installed at that time consisted in two 150-ton carbon dioxide motor-driven compressors, each of two cylinders, horizontal, double acting, arranged for duplex drive by two 250 h.p., 220 volt, 3-phase, 60-cycle, 150-r.p.m. synchronous motors.

Each of the motors required a 7½-K. W., 125-volt exciter driven by a 12-h. p. motor, so that the total connected electrical load was 525 h. p. Cooling was accomplished by cooling a large tank of water by means of Baudelot coils; the cold water was pumped from the tank into the air-conditioning chamber and brought into contact with the air stream by sprays (air washers.) There were two conditioning cabinets, each with its spray system eliminator plates and fan and drive. As the water fell into the tank under the sprays, another pump took it back to the storage tank, where it spilled over the Baudelot coils and was re-cooled.

The two pumps mentioned were each of 25 h. p., thereby bringing the increased load up to 574 h. p. Now, to add the condenser water pump, which is 40 h. p., and the fan motors, one of 20 H. P. and one of 25 H. P., we arrive at a grand total connected electrical load of 659 h. p., or 491 K. W., approximately.

Original Cooling System

In the beginning, the condensing of the hot CO_2 gas was accomplished by two large banks of double pipe condensers (one for each of the duplex compressors.) The condenser water was cooled by a cooling tower located on top of the building. About three or four years ago, one of the banks of double pipe condensers was replaced by a battery of six shell-and-tube condensers.

Please keep in mind that the cooling season in New Orleans begins the latter part of March and continues into November

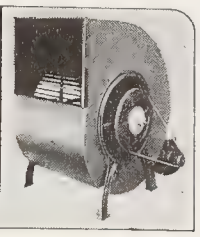
most effectively—most economically

. . . write Better Theatres, describing your conditions, explaining what changes you would like to make in your theatre to modernize your air supply system . . . or if planning a new theatre, outline your needs. We will be glad to help you in your problems, as part of Better Theatres' personal service to readers (no charge, of course).



Better Theatres' Service Department annually answers nearly 300 inquiries concerning problems in theatre planning and equipment. All inquiries are referred to consultant architects and engineers, as necessary. All inquiries are answered, with complete privacy, by mail.

Among Better Theatres' consultants is Mr. J. T. Knight, Jr., an accredited air-conditioning engineer who, additionally, has been in charge of the actual physical operation of theatres of all classes for over 20 years. He is a member of Better Theatres' staff and acts as consultant on air-conditioning and related subjects entirely in this capacity.

In preparing your inquiries, please be explicit and as complete as possible in describing the conditions to be dealt with. This is likely to save considerable time. Address all inquiries to—each year, and frequently air-conditioning is required during the months from November to April. Therefore, the air-conditioning plant must be kept in readiness for use throughout the year.

The old machines had done a pretty good job, but besides the inherent large electrical demand and energy consumption, its upkeep was beginning to be very costly, breakdowns were becoming more frequent, and the general inefficiency of CO_2 as a refrigerant made it apparent that something should be done.

It was decided to replace the old system with more modern equipment and more modern engineering practice. Three Westinghouse hermetically sealed 75-h.p. Freon (F12 compressors) were selected to do the job. (225 h.p., compared with 524 h. p.)

Adjusting Power Demand

In New Orleans the electrical rate is such that the operation of the air-conditioning during the winter months, between 5 and 7 p. m. daily, exacts a rather heavy penalty for the privilege. In view of the large tank of water mentioned earlier, it was decided to utilize it in order to stay off the line during those hours. This tank of water is located almost under the center of the main floor, is 36 feet long by 28 feet wide, and the water is about 5 feet deep (5,040 cubic feet of water). Water weighs 62.42 pounds per cubic foot, therefore, there is in that tank 314,596.8 pounds of water. Allowing for a temperature rise of 35° F. to 55° F., or 20° F., that body of water will absorb 6,291,936 Btu's, or the equivalent of 524.3 tons of refrigeration. The features of the design were:

1. Cooling by use of the washers during the off peak period only, under time switch control.
2. Primary cooling by means of direct expansion, using of coils placed in the air flow in each of the conditioning cabinets.
3. Utilization of all excess compressor capacity during normal operating hours to maintain the full supply of storage water.

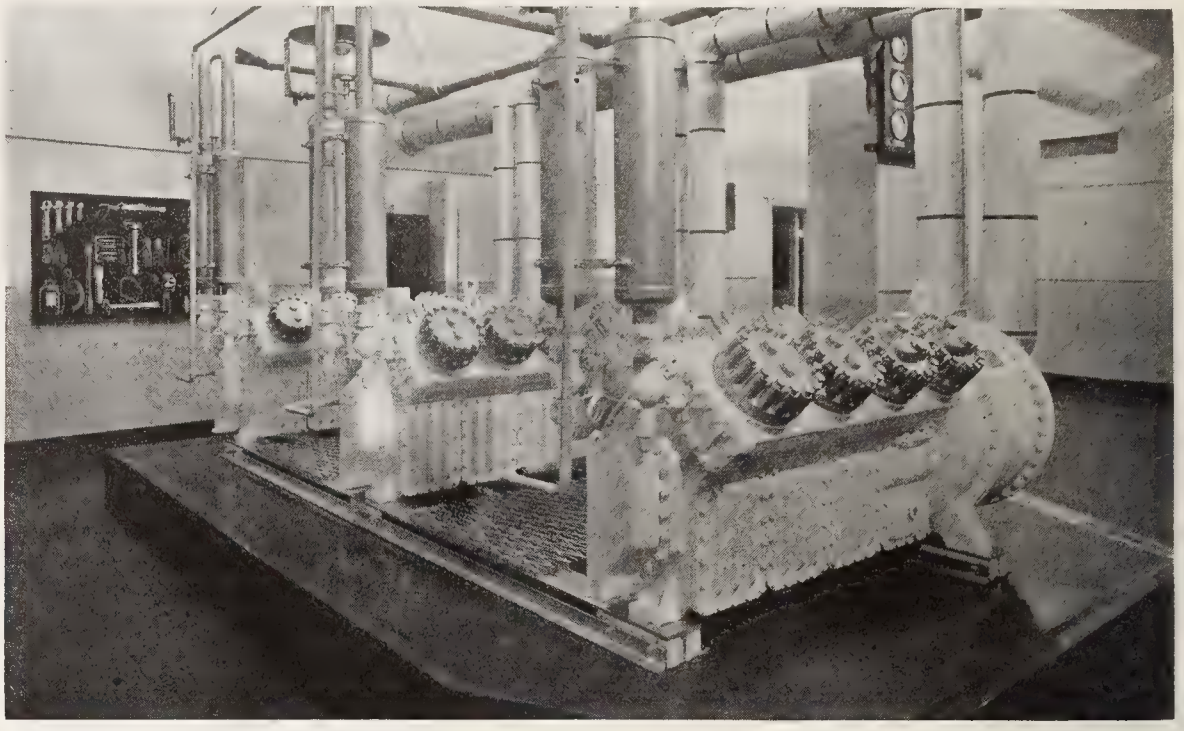

FIGURE 3. Note how one of the old foundations was used for all three of the new compressors. The vibration dampers used are of a very satisfactory type, manufactured by Korfund. Note thermometers on hot gas discharge, also mufflers on discharge. The cylinders nearest the motor end are equipped with capacity reducing devices. A tool board has been provided as part of a complete job.

4. Automatic boosting of conditioner capacity with cold water during periods when load exceeds the capacity of the direct expansion coils (which is not contemplated but very very seldom).
5. Arrangement of control panel (a) for ventilation only, (b) for full automatic operation with cooling load on direct expansion and automatic boosting of conditioner capacity by chilled water when necessary for peak loads, (c) for cooling entirely by chilled water during peak periods on the electrical lines (5 to 7 p. m., October to April).

The following parts of the existing system were incorporated in the new plant:

1. The battery of 6 shell and tube condensers.
2. The cooling tower and pump.
3. The chilled water circulating pumps.
4. The storage tank and Baudelot coils.
5. The air-conditioning cabinets and spray chambers.

FIGURE 5. Baudelot coils and chilled water storage tank. Note saw-toothed troughs on top of coils, into which water from washers returns and overflows over coils. (Work in this tank chamber had not been entirely completed when this picture was taken.)

6. The fans and motors.
7. Part of one of the foundations of one of the CO_2 compressors.

To this equipment has been added:

1. Three 75-h. p. Westinghouse CLS-2550 hermetically sealed compressors.
2. Direct expansion coils located in the conditioning cabinets where the eliminator plates formerly were:
3. A 5-h. p. adjutating pump for the storage tank.
5. A system of controls.

The net results are these:

During normal cooling operation, there used to be 659 electrical horsepower on the line. Now (on direct expansion) 275 electrical horsepower. Even when the booster chilled water pumps might be operating, there would be 320 electrical horsepower. This is economy in a big way.

The new compressors are protected by a pressure-operated switch which stops the unit when the discharge pressure exceeds 150 pounds, or when the suction pressure drops below 20 pounds per square inch. These cut-outs, being safety devices, require manual resetting before the unit will go back on the line automatically. Further, each compressor is equipped with an oil failure cut-out. A rupture disc, set to operate at a pressure difference of 200 pounds per square inch, is located in the discharge manifold between the discharge and the suction side of each compressor.

With these devices, the plant is almost foolproof with respect to any condition occurring which might damage the equipment.

The pictures accompanying this story really present a most convincing case. They speak for themselves. Because of the compactness of this newer equipment, the space requirements are much less than with the older equipment. The pictures show this very impressively.

Make Sure YOUR AIR CONDITIONING SYSTEM DOES WHAT IT'S SUPPOSED TO DO...

It takes money to air condition a theatre. But it's money well spent — if the system does what it's supposed to do — and that is to provide complete comfort for the patrons.

If there are drafts or pockets of stale, stuffy air or spots that are too warm or too cool — then your system is a failure. And mark this — these obnoxious conditions are all caused by faulty air distribution — and you will get them with any system which lacks an efficient means for introducing and distributing the conditioned air into and through the theatre.

Now, here's how you can assure correct air distribution and do it at a surprisingly reasonable cost — equip all air supply outlets with ANEMOSTAT Draftless Air Diffusers. These easily installed, good looking units positively eliminate drafts and maintain completely comfortable conditions all through a theatre all the time. They have no moving parts and need no attention, yet because of their scientific design they cannot fail to do the job.

ANEMOSTATS are readily applied to systems already installed and have ended air distribution troubles for many theatres throughout the country. In new theatres, their use is fast becoming a rule.

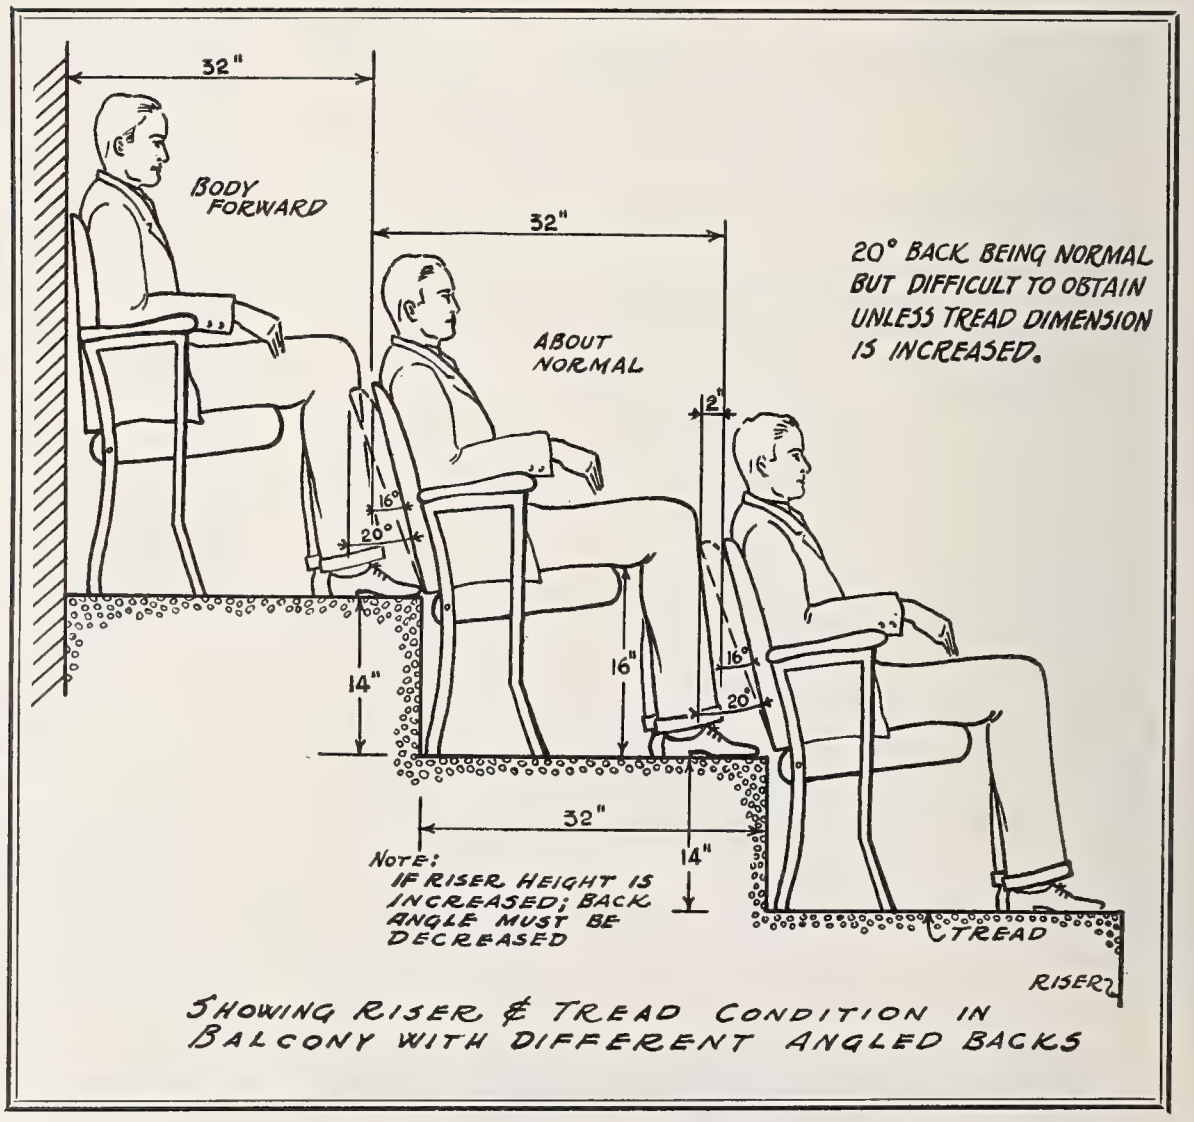
Adapting New Chairs to Fixed Conditions in Reseating



• How floor incline and risers, structural strength and variations must be dealt with to get best results with fewest headaches

By J. J. SEFING

MOST THEATRE owners today are anxious to have their theatres look just as well as, if not better than, their competitor's across the street. When it is time to renovate the theatre completely, they know what they want, how much to spend, and when the job should be completed. And with the wide range of choice in the selection of modern theatre chairs, economy, durability, comfort, and beauty are their watch-words.

They know from experience, especially if they have had other theatres renovated, that their best guarantee in purchasing a first-class product is the reliability and record of performance of the manufacturer; however, there is one basically important thing that they often overlook: It is that not two theatre chair installations are the same. There must be a difference in the floor pitch and construction, viewing angles and obstructions.

Each theatre has its own peculiar conditions to which the chair must be adapted, regardless of how closely it resembles another job. The chair manufacturer or distributor may make a seating plan of the arrangement and width of chairs and aisles, inclines, and type of floor, etc., but still there may be certain limitations in obtaining 100% viewing comfort and competent installation. A reliable chair manufacturer or distributor will point these limitations out to the theatre owner, in order to avoid any misunderstanding after the chair installation is finished. A poor installation will ruin the highest-grade theatre chair, and a competent installation can make the finished job far better than if a less competent installation is done.

However, if the floor is in such condition that it is impossible to make a first-class chair installation, the completed job will be just passable or tolerable, regardless of how good the product.

CHAIR SEAT HEIGHT

A chair standard when installed on any floor should be 100% vertical, and the seat at constant height from the floor, regardless of the incline in the theatre. By way of illustration — the average patron when seated in a chair rests the heels of his shoes about 4 inches in front of the seat. Accordingly, this point should be used in figuring the correct amount that will be cut off the front and rear of the standard, to make up the difference of the floor incline. The manufacturer should not disregard this and cut the standards from a point directly below the seat. A chair standard cut in this way will not give the maximum viewing comfort when installed; from practical experience we know that 16 inches is the proper distance from the front of the seat to the point where the patron rests his foot, regardless of the floor incline.

THE BALCONY SCHEME

The part of the theatre where most of the seating "headaches" are, is in the balcony or stadium, where there are steep risers and narrow treads. The balcony or stadium may look simple, at first glance, for chair installation, because of the floor being level where the standards rest, but that is where the proper angle of the chair backs comes in. If the backs have the normal angle of 20° pitch, for example, they will cut down the knee space between the rows of chairs and at the same time throw the patron's body backward, when it should be leaning slightly forward to look downward at the picture. Also, this 20° pitched back might interfere with the riser at the rear, if it happens to be very high.

To guess that a 16° back, 14° or 12° back should be used in balconies or level floors would be wrong, as each job has its own particular problems that must be checked and solved correctly. A 31-inch tread will give less knee space than a 34-inch tread. To use a 12° back would throw the occupant's body forward too much, although in some instances this type of back must be used in order to increase knee space and seating capacity.

Where chairs are to be installed against a vertical wall, and space is limited, the backs would have to be almost straight up and down. In some cases only certain types of backs can be used, regardless of what is installed on the main floor. The theatre owner must be aware of these conditions, or be informed just what kind of chair installations to expect—100% right, or just tolerable.

The chair manufacturer or distributor, and the theatre owner should sit down and discuss these problems, and if it is a question of backs, decide which type will benefit the installation. Plywood backs can be had in $\frac{5}{16}$-inch, $\frac{7}{16}$-inch, $\frac{1}{2}$-inch and $\frac{3}{4}$-inch thickness, with regular curve of 22-inch radius, or deep curve of 17-inch radius. Then there are the insert panel backs, padded upholstered backs, full-upholstered backs, padded spring backs, and finally the "pillow," or most expensive spring backs.

SAFE FLOOR LOAD

There are so many details and problems to consider carefully in order to make a complete chair installation that everyone involved must be on his toes. The chair manufacturer or distributor may make a seating plan in strict accordance with local, state, and city laws, but that does not mean any changes or additions can be made, even though they may appear minor on the surface. In many cases, additional risers and treads are proposed, or even installed, over the existing balcony floor to improve the viewing of the picture. This may not look serious until the load carrying strength of the floor is considered.

When the theatre was originally constructed, the plans were approved for a certain predetermined safe load, plus a small percentage for safety that the floor was to carry. As can be easily understood, any additional load, even if it is only wood flooring and joists, can disrupt this safe balance and cause a rupture or break in the strength of the iron reinforcing members. Even if the additional risers and treads are installed and they look safe, can the conscientious theatre owner take a chance with the lives of hundreds of people? An improvement in viewing in this manner is not worth the risk, as there are other safer means of overcoming this problem.

CORRECT METHOD OF INCLINING CHAIRS & KNEE SPACE AVAILABLE WITH DIFFERENT ANGLED BACKS

One way is to stagger the seats—that is, to arrange the chairs so that the person sitting in the rear will look between the heads of patrons immediately in front. This may mean losing several chairs, but it is safer and better than a costly building up of the floor, unless an approval is obtained from a competent building inspector or engineer familiar with the theatre construction.

AVOIDING OPENING PANIC

Another tricky thing to do is to set an opening date, especially when a renovating job is being done. An exhibitor may set his date from past experience in remodeling other theatres, but nine times out of ten he will be disappointed. One item that must be figured is labor. On one job labor may be speedy and efficient, and on another just passable. Also, the floor and walls may look the same as on another job, but in actual process of renovating they may require extra work and time in patching and fixing.

One complaint that never fails to come up is that the chair installation is holding up the job. It seems that the electrical work, painting and decorating is settled at once in a renovation job, but the selection of chairs is always left until the last minute—this although that it takes at least two weeks to fabricate the chairs in the factory, and about a week in shipment and delivery to the job!

EFFECT OF OTHER WORK

Due to the other trades being on the job first, the chair man has to work around their scaffolding, painting equipment, and miscellaneous lumber and rubbish. It means that in laying out the floor and drilling for the chairs, he must constantly move this material around from place to place, and when the chairs arrive at the job there is never any safe place left to store them. And then to top his troubles, the floor will be weak, which will mean pouring lead into the holes for solid fastenings. To use on the average of about 400 pounds of lead takes time and labor even if it only means carrying it without melting and pouring it into holes. Any renovating job must be so arranged that all trades will work together and all get an even "break," otherwise an opening date set haphazardly and with "fingers-crossed" will be almost impossible to fulfill.

trolled volume which appears to place her far in the background. A mixed chorus of 60 voices is heard in the two end speaker banks, and gradually creeps into the auditorium speakers, so that at the finale the audience feel themselves sitting in the midst of, surrounded by, the chorus!

The standard sound track, which is printed on the picture film in the normal way, and which passes through a standard soundhead in the usual manner, is not used with this system. It is kept functioning, however, against an ordinary photocell, and a fourth channel, containing only the regular theatre amplification, is installed for it. In cases of emergency, the special system is switched out of service and the fourth channel is played through the central bank of speakers to provide the common type of sound reproduction in the customary way.

Any of the three banks of speakers is in itself capable of producing enough volume for an ordinary performance. The special system does not consist of a normal system cut into three parts, in respect to volume, but of three normal systems, each one capable of supplying the full volume requirements of the theatre. In consequence, maximum volume can be represented as coming from the right of the screen only, moving to the center and finally coming from the left of the screen only. The total power installed in the Broadway theatre, a house for which by all modern standards 100 watts would be considered generously ample, is 320 watts, or about 106 watts per individual channel.

Each sound track is recorded with a range in volume equal to about 25 decibels. The instruction or control track can modify the amplification of each channel by about 50 db. more, making the available volume range about 75 db. The frequency range is that of normal, high-quality equipment.

Projection Room Requirements

Should the system used for reproduction of "Fanastia" become standard in motion picture work, considerable changes would be needed in the theatre, as well as in the studio. Many existing projection rooms would have to be enlarged to enable them to accommodate the additional equipment needed. As at present designed by Disney engineers and RCA, the system would take nothing from existing theatre apparatus. Currently installed soundheads and amplifiers would remain as the fourth or emergency channel.

Added equipment would include two new soundhead assemblies for playing the four-track sound film; three new amplifying channels, complete with their h.f. and l.f. speaker networks; a channel for amplifying the control or instruction track output; filters for separating the different frequencies that comprise the "instructions"; two complete sets of rectifier units for supplying the fields of the two additional loudspeaker assemblies to be located behind the screen, and miscellaneous control apparatus.

Film storage facilities also would have to be doubled, since each reel of film would be accompanied by another reel of equal length carrying the sound. Rewinding and patching facilities, and projection room personnel, might also need enlargement.

It is of course probable that the system would be somewhat simplified as a result of normal progress, but the separate film for sound, separate soundheads, and three amplification channels are basic necessities.

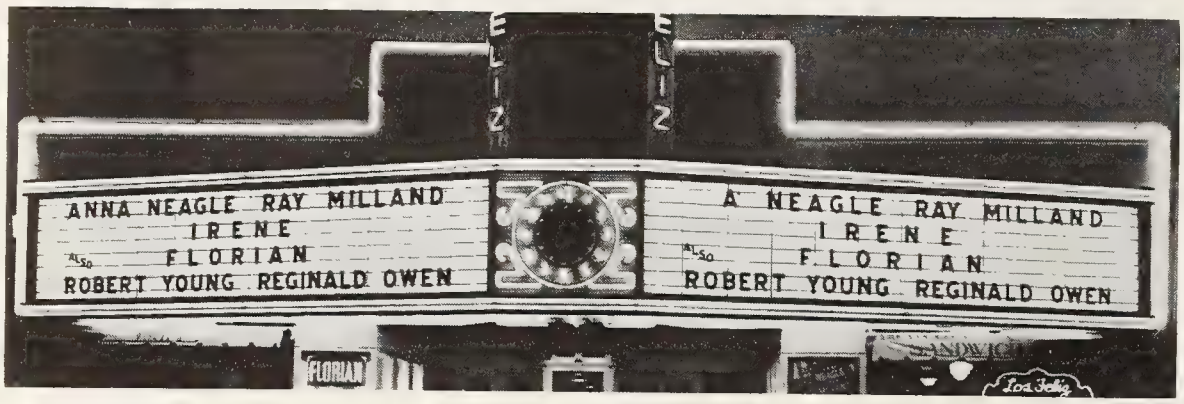
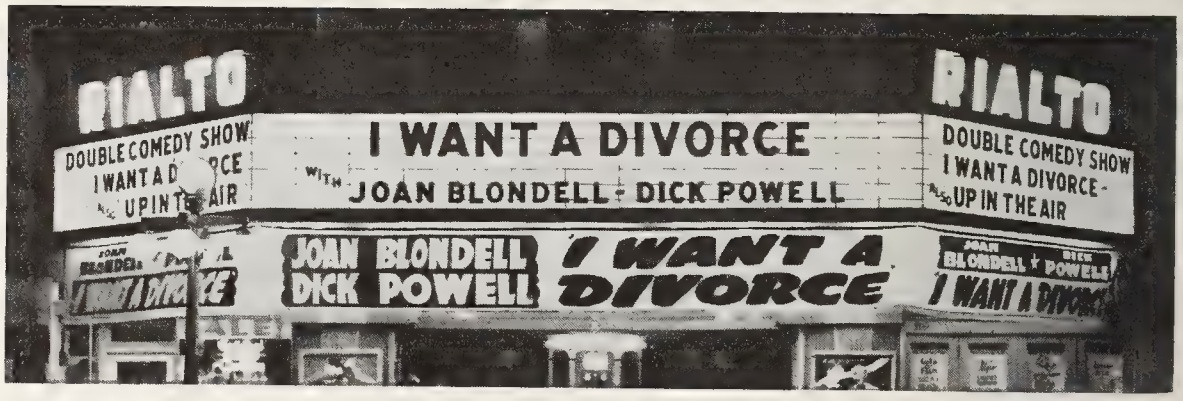
THE MARQUEE

• • & exploitation equipment

Marquee display of Miller theatre, Augusta, Ga.



LEGIBILITY NEEDS "WHITE SPACE"

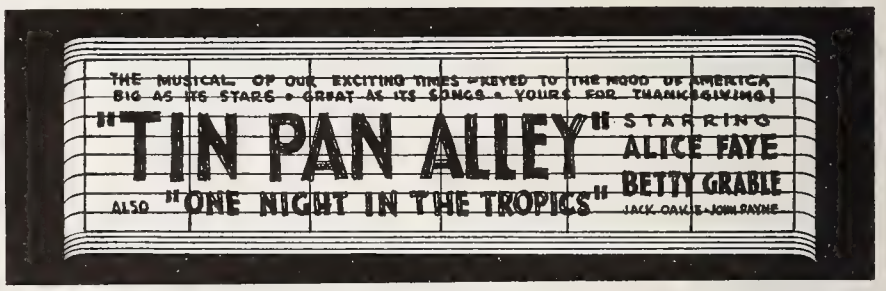


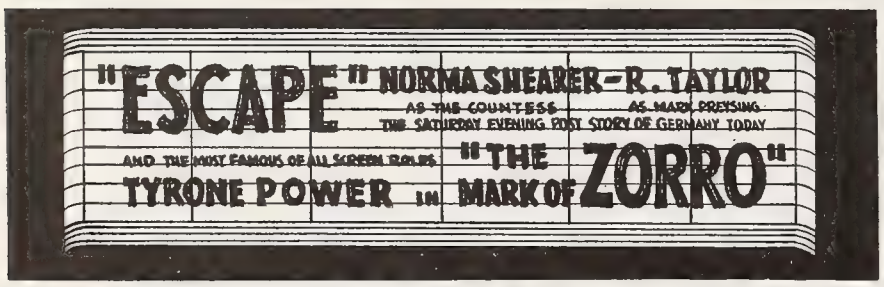
ONE OF THE effects of the multiple-line, interchangeable-letter attraction display equipment has been to induce greater use of "white space" in the copy arrangements. This in itself is an expression of the approach, which this kind of equipment permits, to the technique of printed advertising. A common phrase in the workshops of printed advertising is "plenty of white space." The aim, of course, is to make the copy (1) physically attractive (crowded type looks forbidding, too much to read, etc.), and (2) entirely legible. Both physical attractiveness and maximum legibility are prime requisites of marquee copy, since to a large degree it must attract the eye in competition with street activity and other appeals to attention, and must convey the main idea of its message quickly.

The use of three or four different sizes of the silhouette letters in panels of a height permitting at least three full lines, and preferably five, substantially prevents crowding; but as the attraction boards illustrated here show, the new equipment has had the effect of encouraging more open spacing with only one or two sizes of letters. The marquee of the new Miller in Augusta, Ga., employing Wagner letters and continuous panels, well exemplifies the legibility attained with such open spacing. The open areas of the panel are not to be regarded as waste space, as has been the attitude in the past, but space which is entirely active in the composition of the display.

A more extreme example is afforded by the Los Feliz in Los Angeles, whose new marquee is equipped with Adler multiple-line frames and recessed-face letters. Here we have, not only liberal "white space" around the copy, but the letters themselves are well spaced, with "easy-reading" accordingly accomplished.

The Rialto in Phoenix, Ariz., also has Adler panels and recessed-face letters on a new marquee, with two sizes of letters—10- and 16-inch—in an open, highly legible arrangement.





Above: New marquee and attraction boards of Los Feliz theatre, Los Angeles. Below: New marquee advertising equipment of Rialto, Phoenix, Ariz.

Introducing Descriptive Copy into the "Typographical" Display

■ As attraction advertising layout gets away from the "label" technique—that of merely naming the picture and perhaps a player or two — the chance to add selling copy — descriptive material, slogans, etc. — will often present itself. Here is where 4-inch letters (which have their own auxiliary frames for interlinear attachment) have added utility, as suggested in these scale drawings. The sketches, of course, are grealy reduced; actually, however, 4-inch letters are amply legible for such supplementary copy. And such copy adds selling punch to the display.

Seasonal Safeguards

tem and pipe lines should be made tight. It is good practice to have the man operating boilers go over the system and mark leaky valves and flanges so that they may be repacked when the system is shut down. If there is a sump pump or cellar drain to remove water leaking into boiler room, make sure that it is in good condition.

Burning of Rubbish

At this time of the year the burning of rubbish in boilers that have been shut down for the summer causes considerable trouble, the smoke backing up into the house, etc. The burning of rubbish, papers, etc., in boilers certainly does not help them any. If you feel that you must get rid of it in this way, the following should be observed:

1. See that there is water in the boiler.
2. If there is more than one boiler, choose the one nearest the chimney and use this one for burning the rubbish. Close all the dampers on other boiler and open all the drafts on this one. This will allow the chimney to draw from this boiler only. If there is only one boiler, and tickets, papers, etc., are to be burned, all dampers should be left wide open.
3. Rubbish should be burned outside of show hours. It should be burned every day; in this way a small quantity is burned at a time.
4. Remember, if you are burning rubbish every day, you must keep your boiler clean. Ashes must be removed regularly from the grates and ash pit.

Last, but by no means least, clean the boiler room, arrange ash barrels, coal bunkers, fire tools in an orderly way. Neatness, orderliness and systematic methods promote safety and efficiency in the boiler room just as certainly as elsewhere.

Holiday Hazards

With the holiday season a few weeks away, each theatre in the United States should be checked to find possible fire hazards. There is no alibi for a fire in a theatre with the knowledge and equipment that we have at our disposal today. To provide hazardless facilities for viewing motion pictures during Christmas and New Year holidays (your patrons minds will be on the festivities of the season and they just will not be careful) is definitely a matter to be concerned with now.

Check to see that all of your fire extinguishers are properly located and in a working condition. Make sure yourself when they were refilled.

Inspect to see that all standpipes and fire hose are in good working order—if you are a manager, go on record now with your boss as to the condition of the fire hose in your theatre.

Check up to see how trash, oil-soaked rags, gasoline, paint and such other combustionable materials are handled by your staff of cleaners. Be sure that proper metal cans, with tight-fitting covers, are located at advantageous points as receptacles for trash, etc. Insist that the covers be always on these cans, whether or not they are empty.

Go over your lobby and front and assure yourself as to the amount if any of the temporary wiring for display frames, spotlights, and such equipment.

Be careful in selecting your type of Christmas decoration. Try to have them as nearly fireproof as possible, or at least very slow-burning.

Get your electrician, and if necessary borrow the electrical equipment necessary, to determine just what electrical circuits in your theatre are overloaded, then correct defects by reducing the wattage of each individual outlet, or by rearranging these circuits.

Be sure that all exit doors work freely, that passageways are free from obstruction, that furniture is so located that it cannot become a hazard in case of an emergency. Very frequently certain pieces of furniture would be much safer if they were secured to the wall or the floor so that they cannot be moved.

If each manager will assure himself as to the condition that exists in his own theatre, as outlined here, we can expect to go through a reasonably trouble-free winter season and an accidentless holiday.

FOR VISION DECORATION AND SELLING

New Decorative Luminaires For Varied Lamp Applications

DECORATIVE FIXTURES designed to take full advantage of the more recent developments in lamps and modern lighting practice, are becoming available in ever increasing variety, to meet, with stock models, every requirement of space, location and light output. Not only is this true of luminaires for the use of the highly efficient fluorescent lamps, but of those for incandescent lamps as well.

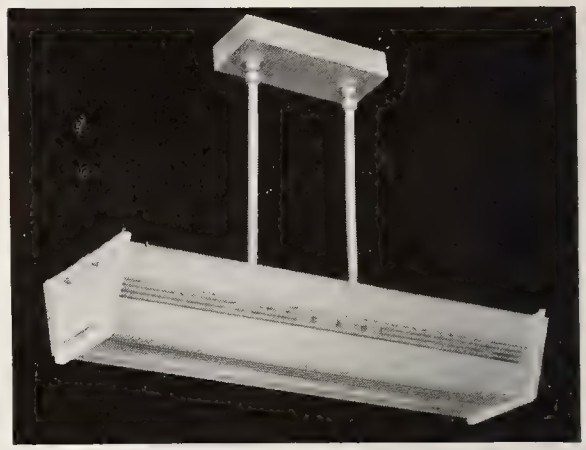
Of the late designs illustrated here, two are shown as recently installed in the auditorium of a theatre—Thomas James' new Comet in St. Louis. Both by the McFadden Lighting Company, Inc., of St. Louis, one type is used along the side walls, the other in a niche on either side of the proscenium arch (see also general view of the Comet auditorium).

The luminaire in the forward niches is an interesting modern design providing for the reflection of light upward over the entire surface of the fixture, the light issuing from lamps in a metal bowl, creating a "fountain" effect. The upper element is of metal with finish in white and gold, while trimming is crystal. The overall height of this luminaire is 7 feet, 6 inches.

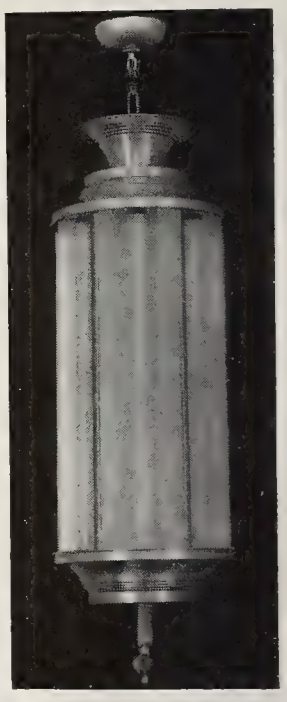


The side wall luminaires (which are used in the Comet in lengths from 6 to 12 feet) are equipped with metal louvered color filters, which vary and blend the tones of colored lamps. Fins at the sides have a pronounced streamlining effect; terminals are fluted glass tubes. Constructed of metal, the finish is white enamelite with gold star trimming.

Fluorescent Luminaires

The three other new luminaire designs illustrated have been developed especially for decorative applications of fluorescent lamps. Luminaires A and B are by the Pickwick Metalcraft Company of New York. Designed for ceiling installation, Model A is available in lengths accommodating two lamps of 24 or 48 inches, and it may be mounted close to the ceiling or suspended with canopy and double stem.

General view of auditorium of Comet theatre, St. Louis.

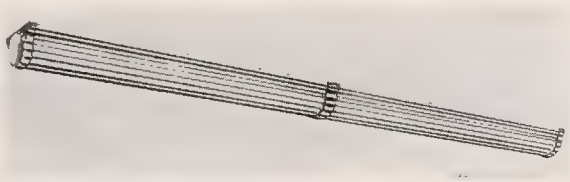


Fluorescent luminaire A.

Model B is designed for six lamps, in sizes adapted to either 24- or 48-inch lengths. This model is particularly suited to high-ceiling areas.

Fluorescent luminaire C, brought out by Westinghouse, is representative of a line of surface-mounting fixtures designed especially for single or continuous strip illumination. Two styles, both for direct lighting, are obtainable—one for single, the other for two, 40-watt, 48-inch fluorescent lamps.

This luminaire consists in an ornamental steel runner, ornamental end caps, glass sections and reflector, while ballast, starting switch, sockets and wiring complete the unit. The glass sections are of "Alvax" glass, which, having high light-transmission characteristics, is nevertheless opalescent enough to conceal the lamps.



Fluorescent luminaire B.

Mounting is by six slotted holes in the base of the unit (two ½-inch conduit knockouts are provided in each runner). For continuous run installation, any length of strip is permitted in multiples of 4 feet, with standard single-lamp units used with the required number of extension units to complete the strip.

Lamp starters are of the glow-switch type, and high power factor current-limiting ballast equipment is supplied with the fixtures to minimize cyclic flicker.

A notable characteristic of fixture design aimed at the application of fluorescent lamps to public areas of theatres and similar buildings, is provision, in many types of luminaires, for use as a single unit, or in groups of units forming a continuous light source according to the dictates of space and required light output. This flexibility is being attained, moreover, without slighting decorative values. Many of such designs provide an easy method of attractive trough lighting.

Fluorescent luminaire C.

Ultraviolet Lighting Units For Each "Black Light" Need

AMONG THE lessons learned in the practical application of "black light" to theatres is that not only the lamps, but the entire lighting unit must be specifically adapted to the function of the installation. An outstanding example of this is afforded by the difference between the activation of fluorescent aisle carpeting and of wall or ceiling decorations.

Two of the units shown here (all are the most recent developments of the Continental Lithograph Corporation, Cleveland) are for fluorescent carpeting in auditorium aisles, while the others are for general decorative applications of either medium or high power. Figure 1 shows the permanent installation unit designed for the latter, using the 250-watt AH-5 mercury lamp. This floodlamp produces brilliant fluorescence of decorations at distances up to 30 feet, and effective fluorescence up to 80 feet, with units spaced on 35- to 40-foot centers.

Figures 2 and 3 show units especially designed for carpeting, the former for flush mounting in suspended ceilings, the latter for attached mounting to ceilings. These use 100-watt mercury lamps, allowing for adjustment in position with relation to a parabolic reflector so as to effect a sharp cutoff of beam, as at the edge of the auditorium seating.

Figure 4 is a unit for use of the 100-watt EH-4 projector floodlight mercury lamp in installations requiring only medium-power activation (due to distance of throw, or dimensions of luminescent area). At a few yards of throw, luminescence is rendered brilliant, and it is effective at around 25 feet; for longer throws, using the ER-4, Continental recommends their spotlights designed for this same lamp.

Each unit includes an enclosed autotransformer approximately 4 inches square and weighing less than 8 pounds, for installation immediately with the unit.

CLEANING AIDS & METHODS

■ ■ ■ including DEODORIZATION AND SANITATION

Implements and Materials that Make for Cleaning Efficiency

• A descriptive check-list of brooms, brushes, soaps, etc., which belong among the theatre's maintenance aids for a thorough job in minimum time

By S. BRAVERMAN

WHERE WORK is not done with the right tools, it is not done properly. Either it takes too long, or does not come out well, or imposes an undue strain on the workman, or positive damage is done to the object worked upon.

In cleaning and maintaining the theatre this last is particularly true. The wrong detergent may damage the surface cleaned. The wrong cleaning implement may shorten its life. And certain cleaning jobs cannot be done effectively at all without the help of facilities designed for the purpose. As an example, it is almost impossible to clean a radiator without a radiator brush. With some types of radiator, the porter by reason of great effort may manage to get by with another cleaning implement not made for the purpose, but only at the expense of much wasted time, disproportionate effort, and an imperfect cleaning job that will continue to waste fuel.

In the matter of brooms, to take one important item, even a small theatre needs and should have approximately eleven different types, not counting dusters and mops. The exact number and types of brooms required will depend on the nature of the cleaning jobs to be done, but use of the wrong broom for a given job produces inadequate cleaning, damage to the surface, or both, and in addition wastes the cleaner's time and imposes a degree of effort on him which would not be necessary if he had the right tools.

¶ BROOMS and BRUSHES

In general, the theatre should have a 24-36-inch Tampico broom; a brown fibre street broom; an 18-36-inch horsehair broom; a 12-14-inch broom of either horsehair or Tampico; a short-handled "orchestra" whisk broom; a short-handled, horsehair "counter brush"; a "deck scrubbing" brush; a "toy" broom; a toilet bowl brush; a short-handled brush either of soft hair or of the exceptionally fine whisk broom type, and a radiator brush. All of these have their own uses and for most work cannot be interchanged, although occasionally they can, shortening this list.

Tampico Broom

The large Tampico broom, 24 to 36 inches wide, according to the area to be cleaned, is used for concrete and other rough surfaces. Tampico resembles horsehair, but is considerably stiffer than the average horsehair. By reason of their stiffness, the hairs get into crevices where a softer brush would glide over the top and would therefore fail to clean. This broom can be used for the sidewalk as well as for concrete interior surfaces such as lobby floors.

In cleaning the sidewalk, porters often sweep rubbish into the street, where it is left for the municipal cleaning service to deal with. If they are dilatory, a most untidy appearance, compounded of cigarette wrappers, chewing gum wrappers, ticket stubs and general rubbish, is presented, and in some localities may remain for days. If the theatre's porter is to deal with this for appearance's sake, collecting it into a trash can, he needs a standard or short street-sweeper's broom made of brown fibre bristles. A hair broom of any kind will not do a good job, and will itself require extensive cleaning when finished.

The Tampico broom used for the sidewalk and other concrete surfaces should not be used on terrazzo. The softer horsehair broom, 18 to 36 inches wide according to the area to be swept, should be used to prevent cumulative damage to material.

For wooden floor surfaces one or another of the above-mentioned brooms may be employed; Tampico for rough, bare wood, horsehair for painted floors. However, a wide broom may be too wide for some interior wooden surfaces and a narrow broom may require undue work in the lobby or foyer. Hence, many theatres use a 1½′-3′ broom for lobby and foyer work, and a 12″-14″ broom for wooden floors and aisles.

The "orchestra" whisk broom, which has a short handle, is needed for corners, especially corners of stairs, which cannot be reached properly with a larger, long-handled broom. It is made of corn fibre, but being short-handled, is not used with enough pressure to damage carpeting or to flick dust about unduly. An exceptionally fine-grade corn whisk-broom, or short-handled hair brush, is used on upholstery if it is not vacuum-cleaned.

The counter-brush, horsehair and short-handled, is used to get the collected sweepings into the dust pan.

Deck Brush

The deck scrubbing brush, made of brown, stiff bristle, is necessary for scrubbing rubber mats, tile and terrazzo. It does a better job by far than a mop, since the bristles get into the crevices; while, being lubricated with soapy water, it is not damaging to the surfaces. It is of course followed up with mopfuls of clear water.

Bowl Brush

The toilet bowl brush is a round cluster of stiff fibres on the end of a curved stick. The curvature of its handle enables the porter to get into the traps and under the lips of bowls, and remove encrustations which if left would cause odor.

The toy broom is a kind of soft whisk broom on a long wooden handle, used during the show to remove litter of ticket stubs, chewing gum wrappers, etc. A long-handled "toy" dustpan is used with it. Since this work is done in sight of the audience, toy broom and dustpan are of dainty, attractive appearance, the dustpan usually of highly polished brass.

Radiator Brush

The radiator brush is short-handled, 100% horsehair; it is designed to remove all the dust from steam radiators, not only for the sake of cleanliness but because dust is an insulator and its accumulation makes necessary additional expenditure for fuel.

Corn and Fibre Brooms

Corn brooms and fibre brooms, except for the short-handled orchestra broom and the toy broom, should not be used on carpets. They flick dust up, spreading it, and it settles on upholstery and drapes. Also they damage the carpet, shortening its life. (The orchestra broom and toy broom do not exert enough pressure to be harmful in either way; and corn is desirable in the toy broom because it does a better job with ticket stubs, which a hair broom would be likely to pass over). Carpets are preferably vacuum-swept, or gone over with a carpet sweeper, not swept with brooms at all. The horsehair broom is a second-best resort, and of course if carpets are cleaned during the show any broom is too annoying and any vacuum equipment too noisy; the carpet sweeper must be used. It should be used often during heavy traffic, for dust cuts into the fibers of the carpet and reduces its useful life.

¶ DUSTERS and MOPS

Dusters, like brooms, are made of different materials, suited to different surfaces, and of varying shapes according to the work for which they are specialized. The average theatre should have approximately eight types of dusters and mops, including brushes which are here classified as dusters because of the general appearance of their extremely soft hairs.

Wall Duster

For cleaning walls and ceilings a wool or lambswool duster, fastened to a long stick, is used. The wool duster is of fibre construction; the lambswool type is the genuine pelt of lamb.

Screen and Blind Dusters

A goat's hair screen brush, almost like a duster in appearance because of its softness, is used once or twice a week to maintain the light-reflecting and sound-transmitting qualities of the screen. It is obtainable with collapsible extension handles up to 40′.

A device of extremely fine goat's-hair is the venetian blind brush. It is intended for daily use—its hairs are not heavy enough to remove a week's accumulation of dust from venetian blinds.

Wax and Oil Applicators

A lambswool applicator measuring 6″ x 8″ is used for waxing floors. If water-wax is used, the applicator is easily washable in mild soap and tepid water.

Cotton mops are used for oiling wooden floors. Wool or cotton dusters (similar to O-Cedar mops) are used for dusting waxed floors, and a dry mop similar to the wall duster for bringing up the luster of such floors, and removing scratches.

The theatre also should have a feather duster of turkey tails, used principally out-of-doors at the front of the house. It is not desirable for indoor use because it scatters and distributes the dust.

Mops for Wet Scrubbing

Cotton mops for wet scrubbing are of several types. The theatre gets what it pays for. The cheaper type may have eight plies of very thick threads, which readily leave lint behind. The better grade may have 80 plies of individually twisted thread, and is very unlikely to leave lint even when old. There are several types of mop sticks —clamp, spring and wing-nut. The modern clamp type holds the mop in such a way that it extends past the metal clamp and affords protection to baseboards. The mop can readily be removed, and the same clamp used for holding cleaning rags and scrubbing brushes.

¶ SOAPS & DETERGENTS

Soaps are obtainable in liquid or powder form and in many grades—once again the theatre gets what it pays for. The cheapest possible soap is an 8% powder, meaning that percentage of soap and 92% of a filler consisting of volcanic ash or other inert material. It is used in the ratio of one or two cupfuls to a bucket of water. The next grade is a 12% powder, and so on up to 88% grade. The most expensive is the best buy. The 88% grade costs five times as much as the 8% grade, but contains eleven times as much soap.

All soap powders have the fault of containing fillers which, while they help produce a scrubbing or scouring action, do not dissolve, and hence are sometimes left behind during mopping up. They are particularly likely to be left behind at wall edges, baseboards and kickboards.

Oil Soaps

Oil soaps so-called are of many grades, some containing caustic materials which promote early wearing out of rubber mats and damage to linoleum and hands. They are generally used in the ratio of half a cupful to a pail of water. Among the better grades, one having the trade-mark Vego is entirely neutral, approved by the Rubber Manufacturers Association, and used in the ratio of one or two ounces per gallon of water. Liquid soaps have no solid filler to remain behind after mopping. The best grades are suitable for terrazzo, rubber, linoleum and painted surfaces.

Detergents

Detergents, while of many varieties, are generally based either on tri-sodium phosphate or tetra-sodium pyrophosphate—the latter is said to be less caustic. They are applied with a mop, scrubbing brush or rag, do not form lathers, and should be very thoroughly washed away with plenty of fresh water to prevent crystallization in the pores of surfaces with possible damage to the surface.

A gala opening of the new 1,400-seat Lindsay theatre in Lubbock, Tex., was held by the Griffith Amusement Company on November 9th. A large number of the circuit executives and managers were on hand for the occasion.

The Strand theatre in Columbia, S. C., operated by Palmetto Amusements, Inc., was damaged by fire on October 22nd. The loss was estimated at $10,000. WARREN IRVIN, district manager, said that the house would be repaired at once.

ARTHUR GOULD has opened his 300-seat Lance theatre in Lance Creek, Wyo. The house is the first motion picture theatre in the town.

H. P. WEST will erect and operate a theatre at Greenville, Calif.

Art Desormeaux has had a new porcelain enamel front and marquee installed on his Majestic in Madison, Wis.

W. F. SONNEMAN, owner of the U-Ark at Fayetteville, Ark., recently ordered 640 new Heywood-Wakefield seats, a pair of Brenkert projectors and lamps, RCA sound system, Baldor rectifiers, and a Da-Lite screen from the Oklahoma Theatre Supply Company of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Phil Isley Theatres, Inc., of Dallas, Texas, has been organized with an authorized capitalization of $10,000, by R. P. ISLEY, F. M. ISLEY and FORREST DUNLAP.

MRS. CARMEN RIOS has purchased the interests of MILDRED R. ARANDA in the Circle theatre at Corona, Calif.

The new Charles theatre, with a seating capacity of 1,000, has been opened in Montgomery, Ala. CHARLES T. ROOT, who operated two theatres in Watogna, Okla., for 15 years, is the new owner and manager, while ROBERT ROGERS, formerly chief of staff with Keith's Albee in Cincinnati, and for a time operator of a Florida motion picture theatre, has been named assistant manager. FRANK C. SMITH, JR., will act as general utility man for the house.

Highland Theatre, Inc., of Lakeland, Fla., has received a charter of incorporation to operate theatres. The authorized capital stock is 20 shares, par value $1,000 each. Incorporators are H. L. NADEAU, FRANCES MOORE and M. CRENSHAW.

J. J. GOODSTEIN has reopened his Mines theatre at Idaho Springs, Colo. The house has undergone extensive remodeling following a fire.

LESTER MILLER, operator of the Palace in Coweta, Okla., has installed RCA sound equipment.

LOUIS KAPLAIN plans to open a theatre in Santa Barbara, Calif.

GEORGE A. and PAUL LANGHEINRICH, JR., operators of the Burleigh in Milwaukee, have been elected president and secretary, respectively, of the newly organized Burleigh Street Businessmen's Association.

MR. and MRS. C. E. MCLAUGHLIN have opened their new 400-seat Ritz, in Las Animas, Colo.

The Circle in Tulsa, Okla., has been reopened by the Griffith Amusement Company, after being closed for remodeling. Thirty feet was added to the building to make room for 200 more seats, thus increasing the house's total capacity to 850. The theatre was also redecorated, and a new front and marquee were installed.

HARRY LAMONT has renovated a hall in Hudson, N. Y., and plans for a Thanksgiving date to open a motion picture theatre there, to be called the Strand. Mr. Lamont also operates houses in Athens, Berelin, Philmont and Greenville, N. Y.

DEWEY GOODWIN, operator of the Fox Theatre in Minco, Okla., recently purchased from the Oklahoma Theatre Supply Company of Oklahoma City, Okla., a new pair of Strong arc lamps.

J. D. L'ESPERANCE is planning the opening of a theatre at Vista, Calif., following the completion of alteration work.

FRED BROWN has installed two new Simplex projectors in his Plymouth at Plymouth, Wis.

LARRY MORAHAN, assistant manager at the Egyptian in Denver, Colo., and MISS RAE MARIE, cashier at the Oriental in the same city, were recently married.

LEWIS GANES is remodeling, reseating and redecorating the Orpheum at Fairfield, Iowa. The house, which has been darkened during the period of alteration, will reopen under the name of Coed. AL HAUETTER, designer of Kansas City, is installing a recreation room in the basement of the theatre for the use of student patrons from Parsons College. Cost of the renovation work is put at $20,000.

M. H. BRUMM'S Ritz in Milwaukee, Wis., has been given a new porcelain enamel front, box office and marquee.

ROY COOPER, San Francisco, division manager for the Golden State Theatre and Realty Corporation, has returned to his desk following an enforced stay in a hospital.

JOHN AUGELLO has opened the Town Hall theatre in Philadelphia, N. Y.

The Quimby, a unit of the Shea circuit in Zanesville, Ohio, which some months ago was taken over from the Zanesville Theatres, Inc., has been reopened. The house had been closed for redecoration and re-equipment.

The Grengs Amusement Company of Spooner, Wis., has taken over the Parkway in Greenwood, Wis., from MR. and MRS. M. E. KENYON.

Joseph Blumenfeld of the Blumenfeld Theatre Circuit in San Francisco, is personally directing the remodeling work being done on the Casino and Marion Davies theatres in that city. When reopened, the latter house will be called the Esquire.

C. E. FENLON has become associated with J. P. ADLER in the operation of the Badger hotel and theatre in Merrill, Wis. Mr. Fenlon purchased the interests of S. J. MILLER.

The Rialto in Oklahoma City, Okla., which was closed by the Griffith Amusement Company, October 16, on the expiration of the house lease, was reopened on November 3. Contemplated plans for remodeling the house have been temporarily postponed and the house will not be closed for renovations, as scheduled.

FRANK SHEA, formerly manager of Fabian's Regent and Rialto theatres in Cohoes, N. Y., reopened the Metro in Schenectady, N. Y., November 8th. The house was formerly operated by MORRIS SILVERMAN and later by Max Borodkin of New York. Mr. Shea may rename the theatre.

The Campus in Norman, Okla., closed for the past two years, is being completely remodeled and redecorated. New seats, and a new marquee and sign will be installed.

J. H. NEELY of Wichita, Kans., has taken over the Lowe from F. L. LOWE at Sterling, Kans. Mr. Lowe will continue to operate his houses in Lyons, Hoisington and Hays, Kans.

Headquarters of the Golden State Theatre and Realty Company of San Francisco, Calif., long located in the Golden Gate Building, will be moved around the end of the year to the Davis Hewes Building at 995 Market Street in that city. The concern, of which E. H. EMMICK is president, operates theatres throughout northern and central California.

C. R. HALL of Boonville, N. Y., has reopened the Carole in Utica, N. Y. The house was formerly owned by L. J. CARKEY. It has been renamed the Sunset.

Remodeling work on the Palace theatre in Duncan, Okla., a Griffith unit, has been completed. Among the renovations were the installation of a new Texlite marquee with Wagner letters and frames, new tile rest room floors, recarpeting, new lobby boards and a new box office.

WILLIAM PETERSON, who operated the Delta at Brentwood, Calif., died recently.

The Regun in New York City has been reopened by SAMUEL FRIEDMAN and MINNA STURTZ.

M. S. METROVICH has opened the New Linda theatre in Marysville, Calif.

MIKE KALLET has renewed his service agreement with Altec, covering all of the 24 Kallet theatres in New York State. A. J. RADEMACHER represented Altec in the negotiations.

HY FINE, M & P Boston district manager, who left several weeks ago to assume a position in Florida, has returned to his former post with the New England circuit.

The Excelsior Amusement Company, operating a theatre at Daly City, Calif., plans to remodel the foyer and lobby, add new signs and redecorate the interior. Renovation plans for the work have been prepared by A. A. CANTIN, San Francisco architect.

CORGAN and MOORE, theatre architects of Dallas, Texas, have completed plans for the remodeling of the Blue Moon theatre in Oklahoma City. Renovation plans call for installation of 200 seats additional to the present capacity of 300. The house is operated by Ted Griffith, partner, and the Griffith Amusement Company.

DAN MCLEAN has remodeled the lobby of his Embassy in San Francisco. Included in the renovations was the installation of a lounge with automatic, soft drink and candy vending machines.

LEO KESSELL, co-owner of the 1,000-seat Palace in Lancaster, Ohio, has purchased the interest of HARRY ABRAMS in that theatre. TOM BORCHERT will remain as manager. Mr. Kessell has also acquired Mr. Abrams' interest in the Broad in the same city. HERBERT KNELLER manages the Broad theatre.

The new 700 seat Times in Cincinnati, built by ISAAC LIBSON and associates, has been opened. R. G. LISBON has been named general manager, with ROBERT KINSLEY, former assistant at Keiths, as house manager.

UNITED STATES RUBBER COMPANY • MISHAWAKA, INDIANA

These columns are regular features of Better Theatres dealing with methods by which the theatre may be planned as efficiently as possible for the exhibition of motion pictures. Both Mr. Schlanger and Mr. Potwin are consultants to Better Theatres. All inquiries concerning planning should be addressed to Better Theatres Service Department.

BASIC PLANNING TODAY

IF BUT A very short time ago we were told that a motion picture theatre existed in which there were (1) hardly any floor slope, (2) no lighting fixture of the direct or indirect type used during the projection period (other than aisle lights), (3) no acoustical materials, and (4) walls and ceilings finished in very light colors, we would probably regard the "unfortunate" owner of the theatre as being ignorant of the essentials of such a structure, or at least of being without sufficient funds to afford the kind of job he ought to have had.

Reduced Floor Pitches

New methods in seat staggering and developments in auditorium planning have together made possible a floor slope which is limited to as little as 18 inches and even less. The "reverse" or upward portion of these slopes have been limited to as little as 6 inches, with the extreme case being about 10 inches. All of this has been accomplished in accordance with standards for minimizing obstruction of the audience's view of the screen.

The conditions given as 2, 3 and 4 in the above listing, are largely based on the application of the physical law that the angle of incidence of light or of sound, is equal to the angle of reflection in each case. While other laws of physics enter into the considerations, the study of reflections has entered basically into present-day planning of the motion picture theatre, the devising of a better cinema scheme.

Using Light Reflection

The practical approach is stressed, too, because porous and dust-collecting materials are eliminated, and lightly tinted surfaces are put to work to re-reflect what would be otherwise wasted screen light, absorbed on dark surfaces.

Smoothly finished, hard surfaces such as plaster, hardboard, asbestos, or metal shaped in mass as well as in its detailed breakup and finished further in light colors, are used to reflect light and sound so as to be complementary and properly "tuned" to the light intensities of the screen performance.

These same forms, which are properly designed for the periods of projection, also become attractive architecturally when the emergency lighting is used, with the full character of the auditorium in view.

Film Elevators— And Other Tricks

A HAND-OPERATED elevator, or dumb waiter, for the purpose of getting the film up to the projection room has proved to be of value in the operation of the theatre. A small inconspicuous door at street level, preferably on a side wall, opens onto a small shaft approximately 2 feet square, which extends up to space adjoining the projection room.

The advantages are many and important. Heavy film cans are handled quickly and without strain, while the costly finishes in the lobby and other spaces are not marred and broken by heavy cans hitting against them.

The film delivery man has the key to the dumbwaiter door, as he would otherwise have for the lobby door. All locks can be eliminated from the front entrance doors, using only built-in door bolts operated from the inside. The building may be entered in the morning and closed at night through an exit door equipped with a cylinder lock.

Modern Door Checks

Door checks for inner lobby and foyer doors are now made so that most of the check is built into the top of the door. These checks, made by a leading hardware manufacturer, are far more attractive than the common exposed type.

Bricks in Varied Sizes

Some of the brick manufacturers are now making double- and triple-size bricks with baked enamel faces. The bricks are in various pleasing colors and may be used very effectively for the theatre facade. A small pebble-like texture is preferable, since the absolutely even surface would show glaring highlights, which destroy color values. A facade made of this material is durable and attractive and very easy to keep clean. Interesting patterns can be designed, using a variety of the brick sizes.

Late Attraction Display

Lobby illumination, after the last patron has gone through, can be effectively limited to lighting of the displays showing coming attractions. In this way not only is there a saving in electric current, but the displays are more conspicuous.

—B. S.

EVALUATING MATERIALS

IN A PRECEDING column [September issue] the advantages of acoustical specifications were discussed, and particular attention was directed to the fact that the sound absorption values specified for the treatment of a theatre should not be limited to a single frequency.

It has been common practice in the past to compare the relative merits of acoustical materials for theatres on the basis of their sound absorption values at 512 cycles per second. For example, a material having a sound absorption value of .85 may be brought to the attention of an exhibitor or architect. If all of the characteristics of the material are acceptable, such as its unit cost, appearance, fire-resisting and maintenance qualities, it is natural, from first impression, to assume that the material will be a good one to use for treatment. The absorption value of .85 is high, perhaps even higher than several other materials which the exhibitor or architect may be considering for use.

What Does the Figure Mean?

Now let us go one step further into an analysis of this material. The value of .85 usually represents one of two possible quantities. It is either the absorption value of the material at 512 c.p.s., or it is the average noise reduction coefficient which the Acoustical Materials Association has established as a basis for noise reduction work, but not for the acoustical correction of auditoriums.

If it is the 512-cycle value, the exhibitor or architect should immediately ask what happens at the other frequencies. Are the values the same at 128 and 256 c.p.s., for example, or are these values lower? The values at these frequencies are invariably lower, and in some cases so low as to make the material unsatisfactory for use in the motion picture theatre.

Uniformity of Absorption

The absorption values of materials should be more nearly uniform with frequency when these materials are to be used for theatre treatment. A material having an .85 value at 512 cycles, with only a .20 value at 128 cycles, will not give as good results in the average theatre as a material having a value of .70 at 512 cycles, with a .40 value at 128 cycles.

Low-frequency absorption values are extremely important.

A Country Circuit's System for Making and Presenting Local Movies

• Describing the method used by the St. Cloud Amusement Corporation (whose rural operation was described in the October issue) to build good-will and provide special attractions

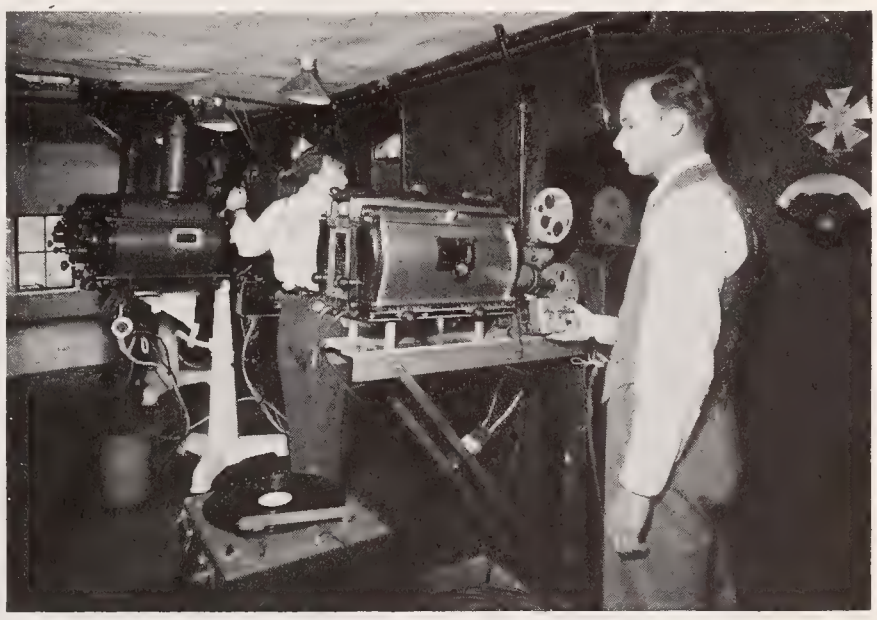
By CHARLES E. SHULTZ

MOST EXHIBITORS at one time or another have taken motion pictures of local events and presented them in their theatres. Prohibitive cost has undoubtedly prevented more of this work from being undertaken despite the box office and good-will value of local pictures.

This article deals with the use of 16-mm. photography and high intensity projection, together with musical background and "off screen" commentation recorded on records at 33 1/3 r.p.m., in the presentation of such local newsreels. This is the result of the desire of the St. Cloud Amusement Corporation, a circuit of twelve theatres, with seating capacities ranging from 500 to 1,000, operating in northern New Jersey communities of 1,500 to 6,000 population, to produce local films at moderate cost without sacrificing the standard of projection to which the patrons of these theatres are accustomed.

An investigation was made of the possibility of producing low-cost localized subjects of professional quality and their potential value was considered deserving of careful research. The technical department of Heyer-Shultz, Inc., Montclair, N. J., suggested that material of the nature desired could be satisfactorily photographed, recorded and reproduced with 16-mm. equipment due to the many major improvements which have been made in this field in recent years. A survey was compiled outlining the results which might be anticipated from 16-mm., upon the strength of which the equipment was developed that is now being used.

It is interesting to note the direct comparisons obtained with 16-mm. projection against the 35-mm. projection normally employed. The cost factors for 16-mm. are so much lower in every respect that they bring this project to a total cost that may be written off over a short period of time and continue to create added box office possibilities.



¶ PHOTOGRAPHY

The photography must be strictly professional from every standpoint. This means producing a clear, sharp picture, rich in gradation and half-tones, rock steady and professionally composed. There must be a balanced mixture of close-ups, long shots and medium range shots, as well as scene duration of sufficient length to overcome the major faults usually encountered by the amateur.

For this work is used a Bell & Howell Filmo 70-DA camera equipped with a Recording: Mr. Shultz, who makes a hobby of acting as commentator for many of the St. Cloud circuit's "newsreels," is shown speaking an account of a local event into the microphone, while Alvin Sloan, general manager of the circuit, operates the recorder, mixing Mr. Shultz's voice with background music and sound effects.

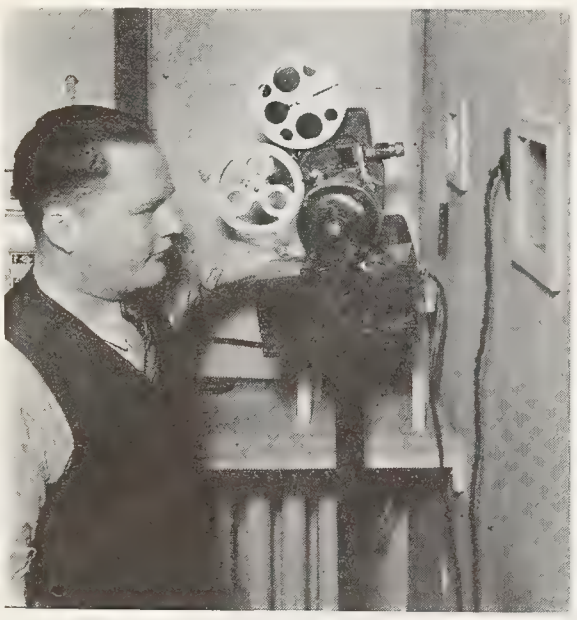
Projecting: An edition of "Meet Your Neighbors" being presented to an audience at Roy's theatre in Blairstown, N. J. Projectionists Roy Rothenbeck (left) and Reed Van Gorder, both members of Local 353, are about to change over from standard to 16-mm. Mr. Van Gorder will snap one switch which will start both the 16-mm. projector and the turntable.

triple lens turret upon which is mounted a 1-inch wide-angle lens of *f*1.9 speed, a 3-inch f/4 medium focus lens, and a 6-inch f/4.5 telephoto lens. All work is photographed with a tripod and exposures are carefully standardized with the use of the new Weston Master Model 715 photometer.

Eastman Kodachrome color film is employed almost exclusively because of its added pictorial value and grainlessness. As most of the subjects covered are photographed outdoors and under daylight conditions, the selection of lenses is amply fast for this color film.

Under emergency conditions of adverse lighting, the high speed Super-X black and white may be used to obtain the exposure necessary. The completed production is usually approximately 400 feet in length and is edited from a total footage of 800 to 1,200 feet.

¶ PROJECTION



The requisites of projection are very strict and present the greatest problems encountered. In every case the projected 16-mm. image must fill a screen the size of which was designed for the projection of 35-mm. film. Despite the fact that the 16-mm. film is magnified 2¼ times that of the 35 mm., a direct comparison is of course made between the two images by the audience. The 16-mm. must be comparable in color, steadiness and sharpness with the 35-mm. picture. To meet these requirements Heyer-Shultz, Inc., constructed a special high-intensity projector utilizing the new Strong Junior high-intensity arc developed especially for the projection of 16-mm. film for professional.

Assuming that the working conditions for 16-mm. and 35-mm. projection are equal in screen surface area and length of throw, we find the following characteristic differences exist:

The standard optical speed for 35-mm. projection ranges from f/2.2 to f/2.5 in common use.

The standard optical speed for 16-mm. equipment ranges from f/1.6 to f/2.

As the efficiency of an optical system is in direct relationship to the f speed of that system, it will be noted that this represents a material increase in efficiency. However, this increase is offset by the additional magnification of 2¼ to 1 for the 16-mm. system, and the quality of the projection lens used must be excellent to obtain the definition required under this extreme magnification.

Projecting a reel on a local event into the recording room (see text and recording room plan) for running comment and musical background. Recording is done at the Newton theatre in Newton, N. J. Projectionist James Quinn, member of Local 353, is shown at the projector.

Screen Illumination:

A comparison between the projection of these two systems was made at a 94½ foot throw on a 15½-foot screen, with a projection angle of approximately 10°. The equipment used, and specifications for power, carbons and screen intensity, were:

(A) 35-mm.—
Simplex E-7 projectors.
Peerless Magnarc lamps.
Bausch & Lomb Cinephor f/2.5 lenses.
6-mm. negative and 7-mm. positive "Suprex" carbons, operating at 42 amperes, 32 volts.
(Screen intensity, central reading, 20 foot-candles.)

(B) 16-mm.—
Standard 16-mm. projector.
Strong Junior H. I. lamp.
Wollensack f/1.6 lens.
5.5-mm. negative, and 6-mm. positive "Pearlex" carbons, operating at 30 amperes, 27 volts.
(Screen intensity, central reading, 10 foot-candles.)

The latter reading represents from three to five times the intensity obtainable from incandescent light sources.

The color of the light from both sources is identical, and the definition with the Kodachrome film is excellent. When black-and-white film is used in the 16-mm. machine, however, grain is noticeable.

Mechanical Comparisons:

The 16-mm. image being magnified 2¼ times more than the 35-mm. image requires an accuracy of registration and vibration levels within very close tolerances. The 16-mm. projector employed produces excellent results for this image size.

Because of the fact that the subjects covered in this work are not limited to a single town, but generally are of interest in from three to seven surrounding towns, the projection equipment is portable, being constructed on an aluminum base and completely self-contained.

Each theatre has a permanent mounting affixed to the front wall of the projection room. To put the projector in place, prealigned with the screen, merely requires the insertion of four bolts and the proper connection of a.c. and d.c. leads. The direct current for the arc is supplied by the stand-by equipment of each theatre.

Aperture Proportions:

As the projected image from both 16-mm. and 35-mm. must correctly fill the masking utilized in the various theatres, the aperture proportions are important.

The 16-mm. aperture has a relationship of three to four in height to width comparison, while the 35-mm. sound aperture has a relationship of 3 to 4.125. This slight discrepancy in proportion produces a difference of only 1½ inches on a 15½-foot screen and is not objectionable.

A camera "crew" at work—Clifton E. Smith, an official of the circuit, is holding the floodlight for "an indoor shot," and Stanford Tidaback is the cameraman. Mr. Tidaback, a projectionist, had long made a hobby of amateur movies and now turns it into a profitable pastime as the St. Cloud circuit's cinematographer.

Film Consumption:

The 35-mm. film is of course projected at 90 feet per minute, or approximately 24 frames per second. This represents a running time of 1.11 minutes per hundred feet. The 16-mm. film is projected at 24 frames per second (which is the minimum speed at which it can be safely projected without buckle when utilized with the high-intensity arc), consuming 31 feet per minute, or running approximately 3⅛ minutes per 100 feet.

Comparing Film Stock:

The 35-mm. stock is produced from a nitrate cellulose base with a very high transmission factor, while the 16-mm. film is prepared from an acetate cellulose base which is not as transmissive and requires more illumination to obtain equal screen intensity. This is more than offset, however, in the many advantages the 16-mm. film offers with its slow-burning characteristics. There is no need for magazines, film cabinets, storage vaults, fireproof editing rooms and other costly fire prevention equipment with its use, making possible the use of the films produced by the theatre at club meetings, etc., or on occasions where goodwill might be enhanced.

The 16-mm. film requires no separate negative, but is reversible, the same film upon which the image is photographed in the camera becoming the positive print in processing. This, of course, is an important economy feature. Duplicates can be made from these positive in color and in black and white.

Making the Public Aware of Hidden Aids to Better Shows

How the Liberty in Toledo exploited its new lamps

ALTHOUGH SHOWMEN of the motion picture theatre business today are conscious of the value of institutional advertising—the exploitation of theatre interests beyond that of the show itself—it remains something of an event when these contributory interests are exploited with anything like the ingenuity given promotion of the program. Such an event was the stunt staged by Robert Collins and Frank Tafelski of the Liberty theatre in Toledo recently, to exploit the modernization of their theatre.

Exploitation-minded as they are, Robert Collins (left) and Frank Tafelski, managers of the Liberty theatre in Toledo, posed this way in responding to a request for a picture of the fellows who buried "Ole Man Low."

Much of the interior of the house was improved, while the front was given a general overhauling, including a new marquee. These renovations were essentially obvious to patrons. But the improvements also included equipment replacement, and this of course was hidden from public view.

Among the items of new equipment were new projection lamps. The public is not expected to know anything about the technics of motion picture production and reproduction, but it can appreciate what technicians are doing to increase its pleasure, to give them a better show for its money. And that is what Messrs. Collins and Tafelski gave them a chance to do.

They had installed high-intensity projection lamps—Simplex intermediate type reflector arcs, using the so-called "one kilowatt carbon"—to replace low-intensity lamps. The significance of this change they decided to exploit, dramatizing it so that it would be impressive, interpreting it so that their patrons could understand. Their patrons could not—at least, would not attempt to—understand the difference between high- and low-intensity. But they could understand this:

"Yes, we have replaced the old low-intensity lights with the latest high-intensity projection arc lamps so that our patrons can enjoy clearer and brighter pictures."

In other words, the management of the Liberty theatre had spent money in order to give its customers better shows. Then, when they watched the picture on the screen, this effort to please them was confirmed. Such exploitation of the hidden efforts of theatre management to provide high-quality entertainment, plants an idea that is referred to when it is a question of which theatre to go to—it's good propaganda—and it builds good-will.

To dramatize the replacement of the old lamps with the new high-intensity arcs, one of the old low-intensity lamps was placed in a casket, and this, with all the floral "offerings" of a sure-enough funeral, was exhibited in front of the theatre as shown in the accompanying photograph. The National Theatre Supply Company, distributors of the Simplex intermediate lamp, assisted in preparation of the exhibit.

quires a higher level of illumination for proper projection due to the greater density. We were surprised, however, to find by changeover comparison that with the 10 foot-candles of light, the color appeared more vivid, and sharper, and produced a higher contrast, due to the color separation, than the black-and-white film.

¶ SOUND

The sound utilized is in the form of commentation and background music. After comparing many types of recording and reproducing equipment, the RCA Model M. I. 12700 Deluxe Instantaneous Recorder was selected for its high fidelity and convenience, and the installation was engineered by Mr. Alex Knight of RCA, in a recording room designed and equipped for this purpose.

A double turntable unit furnishes background music, which is mixed with the voice of the commentator. A 16-mm. projector (mazda light source) is placed outside of the recording room in such a manner that the picture is projected into the room through sound-proof ports and the speed is controlled, as in the case of the high-intensity projector, by the use of 220-

SURFACE TREATED LENSES

25% More Illumination WITH A B&L SUPER CINEPHOR f:2

NOW, with the Bausch & Lomb Super Cinephor f:2, light previously lost by lens surface reflections (4 to 6% at each air to glass surface) is converted into additional screen illumination. A new process of treating lens surfaces which reduces surface reflections to a minimum is responsible for the performance of this f:2 lens which now has the efficiency which heretofore would have been possible with an f:1.79 lens.

Greater contrast and crispness and more clearly defined shadow detail are evident. Color films are projected with greater purity and brilliance. For complete details, write to Bausch & Lomb Optical Company, 679 St. Paul Street, Rochester, N. Y.

¶ SUBJECTS

Methods of using this equipment to advantage in the average small theatre are so many and so varied that no attempt has been made here to cover any but the technical aspects of its use. Undoubtedly the knowledge of the availability of such equipment and the results that may be obtained will open a new fields of box office possibilities when the exhibitor applies his ingenuity and discovers the application best suited for his local situation.

The particular application made by the St. Cloud circuit is in the form of a serialized short subject, each issue of which encompasses some notable local event. These events range from local football games to parades sponsored by civic organizations and the regularity of release for this series is based on the occurrence of such local activities. By not forcing ourselves to adhere to a definite schedule of production, the creation of commonplace or mediocre presentations is avoided and selection of events is limited to those that are most likely to be "box office."

The main title used for all of our productions is "Meet Your Neighbors" and the last words of the commentator are always, "Watch for the next date on which to meet your neighbors on our screen."

[Mr. Shultz figured intimately in the working out of the technical details of the St. Cloud circuit's local "newsreel," and still participates in its production. He is an official of Heyer-Shultz, Inc., of Montclair, N. J., manufacturers of metal arc lamp reflectors, whose technical department acted as consultant in the venture.]

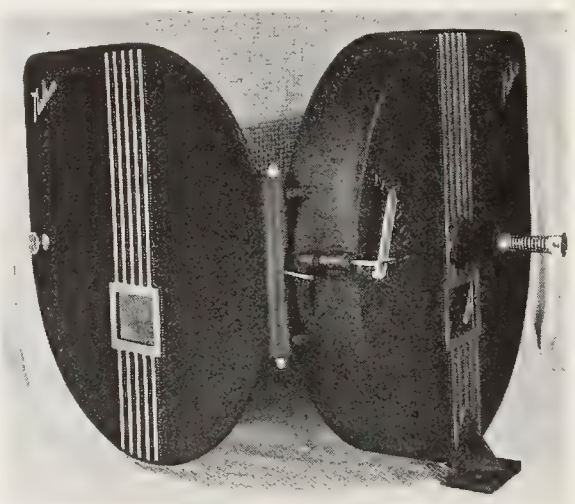
F. H. Richardson's COMMENT

Some Slick Devices To Aid in Projection



A WELCOME visitor who flew in from Texas recently was Clarence Nelson, chief projectionist of Interstate's new Alabama theatre in Houston. Brother Nelson is among the top men of his profession, which fact was proved convincingly when he was induced to open his chest of knowledge and allow me to examine some of its contents. Indeed, I was so well pleased with what I saw that I asked him to describe some of his methods. That he has done, with photographic proof.

Brother Nelson has built a metal truck upon which to wheel the film across the room as it arrives and departs. This saves several trips and much lifting. The shipping cases are left upon this truck, which is pushed into its place under the work bench, the back of the truck forming the outside of a neat cabinet, which becomes a part of the work bench itself.

On the wall above the work bench are placed the tools used in the projection

Clarence Nelson demonstrates the use of his "film truck", which forms part of his work bench in the projection room of the Alabama theatre in Houston, Tex.

Upper magazine equipped with film indicator. A simple trip bar moves a pointer as the amount of film is reduced during projection. Removal of the reel throws the indicator back to "full" position.

room. Each tool has a place upon an especially constructed work board and each is kept in its exact place so that it can be picked up in a hurry.

"By having tools where we can find them," remarked Mr. Nelson, "near the work to be done, many steps are saved, and the room never looks 'messy.'"

All port holes are especially designed and are constructed out of aluminum, with all the controlling switches—curtain switch, house lights, footlights and border switches —built in immediately underneath. At the side of each port in the aluminum frame is a clock, both convenient and attractively designed.

Brother Nelson also has installed upper magazines of his design which are equipped with an indicator to show how much film remains in the magazine at any time, thereby showing at a glance the approach of changeover. Additionally, the changeover switch is associated with an electric light bulb at each lamp, automatically turning on one of the lights, and turning off the other, to show at a glance the projector next to go into operation. Brother Nelson's upper magazines also have means for attaching the trip-cord of the fire shutter.

All of these gadgets represent considerable inventive talent, while the workmanship which they display certainly speaks for mechanical skill. Mr. Nelson, it should be explained, has his own workshop, which includes a small foundry. I am sure all of my readers will be deeply interested in these devices, and I thank Brother Nelson for the opportunity, not only to describe them, but to show them in pictures.

Observation port with its conveniently located clock and controls. Also note beneath the clock a crank for changing the angle of the port glass, which is in a frame on pivots, in order to eliminate light reflections obscuring vision.

Suggesting Possible Film Damage Causes

FRANK R. MC LEAN, projectionist of Coulterville, Ill., writes, "Looking through some back issues of BETTER THEATRES, I noted the letter from W. Allyn Butterfield (page 46, July 1, 1940 issue). It seems likely the exchange is responsible for the damage, though there is one possibility of it being inflicted in projection—namely, by a reel-end alarm of the type contacting the film surface.

"As to the type of scratch reported by Raymond Dilloway (same issue), it is possible such an abrasion could be inflicted by a defective magazine roller, some types of which have a circumference measurement almost equal to that of three frames of film; also, some types of soundhead lateral guide rollers might conceivably have caused it."

"Let us have more of BETTER THEATRES space devoted to modern projection practice and to your Comments, both of which have high value to theatre people."

I offer sincere thanks for Mr. McLean's remarks concerning film damage. Those who present their puzzles for solution and those who offer help, as McLean has done, are not only helping themselves, but the profession of projection as a whole.

A Tough Case of Intermittent Flicker

GUY COWAN, projectionist of the State theatre at Worthington, Ind., writes, "I have been reading your Comments in BETTER THEATRES for several years. I find them not only interesting, but of great help; also have the Bluebook, which is really 'tops' with me.

"I'm having some trouble with intermittent flicker, which you have just recently dealt with in BETTER THEATRES. No soap, though, so far as my case is concerned.

"Starting at the beginning: We have two Motiograph projectors which, while not new, have been kept in excellent repair. They have two-blade front shutters, low intensity light sources, about 23 amperes; current supply through two rectifiers. Projection distance is 72 feet, screen image 12 feet 8 inches by 8 feet. Both projectors are equipped exactly alike; screen illumination is excellent.

"Recently one projector developed a flicker that shows up badly on light scenes. By actual count, it happens 25 times a minute, though clear as a bell between flickers. Have tried five different shutters, including a three-blade and the one from the other projector. Exchanged complete shutter movements; also gear trains. Used other rectifier. Tested speed, which is exactly 90 per minute.

"Any suggestion you might be able to make would be highly appreciated. There are many things other than my trouble I would like to tell you, but guess I'd better save them. However, I will suggest, that it does not require a million dollar theatre and a hundred-dollar-a-week projectionist to present a decent screen image and sound. Looking at it up one side and down the other, I firmly believe we chaps in towns having a population around 2,000 try just as hard as do the 'big boys' to present our audiences the best possible, and if we have decent co-operation from the managers, as I myself have, thank you, we do a pretty good job."

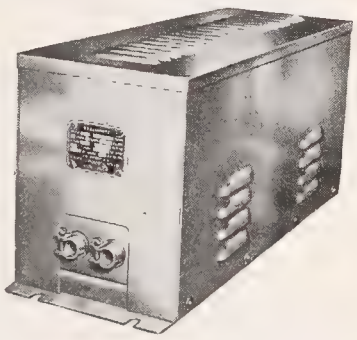
Yes, and there is more than appears on the surface, too.

As to the causes of this case of intermittent flicker, we must admit that we cannot offer any plausible cures from this distance. The previous cases of intermittent flicker dealt with in these columns exhausted the list of probable causes—if none of those worked for Brother Cowan, he's in for some strenuous searching.

One possibility now occurs to me. Can it be that the set screw which holds the hub to the shaft is not set up tight and occasionally slips, each time in an opposite direction? That's pretty remote, however. A lot of you fellows have already cudgeled your brains over intermittent flicker—but, do you want to try again? Naturally, when they come this tough, long-distance trouble-shooting is pretty futile. Still, maybe some of you have a suggestion.

A Cue Marker That Does Not Damage Film

I WAS recently shown a little gadget, called a "Signo-Marker," which impresses a small, round, transparent mark on the edge of four consecutive frames of film, thus making an easily seen changeover mark which, if reasonable care is used, should not represent damage to the film.



The device consists of a cast aluminum template which may be held in the hand or screwed onto the re-wind table, and a steel scriber. The film is placed in a groove with one sprocket hole over a tiny pin, which holds it in place. One edge of the film slides under the marker holes (of which there are four, one for each frame of film). The scriber is then taken from the center hole (which is merely to keep the scriber in when not in use) and placed in each of the four holes consecutively and turned with a very light pressure, and that is all there is to it. A small white circle alongside each of the frames is the result.

The standard position to make changeover marks is, of course, 12 feet from the end for motor start, and 1 foot for the changeover, and by using this simple little gadget it is easy to maintain these distances.

The device is, I imagine, inexpensive. Any of you who are interested may drop me a post card, in care of BETTER THEATRES, Rockefeller Center, New York, and I will see if one can be sent to you, or at any rate get you information concerning the price.

Bob O'Donnell of Texas says...

OBSOLESCENCE, in theatre equipment, has become a DANGER and a DETRIMENT to the Motion Picture Industry"

A Tip On Equipment

We were discussing the equipment situation with Bob O'Donnell of Texas Interstate on his recent trip to New York and what importance he attached to this phase of theatre operation. He had a few well chosen words to say on the subject and we thought them important enough to pass along.

Said O'Donnell: "The Theatre's equipment is beyond argument an exhibitor's most important stock in trade and as such should be kept in perfect condition at all times. OBSOLESCENCE, in theatre equipment, HAS BECOME A DANGER AND A DETRIMENT TO THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY and the sooner theatremen awaken to this realization the sooner will many of their troubles be solved, while the ancient tradition 'the show must go on,' will be more than a pretty phrase. But to our incessant plugging about keeping your theatre's equipment in dependable condition, may now be added an extra thought and a doggoned important one at that. We shouldn't have to remind you that the national defense program is causing a real upheaval in the manufacturing of precision machinery, etc. As a direct result there is every possibility that not only will prices have to rise but dangerous delays may be necessary to meet the normal demands of theatres for many types of equipment.

HOMETOWN JOB

WRITING of the problems of the motion picture in a competitive amusement world, Mr. P. J. Wood of Columbus, articulate as usual in the expression of a considerable sector of exhibitor opinion, will be found to be urging not only that something be done in a big way in behalf of the screen's business status, but also suggesting that it be a big contest, with maybe a $500,000 prize.

Maybe Mr. Wood can recall a certain experiment in that direction only a little while back, known to history as the "Movie Quiz", and to be celebrated in the annals as one of the more extravagant debacles, the screen's bunk night supreme.

Meanwhile, it would be entirely appropriate for Mr. Wood and his organization to make plans and arrange promotion of the screen's competitive status in those regions where they are custodians of it.

It is far from certain that national pre-selling of any product is necessarily a service profitable to the retailer.

If the exhibitor is to acquire the product wrapped up with pre-selling and a portion of national advertising, he must inevitably expect that he will be paying for the whole package, and the less selling there is left for him to do the less he can expect to be paid as his share of the box-office gross. Also the less he can expect to maintain his theatre as really his own and a local institution.

JUST incidentally, it may be observed that this week's news from Paramount Pictures Corporation indicates that there may be a passing of the institution of a national release date, now that selling is to be done in blocks by territories. That can, in turn, have a considerable influence on more recent endeavours to sell the bigger pictures to the whole United States at one shot with a location premiere and a national magazine barrage. One effect can be to give the exhibitor more importance and opportunity, more latitude of timing and action.

Letting promotions and selling aids be what they may, there is nothing can do the exhibitor more good than pictures. With competent pictures, competent showmen can prosper.

TIN PAN ALLEY WINS

CONFLICTING reactions and a grin of whimsy are had from the announcement of the election of Stephen Foster, composer of "Old Black Joe," "Swanee River" and other songs of sentiment, to a niche in the Hall of Fame by Dr. Harry Woodburn Chase, chancellor of New York University. Mr. Foster, in this unprecedented instance, is the only nominee out of a considerable array, to be elected to the honor of a bust and placque. Among those who failed of election were Edward A. MacDowell, the composer; Noah Webster, Louisa May Olcott—author of that box office hit entitled "Little Women." So it seems that those distinguished persons of words and sounds, even with the toplofty electors of the Hall of Fame, must give way to mass acceptance and the "Tin Pan Alley" to which Mr. Foster pertained. He was quite as irrelevant and casual as that more contemporary song writer who put Alabama on the Mississippi river. He never heard of the Suwanee river until his brother substituted it for the Peedee in the song script. He died a Bowery derelict. Then emotional acceptance and tradition made him great, in that "escapist" audience the critics prate about. Fame, a proletarian jade, is generous at times.

MR. MARTIN BECK

THE passing of Mr. Martin Beck takes from the scene one of the most famed of names of the show world through all the years of the evolution of the motion picture screen, which had its beginning in the vaudeville which was his real career. It was Mr. Beck who impressed the name "Orpheum" so successfully on the amusement map of the United States. His contacts with the motion picture were incidental, but frequent. Perhaps least known among them was his sponsorship of Martin and Osa Johnson, way back yonder, when first they appeared in a South Seas turn on "Orpheum time," and subsequently when Mr. Johnson founded and edited the film, "Orpheum Travel Weekly," the activity which ordained for him his subsequent career of adventure cinematography. Mr. Beck was a maker of tradition in his show world.

BUSINESS WEEK has had some statistical excitement with a graph showing how a war contract spreads spending over the United States, perhaps benefiting many a region with more dollars than the point of primary expenditure. It is illustrated with a drawing showing how many states, supplying materials and parts, will be sending output to Seattle on that seventy million dollar contract for Boeing "Flying Fortresses". There are more parts and materials in a motion picture than an airplane. Hollywood's dollar goes everywhere, too.

THE movies, as you have observed, have been considerably invaded by Mr. Borden's "Elsie—the Cow," who, or which, has been to Hollywood, with young, etc. Now she erupts in the millinery business as the inspiration for a John-Fredericks Fifth avenue "off-the-face" bonnet, of "mint green and rough straw."

FROM GERMANY

SO long ago as October 1, the press department of Tobis Cinema in Berlin started a communication on its way to this desk. Among the tidings of interest one discovers that the German films are quite as internationally conscious and purposeful as one might anticipate; announcing, for instance, "Brazilian Rhapsodie", a Tobis-Degeto "cultural film" built from expeditionary material from the hinterlands of Brazil, and "Irish Tragedy", the second of that locale for the season, following one entitled "Fox of Glenarvon". Also, among the tidings there is a bit of not very conscious humor in the report that the International Film-Art Exposition at Venice, which has always been full of political intriguenometry, "has boiled down to a German-Italian art week". Boiled is the word.

ADVERTISING

IN Printers' Ink, where advertising men often speak their minds, appears a letter from Arthur Michel, promotion manager in Boston for a machinery company, who complains of the nature of many a lobby display. He sets down: "I waited anxiously for Pare Lorentz's 'Fight for Life'. Not even a strong-arm squad could have kept me from seeing it. But on the outside of the theatre were lurid splashes of red, reading in yellow letters: 'Not for Children under 18' and 'Prepare to be Shocked', as if it were some bootleg film offered at a burlesque house. . . . The low quality of movie advertising has cut my visits. . . . I do not go more often because I'd be ashamed that others in the theatre might believe, even unconsciously, that I'd been pulled in by the mawkish advertisement."

LOOKING over the content of the current season's offerings of the legitimate stage of Broadway, Mr. Sidney Whipple of the New York World-Telegram finds a total of six musical shows, eight light comedies, and two serious plays and that so far not a single play of "social significance" has appeared. That makes Mr. Simeon Strunsky, who does "Topics of the Times" in the New York Times, decide that this is "an escapist season". After a column of profound consideration he decides that the theatre is really always escapist, sometimes even an escape from success and serenity. That's what we've been a-saying.

Disney Eyes "Alice"

WHILE motion picture and music critics and others were still writing favorable, and unfavorable, comments about "Fantasia," new Walt Disney production, which features music as conducted by Leopold Stokowski and reproduced by RCA Fantasound, Mr. Disney said that he intended to make a version of "Alice in Wonderland" and that he had asked Deems Taylor, the narrator in "Fantasia," to compose music for the picture.

Although some of the New York music critics, called "tin gods" by Mr. Disney, did not like "Fantasia," it was reported that the film was setting a two-a-day record at the Broadway theatre where the film is having its first roadshow engagement.

Gross for the first 14 performances was estimated at $33,000.

Petrillo Prevails

THIS WEEK labor in the entertainment industry appeared nearing another of its bigger tangles—all resulting from the refusal, by New York Supreme Court Justice Aron Steuer, on Tuesday, to temporarily restrain James Caesar Petrillo, "czar" of the American Federation of Musicians, from interfering with the employment of instrumentalist members of the American Guild of Musical Artists.

The ruling, though it does not prevent the guild from proceeding with a suit for permanent injunction, does allow Mr. Petrillo to carry out his threat, voiced shortly before Labor Day, to bar instrumentalists of the guild—such as Jascha Heifetz, Efrem Zimbalist, et al—from employment on radio, recordings, screen, stage, and concert platforms unless they join his federation. On Wednesday both parties signed a stipulation, with the Judge's consent, maintaining the status quo until November 29th.

That promises to be a situation indeed.

Justice Steuer remarked on Tuesday that Mr. Petrillo has "arbitrary" powers, and that the danger of "extortion" may exist. More labor news on page 29.

U.A. Shifts

LYNN FARNOL has resigned as director of advertising and publicity for United Artists, effective January 1, and is to be succeeded in that post by Monroe Greenthal.

Official announcements were made at midweek.

Mr. Greenthal has been with United Artists for twelve years, for the last several in charge of exploitation in the field and exhibitor service.

Mr. Farnol, says announcement from Murray Silverstone, in charge of world wide operations, is now to be enabled to "develop a new type of personalized exploitation and publicity without the burden of a large department and organization."

Draftees' Pay

PAYMENTS to employees on active duty with the armed forces for the purpose of making up part of the difference between their former salary and the sum paid by the Government for military service will be exempt from old-age pension and unemployment-relief taxes and may be deducted from the gross income of the employer under a ruling made this week in Washington by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

The commissioner held that "payments made by an employer to his former employees called for active service with the armed forces of the United States, or who voluntarily enlisted for service, which payments are designed to supplement amounts received by them from the Federal Government, do not constitute 'wages' for Federal employment tax purposes."

It was emphasized, however, that such payments constitute income to the employees and must be accounted for if he is subject to the income tax.

Critics to Cast

PARAMOUNT'S publicity campaign on the picture version of "For Whom the Bell Tolls," Ernest Hemingway's current best seller, began this week with the announcement that a hundred and fifty literary critics of the newspapers and magazines of the United States would be consulted by poll concerning the casting of the production.

Y. Frank Freeman, vice president in charge of production, said that the poll would be tabulated before any players were signed. Mr. Freeman says he considers the opinion of the critics a good index of public taste.

That assumes that literary critics know about screen personalities.

N. Y. Sunday Stage

SABBATH shows will be inaugurated, Sunday, November 24, in New York, when 12 legitimate plays will give performances, as part of an experiment which Actors' Equity Association is making to stimulate interest in the legitimate theatre. Fear that the Sunday shows would hurt the movie business, especially the first-run houses in the Times Square area, was expressed, this week, by managers.

In an editorial in Equity Magazine, Equity Association urges legitimate managers to scale prices for the Sunday shows so that they can compete with the first-run screen theatres.

Pointing out that most of the Sabbath patrons will necessarily have to come from the ranks of moviegoers, Equity's editorial stated in part:

"But, if Sunday shows prove to be just another day and do not make new friends for the theatre, or provide any material increase in the weekly grosses, then, certainly, Equity will have to consider the feelings of a number of its people who do not like Sunday shows, on any conditions, and who do not really wish to play on that night, but who have agreed to give this experiment an opportunity to work itself out, because they have been told it would benefit their profession."

Golden Out, Broidy In

NO longer with Monogram is Edward A. ("Eddie") Golden, sales executive especially known to independent exhibitors. His resignation as general sales manager was accepted by the company's board of directors on Tuesday, in Hollywood.

Successor to Mr. Golden is Samuel Broidy, Boston franchise holder. Mr. Broidy has been with the company since 1937. Before that, he was city salesman for Republic, and prior to that was interested in operation of several theatres in the city, with others. He has been active in the Friars' Club, of that city.

Mr. Golden's resignation ends an association with Monogram, of several years, during which he had been sales manager, then sales manager in charge of exchange operations, then again general sales manager.

It also introduces a small lull in Mr. Golden's film activities. He said on Tuesday he would "announce plans" later in the week. Mr. Golden has been in the film industry since about 1914, in varied posts. He held the World Film franchise for Canada; was New England distributor for "Hearts of the World"; distributed Metro and Universal pictures while president of the American Feature Film company; and was general sales manager of Republic, and of Chesterfield and Invincible.

"Jimmy" not a-drift

THIS week the Mills Novelty Company of 4100 Fullerton avenue, Chicago, issued a publicity statement, dated November 6, saying:

"CAPT. ROOSEVELT STILL A SOUNDIES MAN —Captain Jimmy Roosevelt gave up his salaried position as president of Soundies Distributing Corporation last week. He resigned from the paying job because he is in the U. S. Marines. Gordon Mills, vice-president of Soundies, is pinch-hitting in his place as head of Soundies. Jimmy, however, in no way cut himself adrift from the new robot reels.

"'I am still a stockholder and director in Soundies,' stated Jimmy today, 'and my company, Globe Productions, Inc., of which I am president, is hard at work right now making five new reels, forty new Soundies, for the Mills Panoram Movie Machine. We'll make several hundred more before another year passes.' It was further explained that the Soundies company, whose presidency Roosevelt resigned, is strictly a distributing and film rental organization.—Released by Mills Novelty Co."

Again "The Wind"

NOW COMES the new institution of the "anniversary premiere," in the case of "Gone With the Wind," of course, the picture so big that it takes two first nights to open it, a year apart. It is to be, again, December 12, in Atlanta, again, at Loew's Grand, again.

This is because, one gathers from M-G-M, "The Wind" is to be generally released in January at one half roadshow prices,—but "intact as it was shown to the carriage trade."

The Atlanta city council has passed a resolution of laudation, recollection of the "first premiere" and calling for a repeat performance from all cooperating persons and agencies.

M. Sarah Bernhardt was famous for her farewells, of which there were many. The cinema, by grace of "The Wind," repeats and continues its first nights, quite the opposite.

16 mm Victory

A CLIP of 16mm. film settled the disputed fifth down in the Cornell-Dartmouth football game, last Saturday, while, incidentally, the major newsreel companies were caught without footage on the game which had become a national issue.

Parenthetically, newsreel companies secured enough of the 16mm. film from the Dartmouth coaching staff for a blowup, which was hurriedly included in Tuesday's releases. The same day, the films were billed on the marquee of the Embassy Newsreel Theatre in Radio City and attracted widespread interest.

None of the major newsreel companies considered the game of sufficient prospective importance to assign a camera crew.

As a result of the extra down, granted, by mistake, and through which Cornell later scored a touchdown, pictures of the game became a collector's item.

The pictures proved the fifth down so the game has been awarded to Dartmouth.

Adrienne Morrison Dead

ADRIENNE MORRISON, 62, mother of Constance, Joan and Barbara Bennett and the former wife of Richard Bennett, died suddenly Wednesday in her apartment in New York City. She was the daughter of Lewis Morrison, actor famed for his portrayal of "Mephistofeles" in Faust. Her mother was the actress Rose Wood. Miss Morrison appeared in "The Squaw Man" and other plays. In recent years she has been a member of a theatrical agency firm.

PARAMOUNT TO SELL "BLOCKS" ONLY IN ORDER—NO "BUYERS' FIELD DAY"

Balaban Says 1940-41 Product Will Be Released Only as Preceding Pictures Are Bought, Booked by District

Paramount pictures during the 1941-42 season, the first under the consent decree, will be made available in each district only after preceding blocks-of-five have been bought and booked, according to present decision. Selling will be by territories and, according to plans, the present policy of having a national release date for each film will be discontinued.

Although distribution practices under the consent decree have been discussed by many of the companies, Paramount is the first to give an indication of its plans for next year. Last week at the Paramount West Coast conferences, participated in by home office and studio executives and theatre partners, the effect of the consent decree was considered from many viewpoints.

The Hollywood conference was conducted under conditions of unusual secrecy, and with a deal of speculation among Paramount's contemporaries there, and in the local press.

Seen Plan of Precedent

With all other major production-distribution interests yet to be heard from the Paramount plan of procedure is taken by observers to signify a purposeful plan of precedent.

Several pictures for the Paramount 1941-42 program are already in work and a considerable number will be finished by the time the blocks-of-five and trade show clauses of the consent decree go into effect September 1, 1941. However, the company does not propose to offer for licensing any block-of-five in a given territory until previous groups have been bought and booked.

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount, following his return to New York from the week of company meetings in Hollywood, said on Monday, "Paramount will make every good picture for which it can obtain material. But the pictures will be made available only as fast as they are booked and bought in each territory. They will be made in advance but released as they are bought and booked."

No National Release Date

"Paramount will make every picture it can," Mr. Balaban continued. "We have the resources—money, men, material and stories. But pictures will be sold as fast as preceding pictures are bought and booked in each territory. Selling will be by territories."

Although the company will have a number of pictures ready by the beginning of the new season it has no intention of providing a "field day" for exhibitors by putting a large number of pictures up for leasing at any one period, he said.

Mr. Balaban also said that, although nothing definite had been decided yet, it was his opinion that there would be no such thing as a national release date of pictures on the 1941-42 schedule.

At the West Coast meeting there was discussion of the full program for 1941-42, Mr. Balaban said. Attention was given to the exhibitor partners' problems and preferences in production matters, he added. The general purpose of the conference was to bring the exhibitor and studio heads together and to bring to the studio specific information about the needs of the retailer, the exhibitor, according to Mr. Balaban.

Home office and studio officials participated in a general discussion of television as a future problem, he added.

Meeting in Spring

Another general meeting for further consideration of production, theatre operating and general business problems will be held in Hollywood or New York next Spring.

Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee, and Neil F. Agnew, vice-president and general sales manager, came East with Mr. Balaban.

In Hollywood last week John Balaban, chairman of Paramount's theatre group and head of Balaban and Katz in Chicago, said, following the West Coast conference, that a milestone had been passed on the way to closer relationships between producers and showmen. He asserted that it was the first time picture exhibitors had had a voice in actual production plans.

In an address to the assembled production, distribution and exhibition executives he observed that such cooperation should go far to overcome the obstacles put in the path of the film industry by the Government consent decree, the deteriorating foreign situation with its loss in revenue and legal problems. He said that the consent decree was the No. 1 problem and pointed out that problems arising from the decree constituted a major topic of discussion at the sessions.

Mr. Balaban said that both the studio officials and the theatre men could gain much by an interchange of ideas and a consideration of each other's problems.

Several Paramount home office officials had further conferences with production heads this week in Hollywood. Most of the theatre operators, however, returned to their territories over the weekend.

In addition to the studio officials, headed by Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, and William Le Baron, the Hollywood meetings were attended by the following: from the home office—Barney Balaban, president; Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee; Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board; Russell Holman, production head in New York; Paul Raibourn; Leon Netter, Sam Dembow, Leonard Goldenson, Robert Weitman, Claude Lee; theatre partners—John Balaban, M. A. Lichtman, Robert O'Donnell, Ralph Branton, J. J. Fitzgibbons, E. J. Hudson, Sam Pinanski, M. J. Mullins, J. J. Friedl, Tracy Barham, Harry David, Harry Neece and J. P. Rubens.

ALLIED WANTS MANY BLOCKS READY SEPT. 1ST

Abram F. Myers, chairman and general counsel of Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, this week requested the majors to have a number of blocks-of-five pictures ready at the beginning of the new selling season, if the consent decree is signed.

"If," Mr. Myers said, "despite the powerful protests lodged against it, Judge Goddard sees fit to sign the decree, we hope that the distributors will bend every effort to ease the strain of the new selling system as much as possible. One way in which they can do this is to make available as many trade shown pictures as possible at the beginning of the next selling season. An announcement by each of the five consenting distributors that it will have three to five groups of five ready to offer the exhibitors on September 1st will clear the atmosphere."

UA Stockholders Reelect Officers

A three and one-half hour meeting in Hollywood, on Tuesday afternoon, of United Artists' stockholders, and their representatives resulted in the beginning of talks on oft-proposed deals—the transfer of the stock interests of the late Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and of Samuel Goldwyn, to Maurice Silverstone and Walter Wanger—and in the reelection of all officers of the company, except L. Jack Schlaifer, vice-president. The annual conference was carried over to Saturday.

Not partners, but the company's chief executive and a producer, respectively, Mr. Silverstone and Mr. Wanger are understood to be asking for the partnership-shares of Mr. Fairbanks and Mr. Goldwyn, in that order. It was indicated that price has been the obstacle, thus far.

The California estate appraisal department recently reckoned the Fairbanks stock at $500,000, a figure since termed too high by UA, which was reported offering half that amount to Mr. Goldwyn for the same number of shares. Mr. Goldwyn is understood asking $350,000.

Officers reelected were Mr. Silverstone, chief executive; Harry Gold, Arthur Kelly and Harry Buckley, vice-presidents. Reelected directors are Charles Schwartz, for Charles Chaplin; Herbert Maas, for Mary Pickford; Steven Pallos, for Alexander Korda; Dennis F. O'Brien, for the Fairbanks estate; and James Mulvey, for Mr. Goldwyn.

CONSENT DECREE SIGNED AT LAST; MARINE LAWYER HEADS ARBITERS

Now Comes Organization of a Department of Justice Unit to Ride Herd on the New Trade Practise Code

The Government's consent decree, ending the anti-trust suit against the five theatre-owning motion picture corporations became the law of the land, as far as the signing companies are concerned, Wednesday afternoon at 2:45 P.M. when Judge Henry W. Goddard signed the document which had been vigorously and finally attacked on Thursday of the preceding week by representatives of most of the exhibitors in the country.

The Decree becomes effective immediately except for the trade showing and block-of-five provisions which do not become operative until September 1, 1941.

Appoints Admiralty Lawyer

After signing the consent decree in his chambers in the Federal Court House, Foley Square, New York City, Judge Goddard announced that he had appointed Van Vechten Veeder, 73 years old, a former judge, an expert in marine law, to the position of chairman of the arbitration appeal board set up by the consent decree. Judge Veeder will be head of the appeal board for three years at an annual salary of $20,000, effective immediately, unless his term of office is terminated by the court. It was reported that the other two members of the appeal board would be appointed in January.

The day before signing the decree Judge Goddard had a long conference with representatives of the Department of Justice and the defendants on certain points in the arbitration rules. Present at the meeting were Robert Sher, assistant attorney general; former Judge Thomas D. Thacher, counsel for Paramount; former Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, attorney for Warner Brothers and J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the American Arbitration Association.

Mr. Braden was scheduled to leave Saturday on a six week tour to key cities to set up local arbitration boards.

Also at mid-week Robert L. Wright, assistant U. S. attorney general, was mentioned to head the new motion picture unit of the Department of Justice which is to supervise the workings of the decree.

Exhibitors Protest Signing

Exhibitor representatives this week were discussing their protests against the consent decree made on Thursday of last week before Judge Henry W. Goddard in the Federal Court, New York City, and were planning what future steps might be taken, now that the Judge has signed the decree which has been approved by the five theatre-owning major motion picture companies and by the Department of Justice.

Approval of the consent decree by Judge Goddard might result in a number of anti-trust suits being filed in various Federal Courts against the majors, it was reported. Some exhibitor groups were considering the advisability of filing a suit with the same bill of complaint used by the Government two years ago in the original action. Other possible legal steps, such as an appeal to some other court against entry of the consent decree, were also said to be under discussion.

The American Arbitration Association meanwhile was arranging for the 31 local arbitration boards in key cities throughout the country. A panel of not less than 10 impartial arbitrators must be selected by the arbitration committee of the association as well as clerks for local boards and other personnel. Also the association will have to lease and furnish offices for the boards outside New York and enlarge its own main headquarters in New York City to handle the cases which are expected to be brought under the consent decree.

"Vital Principles Involved"

Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, said before returning to his home in Columbus, Miss., last Saturday, "If the decision is against exhibitors we will not give up the fight. Vital trade principles are involved and we will fight for them to the last."

Commenting on the exhibitors' "day in court" Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Association, said "At the hearing before Judge Goddard on the proposed consent decree the exhibitors presented a solid front for the first time in many years. Maybe all did not concur in some of the things that were said, but all were united in their opposition to the selling plan embodied in the decree." He also remarked, "Judge Goddard heard the exhibitors fully if not sympathetically. As a result, he cannot entertain any illusion that the decree submitted to him is acceptable to the exhibitors or will cure all the ills of the industry."

The New York Independent Theatre Owners Association will consider taking further action, according to Milton Weisman, attorney for the organization.

During the hearings Paul Ziegler, counsel for the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, said that his group might bring an independent anti-trust suit, based on the Government's original bill of complaint against the majors.

Judge Goddard listened while spokesman for the two national exhibitor groups, 12 regional organizations, Local 802, American Federation of Musicians and the Paramount theatre partners attacked the consent decree. Two representatives of the Department of Justice, James V. Hayes and Robert Sher, assistant U. S. attorney generals, explained and defended the compromise settlement of the Government's key anti-trust suit against the major motion picture companies.

The hearing opened shortly after 10:30 A. M., November 14th and, after more or less routine business of formally submitting the decree to the Judge, presenting an amended complaint, and receiving answers to the proposed amended compaint, the actual consideration of the decree began with a long and detailed explanation by Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Hayes asked for the immediate signing of the decree. He traced the history of the negotiations, which began shortly after the trial opened in June. The settlement was in conference five months and two days, he remarked. After about a month or a month and a half the three non-theatre owning defendants dropped out of the discussions.

"An Honest Endeavor"

The purpose of the decree, according to Mr Hayes, "is an endeavor to meet the alleged evils and abuses in the motion picture industry without the very drastic remedy of divorcement." He pointed out that divorcement of some 2,400 theatres would take a long time and would certainly not be pleasing to the defendants. He said that the Government was willing to try another solution for a three year test period.

The Court was informed that the problems of the motion picture industry were not identical with those of any other industry and Mr. Hayes admitted that "this decree is not perfect" but he asserted that it was "an honest endeavor" and "should work" and "would relieve a great many, if not all, of the alleged abuses."

Mr. Hayes then analyzed important sections of the decree. The ideal situation which the Govornment recognizes cannot be attained would be if each theatre were owned singly and pictures were sold one by one, he said. Such being impossible, it was determined to have pictures sold in "the smallest number possible without outrageous selling costs."

The effect of the blocks-of-five clause should be good for both the distributor and for the exhibitor, Mr. Hayes said. "The exhibitor will always be in the market and the distributor will always be trying to sell." The section also is expected to "open up screen time" and "stimulate competition."

Another purpose of the decree is to cut down the purchasing power of the big theatre chains, according to Mr. Hayes. And the companies had agreed that there would be no program of general theatre expansion during the three year trial period, he said.

The arbitration boards and the appeal board are expected to begin operations about February 1, 1941, Mr. Hayes said. The purpose of the arbitration machinery is to settle disputes with "speed but not at the sacrifice of any substantial right." He added that all cases may be appealed. Arbitration on the part of the exhibitor is voluntary and compulsory on the part of the consenting distributors, he said.

In conclusion Mr. Hayes said, "The decree is not a panacea or the dawn of utopia" but the defendants and the Government "honestly believe that it is infinitely to be preferred to years of litigation with possible chaos at the end." It is also expected to bring a "decree of peace" to the industry through the arbitration system, the Government attorney concluded.

Attacked by Columbia Attorney

Louis D. Frohlich, on behalf of Columbia, attacked the consent decree, asserting that it would establish "a kind of NRA over this industry" and would be a serious financial burden to Columbia because a great deal of additional capital would be required.

Edward C. Raftery, speaking for Universal and United Artists, said that he would make no comments on the decree at that time but reserve, for both companies, all their rights and said that no rights were being waived.

At this point Judge Goddard requested the name and organization represented of all those who had come to oppose the decree. There followed some discussion on the amount of time each could have. The Court gave definite indication that the whole proceedings had to be finished that day.

Mr. Myers of Allied was the first exhibitor organization speaker against the decree. He asserted that it was beyond the court's power to sign such a decree because instead of preventing and restraining the alleged monopoly it tended to maintain the monopoly. The decree is "unjust and unequitable," according to Mr. Myers, and every exhibitor organization in the country has gone on record against it. He asserted further that there was a certain security under the present system and urged the Neely Bill or more cancellation privileges as a better solution than the decree.

Mr. Weisman, speaking for the ITO of New York, said the decree "perpetuated the restraints" and that the organization had $15,000 ready for expenses to prove to the country that the decree would not be fair to the exhibitor. He asked and obtained Judge Goddard's permission to file within a day or two a brief answering some of the statements made in the opening remarks by Mr. Hayes.

Joseph Brodsky, attorney for Local 802, American Federation of Musicians, protested against the decree on behalf of 21,000 members of the national body because there was no clause in the decree protecting live talent and musicians against discrimination. He asserted that through block booking and blind selling "every inch" of screen time had been taken up so that no exhibitor felt free to use musicians.

William E. Sims, attorney for the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, said he represented 7,700 theatres and attacked the decree from various angles. He asked for cancellation rights.

More Time Asked

Paul Ziegler, Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, asked for time to prepare a request for intervention. The Court indicated that no time would be given and no petition to intervene would be received. Mr. Ziegler then spoke of a new action based on the original bill of complaint.

L. B. Schwartz, Northwest Allied, said the decree did not settle subjects in the original bill of complaint and tended to extend the monopoly.

Jacob Schechter, New York Allied, made a plea for a special exhibitors' hearing to consider complaints against the decree and asked that the decree not be used as a defense against other anti-trust actions.

Sidney B. Pfeffer, MPTO of New York, asserted that the decree "tolls the bell for the independent exhibitor" and asked that the exhibitors be given five and a half days to show the faults of the decree which was worked out in five and a half months. He also predicted that within the next two selling seasons the independent exhibitor would be forced out of business.

Robert T. Barton, MPTO of Virginia, made a plea for a meeting with Government attorneys to show them in detail what would happen to the small exhibitors under the selling terms established in the decree.

Roy L. Walker, Theatre Owners Protective Association of Texas, said the decree would double the price of pictures to the small exhibitor and would cause a delay of from three to 15 months after release.

Fred Kent, counsel for Southeastern Theatre Owners Association and certain Paramount theatre partners, attacked the decree from a legal point of view, holding that the rights reserved to Congress had been usurped. He claimed the decree was not an equitable or legal agreement.

John Moroney, Interstate Circuit, Dallas, attacked the blocks-of-five clause, asserting that exhibitors would not be able to book pictures any more than five weeks in advance which would make it impossible for them to properly run their business.

L. M. Rice, attorney for Robb & Rowley circuit, Texas, said the decree was evidence of a complete failure on the part of the Government in the prosecution of its suit.

George Aarons, United Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware, and Herman Levy, MPTO of Connecticut, noted objections for the record and yielded their time to Mr. Myers.

Mr. Sher concluded for the Government and attempted to answer many of the objections brought against the decree. Answering a direct question of Judge Goddard he said, "I know of no group of independent exhibitors favoring the decree."

The Government is as much interested in having the exhibitors compete as having the distributors compete, Mr. Sher said.

The amended complaint, Mr. Sher asserted, includes all the original complaint charges.

Hearings on Amended Complaint December 15th

Judge Goddard announced that hearing on arguments against accepting the amended complaint would be heard at 2:15 P. M., December 5th. Mr. Frohlich, counsel for Columbia, had urged that the amended complaint failed to state a cause of action and was based upon selling practices which were not illegal and which had been used in the industry always.

In his arguments against the decree Mr. Frohlich said "revolutionary changes in the selling of motion pictures" were proposed. He said the new methods would substantially increase the time between production and showing motion pictures. He estimated the delay at about four months. Columbia would have to add about $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 to its present capital of $11,000,000 he said. That would be economically unsound and banks furthermore are not willing to make loans which do not increase the potential earning capacity of the company, Mr. Frohlich remarked.

Another objection mentioned by Mr. Frohlich was that salesmen would have to be sent out five or ten times a year instead of once as is customary now. The industry, he asserted, would be turned into a speculative business under the consent decree.

On legal grounds he claimed that the suit was brought to attack an alleged monopoly but the decree took up other matters. He further asserted that the court was without jurisdiction because the decree provided for constant supervision not provided for in the Sherman Act.

Changes Made in Draft of Decree

The following "last minute" changes were made in the consent decree before it was finally submitted to Judge Henry W. Goddard:

In section I this paragraph was added:

"The petitioner not having offered any proof of its allegations that defendants have violated the anti-trust laws, and defendants having denied each and every such allegation, this court has not determined or adjudicated and by this decree does not determine or adjudicate, and this is not a decree to the effect that any of said defendants has violated or is now violating any of such laws, or any other statute; and this decree relates solely to future conduct herein below specified and is not based upon any finding, determination or adjudication that any right or statute has yet been or is now being violated."

The following was substituted for the first paragraph in section XXII:

"1. The method and conditions of and the procedure for the arbitration of claims and controversies hereinbefore provided for in this decree, as well as the arbitration of claims and controversies provided for in any decree referring to this decree which may be entered by the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, in an action entitled 'United States of America, Petitioner, against Balaban & Katz Corporation, et al., Defendants,' modifying a consent decree entered in said action on April 6, 1932, and the arbitration of claims and controversies provided for in any decree referring to this decree which may be entered by the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of California, Central Division, in an action entitled 'United States of America, Plaintiff, vs. West Coast Theatres, Incorporated, et al., Defendants,' modifying a consent decree entered in said action on August 21, 1930, shall be as specified in this Section and in the Rules of Arbitration and Appeals which are provided for hereinafter."

In section 5 of section XXII (arbitration) the budget for the first year of arbitration was set at $490,000 and for each succeeding year at $450,000. The Court was given the right to increase the budget for any given year $50,000 if necessary for the efficient operation of the arbitration system.

List of Defendants Reduced

The original bill of complaint filed by the Government over two years ago listed as defendants eight corporations, 24 subsidiaries and 133 individuals. In accordance with the amended complaint, submitted November 14th, all but the following were dismissed as defendants:

"Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, Loew's, Incorporated, Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corportion, RKO Proctor Corporation, RKO Midwest Corporation, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corporation, Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, National Theatres Corporation, Columbia Pictures Corporation, Screen Gems, Inc., Columbia Pictures of Louisiana, Inc., Universal Corporation, Universal Pictures Company, Inc., Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., Big U Film Exchange, Inc., United Artists Corporation.

U.S. PROGRAM OF PUBLICITY FILMS TO BE 'EXPANDED' REA OFFICER SAYS

Further Use of Films as Part of Government's "Informational Activities" Promised at National Review Board Meet

"The use of the motion picture as an important part of the Federal Government's informational activities is not only here to stay, but during the forthcoming year, it is due for considerable expansion," Oliver T. Griswold of the Rural Electrification Administration told the 17th annual conference of the National Board of Review Friday, November 15th, at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York.

Mr. Griswold, speaking on the general topic "New Frontiers for American Movies" said that through the cooperation of large distribution units, such vast audiences have been secured for some of the documentary films produced by the Government that the per capita cost of such "features" as "The River" actually amounted to less than the cost of mimeographing a sheet of paper to be circularized to a comparable number. It costs $50,000, he explained, to reach 50,000,000 persons.

"Power and Land" Shown

The delegates on the previous night had attended a special showing of "The Power and the Land" at New York University in Dr. Frederic M. Thrasher's course on motion pictures. Directed by Joris Ivens "The Power and the Land" is a 36-minute documentary film being distributed by RKO Radio for the Rural Electrification Administration.

RKO said this week that it was backing one of the largest campaigns ever employed to promote this type of film. The United States Department of Agriculture, of which the Rural Electrification Administration is a unit, is currently conducting a vigorous publicity campaign among its thousands of employees, who in turn are in cooperative contact with large groups throughout the country.

Claude R. Wickard, who succeeded Vice-President-elect Henry A. Wallace as Secretary of Agriculture, has encouraged 20,000 employees of the department who have personal dealings with the public to work with local motion picture exhibitors in promoting the picture.

Superintendents of the 600 Rural Electrification Systems located in 45 states, with a total membership of 700,000, have been given a campaign handbook on what to do to help the local theatre manager enlarge his audience for "Power and the Land."

The Rural Electrification News, house organ of REA, going to a list of 17,000, recently carried an illustrated article designed to promote active interest and support of the film by many groups customarily working with REA.

Electrical equipment dealers and others are expected to tie-up with local theatres for newspaper advertising and window displays. REA systems will help arrange this, according to an RKO announcement.

Country agents of the nationwide agricultural extension service have been informed of the film and instructed on how to cooperate with local theatres in bringing the film to the attention of all farm organizations, as well as schools. They are also placing publicity in newspapers.

The 600 REA systems will be supplied with direct mail material to reach the 700,000 members as fast as bookings are set up. In addition, many of the REA systems have regular house organs reaching all members.

The Department of Agriculture's Radio "Farm and Home Hour" will help to promote the film.

REQUESTS NEELY BILL ACTION

Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, head of the Motion Picture Research Council, on Tuesday, in Washington, asked majority and minority members of Congress, not to adjourn without taking action on the Neely block-booking bill.

Protesting against permitting the measure to die because of adjournment, Dr. Wilbur asserted enactment of the bill would free 10,000 independent theatres from compulsory block-booking and blind selling.

"New Frontiers"

Another speaker on "New Frontiers for American Movies" at the National Board conference was Judge Stephen S. Jackson, newly appointed director of the Bureau of Prevention of Juvenile Delinquency, New York, who proposed that narrative material taken from actual records in the children's court be used as scenarios for pictures that would help to reduce delinquency by emphasizing the basic reasons for such misbehavior.

These reasons, Judge Jackson explained, are broken homes, poor health, low economic status and lack of religious training. He discounted the supposedly drastic influence of gangster films on boyish minds, saying that they did less harm than was generally believed. The ideas of crime that children do take from films, however, sometimes linger in their minds and are tried out later, his court experience has revealed, he explained.

The 500 delegates from 35 states unanimously recommended, as a result of Judge Jackson's talk, films that would stress the "social behavior and idealism of our youth" and deal "powerfully and artistically with the challenging social problems" of today.

The delegates also endorsed films pertaining to "the field of historical Americana" and offered congratulations to the motion picture industry "for the fine films presented in the last year."

Disney Is Honor Guest

The three-day meeting of the convention, November 14-16, was concluded Saturday with a luncheon at the Hotel Pennsylvania, with Walt Disney, the guest of honor.

At the luncheon the delegates endorsed the "program of inter-American cultural relations, and note with satisfaction consideration of cooperation by the motion picture industry in forwarding this significant development as well as with other vital phases of the whole national defense program."

The conference reaffirmed its "continued and downright support of a fresh screen, and an untrammeled cooperative industry, enabled to break new ground and reach new achievements."

The group decried the "ineptitude and lack of politically motivated and incompetent State boards of motion picture censorship," pointing to Pennsylvania's board, which "unwisely and without adequate public explanation suppressed the important March of Time film 'The Ramparts We Watch' for a period of some three months in arbitrary and bureaucratic fashion, characteristic of the procedure of such state boards."

Guests at the luncheon besides Mr. Disney included Lewis Milestone, producer-director; Victor Mature, Irina Baronova, Dorothy Peterson and Helen Craig.

James S. Hamilton, executive secretary of the National Board of Review, and Dr. A. A. Brill, member of the executive board of the organization,, presided at the sessions.

Cites Trust Action

At the opening session Thursday Mrs. Lewis P. Addoms of Brooklyn said that two years and vast amounts of money had been expended on the court quarrel between motion picture producers and exhibitors and the result was "one glorious mess." The original intent of the suit, she said, had been almost directly reversed.

Efforts to arbitrate the differences and to avoid a legal struggle that it is estimated may last 10 years, Mrs. Addoms said, have brought the case to the point where the present intent of the consent decree "is not going to help us, nor the producers, nor the exhibitors."

"If it gives the government a sense of satisfaction," she added, "perhaps that much may be said for it."

Mrs. Samuel A. Ellsworth of Worcester, Mass., asked the delegates what could be done about the type of mothers who bring their small children to motion picture theatres before noon on Sunday and leave them until 11 at night.

The solution, Mrs. Ellsworth was informed by two or three of the delegates, was to confer with the theatre owner, who frequently is liable under local ordinances; to resort to supervision through policemen and to establish contact with the mothers' clubs of neighboring settlements, where some improvement has been achieved by impressing upon the mothers the harmful effects on the children of such lengthy sessions.

To the question "What can be done about Bank Nights?" Mrs. Mary I Baker, of Jacksonville, Fla., reported that they had been legislated out of existence in that Commonwealth. It required, she said, long and intense effort on the part of the Motion Picture Council.

Another delegate referred to "Danger on Wheels" and "They Drive by Night" as "crude" efforts to dramatize the field of American industry. There is, the delegate said, a movement at present toward production of dramatized versions of various industries, which the Motion Picture Council should take cognizance of by demanding more finished productions.

Film Fashions Discussed

At the Friday session fashion in motion pictures was mentioned by Mark Starr of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union and was dealt with more fully by Vyvyan Donner, who expounded the ideas and processes behind the fashion subjects she directs for Twentieth Century-Fox. Ilka Chase also spoke on the same subject. She feels that the whole phase of fashion presentation in films has been inadequate and in many cases inept.

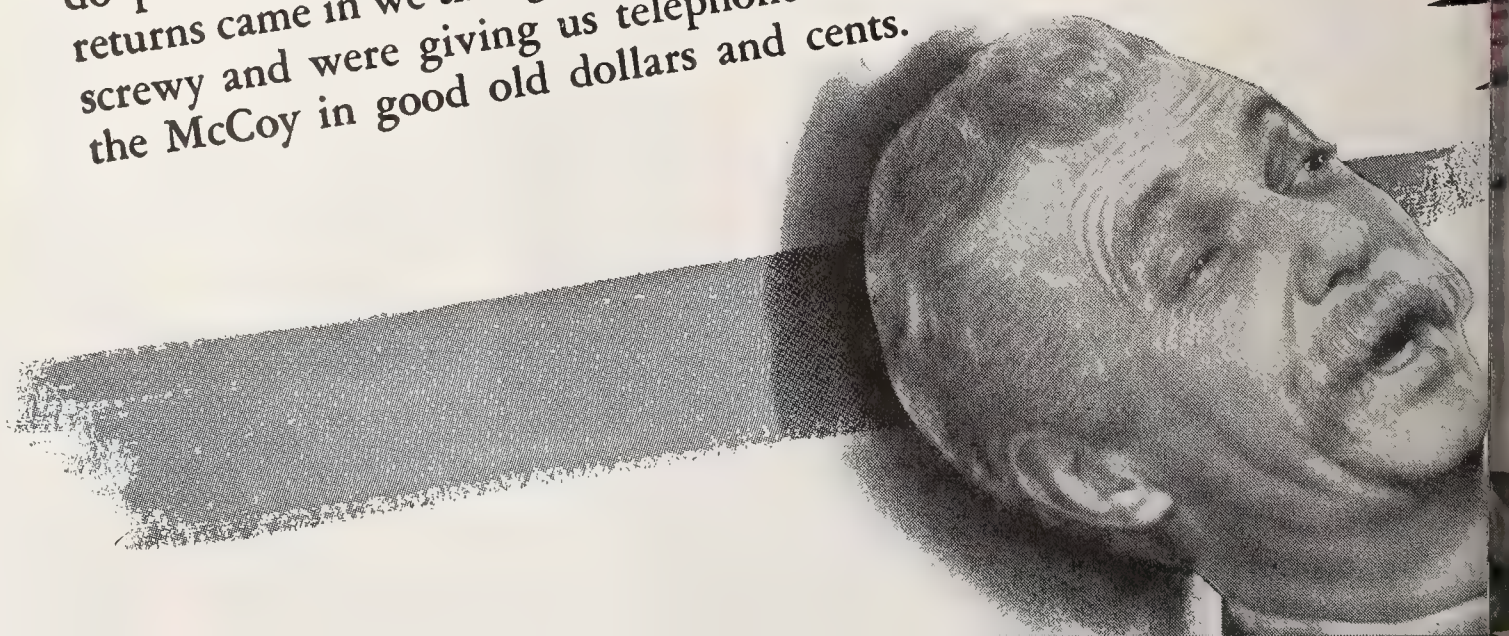
Virgil Thomson, music critic of The New York Herald Tribune and composer of the score for "The Plow that Broke the Plains" and "The River," discussed the difficulties of fitting musical themes to "naturalistic fictional narrative" or the usual feature film.

He said he believed that, like the legitimate theatre productions, all but incidental music could be discarded.

Margaret Farrand Thorp, author of "America at the Movies," told the delegates that "movie audiences are only beginning to learn what they like in motion pictures is due to the director even more than to the stars."

IT'S BRINGING OUT THE

—every once in a while a show comes along that makes hundreds of thousands of folks who seldom go to theatres dig down deep in moth-protected "pokes," safe woolen socks and under the tickin' of the mattress and bring out their dough and lay it on the line at the box-office. It's good money, too, and the folks are good, careful citizens but just don't have the movie habit. But they'll come out for what they want . . . and they're coming out in droves for this one.



It's really amazing the business it's doing

. . . we wouldn't believe it ourselves except for the fact that we're getting our share of the dough regularly, as box-office records pile up to staggering heights.

—the nice thing about it is that young folks, old folks and the in-betweeners—all the regulars—come, plus the doggondest crowds of folks that haven't been near a theatre since "LITTLE WOMEN"—which, by the way, brought out all the mattress money in every town, too.

—there hasn't been a date yet that hasn't broken some kind of a record—believe it or not, and we'll show you the books if you're from Missouri. "DREAMING OUT LOUD" is actually doing two, three, four times normal business and breaking records that are five-year high-water marks—and you know there have been some mighty big box-office babies in the past five years.

—yes, we had a hunch Lum and Abner were right hot and would do pretty smart business . . . but Gosh Almighty, when the first returns came in we thought the telegraph companies had gone plum screwy and were giving us telephone numbers . . . but no, it was the McCoy in good old dollars and cents.

Competition for Theatre Dollar Dwarfs War—Wood

Exhibitor Leader Urges "Best Entertainment" Campaign

"WHERE do we go from here" might be text of an expression this week from P. J. Wood, of Columbus, and secretary of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, embodied in a letter to Martin Quigley, publisher. Mr. Wood points up recognized problems of the motion picture as an amusement in a highly competitive amusement world, and urges that something be done about it—for instance, he says, a contest. Meanwhile he cites figures that tend to indicate that the screen has a stable business. His letter follows:

"Last week, at the annual meeting of the Association of American Railroads, E. E. Norris, President of the Southern Railways, made the following statement:

> The railroads no longer hold a monopoly in the transportation field. We have competition now everywhere. Our competitors are young and vigorous. Their personnel has no inhibitions; no heritage and monopoly attitudes.

"Through the simple substitution of the words 'motion picture business' for the word 'railroads' and 'amusement' for 'transporation,' Mr. Norris could have well been speaking for our business, for we are not only beset with all forms of competition but are not doing anything, as an industry, to retain our share of what is known as the 'amusement-dollar.'

"At page 18 of the November 16th Saturday Evening Post, there is a story outlining how the Southern Pacific Railway, suddenly realizing that there was competition, discarded old, worn out methods, adopted new ones and increased their freight handling twenty-fold.

Sees War in Industry

"Not many weeks ago a certain high-priced executive of one of the film distributing companies, in a letter written to an underpaid business manager of an exhibitor organization, inquired if the latter had heard that there was a war in England, a terrible bombing of London, and the blowing up of motion picture theatres in that city.

"I am wondering if the leaders of this industry realize that there is a hell of a war in the motion picture industry that might destroy it in a quicker fashion than the German bombs are destroying London unless something is done to ward off the attackers.

"Not many months ago, you will recall, Fortune Magazine took a poll to ascertain which medium people would rather do without—the radio or motion pictures, and, as I recall the results, it was 25% to 75% in favor of the radio.

On Increased Rentals

"Today the producer-distributor is faced with a diminishing return because of what is happening abroad, and he seems to think that all of this lost revenue is going to be made up by increasing rentals in the American market. With this happy thought in mind, one of the large producer-distributors, owning and operating first-run theatres in a middle western city, recently reduced their admission prices while, at the same time, they were asking the exhibitors operating the subsequent run theatres in the same city to pay them higher rentals for their current product, knowing full well that the price reductions they had put into effect in their own houses would result in reduced admission scales in the subsequent run theatres.

"Such things as this, more and more, lead me to believe that Herman the Great would have easily qualified as a leading executive of this business because only a magician can ever hope to do what the major companies are trying to accomplish in this motion picture business.

Consent Decree Cited

"Beginning next year, the industry will be compelled to fool around with an entire change in the distribution end of the business due to the Consent Decree, the application of which is bound to add to the trials and tribulations and expenses of conducting the business.

"In one shake, or less, of the proverbial lamb's tail, approximately half a million dollars is subscribed to operate the arbitration section of the decree. I wonder how many years it would take the same individuals to appropriate the same sum of money to launch some sort of a campaign to repopularize motion picture entertainment?

"But that's just what this business needs. Some sort of a campaign, or a contest, or what have you, that will focus attention upon motion pictures as the cheapest, best and finest form of entertainment. Some sort of a contest that will continually keep people thinking of motion pictures. Surely, if the bowling industry can offer fifty thousand dollars in prizes, half a million dollars would not be too much for this industry to offer.

"In a Class by Itself"

"If figures mean anything, the sale of amusement is in a class by itself, as it does not seem to be susceptible to economic or general business fluctuations, and I say this because of what the following figures reveal.

"In this state, we have a 3% retail tax and the distribution of the sales tax stamps is classified by the Treasurer of State according to various lines of business. It is readily admitted that a dependable barometer of business conditions is the sale of motor vehicles and, using this as such, we find the following to be the situation in the State of Ohio:

Year	Three Per Cent Motor Vehicle Sales Tax	Three Per Cent Admissions Tax
1935	$4,505,002	$1,478,940
1936	7,379,343	1,422,588
1937	8,145,742	1,549,762
1938	4,286,619	1,599,035
1939	6,333,374	1,641,670
1940 (first ten mos.)	6,813,458	1,444,126

"It will be noted from the above that, during the year 1937, when automobile sales were the highest and, during 1938, when these sales were the lowest, the amount of money spent for amusement was substantially the same.

"If the above figures mean anything at all, it is that the amusement dollar is divided up so that it finds its way into various channels of the amusement business, so that it becomes of vital importance that drastic measures should be taken if our division of the amusement industry retains its share of this particular dollar.

"The industry could well afford to offer a substantial prize for the best idea for a nation-wide contest to bring more people into the motion picture theatres."

BUILDING CHINESE THEATRE ON COAST

Construction is proceeding in San Francisco's densely populated Chinatown on a $100,000 all-Chinese talking picture theatre, to be owned and operated by the Grand View Film Company, Ltd., of Hong Kong, which is owned entirely by ten prominent San Francisco Chinese. The theatre will be named the Grand View, will have 400 seats and will open by December 1st.

Full-length Chinese talkies produced in Hong Kong will be shown four days each week, together with American short subjects and newsreels. Two American features will be shown the remaining three days each week, according to Joseph Sunn, manager of the theatre and president of the film production company.

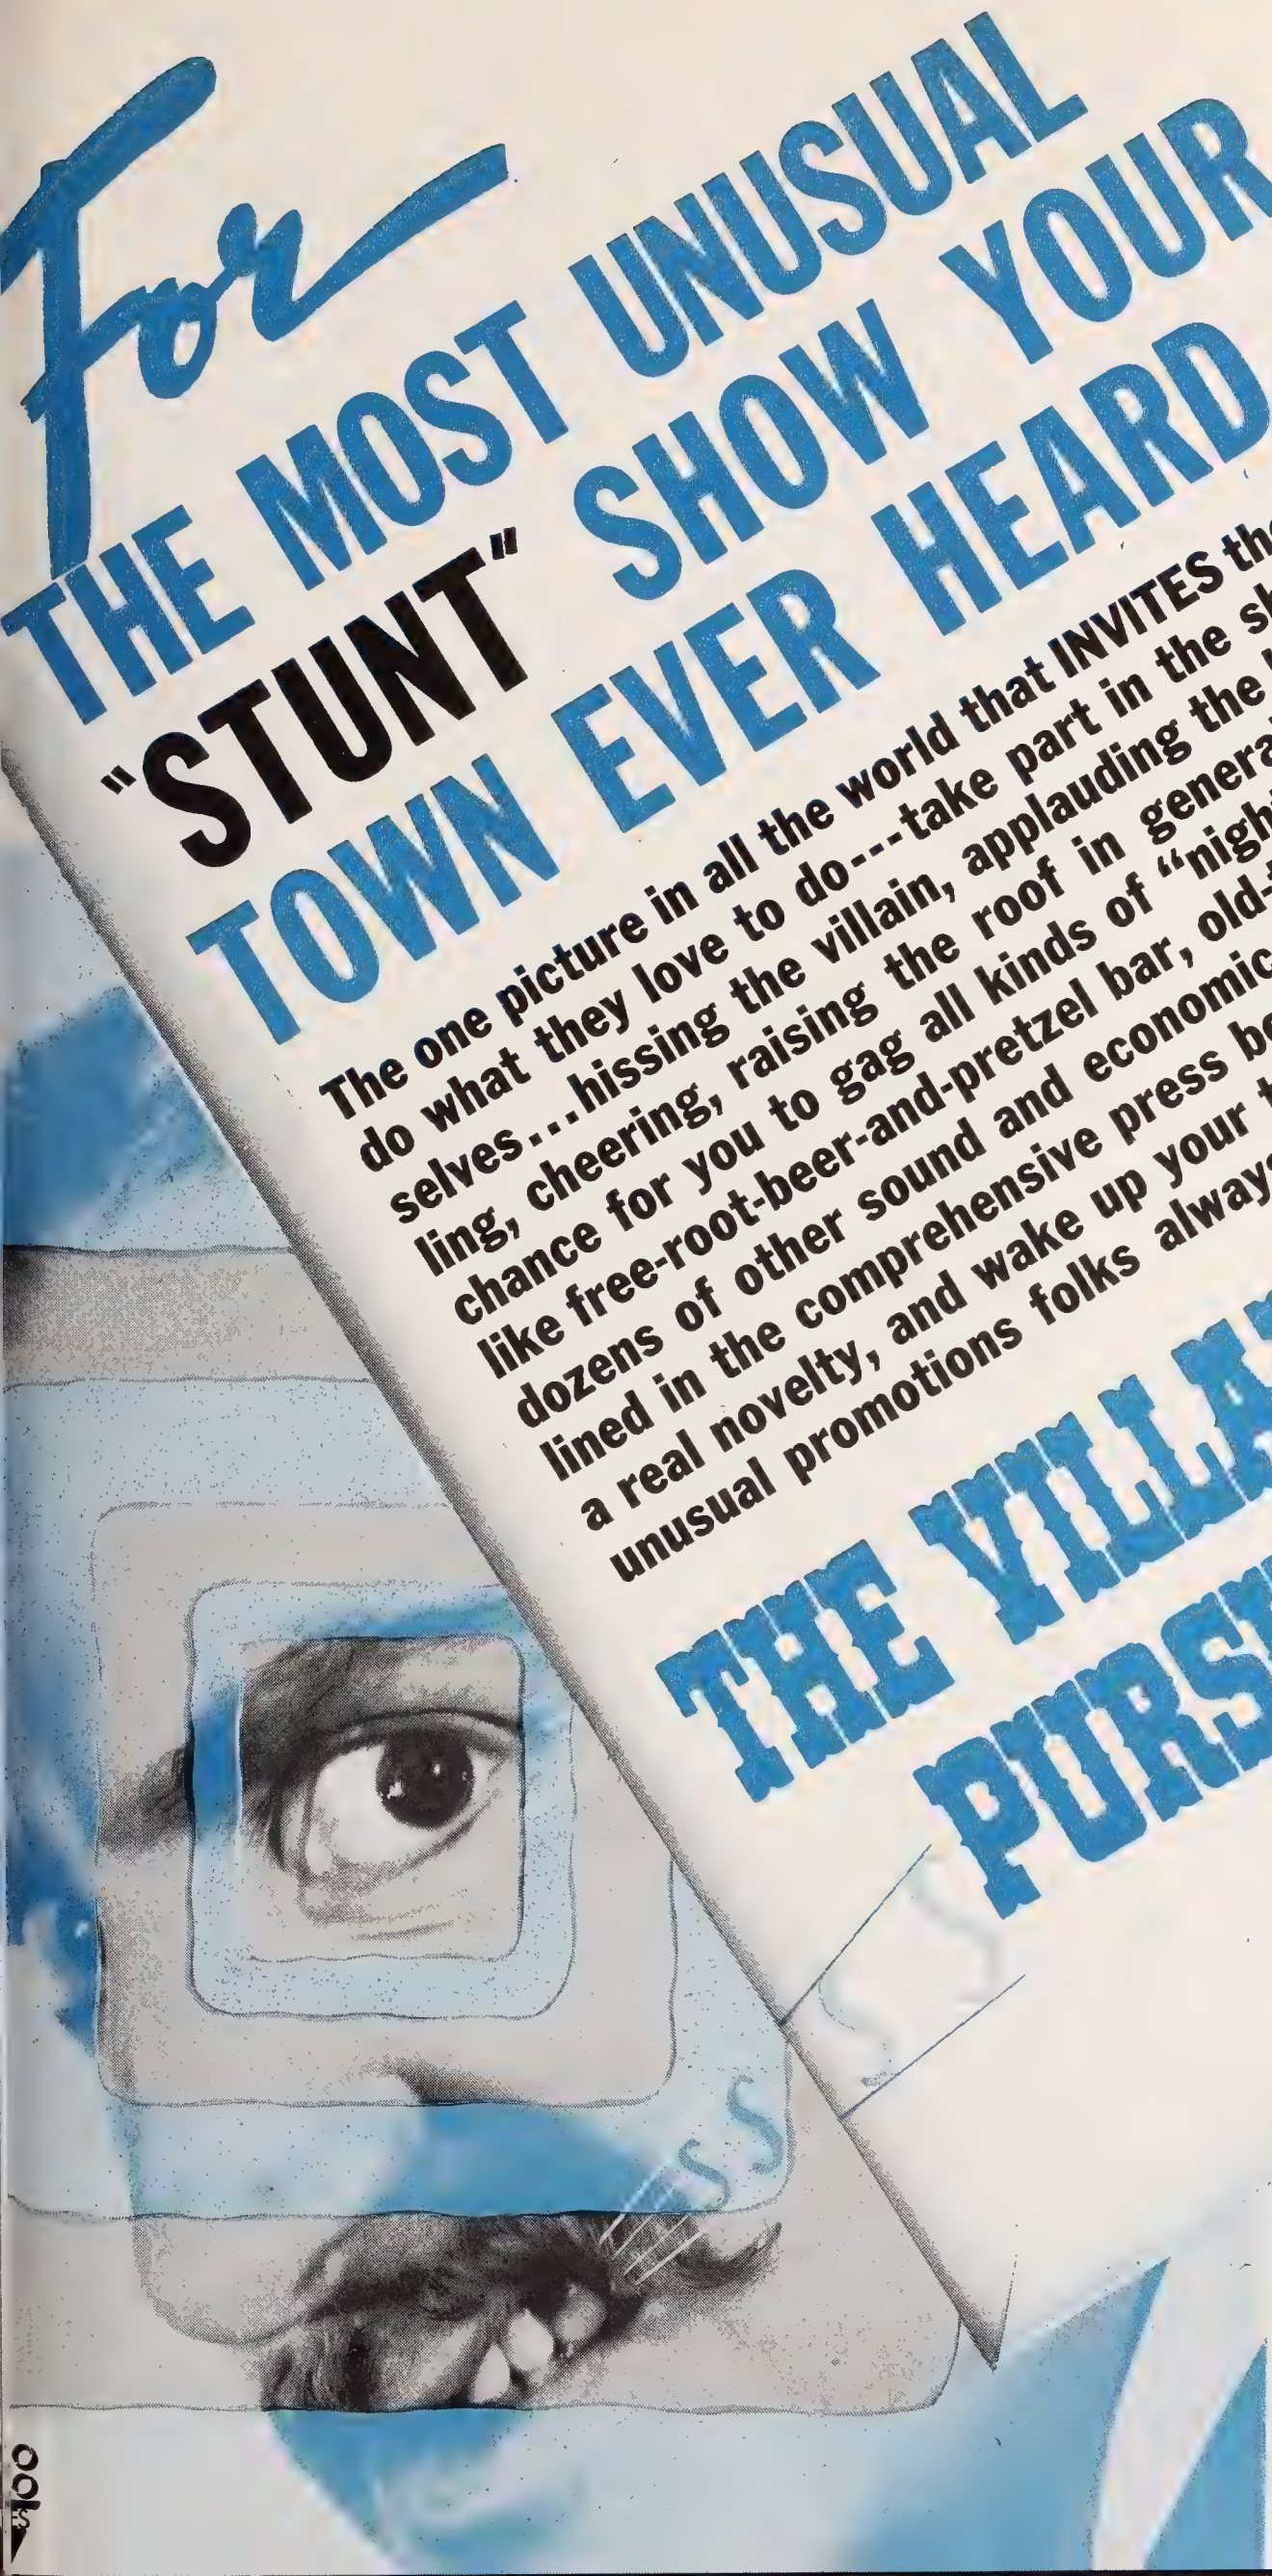
The syndicate plans to erect at least one other house in the United States next year, probably in New York. The company's Hong Kong studios produce 18 all-Chinese talkies a year.

Select Has 20 Branches

Select Attractions, recently, announced the completion of its branch exchange set-up throughout the United States upon the return to New York of Charles Kranz, its president. The company now has 20 branches located as follows:

New York, 630 Ninth Avenue; New Haven, 134 Meadow Street; Cleveland, 506 Film Building, 21st and Payne Avenue; Cincinnati, Film Exchange Building; Indianapolis, Film Building; Detroit, Film Building, 2310 Cass Avenue, Chicago, 1250 South Wabash Avenue; Minneapolis, 72 Glenwood Avenue; Kansas City, 1820 Wyandotte Street; Philadelphia, 1228 Vine Street; Washington, D. C., 922 New Jersey Avenue, N. W.; New Orleans, Film Building; Dallas, 302½ South Harwood Street; Los Angeles, 1910 South Vermont Avenue; San Francisco, 247 Golden Gate Avenue; Seattle, 2417 Second Avenue; Salt Lake City, 258 East First So. Street; Denver, 2147 Broadway; Pittsburgh, 1022 Forbes Street; Boston, Melrose Street.

These exchanges are to be operated and are controlled by Select Attractions, and will handle solely product released by this company it was said. A sales convention will be held within the next two weeks in either Chicago or New York when all branch managers will hear details of pictures to be released this season. The first for release November 29th, is the George Hirliman picture, "Adolescence," starring Leon Janney and Eleanor Hunt, directed by Louis Gasnier, with a musical setting by Nathaniel Shilkret.



Prosperity in Pittsburgh

Exhibitors anticipate one of best Decembers in years, following release of almost $3,000,000 Christmas savings and increased industrial and business payrolls. Bank outpourings at end of this month will be largest in eight years, a gain of $302,000 over 1939, and $700,000 more will be paid out in holiday savings by suburban banks.

FIVE THEATRES, WEEK'S CELEBRATION COLUMBIA BID FOR PREMIERE HONORS

Tucson Site of "Arizona" Opening; "Tin Pan Alley" Bows in New York; "Santa Fe" Campaign Started by Warners

After a civic-sponsored week of Western revelry, Columbia's production of Wesley Ruggles' "Arizona," opened simultaneously last Friday night, November 15th, in Tucson, at the State, Rialto, Lyric and Fox theatres and the Temple of Music and Art. It was the latest of a series of location premieres for which a parade and a single theatre showing are now considered only weak publicity.

President Roosevelt sent greetings to Mayor H. O. Jaastad of Tucson, in observance of Pioneer Week, proclaimed by Governor R. T. Jones on November 10th, in conjunction with the premiere.

Star Broadcast Featured

Charlie Ruggles, the producer-director's brother, was master of ceremonies. Jean Arthur, star of the film, made personal appearances in all five theatres. Miss Arthur, guest of honor at a public reception following her arrival in Tucson last Thursday, appeared in a special radio treatment of "Arizona," on the Kate Smith Hour radio show, prior to the premiere, last Friday night.

Columbia executives present were: Harry Cohn, Jack Cohn, Abe Montague, Rube Jackter, N. B. Spingold, Louis Weinberg, Louis Astor and Max Weisfeldt; division managers, Phil Dunas, Carl Shalit, Sam Galanty, Jerome Safron, and Los Angeles branch manager, Wayne Ball.

Members of the cast and other performers present included: Porter Hall, Warren William, Regis Toomey, Paul Harvey, Rita Hayworth, Glenn Ford, Paul Lukas, Jack Holt, John Mack Brown, Fay Wray, Guy Kibbee, Florence Rice and Charles Ruggles.

The first of a group of some 250 correspondents of newspapers and magazines arrived Thursday in three American air liners, and were followed by others in special trains from scores of cities. Several Governors and dozens of mayors swelled the ranks of celebrities. An official reception and ball followed the premiere at the Santa Rita Hotel.

The week-long celebration ended Sunday. "Old Tucson," the set used in the picture was thrown open for inspection during the week. Indians were encamped along the main streets and a Mexican Fiesta ran for 24 hours in Court House Square.

To Air "Tin Pan Alley"

As a tribute to dozens of Hollywood stars who have come east to appear on her radio program, Kate Smith, Ted Collins and the entire company were to journey to Hollywood for their broadcast Friday, November 22nd.

For the first time, Miss Smith's entire hour-long broadcast will be devoted to a motion picture, "Tin Pan Alley," which opened Thursday, this week, at the Roxy, New York. Stars of the Twentieth Century-Fox film, Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Jack Oakie and John Payne, as well as song writers Mack Gordon and Harry Warren, were to be featured on the air with Miss Smith.

Warners is planning an early exploitation campaign, one of the longest in the industry's annals, to publicize "Santa Fe Trail," which has its world premiere December 14th, at Santa Fe, in four theatres, at $2.20 top. Irving Rubins and Will Yolan have been assigned to Santa Fe with a staff of 10, to work in collaboration with Governor John E. Miles and the State Chamber of Commerce in exploiting the premiere and Santa Fe Trail Days, December 13-15. Some 60,000 visitors are expected.

Program includes a Friday the 13th fete, Governor's reception, parade, ball and pilgrimages to historic shrines. Some 10,000 Indians, members of local tribes, will participate in the celebration.

Hollywood will be represented by Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Raymond Massey, Ronald Reagan, Van Heflin, Alan Hale, Guinn Williams and a delegation of Warner executives.

"Love Thy Neighbor," Paramount film featuring Jack Benny and Fred Allen, will have its world premiere in Miami around Christmas in three theatres. Two more theatres may be added in Miami Beach.

Wometco was to have reopened its renovated Surf Theatre near Miami Beach, for the winter tourist season, Tuesday, this week, playing "The Great Dictator" at this theatre and at the Lincoln Theatre simultaneously.

Betters "Andy Hardy"

MGM reported this week that "Little Nellie Kelly," Judy Garland's first starring vehicle, topped the record formerly held by "Love Finds Andy Hardy" in its opening week-end at Loew's, Louisville. The musical, based on George M. Cohan's play of the same name, has equalled or beaten grosses set by "I Love You Again" in virtually all its openings to date.

"Little Nellie Kelly," in Louisville, played to more than 142 per cent of normal business and in Providence to 131 per cent of normal business, the company said.

Bettering grosses made by "Babes in Arms," "Boom Town," and "New Moon," in the Fifth Avenue Theatre, Seattle, MGM's "Bitter Sweet" was launched over the week end to more than average business in Detroit and Philadelphia.

"Escape," Robert Taylor-Norma Shearer co-starring film now ending its third week at the Music Hall, New York, has been held over in seven of its key city engagements. It is reported to be outdrawing such MGM films as "The Women," "Northwest Passage," and "Strike Up the Band."

100 City Openings

Following its world premiere at the Roxy, New York, Kay Kyser's "You'll Find Out" was to open in some 100 cities this week. The greatest number of openings were set for Wednesday and Thursday and include the following key cities: Augusta, Ga.; Lincoln, Neb.; Lexington, Ky.; St. Louis, Baltimore, Richmond, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Dayton, Huntington, W. Va.; Denver, Trenton, Salt Lake City, Washington, Syracuse, Newark, New Brunswick, N. J.; St. Paul, Portland, Ore.; Glen Falls, N. Y.; Chicago, Toledo, Indianapolis, Memphis and Hartford.

EDITORIAL PRAISES CONSENT DECREE

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch, in an editorial last week praising the consent decree settlement of the anti-trust suit against the film industry, gave Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, credit for the achievement and said the changes should bring larger and better satisfied movie audiences and therefore improved business for the producers.

The Post-Dispatch said the government's action against the eight major film producers on charges of anti-trust law violation would result in the virtual elimination of blind selling and block booking, "producer practices to which had been attributed much of the responsibility for poor programs at movie theatres."

"Now, with blocks limited to units of five pictures or less, a much greater range of choice is possible. The producers cannot work off inferior products so readily and there is greater incentive for them to make high-grade pictures," the editorial concluded.

Launch Production In English Studio

"Love on the Dole" went into production recently at the Rock Studios, Elstree, near London. British National Films, Ltd., is producing, John Baxter is directing and Deborah Kerr is starred. The picture is reported to be designed especially for the United States market.

The next film to be filmed at the studio will be Leslie Howard's "Pimpernel Smith." George Parish, chairman of British National, has announced that the company would spend about $600,000 on the next four films. If sufficient studio space is available, the company will make eight films next year.

World's Oldest Theatre Bombed

The Drury Lane Theatre, London, probably the oldest theatre in the world and long famous as the home of English legitimate stage productions, was almost completely wrecked, late last week, by Nazi air bombs, according to information reaching New York.

In recent years, motion pictures had been shown in the theatre.

Wasson City Manager

Lionel H. Wasson, with the A. H. Blank theatre organization at Des Moines for the past 15 years, for the past six a director of advertising for the Central States Theatre Corporation, has resigned to become general city manager of the Odeon and Strand theatres, Marshalltown, same state, for Mike Roskopf and Sam Horwitz.

Allen Aide to Bolle

A. Ross Allen, Jr., of the Twentieth Century-Fox foreign department, has been appointed assistant to Otto W. Bolle, managing director for the company in South Africa. He will sail November 15th for Rio de Janeiro and then to Johannesburg. Mr. Bolle is now visiting in New York.

STUDIO LOCALS COMPLAIN TO CASEY, ASK REOPENING OF NEGOTIATIONS

IATSE Unions Claim Promised Individual Discussions with Producers Have Been Delayed; Start Studio Survey

Hollywood's unions want to bargain again.

This was the substance of a message delivered to Pat Casey, producers' labor contact, over the weekend by the representatives of the 10 studio locals of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

Mr. Casey was told the unions wished to reopen negotiations on the bargaining agreements reached last fall between the studios and the unions, the latter led at the time by Willie Bioff, West Coast leader of the Alliance.

Charge Agreement Not Fulfilled

The agreements obtained then were conditional, providing a ten per cent wage increase for approximately 10,000 workers, and negotiation of further contracts with individual locals. The communication to the producers from the unions over the weekend charged the latter half of these conditions was not met. It said, in part:

"The business representatives of the various unions have individually attempted at various times to open the negotiations, without any apparent success. There are matters affecting the Fair Labor Standards Act or Wage and Hour Law which make this especially important at this time. The business representatives of the various unions have also contacted you and the other employer representatives on many occasions, and attempted to adjust their respective violations of the present agreement affecting wages, hours, and working conditions. . . . The individual business representatives have met with a lack of proper and satisfactory action to date on the settling of complaints, from you as well as other employer representatives. . . . This communication is the beginning of steps to determine the reason for the delays in starting negotiations, and the lack of cooperation in adjusting complaints."

Mr. Casey said on Tuesday he had replied to the letter, after study, asking the unions to state their demands specifically; and that when he had received these, he would then set a date for a meeting between their representatives and the producers.

Last fall's agreement was signed August 10th, and was to run for five years. Subsequently, other American Federation of Labor studio unions, captained by Bioff, who was chairman of the Conference of American Federation of Labor Studio Unions as well as Coast IATSE leader, obtained similar wage increases, as did also the internationals in the Studio Basic Labor Agreement.

Bioff has since been extradited from California to Chicago, to finish a 1922 jail term, has served that, was indicted for evading Federal income taxes in 1937-38, and is expected to stand trial for this, probably in February.

Meanwhile, the American Federation of Labor, meeting for its 60th annual convention this week, in New Orleans, is expected to act on a request by the California Federation of Labor council, for the removal of Meyer Lewis as western AFL director. Mr. Lewis is charged with improper conduct of office.

Engaged in a survey of the motion picture studios, E. M. Cocking, regional Wages and Hours Administration officer stationed in Los Angeles this week began touring the studios, to witness the classifications of workers at their various duties. The Act's Administration, in Washington, recently reclassified workers and Mr. Cocking spent three days last week with committees from the ten IATSE locals on the reclassifications. He had conferred previously with representatives of the unions in the basic labor agreement, and with studio managers. On his tour of the studios, he is being accompanied by officers of the production center's organized labor, who will point out to him their contentions anent types of workers.

Mr. Cocking expects to have a report ready by the month's end, and to begin hearings on classifications and reclassifications in the industry the first week in December. At these hearings, he said, employers and employees will be permitted to protest the rulings.

IATSE officers believe most of their workers will fall into the "professional" category.

This would exempt them from the 40 hours per week limitation.

Also in Hollywood this week, members of the Screen Actors Guild Class B group, the "extras," were voting this week on whether to continue the Class B Council, their governing body, or to have a new form of government. The Guild's board of directors, widening the breach between it and the council, last week decided to put this question before the extras. Its announcement came last week, several hours after the Class B Council, headed by Harry Mayo, newly elected chairman, announced that the Council had appointed committees to discuss with other AFL organizations and the National Labor Relations Board, its campaign to obtain more representation for extra players in Guild affairs.

Edward Arnold, president of the Guild, warned that such committees would not be official, and he advised Council members not to participate in their work.

The Guild's board asserted last week that the Council had become a destructive force in Guild business.

Ballots must be returned by November 26th.

Offered as alternatives to the Council plan of government are direct administration of extras' affairs by the Guild directors, in consultation with groups of extras, as required; or a "functional" plan of representation for the extras, through group committees representing riders, dancers, etc.

In the Guild now, are 1,397 paid up Class A members, 5,585 paid up Class B members.

Writers Elect Officers

Officers of the Screen Writers Guild for the coming year are Sheridan Gibney, president; Sidney Buchman, vice-president; Dore Schary, secretary; Lester Cole, treasurer. More than 300 were present at the election meeting last week at the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce auditorium. Two constitutional amendments were adopted. One increases from 12 to 26 weeks the work a studio writer must have, to qualify as active member; the second makes membership in a dual union subject to discipline by the board of directors.

On the SWG new board are Ralph Block, Mr. Buchman, Jerome Chodorov, Joseph Fields, Mr. Gibney, Harry Kurnitz, Ring Lardner, Jr., John Howard Lawson, William Ludwig, Maurice Rauf, Mr. Schary, Donald Ogden Stewart, and Dwight Taylor.

Two new charters have been granted in Hollywood. They are from the International Hod Carriers, Building, and Common Laborers Union of America to the Studio Miscellaneous Workers local and to the motion picture officers, firemen, and watchmen's local. The former seceded from the Building Service Employees international; the latter is new.

In New York City, the Eastern unit of the Screen Publicists Guild, battling for recognition from the home offices of the film companies, last week claimed majorities in all offices. It had already filed a demand for recognition as the bargaining agency for publicity and advertising men in all majors except Universal, with the National Labor Relations Board. Last week, it claimed to have secured a majority of such employees in Universal. It filed a request for recognition with the company and this week was expected to file a request with the Board.

The union seeks a closed shop, increases in pay, and regulated working hours.

An executive committee of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, parent actors' union, this week in New York assumed duties of the executive board of the American Guild of Variety Artists, "vaudeville" performers' union, thus climaxing charges of mismanagement and radicalism rife in that union almost since its formation, two years ago, to replace Ralph Whitehead's American Federation of Actors, which was expelled from the Four A's.

In St. Louis, the projectionists' Local 143, has gone to the public in its dispute with three suburban theatres, the Ozark, Osage, and Kirkwood. The union has been picketing these since September 1st, following refusal of the managements to renew contracts calling for two operators per booth. The union has sent 100 members on a house-to-house canvass explaining the union's attitude.

CIO in Atlantic City

As the American Federation met in New Orleans this week for its 60th annual convention, John L. Lewis' Congress for Industrial Organization, met in Atlantic City.

The Federal Communications Act must be amended so that broadcasters, acting under the National Association of Broadcasters code advocating an avoidance of "controversy," may not deny labor unions the right to purchase time on the air, Mr. Lewis, CIO president, demanded, in a report to the convention Monday. Mr. Lewis charged that a CIO union in San Francisco had been refused renewal of its contract for a regular nightly program, by KYA, in that city. The station, he said, reasoned that the program "dealt with controversial issues."

"At the same time," said Mr. Lewis, "large corporations in that area subsidize news and amusement programs, which, like the Ford hour, always include a bias in favor of the employer organization. . . ."

"The rule on 'controversial issues' is not based upon any law. Nor has it any legal authority. It is simply a rule devised by radio broadcasters through their national association."

Mr. Lewis advocated an amendment to the Communications Act to put broadcasting "in the same class as other public utilities."

LOSE NEGATIVE OF "GREAT DICTATOR"

The first negative of Charlie Chaplin's "The Great Dictator" consigned to Great Britain was said in London to be "missing and presumed lost at sea," according to a United Press dispatch to the New York Herald-Tribune Monday. The dispatch further reported that a cable from America said two more copies were on the way by different boats.

Radio Networks Deny Monopoly

Briefs filed last week with the Federal Communications Commission by the National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System attacked the report of the FCC Monopoly Committee. Oral arguments will be heard on December 2nd and 3rd.

NBC was reported to have taken exception to charges of an "unhealthy" condition in the radio industry through the control exercised by the networks. It was asserted that networks are necessary and desirable in broadcasting and also that ownership of key stations by the chain company is essential.

The CBS brief said, "The evidence in the record clearly demonstrates the absence of monopoly in broadcasting or of the concentration of control of radio stations." It also charged that the original subcommittee FCC report revealed "an ignorance of the broadcasting business plus a zeal for reform, unrelated to the actual operation of radio."

South America To Relay Programs

John F. Royal, vice-president in charge of international relations for NBC, has announced that beginning on January 1st a number of local stations in 20 Latin American countries will be permitted to pick up and rebroadcast NBC short wave programs. No charge will be made for the privilege. It was reported that the new service will reach millions of listeners who do not own shortwave sets capable of receiving broadcasts from the United States directly.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has reported that the Radio Corporation of America has renewed the contract of David Sarnoff, president, for six years at his present salary of $100,000 per year, with a provision for a $20,000 annual pension at the end of the period.

Philco Radio & Television Corporation this week completed the construction of its 15,000,000th receiving set, a figure which is one-third of the total number of sets in operation. The set was presented to Mayor Lamberton of Philadelphia at a ceremony at the Philco plant.

General Electric's new FM station, W2XOY, began regular seven-hour-a-day operation in Schenectady following an inaugural program Wednesday evening from Proctor's theatre, a Fabian Circuit house. The company took over the theatre following the Wednesday matinee. The first program featured Phil Spitalny's All Girl orchestra and talks by Charles E. Wilson, president of General Electric; Dr. W. R. G. Baker, manager of the radio and television departments; John Sheehan, station manager, and Robert S. Peare, broadcasting manager. With a transmitter located in the Helderberg Mountains, W2XOY is expected to serve listeners within a 50 mile radius.

The following new stations have been approved by the FCC: Batavia Broadcasting Corporation, Batavia, N. Y.; Capitol Broadcasting Corporation, Indianapolis; La Grange Broadcasting Company, LaGrange, Ga.; Central Willamette, Albany, Ore.; Delta Broadcasting Company, Escanaba, Michigan.

MGM's $100,000 Campaign

Directed by Howard Deitz, MGM director of advertising and publicity, a $100,000 nation-wide newspaper campaign on "Bitter Sweet," has been launched. Full page ads will run in about 40 cities. "Bitter Sweet," starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy followed "Escape" into the Music Hall on Thursday.

RKO Considers Purchase Of Meehan-KAO Stock

RKO directors on Tuesday considered purchase of the M. J. Meehan preferred stock holding in Keith-Albee-Orpheum, but took no action because of "current world conditions affecting the industry," George J. Schafer, RKO president, announced following the meeting.

RKO, Atlas Corp., and the Rockefeller interests, have, at various times during the past six years, sought to acquire the Meehan shares, representing more than 30,000 of the 64,000 K-A-O preferred shares outstanding. Purchase price has been reported as between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000, representing a market value of about $110 per share.

Purchase of the stock by RKO would obviate the necessity of paying some $300,000 annually in dividends on K-A-O preferred in the public's hands, and would permit the consolidation of K-A-O's large cash reserve. The latter's earnings in recent years has been about one million dollars annually.

McCoy Promoted, Warner Changes

Ralph McCoy, Warner Bros., branch manager in Atlanta, has been promoted to district manager of the company's newly created southeastern district with supervision over Atlanta, Charlotte and Memphis, it was announced Wednesday by Gradwell L. Sears, Warners' general sales manager. Mr. McCoy will continue to headquarter in Atlanta.

The change was one of several which Mr. Sears said the company had planned to make as soon as the consent decree was signed in order to effect closer supervision over exchanges in the U. S. and Canada. Others announced were:

Sidney Rose, branch manager in Omaha, is promoted to Chicago as exchange head.

Art Anderson, branch manager in Des Moines, is promoted to a similar post in the company's Minneapolis office.

R. H. Dunbar, salesman in Pittsburgh, is promoted to branch manager in Cincinnati replacing Ralph Kinsler who resigned to enter the exhibition field.

Elmer Tilton, former Des Moines branch manager, who resigned some time ago to enter business for himself, returns to Warners as branch manager in this exchange.

Tom Gilliam, Chicago branch manager, is transferred to Atlanta, where he succeeds Mr. McCoy as branch manager.

C. K. Olson, Minneapolis exchange manager, is transferred to Omaha as branch manager.

Harry Goldman, country salesman in Chicago, is promoted to city salesman in the same office.

Harry Mandell, Chicago booker, is promoted to country salesman.

All changes take effect Monday.

Jenkins Reelected

Returned as president of the Atlanta Variety Club is William K. Jenkins, vice-president and secretary of the Lucas & Jenkins Circuit. Other officers chosen were: Harry G. Balance, first assistant; C. E. Kessnich, second assistant; R. B. Wilby, treasurer; E. E. Whitaker, property man. Directors are: Willis J. Davis, John T. Ezell, J. F. Kirby, R. L. McCoy, David Prince and Paul S. Wilson.

"Juke" Machines Banned in Chicago

The Revised Municipal Code of the City of Chicago prohibits the use of any amusement device run for profit which is operated by a coin or token, according to Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel. The opinion was furnished to James P. Allman, police commissioner, by Mr. Hodes at the former's request.

Commissioner Allman has ordered the banning of the new type "automatic hostess juke boxes" and also has ordered district police captains to take immediate steps to stop the use of all "juke" boxes in saloons, cocktail lounges and other amusement places.

The "automatic hostess" operates from a central studio which has about 30 telephone lines to nearby saloons. A customer drops a coin and the girl responds and asks what selection the customers desires to have played.

It is estimated that there are approximately 10,000 automatic phonographs in operation in Chicago. These are not confined only to saloons, cocktail lounges and restaurants, but recently a smaller type has been perfected which is being used by drug stores and ice cream parlors.

The ruling and Commissioner Allman's banning of the "juke" boxes followed an argument over the loud playing of one of the instruments in a south side saloon in which two policemen were seriously wounded by gunfire.

E. C. Steffens, president of the International Association of Automatic Electric Phonograph Owners, said this week that his organization would take every legal step in their power to prevent the enforcement of the order banning the automatic phonographs in Chicago.

Richey, Others Address Arkansas ITO Sessions

The film industry is still receiving money from South America and from England and this must be regarded as encouraging, H. M. Richey, director of exhibitor relations for MGM, told the Independent Theatre Owners of Arkansas, in semi-annual convention at Little Rock on Sunday and Monday. Mr. Richey also pleaded for more cooperation between exhibitors and distributors.

Approximately 100 attended. The exhibitors on Sunday viewed new films at the Arkansas Theatre, and on Monday morning held a closed meeting. On Monday afternoon they heard Mr. Richey; Ed Finney, Monogram producer, and Roy G. Paschal, Collector of Internal Revenue for the area. Mr. Finney noted trends in westerns, of which he is a producer; Mr. Paschal explained various taxes affecting theatre operators, and answered questions.

The convention closed with a banquet Monday evening at the Hotel Marion, in which the sessions were held. O. G. Wren of Little Rock presided. He is president. W. E. Malin of Augusta is vice-president, and K. K. King of Searcy secretary.

Managers Hold Beefsteak

Managers and assistant managers and their wives attended the second annual Thanksgiving beefsteak dinner of Loew's New York theatres on Wednesday at the Starlight Roof of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. Some 350 were expected. Oscar A. Doob, circuit director of advertising and publicity, headed the entertainment committee.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

They've blamed a lot of things on vaudeville, but until Fred Allen unlimbered this yarn, we hardly suspected that the peregrinating performers of the past could solve the housing problem.

Seems a vaudeville troupe struck a town with eleven people in the cast.

The hotel had only ten rooms.

Fred explains it:

Eleven people . . . one to a room . . . in ten rooms.

"The manager," says Fred, "told two vaudevillains to go into the first room and wait until he came back.

"Then he put the third actor in the second room.

"The fourth actor in the third room . . . the fifth actor in the fourth room . . . the sixth actor in the fifth room . . . the seventh actor in the sixth room . . . the eighth actor in the seventh room . . . the ninth actor in the eighth room . . . the tenth actor in the ninth room.

"So he went back to the first room, called one of the two actors out into the hall, and showed him to the vacant tenth room."

Eleven people, one to a room . . . in ten rooms.

Joseph Franklin, head of the Franklin and Herechorn Canadian theatre circuit, is amazed to find himself mentioned in "American Vaudeville," a new book, as being a partner of the late Mike Shea, in selling to Keith-Albee, in 1924, for $5,000,000, a group of six theatres in Canada.

According to the so-called historian of vaudeville, Douglas Gilbert, Mr. Franklin is thus in the millionaire category. Unless, naively, suggested by Gilbert, he went down for the ten count in the Wall Street debacle of 1929.

Now that the "truth" has finally emerged, there Mr. Franklin visualizes the buzzing bees of income and property tax snoopers, solicitors for charitable and pseudo charitable organizations, and a long and unending line of panhandlers. The customers at his present seven theatre operations may even petition for free admission, now that the belated news is out that the oldtimer is a man of millions.

Now concentrating wholly on picture exhibiting with the Canadian martime provinces circuit he established, Mr. Franklin, pioneered in vaudeville with a circuit in the same territory about 25 years ago. When pictures sidetracked this venture, made in co-operation with Keith-Albee, he became K-A Canadian general manager. On his own, he also operated vaude houses in Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa. Just before forming his own picture theatre lineup, he was R-K-O Canadian general manager.

He's now threatening to write a book, on how it feels to be suddenly revealed as a millionaire, after keeping it a dark secret for 16 years. A fly in the ointment is that his only son, Mitchell, who assists his father in the direction of the present F. and H. Circuit, from their base in the Mayfair, St. John, N.B., has advocated distribution of a goodly share of the millions, which he contends should be double that by now, within the family.

In other words, the five million dollar sale never existed.

They're now selling books by the pound! Books from which many a motion picture producer got many a motion picture inspiration, so-called.

The J. K. Goll Company, in Portland, Oregon, hit upon this idea of marketing unmoveable and mark-down books and received an average of 35 per cent more per book than the former marked price. C. B. Jameson, manager of J. K. Goll book department, weighed various classes of books to arrive at an average weight and then set the price per pound.

A newspaper advertisement described the books in groups, listing many of the titles and authors in each group, and in a box the group price per pound was shown,—as "Group 1 @ 19c per lb." Four large scales were installed in the book department to take care of the customers.

A table of books, mostly fiction, marked down to 21c each and apparently unmoveable, when offered for sale at 19c per pound was almost cleaned out with the price per book, at the pound rate, ranging from 26c to 35c a book.

"Frank Buck's Jungleland," echoing the "Bring 'em Back Alive" of Frank Buck, is advertising in outdoor amusement publications, the available, for cash, of "some fine Howdah Elephants," equipped, complete, with "genuine India hunting howdahs, capable of carrying four adults "comfortably."

Censuring of theatricals by the Federal Communications Commission has been felt often, in connection with radio, radio-film and television matters. But not to these things alone does the FCC confine its eye. For example, there is the Pacific Coast sea captain who, in radio discussion with another vessel about position and weather, was overheard, from the air, to cuss the weather as only an old salt can cuss. Someone reported the 'superfluous' use of superfluous language and told the FCC, which so reports to the press.

Then there's the Simms Campbell cartoon quip in the New York Journal-American, about the third-string actress client of a Broadway theatrical manager who complained to a girl friend that when she's working, her agent gets 15 per cent of her salary, and when she's not he wants 15 per cent of her unemployment insurance.

Mr. Abe Bernstein, a Vine Street resident in Philadelphia, has a hobby.

Mr. Bernstein goes to the movies frequently, always carries a pencil and pad. Just as soon as the show is over, he walks quietly, alone, to the lobby, picks a corner, sits down and draws impressionistic, surrealistic caricatures of the entire cast.

He calls these "mental sketches," says they fill a void in his life. And he does them almost at once, because, he explained: "If I waited until the next day, or if I went home and had a sandwich, I just couldn't sketch them."

Slips That Pass in the Mike might serve as the title of the compilation of 'boners' made by announcers, collected by Jerry Lawrence of Radio Station WOR—a few choice ones follow:

Frank Knight: "The weather report: tomorrow rowdy, followed by clain."

Mel Allen: "It's Smipe Poking time, Gentlemen!"

Floyd Neale (signing off): "This is the Musical Broadcasting System." (Neale announces for Mutual.)

An unidentified NBC Chicago mikeman: "This is the National Biscuit Company."

Art Whiteside (presenting the Crown Prince of Norway): "Today it is our pleasure to introduce the Brown Prince of Norway."

Ralph Edwards: "And here is one of radio's most charming and lovely young Sinners . . . "

David Ross: "We present Tito Guitar and his romantic Guizar."

Andre Baruch: "Good Ladies Evening and Gentlemen," and (introducing a noted journalist) "Mr. ——, Acidity Editor of ——."

Jerry Lawrence: "You will know the King and Queen have arrived when you hear a twenty-one sun galoot."

And then there's the story they tell about an old-time radio editor and crackerjack radio interviewer who began one of his programs with the question: "Tell me, Miss So-and-So, what was the dirt of your birth?"

Then there's Priscilla (Rockefeller Center) Jaquith's recent report from Hong Kong, from where the foreign division of the Chase National Bank sent a merry collection of a typical group of bank check signatures of typical Hong Kong business men, thus:

Twentieth Century-Fox is about to produce "How Green Was My Valley," from the best selling novel of the same name. And therein lies a little tale of how really barren were once the valleys of the author of the novel, Captain Richard Llewellyn.

Educated in Cardiff and London, Llewellyn went to Italy at the age of sixteen to learn hotel management, starting in the kitchen. At nineteen he joined the British Army and served at home and abroad. Jobless in 1931, he was an extra player in British moving pictures, a reporter for penny film papers, then a scenarist and director. He left the cinema to write, found it hard going, turning out five novels and three plays, but none of them meant much. Jobless, lonely, he sat on benches in St. James Park, London, and rewrote one of the books. It had failed to find a publisher in its original form. Rewritten, as "How Green Was My Valley," its success is known far and wide.

CANADIAN ORDER BARS FRENCH FILM IMPORTS

No Restriction on Product Now in Dominion; Grierson Unit Reports 25 Produced

A Canadian government decree issued this week, in accordance with regulations of an Order-in-Council which bars trading with the enemy, prohibits all further imports from France and certain French colonies.

This application of the ban for the remainder of the war will have the effect of putting an end to the importation of French-language pictures from France and the specified possessions, which include Andorra, Monaco, the French zone of Morocco, Corsica, Algeria and Tunisia.

No distinction has been made between the occupied and unoccupied portions of France in Europe and, accordingly, no French films will be seen in Canada after the present supply has been released. There is no restriction on product which already has been received in the Dominion, the quantity of which is said to be sufficient to meet the needs of French-Canadians for some time to come, prints having been rushed from Europe ahead of the advancing Nazis.

Government Bureau Reports

The report of the Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce for the last fiscal year indicates that the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau produced 25 official films in the 12 months, of which 15 were sound pictures.

Through the National Film Board, of which John Grierson is commissioner, 6,662 prints were in circulation with 3,495 copies in use in the United States, 1,500 in the theatres of the Dominion and 530 in the United Kingdom, in spite of air raids.

The chief work of the bureau in 1939-40 was the completion of the film record of the tour of the British monarchs across the North American Continent and return, for which 80,000 feet of standard width film was made and 15,000 feet of 16 mm. pictures, the latter being in natural color. The bureau is now largely engaged in the production of pictures dealing with Canada's war effort.

Pioneers Reelect Hague

Clair Hague was re-elected president of the Canadian Picture Pioneers at the first annual meeting of the organization, held in Toronto, Wednesday, November 13th. Among the new directors is N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian, who qualified by completing 25 years in the industry.

Other directors are Leo Devaney, Ben Cronk, James P. O'Loghlin, Tom Daley, Ernest Moule, Harry Alexander, Sydney Taube, Haskell Masters and Archibald Laurie. The induction of 37 theatre and exchange men brought the membership to 170, of whom 90 are in the Toronto district.

Gene Autry, Republic western star, attended the dinner after a parade through several Western Ontario towns with Premier M. F. Hepburn. The following day he opened the rodeo in Toronto under auspices of the Pioneers for the relief of war victims. Hal Hode of Columbia represented the Picture Pioneers of the United States on behalf of Jack Cohn, who heads the organization.

There has been a sharp boost in the volume of bombardment-air raid insurance carried by theatre owners in the eastern provinces, since the revelation that an armed aircraft carrier or pocket battleship of the German or Italian navies, has been on the loose off the coast of Newfoundland and preying on convoys.

The disclosure has sent theatre owners on a hunt for insurance protection for the first time. Because of their 3,000 miles distance from the scene of warfare, the eastern Canadian theatremen had not been interested in the special war risks until the operations off Newfoundland were divulged.

Army Occupies Ice Rinks

Theatres are losing their chief opposition this Winter in a number of eastern Canadian centres. In these the indoor rinks have been taken over for war purposes, and thus there will be no pleasure skating, hockey or ice shows to take away business from the theatres.

In Moncton, N. B., the Stadium, a large enclosure, and with artificial ice, is now being used as part of an equipment base for the Royal Canadian Air Force. It had been popular for skating, ice shows and hockey each season from November 1st to mid-April.

In St. Stephen and St. Andrews, N. B., both on the border, the indoor rinks have been acquired for army drill halls. At Edmundston, N. B., also on the border, the local rink is part of a draftee training camp.

At Halifax, N. S., the Forum Rink, first artificial ice rink in the Atlantic provinces has been in use for both army and navy in drilling, and may be bought outright by the dominion government for army drilling.

The Charlottetown, P. E. I., local Forum rink, also artificially iced, has been assigned as an army garage. At Summerside, P. E. I., the rink is being used for air force training. At New Glasgow, N. S., there is expectation that the local rink will be used as an army drill hall this Winter.

Outdoor skating will prevail, but hockey and ice shows are out for this Winter. Even the facilities for open air skating are reduced by the acquisition by the army of properties that had been used for rinks.

Kaplan with Producers

Nat Kaplan, Paramount salesman in Cincinnati for the last 15 years, has resigned to take over the Cincinnati franchise of Producers Distributing Corporation, formerly held by Lee L. Goldberg, who has assumed charge of the Cleveland office of that company.

Form Trans-Oceanic

Arthur Sanchez has formed Trans-Oceanic Film Export Company for the distribution of Spanish language pictures. The company has been chartered in New York with 200 shares of no par value stock.

"Hell's Angels" on Coast

The new, "streamlined" version of the old feature, "Hell's Angels," will be released in the T. and D., Jr., Enterprises circuit in Nevada and California, and the Golden State Theatre circuit, San Francisco, Astor Pictures, national distributor, announces.

Favor Reissues

Reissues are reported strong in the Albany area. Paramount's "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" is reported doing better in certain spots, than the original print. Among circuits, Schine and Fabian are using reissues.

Variety Clubs Hold Elections

The Detroit, Philadelphia and Oklahoma City Variety Clubs have elected chief barkers, other officers and directors for the coming year.

In Detroit, John Howard, branch manager, Paramount, was elected chief barker; David Idzal, Fox theatre manager, assistant chief barker; William Flemion, Producers' Releasing Corporation, second assistant; David Newman, Pasadena theatre, property master; John Saxe, Monogram, dough guy. Directors are Frank Wetsman, Lou Wisper, Wade Allen, Frank J. Downey, Barney Kilbride and Carl Buermele.

Dr. Leon Levy, president of radio station WCAU, was elected chief barker of the Philadelphia Variety Club by the board of directors on Monday, succeeding Jay Emanuel. Earle W. Sweigert takes over from Ted E. Schlanger as first assistant chief barker and Hillary Brown replaces David Weshner as second assistant chief barker. John Monroe, secretary; William McAvoy, treasurer, and Harry Ball, "fixer" (attorney), were reelected.

Directors are Dr. Levy, Samuel Stiefel, John Monroe, Mr. Sweigert, Sam Schwartz, Charlie Goodwin, Ted E. Schlanger, William McAvoy, Henry Friedman, David Supowitz and Mr. Brown. The new officers will be inducted at the annual banquet December 12th. The club is considering the organization of a Variety Club American Legion Post in the area, the military unit to be affiliated with the local tent.

Officers elected by the Oklahoma City Variety Club last week were L. C. Griffith, chief barker; Horace Falls, first assistant; William B. Zoellner, dough guy; Soloman Davis, property master, and the following directors, Dan James, Henry Griffing, C. B. Akers, Robert Hutchinson, B. J. McKenna and Jimmie Hobbs.

Lower Price Scale

The RKO Palace in Columbus has reduced its admission scale to 20 cents before 1 P.M., 33 cents for matinees, with an evening scale of 33 and 47 cents, for balcony and orchestra respectively. Present scale is 30 and 47 cents, respectively, for matinee and evening. Admissions for stage shows will be 30 cents until 1 P. M., 40 cents matinee and 40 and 47 cents, evenings, Monday through Friday.

The RKO Grand, which formerly operated on weekends only, and which will henceforth remain open seven days a week, has made comparable price reductions.

Reopen Sunset

The new Sunset Theatre, San Francisco, has been reopened. Re-conditioning cost $12,000. There are new seats, new screen, ventilation and heating systems, new interior decorations; and the sound and projection equipment has been renovated. Bill Wolf, RKO branch manager in the city for 11 years, is operating.

Anderson with Universal

Andrew Anderson, formerly RKO head booker in Seattle, has been appointed Universal head booker in Portland, succeeding John Harvey, who is taking over a theatre in Oregon.

New Production Chief

Paramount has announced the appointment of George Bertolon, as studio production manager in Hollywood, succeeding R. L. Johnston, resigned

TRADE VIEWS by W.R. WILKERSON

The tide is beginning to turn at the Westwood plant. They are now shaping the type of entertainment that ran their earnings up to $8,000,000 and $9,000,000 several years ago; they are now experiencing that same enthusiasm that made those pictures that accounted for that amount of profits. And it's a great thing for the whole business, for Century-Fox has been in a rather lethargical position for the past few months and that failure meant the failure pretty much of our whole business.

"Down Argentine Way," which Irving Cummings directed, is fulfilling all expectations. It has done wonders for Don Ameche and promoted Betty Grable, Charlotte Greenwood and Carmen Miranda into picture importance.

"Tin Pan Alley," under Walter Lang's direction, with Alice Faye, John Payne and Jack Oakie heading a song and dance cavalcade of music, is another sprightly musical from which, according to reports, great things may be expected.

"The Mark of Zorro" is further evidence of the new spirit that is being manifested at 20th. There were many who looked askance at Zanuck's move in having Tyrone Power follow in Douglas Fairbanks' footsteps, but Ty emerged with greater glory than ever as a dashing adventurous figure in a picture that is bound to extend his popularity. Rouben Mamoulian did a fine job of direction on this occasion.

Other notable pictures soon to follow from this same lot are "Chad Hanna," which Henry King directed from Walter Edmonds' best seller, in color with a big cast; "Western Union," a showmanship epic, directed by Fritz Lang, will be backed by a nationwide campaign with all the Western Union resources thrown in, and "Hudson's Bay," a big romantic spectacle directed by Irving Pichel.

Two pictures of importance which will soon start are "How Green Was My Valley," one of the most popular novels of many years, which William Wyler will direct, and "Tobacco Road," which John Ford will direct, from the stage play that has broken all records.

From Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl Zanuck and William Goetz, down through the ranks of the humblest lot workers, this new enthusiasm and drive are being manifested, and with such a spirit there is no room for doubt that the 20th Century-Fox organization is again bidding for top honors.

Greece Theatres Close

New York. — All theatres in Athens, Greece, were closed this week and many other theatres throughout that country are also expected to shutter as a result of war and conscription. Spyros Demetrious Skouras, nephew of the brothers, is fighting with the army, according to word received here.

Fairbanks Nixes Role In 'Vagabond'

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. has cancelled his contract with Boris Morros' National pictures to play the role of O. Henry in "The American Vagabond," which is scheduled to start shooting in December under H. C. Potter's direction.

The contract was verbal and Fairbanks is reported to have another assignment up his sleeve which he prefers over the Morros picture.

Anne Shirley Renewed; Outside Pic Each Year

Anne Shirley was signed yesterday by RKO to a new term contract calling for three pictures a year, with the right to do one outside picture.

Miss Shirley asked that RKO put in the contract that she play no more in the "Anne of Green Gables" series and that she be given adult roles. Her first picture on the new ticket will be "I Married a Cheat."

Keighley Megs 'America'

William Keighley has been assigned to direct the Leonard Spigelgass original, "Miss Wheelright Discovers America," as his next chore for Warners. Production is scheduled to start in December. David Lewis is producing.

BISHOPS CITE INCREASE IN "OBJECTIONABLE" FILMS

Protest Against Tendency Made by Committee After Legion Cites Three-Year Report

A protest against the "increasing objectionable tendencies which lately have become manifest in films" was made at the annual meeting in Washington last week of the Archbishops and Bishops of the Catholic Church in the United States by the Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures.

The statement was issued following a report of the National Legion of Decency which pointed out that the number of morally objectionable pictures had increased and the number of pictures deemed suitable for general patronage had declined.

"Some Ground Lost"

The Catholic Bishop's Committee statement on motion pictures was as follows:

"While in the recent past it has been our pleasure to note the efforts which cinema producers have made to improve the moral character of motion picture entertainment, and to express our appreciation of results obtained, it now becomes our duty to warn our people that some of the good ground gained has been lost. Evidence is accumulating that there is a partial return to practices against which the voice and authority of the Catholic Church in the United States vigorously protested in 1934.

"In this protest concurred multitudes not of the Catholic Faith who also were deeply concerned about films which threatened the morals of the young, the family, and the nation.

"Our responsibilty for the welfare of souls makes it incumbent upon us to do everything in our power to prevent the exposure of our people to the incalculable evil of the immoral cinema. We therefore register our strong protest against the increasing objectionable tendencies which lately have become manifest in films.

"We urge our Catholic people, especially parents, to renew their vigilance against the pernicious influence of films which disregard the moral law and subvert the foundations of Christian society.

"We call upon priests and people to maintain and strengthen diocesan organization of the Legion of Decency in each diocese, and to coordinate efforts with the National Office of the Legion in New York, so that a united front may stand firmly against films morally objectionable."

Gratitude was expressed to the press generally by the Bishops' Committee for the support given the movement for decency in films.

The Legion of Decency's report to the Bishops said in part, "Vigilance should be the order of the day so that the motion picture industry's policy of self-regulation may by all high-minded citizens be sustained in the proper discharge of a momentous responsibility so important for the moral well-being and best interests of souls, the family, youth and our beloved country."

The report also said that from November, 1937, to November, 1940, there had been an increase of three per cent in the number of Class B pictures (objectionable in part); an increase of five per cent in the number of A-II pictures (unobjectionable for adults), and a decline of nine per cent in the number of A-I films (unobjectionable for general patronage).

It was suggested in the report that the amount and type of story material submitted to he Production Code Administration may have so greatly increased as to require additional experienced and properly trained executive personnel.

To show the rise in the number of objectionable pictures the Legion of Decency submitted the following tables: (Class B—objectionable in part; Class A-II—unobjectionable for adults; Class A-I—unobjectionable for general patronage):

NOVEMBER, 1937, TO OCTOBER, 1938

Class B ..... 6% of pictures reviewed
Class A-II ..... 34% of pictures reviewed
Class A-I ..... 59% of pictures reviewed

OCTOBER, 1938, TO NOVEMBER, 1939

Class B .....8½% of pictures reviewed
Class A-II ..... 35% of pictures reviewed
Class A-I .....54 2/3% of pictures reviewed

NOVEMBER, 1939, TO NOVEMBER, 1940

Class B ..... 9% of pictures reviewed
Class A-II ..... 39% of pictures reviewed
Class A-I ..... 50% of pictures reviewed

The members of the Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures are the Most Rev. John T. McNicholas, O. P., Archbishop of Cincinnati, chairman; the Most Rev. John J. Cantwell, Archbishop of Los Angeles; the Most Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, Bishop of Pittsburgh; the Most Rev. John F. Noll, Bishop of Fort Wayne, and the Most Rev. Stephen J. Donahue, Auxiliary Bishop of New York.

Eight Classified for Week

Of eight pictures classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week four were approved for general patronage and four were found unobjectionable for adults. The pictures and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Friendly Neighbors," "Remedy for Riches," "Sandy Gets Her Man," "Trail Blazers." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Bitter Sweet," "Melody and Moonlight," "Murder Over New York," "One Night in the Tropics."

A resolution providing that members of the Kentucky Chapter, International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, refrain from attending films graded "B" or "C" by the Legion of Decency was adopted at the organization's convention in Louisville, Ky., Sunday, November 10th.

Manager on Defense Board

Joseph A. DeFiore, manager of the Park Theatre, Wilmington, Del., and at one time president of the Independent MPTOA of Delaware and Eastern Maryland, has been appointed a member of the State Council for National Defense by Gov. Richard C. McMullen of Delaware. The appointment was to the press and public relations division of the defense council.

Teddy Roosevelt Film Set

Gordon Hollingshead has been assigned by Warners, in Hollywood, to write a biographical scenario on the family life of Theodore Roosevelt, under the title, "Teddy and the Boys." Sidney Blackmer, who played Mr. Roosevelt in a Warner short subject last year, will play the title role.

New York Lifts 'Ecstacy' Ban

Ending five years of litigation, the Board of Regents in Albany, has lifted the ban on "Ecstacy," starring Hedy LaMarr. Eureka Productions, Inc., is distributing. Issuance of a license followed the elimination of certain objectionable scenes. The picture was made in Czecho-Slovakia before Miss LaMarr came to the United States.

The Board of Regents also announced the lifting of the ban on "Fools of Desire," under similar circumstances.

Since the picture, under the title "Extase," was first presented in its original version, it has been the subject of extensive court litigation. Twice the controversy was considered by the Appellate Division and once by the Court of Appeals, but in each case, the Regents' ban was upheld.

In view of the Regents' reversal, a rush to secure licenses for pictures hitherto banned, is expected.

Anti-Nazi Films Allowed

The ban on "After Mein Kampf," which had been invoked by the Chicago Police Censor Board was lifted last week by Police Commissioner James P. Allman.

Commissioner Allman also lifted the ban on "The Goosestep," which had been barred by the Censor Board, under the old title of "Beast of Berlin."

Mrs. Burnett Appointed

Mrs. E. L. Burnett, of Indianapolis, has been appointed extension chairman of the Indiana Indorsers of Photoplays, by Mrs. B. J. Roberts of Fort Wayne. Plans were discussed for establishing units in 92 Indiana counties.

Johnston Filmack Manager

Florence E. Johnston is now manager of the 16mm division of the Filmack Laboratories, a subsidiary, in Chicago, of the Filmack Trailer Company. She succeeds S. E. Abel, resigned. Miss Johnston is an experienced photographer, and airplane pilot.

Israels to Utility Staff

Carlos Israels, who has been counsel for the independent bondholders' group in the RKO reorganization proceedings and also represented the Roxy Theatre, New York, bondholders as counsel in reorganization proceedings, has been appointed to the legal staff of the trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation.

Altec Signs Two Theatres

R. S. Rogers has signed a contract with Altec to service the Cheraw Theatre, Cheraw, S. C. Hamrick Enterprises, Inc., has signed with Altec to service the Hamrick theatre, Gaffney, S. C. H. B. Moog negotiated for Altec.

Imhoff Transferred

Joseph Imhoff, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer executive in Milwaukee, has been named office manager of the company's Chicago exchange, succeeding John Kemptgen, who has been transferred to the sales department. Joseph McMahon succeeds Mr. Imhoff in Milwaukee.

STUDIOS RETURN TO MULTIPLE STAR FORMULA AS NEWER METHODS FALTER

Increasing Drain on Reservoir of Marquee Personalities Seen Answer to Audience Rejection of "Pictures with a Message"

by WILLIAM R. WEAVER
Hollywood Editor

Producers aren't saying so, yet, and for reasons of their own, but their answer to the problem, composed of many problems, which the war with its limitations, implications and necessities has put up to them is to be given in terms of stars, stars and more stars—two, three, four and mayhap more to the picture, as many and as big as the meeting of the problem may require and the reservoir of personalities can be made to supply.

The decision is not from choice. Reliance upon names of personalities never was. Prosperity has always witnessed a paring down of starrings, a swing toward featuring story, play or idea above talent. Adversity is no respecter of wishes or wants. Personalties are dependables, just now, on the evidence producers compute by, the only dependables in stock.

Reviewing the Evidence

Not all of the evidence is in, but that which is tells a story.

A production without parallel in the field of fantasy and made at a cost equal to that of a triple-starred feature, but lacking a personality to draw to, is reported dying on its first runs;

Feature-length cartoons considered superior to "Snow White" on all points save that of being first have given studio heads to wonder whether absence of personalities possessed of their own magnetism may not be the explanation;

Attendance-records attributed to the first feature-length documentary, beneficiary of more magazine exploitation than any picture ever had plus plenty of other variety, inclusive of that accruing from its first-ness, have been of a sort to disappoint holders of the theory that grosses are to be had without paying star salaries;

Returns from exhibition of an admittedly epic story of frontier life in America, staged on the grand scale and with a title calculated to appeal directly to one sect and attract the members of all the others, fell so far below the estimates of the pessimists that students of such matters decline to accept any reasoning save that another name or two at top of the cast would have saved it;

Buttered No Bread

Experience in what might be called the "bright idea" field of production, the margin studios always allow for upcropping of a newspaper headline or international state of affairs suggesting filmization in behalf of box office, has been less profitable than normally—the anti, or attack—pictures have buttered no bread, and the tries at sociology have begat many headaches.

These are bits of evidence on the practical side, and all to the same conclusion, as interpreted. In the realm of tomorrow is the outcome of adventurings in technology, the Disney Fantasound, returns on which will not be in for long and long, and Warner Brothers' Vitasound, not yet put to test of audience. Both are regarded as reachings out, gropings for betterment of the art and science, which could mean betterment of grosses, but there's no waiting for help from this quarter.

All these are reasons coloring the plannings for return to dependency upon players whose fame is equal to the task of attracting the required number of theatregoers, but these are not all of the reasons. The war has bred more handcuffs for producers than may be visible to the naked eye of the uninitiate.

What the war has meant to the business at large, in terms of lost market and diminished returns, everybody knows. Not everybody knows that it has deprived producers of freedom in selection of story material related one way or another to areas no longer deemed "available" from the box-office point of view, of locales no longer what they were and quite likely to be something quite else presently, of the services of certain players whose long identification with one or another characterization is considered as making them risky merchandise in this market, even of dialects, pieces of business, in short of a large measure of that latitude of enterprise and imagination enjoyed in time-honored tradition by the fabricator of entertainment in his strivings to amuse and divert the people of his world. Esoteric liberties, some of these, but knotty problems bound up now in the producer's perpetual problem of "giving the public what it wants."

Pronunciamentos Absent

Conversation about all these matters is for the most part behind closed doors, in the production conferences and mayhap the nightmares of the confreres. It is to be noted that none of the studio heads have been issuing bland pronunciamentos of late on the subject of how the art-industry's problem of supply and demand should be disposed of by master rule. On the contrary, it is a time for doing and the doing is in progress.

First of the multi-starred pictures, itself an effect of forces and not to be regarded as cause of what promises to be a cycle, was MGM's "Boom Town," offering Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert and Hedy Lamarr in big type. Competitors called it "Test Pilot" in oil and were, for that reason, that much surer its success proved beyond question the theory that the way out is the multi-star way. Right or not, they're for trying it.

While Paramount executives who huddled over 1941-42 production all last week, the company had on its stages the four-starred "Road to Zanzibar" with the Bing Crosby-Bob Hope-Dorothy Lamour trio which ran up the grosses for "Road to Singapore" joined this time by Glenda Farrell and supported by a cast strong in its own right. In test preview stage is the four-starred "Love Thy Neighbor" in which Jack Benny and Fred Allen, enough talent for any picture's need if radio popularity counts for anything, are accompanied by Mary Martin and Rochester. Also onstage at the time, and still, is "I Wanted Wings," with Brian Donlevy, Ray Milland, William Holden and Wayne Morris in top spots.

Talk Another "Boom Town"

There's talk around MGM of making another picture with the "Boom Town" foursome or an equivalent grouping, which may or may not come to pass, but "The Ziegfeld Girl" progresses the while with James Stewart, Judy Garland, Hedy Lamarr, Tonay Martin, Jackie Cooper, Lana Turner, Charles Winninger and appropriate support supplying marquee inducement, and circumstances not unrelated to the theme of this observation impose upon Mr. Stewart and Miss Lamarr the task of shuttling back and forth between this picture and the same studio's "Come Live With Me," in which they appear with Ian Hunter and Veree Teasdale.

Warner Brothers have James Cagney, Olivia de Havilland, Rita Hayworth and Alan Hale at work in "Strawberry Blonde" with Mr. Hale splitting his time to attend to chores in "Footsteps in the Dark," which proceeds simultaneously with Errol Flynn, Ralph Bellamy and Brenda Marshall and the Academy-winning Grant Mitchell. He must also find some time for scenes in "The Sea Wolf," vehicle for Edward G. Robinson, John Garfield, Ida Lupino and Gene Lockhart.

Talent and More Talent

Robert Young, Randolph Scott, Dean Jagger (of "Brigham Young") and Brenda Joyce are working in "Western Union," for Twentieth Century-Fox, cast of which also includes John Carradine, Slim Summerville and Chill Wills, while the same studio has Alice Faye, Don Ameche, J. Carrol Naish and Carmen Miranda currently at work in the production, "The Road to Rio."

Joan Blondell, Roland Young, Carole Landis, Billie Burke, H. B. Warner and Rochester are grouped in Hal Roach's "Topper Returns," Merle Oberon, Melvyn Douglas Burgess Meredith in the Lesser-Lubitsch production of "That Uncertain Feeling."

Franchot Tone, Brockerick Crawford, Mischa Auer and Andy Devine are to be seen in Universal's "Trail of the Vigilantes" when it comes from the stages and the same company has Margaret Sullivan, Charles Boyer, Richard Carlson, Frank McHugh and Frank Jenks at work in "Back Street."

So it was at weekend, and so it is with some of the product now off the stages and in the cutting room, more of the product to go on the stages next week and week after. It is to be talent, talent and yet more talent, with the top-ranking stars pressed for time and producers pressed for stars. Possibly, too, with expenses mounting, although there may be offsets to that. A report from the Central Casting Bureau shows that placements of extra players for the first 10 months of 1940 are down 63,727 (that means days of work) from the same period of 1939. That's not as indicative as it sounds, yet may be one of a number of devices by which producers will find a way to supply more stars per picture and hence, if their reasoning be correct, more customers to the theatre, at a cost commensurate with the achievement.

MGM PLANS FILMS IN SOUTH AMERICA

MGM was reported this week to be contemplating production of several pictures in South America. In charge of the project will be Robert Z. Leonard, who will take a vacation-business trip to Argentina and neighboring countries to lay plans for the productions.

Two or three pictures are planned. Mr. Leonard will be met in Buenos Aires by a camera crew sent to take location shots. The director will leave for South America as soon as "Zeigfeld Girl" is ready for release.

Sees Bargain-Seeking Public Bar to Singles

Harry Arthur Cites Test to Answer St. Louis Drive

THE St. Louis Better Films Council some weeks ago launched a campaign, addressed to the public of that community, against double and triple features. Harry C. Arthur, Jr., of the Fanchon & Marco Service Corporation, operating both first and subsequent run houses in the territory, gives his views of situation in the letter to the HERALD which follows:

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD:

"There has been a great deal of publicity given prominence by the trade press regarding the activities of the St. Louis Better Films Council and its drive for single-feature programs. This activity, following so shortly after our single-feature program test period at the Ambassador Theatre (which test was abandoned after nine weeks) is fortunate, inasmuch as it brings before public and trade alike, all aspects of this situation.

"It is erroneous to conclude that the council's position and ours are diametrically opposite. If one looks into the matter one will find that while there may be differences, Mrs. Burt's and our own organization are identical in belief in that we both maintain that single-features, to be successful, must be practiced by all exhibitors, rather than by a mere handful.

"A strong factor in the failure of the Ambassador single-feature policy was the double featuring of film programs at Loew's, the only other first-run theatre besides the Ambassador in downtown St. Louis. If Loew's had featured single-feature programs concurrently, it is safe to venture that results would have been different. On the other hand, given the choice of a single-feature at the Ambassador and double features at Loew's, at identical prices, 'dyed-in-the-wool' theatre patrons chose the double features.

"The test we made was fair and unbiased. We sincerely attempted to put over the single-feature programs, enlarged our budget many times over to sell the policy, and publicized the plan to a great extent through the medium of the newspapers' motion picture pages. That it failed can be attributed purely and simply to the preference of the average fan for as much for his money as he can obtain, quantity apparently more highly prized than quality, if such a choice must be made.

"Personally, we have no preference. Exhibitors who have are foolhardy. Policies must of necessity be based entirely on what patrons prefer, and so long as double-feature programs are shown by competitive operators, to the detriment of single-feature houses, the single-feature exponent has no alternative but to discontinue his policy if he would resuscitate ailing receipts.

"However, if a self-imposed edict were miraculously to be placed into effect by an entire community of theatres, completely eliminating double-feature programs, it is natural to presume that patrons would soon become accustomed once again to single feature programs.

"In closing, may we suggest Mrs. Burt and her council members include as a foremost evil of our business, the featuring of "give-aways," a practice which in itself appeals to quantity rather than quality and which, in itself, is responsible in no small measure for the continuance, in self-defense, of double-feature programs.

"Meanwhile, those St. Louis exhibitors, organizations, and others who confidently believe they can achieve a blanket single-feature program policy in St. Louis will find us entirely cooperative and amenable."

Stage, Radio Producer Attacks Double Bills

Arthur Casey, former stage producer and now director of public relations for Radio Station KMOX, approved the drive of the Better Films Council of St. Louis to eliminate double and triple features in a speech delivered before the monthly meeting of the council last week.

Casey, who at one time directed the widely known stock company, Casey Players, in the East and in St. Louis, compared the lengthy film programs with legitimate stage productions and also said radio had found that it could condense an hour-long program into a 30-minute show without losing its effect and at the same time have more appeal to the listener. He advised the film industry to adopt the same program—a shorter show, such as a single feature with some shorts.

Mrs. A. F. Burt, who is leading the campaign, predicted that triple features would be abandoned soon, but thought it unlikely that doubles will go immediately. "But, most certainly, ultimately." She said the campaign had proven effective so far, as scores of members had remained away from triple and double feature programs.

Busy Season Slated

The Rocky Mountain Screen Club of Denver, of which F. H. "Rick" Ricketson is president, is in the midst of an active Fall and Winter season. Already held were a Halloween party, an election day party and a 75-table bridge party conducted by the ladies. A Thanksgiving Festival was to have been held on Friday, November 22nd. A wild-game dinner is set for December 12th and a midnight show for the charity fund is tentatively scheduled for December 14th.

Parker Directs Own Chain

Upon the departure of Ted Gamble, the general managership of his circuit has been assumed by J. J. Parker, in Portland, Ore. Grover F. Hadley will be Mr. Parker's assistant, Calvin Heilig will be in charge of roadshows, and William Fitzhenry, booking.

First Sound Movies

The first motion pictures in Mangham, La., in ten years will be seen by residents on December 9th, when the new Liberty theatre opens. Sam Piro, who managed the only theatre in the town in the silent days, will manage the new house.

Plan Tampa Drive-In

Jesse L. Clark, general manager of the Gulf Coast section of the Sparks Florida Circuit, announced, this week, plans for a drive-in theatre in Tampa. The company has purchased a tract 600 by 800 feet and will erect a $30,000 drive-in theatre with a capacity for 525 automobiles.

Exhibitor Groups Vote Cooperation

Although the newly-formed United Theatre Owners of Illinois, which has assumed State-wide operations, is an unaffiliated exhibitors' organization, it is expected to cooperate closely with the MPTO of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, affiliated with the MPTOA.

Among the directors of the UTO are: Mrs. I. W. Rodgers, Cairo; Noah Bloomer, Belleville; S. E. Pirtle, Jerseyville; F. C. Souttar, St. Louis; Robert C. Cluster, Salem and George Barber, Villagrove. Mr. Bloomer and Mr. Souttar are members of the MPTO board of directors, while Mr. Rodgers, Mr. Pirtle and Mr. Cluster are vice presidents.

Fred Wehrenberg, president of the MPTO, in giving the new organization his blessing, said it would be in a peculiarly good position to watch legislation and other matters of local interest to exhibitors and managers. The MPTO, meanwhile, would look after their interests in the national and interstate field, he said.

Some 75 exhibitors from various sections of Kansas, attended the meeting of the Kansas Independent Theatres Association at Abilene, Kansas, last Thursday, November 14th. Homer F. Strowig presided.

Frank Cassil, president of the Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association was host, last Thursday, November 14th, to members of the group at a barbecue at the Hoof and Horn in St. Joseph, Mo.

KITA plans to hold a series of three regional meetings in Kansas, early in December, according to Mr. Strowig, for the purpose of increasing the membership prior to convening of the legislature in January. Another State-wide meeting will probably be held in February or March.

The Southeastern Theatre Owners Association was to hear Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, discuss the consent decree, etc., at the convention which was to be held, on Friday, this week, at Atlanta.

Londoner Invents New Film Printing Process

John Ojerholm, head of the Olympic Laboratories, London, has secured a patent on a new film printing process, which is said to give 100 per cent definition to all shadows. It is being used for the first time on the picture, "The Quiet Wedding."

The process treats the whole film after exposure, but before immersion in the developer, and is said to add nothing to stock or printing costs.

"Baker's Wife" Record

On Tuesday, this week, "The Baker's Wife," starring Raimu, entered its 40th record-breaking week, at the World Theatre, New York. The Marcel Pagnol comedy has established an all-time attendance mark for French films throughout the world, and is setting a new record every succeeding week that it plays at the World Theatre, according to World Cinema, distributors of the feature.

Add Eighth Theatre

The Parkway, Greenwood, Wis., acquired from M. E. Kenyon by Grengs Amusement Company, Spooner, is the eighth theatre added to the company's chain in Wisconsin and Minnesota. New booth equipment, a new screen and other improvements have been ordered. Clarence MacDonald is manager.

NBC ADVANCES MUSIC WAR DEADLINE, BANS ASCAP ON SUSTAINING HOURS

Boycott of Society's Songs on All Programs after January 1 Brought Nearer by Action; Other Networks To Follow

Following its many warnings and announcements with action, the National Broadcasting Company, on November 15th, banned all music of the American Society of Composers Authors, and Publishers, from its sustaining programs. The action follows orders previously that orchestra leaders on the network's sustaining programs play at least a certain number of non-ASCAP tunes per programs, and precedes the expected banning of ASCAP music from all programs on January 1st, when the present ASCAP contracts with the broadcasters expire, and when the networks will look to other sources for their music, notably to Broadcast Music, Inc. The latter is a music publishing house which the National Association of Broadcasters established in New York early this year to supplant ASCAP as a music supply for radio, screen, stage, and other mediums.

GENE BUCK
President of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers

NEVILLE MILLER
President of the National Association of Broadcasters, Broadcast Music Sponsors

Others Expected To Follow

The announcement by the NBC gained prominent newspaper space. It was the first drastic move by one of the networks. The Columbia Broadcasting System has already ruled that three non-ASCAP tunes must be played on each 15 minute sustaining program, and four on every 30 minute such program and network is expected to follow the NBC's latest ruling by December 1st, a spokesman said late Friday night. A spokesman for the other great chain, the Mutual, said on the same day that the company probably would continue for a while its policy of asking that two non-ASCAP songs be played for every 15 minutes of a sustaining program.

The moves are the consequence of the quarrel raging since the beginning of the year, when ASCAP made known its terms for new five year contracts to replace the expiring ones. Radio replied with establishment of BMI; ASCAP has stood pat, in the announced belief that radio cannot, because of public taste, ban ASCAP music. BMI has since obtained over 400 station subscribers; and ASCAP claims to have signed an equivalent number to its new contracts. Objections of the large broadcasters to the new ASCAP contracts were based on their belief that the terms weigh too heavily on the chains, compared to small stations.

Hotel, restaurant, and cafe operators are reported backing the broadcasters. BMI officials announced last week that 3,800 of these attending the national hotel exposition at the Grand Central Palace, New York City, had signed cards endorsing the fight against ASCAP and that 2,000 had signified they would ask their bands and guest bands to play non-ASCAP pieces.

Richard Himber, orchestra leader, last week telegraphed New York's Mayor La Guardia to intervene, "as a musician." The Mayor is a musician, and his father was an Army bandmaster. Mr. Himber's request indicates the alarm with which orchestra leaders view the squabble. A group of them, several weeks ago, met with both sides, and asked peace. They fear the necessity of making new arrangements, of losing the right to play, over radio, certain popular songs, and the loss of the large ASCAP library.

ASCAP, meanwhile, appears to be sitting back in the belief radio cannot succeed without its product. Reiterating a now familiar stand, Gene Buck, its president, remarked last week that ASCAP's "door is always open to the broadcasters," meaning these could still sign ASCAP's disputed contracts.

Speculation continued on Broadway, over effects of the eventual banning of ASCAP music from the air. Song plugging will be more difficult it is predicted and ways of doing it will be more devious. It was predicted there may be a revival of the old illustrated songs slides in theatres. Vaudevillians will probably be strongly approached. The persons who make their living "plugging" songs, in New York's "Tin Pan Alley," are reported fearing the future.

FCC Aid Reported Asked

Many avenues are being used by persons in the music and radio industries, anxious to abate the ASCAP-broadcasters' fight. It was reported last week that the Federal Communications Commission had been importuned. This week, however, spokesmen for the Commission, in Washington, denied they had received such a request, and further indicated that there was little the Commission could do. The Federal Communications Act forbids interference in programs by the Commission. A request to intervene, it was said, would first be referred to the Commission's legal department, for an opinion on its position.

Despite requests that he do so, James C. Petrillo, head of the American Federation of Musicians has given no indication of acting in the fight. It is reported that, despite the apparent friendship which the musicians' union and its locals hold towards ASCAP, the Society would prefer they remain aloof.

ASCAP officials these weeks have been holding luncheon meetings with the heads of the large advertising agencies, in New York. The Society is also reported to be ready to exercise stringent "listening" posts after January 1st, to catch violations of its copyrights by stations which have not signed with it. The Society is also meeting with heads of the smaller music publishing companies.

Meanwhile, renewal of the contracts with ASCAP by the Miller-Robbins-Feist music publishing houses was expected soon. These houses control many songs. Several months ago, they were reported conferring with BMI but the price for the song catalogues, a reputed $4,000,000, was said to have made BMI balk.

Many details are hanging fire, awaiting the outcome of the radio-ASCAP tangle. Among these are those calling for widely distributed transcriptions boosting products of national corporations. These latter feel it necessary to halt manufacture of recordings, or to use only those in the public domain, for the while.

BMI last week announced it had 411 station subscribers. The latest to join are WHB, Kansas City; WEW, St. Louis,; KFDY, Brookings, South Dakota; and WFDR, Hattiesburg, Mississippi. It was also made known that the firm now occupies 18,000 square feet of floor space in three New York buildings, the Empire Trust, the Brentano, and 23 West 47th Street.

BMI is expected to benefit from the publicity accruing a proposed contest for the public, over radio, in which the Brown and Williamson Tobacco Company's radio program would ask listeners to submit titles for nameless BMI tunes. It is expected that $250 will be the top prize, together with 10 per cent of the royalties from the song's marketing. BMI is expected to have its songwriters fit lyrics to the title.

The American Tobacco Company's Lucky Strike cigarette program has dropped its theme song, "Happy Days are Here Again," to conform with the networks' desire to avoid ASCAP themes.

Gene Buck, president of the Society, in this month's Baton, music magazine, pleaded the case of the orchestra leaders, remarking that, in barring all of the Society's music from the air after January 1st, the "chains might as well take away their instruments, as take away their music." He added, however, "In spite of the musical blockade by the chains, there will still be plenty of local stations where the people's choice in music can be broadcast."

UA Circuit Shows $300,633 Net

The United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., and subsidiaries this week reported a net income of $300,633 for the year ended August 31st last. This compares with a net profit of $138,811 for the previous year.

$62,000 Increase

Before deductions for interest, depreciation, amortization and federal income taxes, the net income was $573,631, compared with $509,134 for the previous 12 month period. This includes $182,133 paid in dividends by affiliated companies less than 100 per cent owned and $108,035 of undistributed net income of such affiliated companies.

The company's cash position improved during the year, with $591,806 cash on August 31st, which compares with $375,713 on August 31, 1939.

United Artists Theatre Circuit, of which Joseph M. Schenck is chairman of the board and president, owns or is interested in close to 300 theatres in various sections of the country, which are operated by other companies. Among affiliated companies are Metropolitan Playhouses, New York, and Robb & Rowley United, Inc., of Texas, and Skouras.

The annual meeting of the company's stockholders will be held Monday in Baltimore.

Loew's Boston Earnings

Loew's Boston Theatres Company has reported a net income of $270,518 for the year ending August 31st or $1.74 for each of 155,249 capital shares. This compares with $258,172 or $1.66 per share in the preceding fiscal year.

Greater Union Profit

More than $200,000 net profit was earned in the first nine months of this year by the Greater Union Theatres of Australia, Captain Harold Auten, its American representative, advised, in New York, on Tuesday. The information came to him by cable.

Scrutiny of the figures disclosed that the earnings were, mostly, from the company's theatres. These are able to play only Columbia, Universal, Monogram, and Republic films. The theatres' share of the earnings was approximately $150,000. The remainder comes from British Empire Films, a distributor subsidiary, Cinesound Productions, and National Theatre Supplies.

Norman Rydge has captained the circuit for the past two years. The improvement in earnings has been during this period. There have also been renovations and theatre construction.

Consolidated Dividend

The Board of Directors of Consolidated Film Industries, Friday, November 15th, voted a dividend of 25 cents per share on preferred stock, to be paid December 27th, 1940 to stockholders of record as of December 5th.

Comerford Opens Bloomsburg House

The Comerford-Publix Circuit officially opened its newest theatre, the New Columbia, in Bloomsburg, Pa., recently with a capacity audience in attendance, despite inclement weather. Speakers included Nathan H. Kruss, president of the Bloomsburg Council, who lauded executives of the company for their expression of faith in the future of the town by building the new house. Comerford officials present comprised: Charles Ryan, in charge of theatre construction and District Managers Edgar Simonis and Thomas Killeen.

OHIO ITO ON AD FILM PAY

The Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, through its secretary, P. J. Wood, in a current bulletin on advertising films, says:

"Many theatres are in the habit of showing advertising reels, for which they reecive no payment. We have in mind reels such as 'The Miracle of Milk', which portrays the history of this product, and 'This Land of Plenty', produced for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

"Someone receives money when pictures such as these are shown on your screen and you are entitled to a share of it. Newspapers don't give away their advertising space and you are entitled to be remunerated when you show reels of this nature."

Testimonial Dinner Given Fred Duffy

Tribute to Fred Duffy, salesman, was paid, on Monday this week, by some 75 members of the industry, including a score of exhibitors, at a lunceohn at the De Witt Clinton Hotel, Albany. Mr. Duffy, formerly with Republic, retired because of his health.

Every branch manager and salesman in the city was present. George Tucker, RKO salesman, was master of ceremonies. Speakers included: Ralph Pielow, MGM; Richard Hayes, Paramount; Edward Hochstim, Columbia, and Gene Lowe, Republic.

Mr. Duffy operated at Hibenian Hall, Utica, before joining the sales staff of Educational and Universal. He had been with Republic for two years.

Announce Committees

Committees for the sixth annual movie Christmas basket party in Chicago, were announced at a meeting, last week, in the office of Morris Leonard, Balaban & Katz, attorney, as follows: trailers, William J. Hollander; newspaper publicity, Archie Herzoff, Eddie Seguin, Jack Garber, D. Deere and James Savage; newspaper advertising, Larry Stein; newspaper editorials, William K. Hollander and Larry Stein; radio, Norman Kassell and Hal Tate; community newspapers, Ted Morris; chain grocery tie-ups, C. E. Dennison.

Also, transportation, Joe McKeown, Lou Abramson, Irving Yergin; mayor's proclamation, Jack Kirsch; bill posting, W. K. Hollander, Larry Stein; union participation, Jack Kirsch; liaison with superintendent of schools, Irving Yergin; kiddie clubs, Henry Markbreit; printing, Lou Abramson; "Night of Stars" announcement, Henry Markbreit; photo of stars, W. K. Hollander; trade paper publicity, Irving Yergin, Hal Tate; secretaries, Myrtle Collins and Ellen McDonald.

Admission to the party is free to anyone who donates non-perishable foods.

Frank Wolf Promoted

Alexander Film Company has promoted Frank Wolf, Jr., to general district manager, with headquarters in Richmond, Va.

Sears Anniversary Honored in Drive

"Twentieth Year for Sears" will be the slogan of Warner Brothers' forthcoming sales drive to be held during the 17-week period from December 22, 1940, through April 19, 1941, according to an announcement from the company's home office.

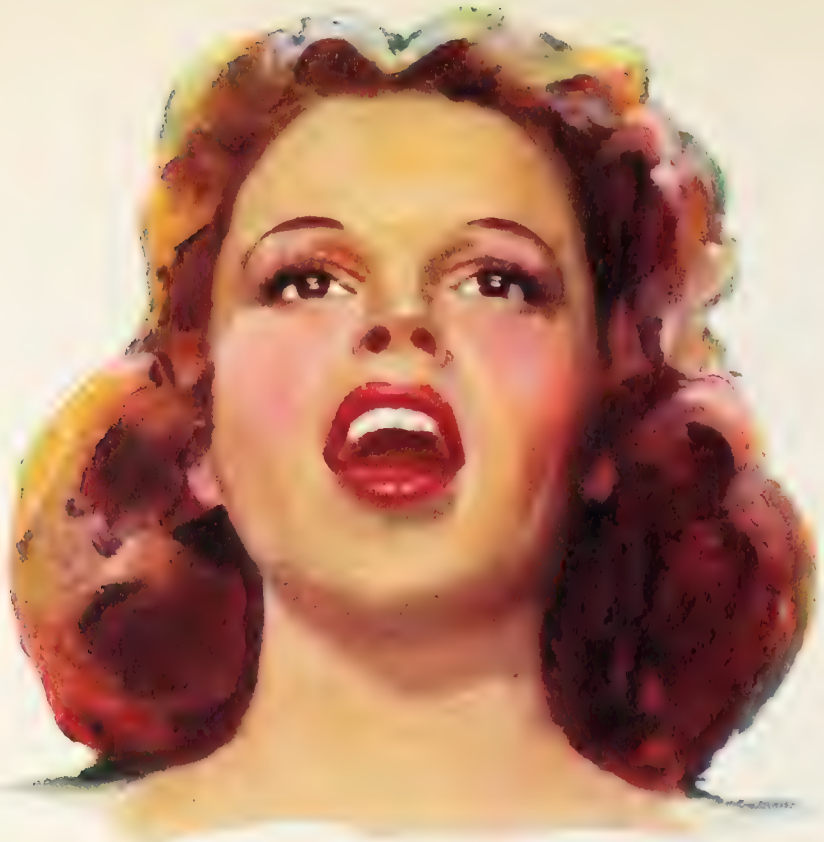
The label for this fifth annual drive honors Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, who rounds out twenty years with the company next month. He began as salesman for First National Pictures in Chicago on December 6, 1920. Since that time he has been a branch manager, southern and western sales manager and in August, 1937 he was appointed general sales manager of Warner Bros.-First National Pictures, Inc. In February, 1938, he was elected president of Vitagraph, Inc., the distributing organization of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

For the 17-week duration of the drive, the company has scheduled several of its most important releases of the current season. These include: "Santa Fe Trail," starring Errol Flynn, to have its world premiere in Santa Fe, New Mexico, December 14th; "Strawberry Blonde," with James Cagney and Olivia de Havilland; "Footsteps in the Dark," starring Errol Flynn; "Far Horizon," starring Bette Davis, with George Brent; "The Sea Wolf," starring Edward G. Robinson, Ida Lupino and John Garfield; "High Sierra," with Humphrey Bogart and Ida Lupino; "The Wagons Roll by Night," with Humphrey Bogart, Sylvia Sidney and John Garfield; "Four Mothers," with Lane Sisters, Gale Page, Jeffrey Lynn, Frank McHugh and Claude Rains; and "Honeymoon for Three," with George Brent and Ann Sheridan.

Name Charity Heads

James P. Clark, president of Horlacher Film Delivery Service, Philadelphia, has been named chairman of the theatre division of the United Charities Campaign. Dr. Leon Levy, president of WCAU, Philadelphia, has been designated chairman of the theatrical and radio division for the Allied Jewish Appeal.

Benedict Gimbel, Jr., president of WIP, is in charge of the radio group and is assisted by the following: William Goldman, Ben Amsterdam, Jay Emanuel, Abe Sablosky, Jack Beresin, David Barrist, Al Blofson, David Milgram, Sam Gross, Ben Fertel, Morris Wax, Sidney Samuelson, Lewen Pizor, David Weshner, Harry Ball, Lou Krouse, Sam Schwartz, Edgar Moss and Jacob B. Fox.



Warner Ad Plan Best

Warners' campaign plan on "Knute Rockne—All American," has been chosen by the Advertising Club of New York for exhibition at their headquarters as an example of the "best presentation of subject matter for purposes which contents are intended and for good printing."

Ohio Censors Report

The Ohio censor board received a total of 510 reels in October, ordering 30 eliminations. During that month last year, the board reviewed 678 reels, ordered 26 eliminations.

10 TELEVISION STATIONS LICENSED; MULTIPLE TUBE SYSTEM IS PATENTED

FCC Order Doubles Number of Stations in Country; Six Set for Los Angeles; Hughes To Try Film Adaptations

The construction of 10 television stations, six of which are to be located in Los Angeles, was authorized by the Federal Communications Commission last week in an order that nearly doubled the size of the television industry in this country.

Additional television permits were also given for stations in San Francisco, Chicago, New York and Manhattan, Kan.

Howard Hughes, producer and flyer, will spend $2,000,000 in conducting experiments in the adaptation of motion picture procedure to television at the stations in Los Angeles and San Francisco which are to be built by the Hughes Tool Company. The facilities of Hughes Productions will be used. A total of $8,000,000 has been set aside for experimentation by all the applicants.

Television Productions, Inc., Paramount television subsidiary in Los Angeles which already has received a permit for its main station, was given authorization for a relay transmitter. The following also received licenses for television stations in Los Angeles: the May Department Store, Columbia Broadcasting System, LeRoy's Jewelers and Earle C. Anthony.

Other television stations will be built by Metropolitan Television, Inc., in New York in cooperation with two department stores, Bloomingdale's and Abraham & Straus; CBS in Chicago and the Kansas Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kan.

Free television theatres will be established in the two stores cooperating with Metropolitan Television in New York, it was reported. This company plans special research in program techniques and audience acceptance, according to its application.

New System Patented

A new television system which uses a number of small tubes, each projecting a part of the complete picture, to replace the present single cathode ray tube, has been patented by Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, New York consulting engineer and former president of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

Dr. Goldsmith explained last week that certain factors in the general method of projecting a television picture from a single "terrifically loaded" tube prompted him to seek a more simple way of accomplishing the required results.

As Broadway electric signs use many small, inexpensive bulbs, a bank of tubes, each one showing a part of the whole television picture, are grouped together as a unit in the Goldsmith system. The electrical circuits have been re-designed so that each tube projects a small part of the image. The small tubes, once mass production is started, can be manufactured cheaply and individually need not be so accurate as the one big tube, Dr. Goldsmith said. For large theatre-size television images a lens would be fitted in front of each of the small cathode ray tubes.

FCC SCHEDULES TELEVISION TOUR

On January 24th the members of the Federal Communications Commission will go to New York to inspect the latest developments in the art, according to an announcement made this week.

Three days later, on January 27th, the Commission will receive a formal progress report from the National Television Systems Committee. The Commission, however, will not ask at that time for recommendations on the most desirable standards for television. Commercial television has been put off until definite standards are agreed upon and set by the FCC.

Test Models To Be Built

Dr. Goldsmith's application for a basic patent covering the multiple tube television system was filed in February, 1937. The patent was issued last week. The next step in the development of the invention, Dr. Goldsmith said, would be the production of test models. The systems may be applied to transmitting stations as well as to receivers but the most immediate use, it was said would be for receivers.

The multiple tube television design can be used with any method of transmission. Dr. Goldsmith's patent provides for a television receiver that has no moving parts. Each tube selects the part of the whole picture it is to project by automatic, electric means. Through electric circuits "negative" deflection is applied to control the separate parts of the complete picture.

The multiple tube television receiver or projector could give a larger, brighter and sharper picture with less cost, it was said. Present systems of projectors for theatre television use a large, very accurate, and expensive single tube and a finely ground, costly lens or lens system. Large images could be projected by the use of cheap, small, relatively inaccurate tubes and inexpensive lenses, under the Goldsmith patent, it was pointed out. Another factor, it was said, would be the fact that the bank of small tubes would operate at much lower voltages than the single projecting television tube. This would result in lower operating costs.

Attacked by DuMont

Allen B. DuMont, head of the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories, television affiliate of Paramount Pictures, issued a statement commenting on reports of Dr. Goldsmith's multiple tube television patent and holding that the present single tube technique was the simplest method and probably the cheapest.

Dr. C. Francis Jenkins, in some early television experiments, also had the idea of a multiple screen though different from that proposed by Dr. Goldsmith, Mr. DuMont said.

"If Dr. Goldsmith proposes to use a battery of tiny tubes, it is my personal belief that the cost of such an array will be equal or even greater than that of a corresponding single tube providing the same image size," Mr. DuMont said. "Our own long experience is that a single large tube provides the best economic and technical solution thus far."

He also remarked, "To my way of thinking, marked economy in television reception must come through a more widespread demand for receivers based on good and adequate program sources, followed by the justification of mass-produced equipment which alone can bring down the cost to popular levels."

Grant Newspaper Application

A. H. Broly, formerly an engineer with Philco Television and Radio Corporation, was appointed chief television engineer for the Balaban and Katz station being installed atop the State Lake theatre building in Chicago by William C. Eddy, head of the Balaban and Katz television station.

The Federal Communications Commission has granted the application of the Milwaukee Journal for a television station in Milwaukee. The station will operate on the 66-72 mc band, the number three television channel, with a power of one kilowatt.

The Walczak Laboratory of Springfield, Mass., has withdrawn its application for an experimental television station which was to be located in that city.

The FCC has scheduled a conference on November 29th to consider assigning definite frequencies for the exclusive use of electro-medical devices. Such action, it is hoped, will tend to eliminate much of the objectionable diathermy interference with television. Each diathermy machine, it was said, is a miniature short-wave transmitter which, at the present time, keeps on no definite band. Television authorities believe that it would be a simple matter to keep the electric devices on a particular wave length. On the other hand some doctors hold that nothing should be done which might hinder the efficiency of diathermy machines.

Seeks Television Permit

The Midland Broadcasting Company has renewed its application for a television permit for Kansas City, Mo. The company requests permission to construct a station on the number one television channel and to use 1,000 watts power.

Over 1,400,000 persons witnessed Radio Corporation of America television demonstrations at the New York and San Francisco World's Fairs during the past season, the company announced.

Ernest Colling, formerly a member of the RCA information department, has been appointed television publicity and promotion director for the National Broadcasting Company. Leif Eid has been assigned to special promotion work.

At the annual convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers and the engineering department of the Radio Manufacturing Association held in Rochester last week Dr. W. G. R. Baker, chairman of the National Television Systems Committee, predicted that after the industry group and the FCC approves a set of standards television will be put on a commercial basis.

This week the National Broadcasting Company again started to send notices of WTXB's television programs to those in the metropolitan New York area who have receivers. The original notices included a reply card and a request for grading the quality of each program. These were discontinued last July.

Call to Colors

Under a plan now being discussed between the industry's Production Defense Committee and the U. S. Army Signal Corps, motion picture workers who are drafted may be given a chance to continue their film work while in the Army.

In addition to the work being done on training films, the Signal Corps is enlarging its own motion picture facilities. Studios have been requested by Darryl Zanuck, Twentieth-Fox production head and subchairman of the committee, to notify the Research Council, of which Zanuck is chairman, of names of any employes drafted.

The Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will then notify the War Department for possible assignment of qualified draftees to the photographic division of the Signal Corps.

WHO COVERS HOLLYWOOD?

Experts who compile statistics on such matters place Hollywood second or third among the date-line cities of the world in point of number of printed stories emanating from the production center during the news year, some rating Washington and New York first and second, others denying Gotham's right to second place. Out of this state of affairs have risen estimates, varying by estimator, of the numerical strength of the press contingent covering the studios.

Revised by Jock Lawrence on his appointment as public relations counsel of the Association of Motion Picture Producers last month, the list of holders of press credentials as of November 1st breaks down as follows:

Domestic publications	293
Foreign publications	63
Radio commentators	17
Photographers	15
Total	388

Contracts Boom

Five studios, this week, awarded or renewed contracts with 10 personalities, covering the spheres of acting, directing, producing, costuming and writing. The number is one of the largest given by the studios in many weeks.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer renewed its long-term contract with Director Richard Thorpe, currently on location in New Mexico directing "Bad Man." That studio also made Charles Winninger, of "Show Boat" fame, a permanent addition to the roster by awarding him a contract. Mr. Winninger is now acting in "Ziegfeld Girl."

At Warners two contracts were extended and one new one signed. Harlan Thompson's contract as an associate producer was extended, Mr. Thompson now being engaged on "The Wagons Roll at Night." His next assignment is to be "She Stayed Kissed." Fashion designer Orry-Kelly, with Warners for 10 years, has also had his option picked up, and Olympe Bradna has been signed to a term contract. Miss Bradna was formerly under contract to Paramount.

Paramount has signed Charles Bennett to work on the script of "Reap the Wild Wind," forthcoming Cecil B. De Mille production. Mr. Bennett's last work was the collaboration on "Foreign Correspondent." S. Van Wyck Mason has been signed by Twentieth Century-Fox to do the screen play of his novel, "Bucharest Ballerina Murder."

Tim Holt, Wendy Barrie and Ruth Warrick had their options taken up by RKO Radio. Although but two of the current series of six Holt westerns have been released, the young western player has been signed for another six scheduled for the 1941-42 program. Miss Barrie has just completed the feminine lead in "The Saint in Palm Springs," and Miss Warrick the second feminine lead in "Citizen Kane."

Mickey Grows

Increased studio output, resulting from centralization of activity now that it is all under one roof, and increased emphasis on the domestic market, has occurred at the Disney plant in Burbank.

From fiscal year statements, it was stated by the studio that footage shot in 1939-40 was 200 per cent above that taken in 1938-39. The current year's activity was evident from reports that in the period from October 1st to November 1st of this year, 4,418 feet of film had been handed out and 3,753 feet shot.

Stories

For the third consecutive week, Hollywood's studios purchased three stories for filming.

George Gershwin's musical comedy, "Lady Be Good" has been bought by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a picture to be directed by Busby Berkeley and produced by Arthur Freed, who worked together on "Strike Up the Band." The picture's cast will star Eleanor Powell, Ann Sothern and Tony Martin.

Completing pre-production plans on the three pictures, they will make this season for Universal release, Frank Lloyd and Jack Skirball purchased "I, James Lewis," from Paramount, which owned the property. A novel of the sea, the book was written by Gilbert Gabriel.

For a George Weeks production, Monogram bought "Tumbledown Ranch in Arizona," an original written by William Watters. Mr. Watters' story is based on his song of the same title and is the first of a series he plans building around melodies of western universities. The Conlon-Armstrong agency handled the sale.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public.

Arizona

(Columbia)

The West in the Civil War

Producer-director Wesley Ruggles' presentation of Clarence Budington Kelland's story about Arizona in the period of the Civil War, its life, customs, problems and people, is of a kind to call up for comparison in exploitation all the greats in the annals of the screen's attentions to the West, "The Covered Wagon" not excepted. Promotion on a scale in consonance with that which the producer has provided in advance, featured by a spot-premiere at Tucson and two broadcasts from there, is warranted by the entertainment supplied in terms of history, melodrama and romance.

Dominating the picture, in story and by performance, is Jean Arthur, of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," as pie-maker, later freighter, of Tucson, 1860, only white woman in town and making her way, with rifle and pistol on occasion, in competition with the men in a man's country. Opposite her and practicing the same understatement and restraint to the same effect is William Holden, of "Golden Boy," as wanderer, later soldier, still later civilian, husband and champion of right, slated at picture's end to be father of the first white baby to be born in Arizona.

Leading the forces of villainy is Warren William, pretending to gentlemanliness of dress and occupation and given to shooting companions in the back, and Porter Hall, freighter, boss of outlaws and inciter of Indians.

Claude Binyon's screenplay opens with arrival in Tucson of a wagon-train from Missouri managed by a young man intent upon seeing California but fascinated by a young woman he finds engaged in retrieving her savings from thieves at gun-point. He continues on to California, promising to return, and does so in the uniform of a Union sergeant with a detachment which takes over protection of the settlers when Confederate troops, which had taken over in the interim, withdraw. He finds the young woman beset by troubles arising from the plotting of her competitors in the freighting business, including an alliance with Apaches who have slain her drivers and destroyed her wagons.

Arizona's switchings of allegiance from Union to Confederacy, and back, furnish a background of drama against which the incidents comprising the melodrama in which the principals are engaged is played out in relief. Incidents include the driving of a herd from Nebraska to Arizona, ambushes by Indians, encounters between individuals and, at the close, a gunfight between villian and hero staged offscreen and pictured in the face of the heroine.

Tin Pan Alley

(20th Century-Fox)

Song Hit Parade, 1915-19

All that "Alexander's Ragtime Band had save the virtue of being first of its kind "Tin Pan Alley" has, plus a timeliness in its revival of such songs as "America I Love You" and "Goodbye Broadway Hello France" which proved its effectiveness by producing waves of applause on the occasion of its preview in Hollywood.

These numbers and "Katy" in a score utilizing many a hit of yesteryear and a new Mack Gordon-Harry Warren number for which the first nighters were predicting No. 1 position on the Hit Parade, had the audience talking to itself and in a mood to join the colors on the spot. Whatever else this phenomena may portend, it was accepted by press and professions in attendance as guarantee of grosses in the "Alexander" tradition.

Alice Faye, heroine of "Alexander" and No. 7 in the MOTION PICTURE HERALD-FAME exhibitor poll of money taking stars of 1939, is heroine of this picture in a role of like pattern. This time she adds to the singing of songs a bit of dancing thereto, sharing two numbers with Betty Grable, the songs being Hawaiian and Turkish, the costumes and execution to match. John Payne and Jack Oakie, doing straight and comic, supply the male side of the equation.

The period is 1915-19 and the scene New York, with Tin Pan Alley reproduced with a fidelity to make the middle-aged homesick, a shift to London occurring late in the picture. The Robert Ellis-Helen Logan script of Pamela Harris' story traces the rise, fall and rebound of a boxer and a hoofer in the music publishing business, supplying a framework and background for the musical content without cramping the score in behalf of plausibility.

The film was produced by Kenneth MacGowan on a scale befitting the repute of "Alexander" and directed by Walter Lang in a manner to point up the musical highlights.

Escape to Glory

War Stalks the Ship Lanes

This is a tale of life and death on a freighter, one day out of Liverpool when war was declared. It is not the tale of the "Athenia" and the ship does not go down, though the submarine that attacks it does. The ship is British, the passengers are Americans and the submarine is German. But the issues of the war are not tried in the picture. On the contrary, it is the effect upon the lives of the persons present, of the dangers thrust upon them that provides the film with melodrama.

It is a company mixed by circumstances that finds itself aboard the freighter. Pat O'Brien playing an American officer of fortune, John Halliday a district attorney who has used his office for purposes of gangsterism, Alan Baxter, a gangster out to kill him in reprisal for a wrong. Constance Bennett as the official's secretary, Erwin Kalser, a German doctor, torn between ethics and love of fatherland, many

"BUSINESS BEFORE

(Christmas will take care of itself)

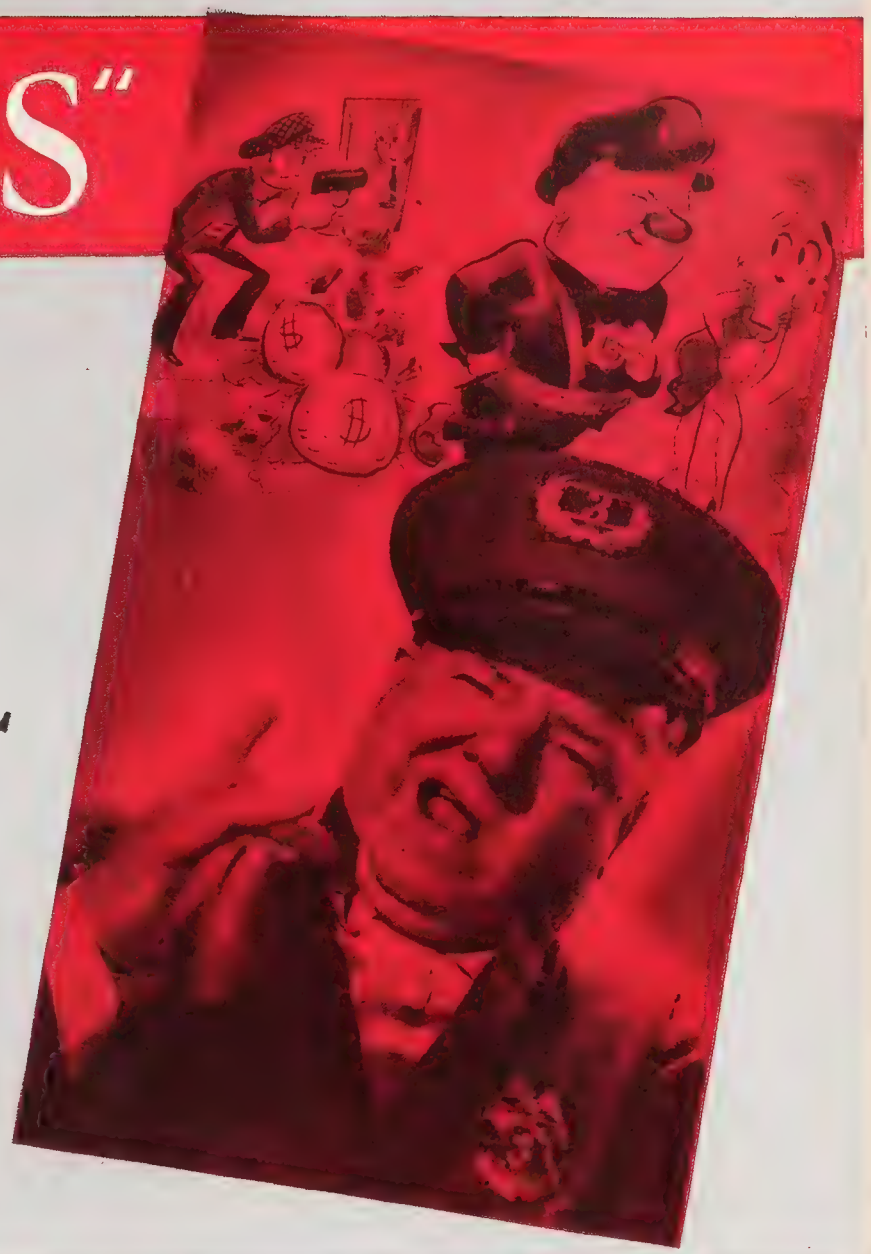
When the exhibitors, who now head Universal, operated theatres, they knew that everyone was a great showman on Christmas Day. But they also knew that Christmas Week profits disappeared into thin air after the pre-Christmas expenses were deducted. It was only natural therefore that their motto should be "Business Before Christmas"!



They fought for the best pictures they could get and they campaigned them with all their energy and resources—AND any number of times they licked the old bugaboo about pre-Christmas slumps; they did business!

Today, as distributors, these men feel the same way about it. To every real showman in America they say: "Tell tradition to take a sneak! Here are two of our most important pictures. In star value, in production, in every detail, they have potentiality for high grosses NOW, before Christmas! You'll get one of these on November 28th; you'll get the other on December 13th! Prints are ready! Campaigns are ready! And business is ready—always ready—if you've got pictures like 'The Bank Dick' and 'Trail of the Vigilantes'."

Go out and get those dollars that are waiting for you between now and December 25th!

another. They react in as many ways to the circumstances they encounter.

D. J. Wolfson's screen play from the story by Sidney Biddell and Frederic Frank opens with embarkation for New York on the night before war is declared. Two days out the ship is halted to take on guns. A submarine appears and shots are exchanged, the U boat losing its periscope and stalking the ship by sound until it heaves to, by short wave signals supplied by a German aboard until he is discovered, after which the short wave transmitter is placed aboard a small boat carrying death charges which lures the sub away and explodes it at sacrifice of the gangster, his quarry and a British seaman. Between these peaks of action lies the period of suspense in which the characters portray their reactions.

Directed by John Brahm and produced by Samuel Bischoff, the film stresses realism, suspense and thrill, stops short of propaganda.

Melody Ranch

(Republic)

Autry's $500,000 "Western"

Republic has here Mr. Autry's first half-million production, sprinkled liberally with singable music and comedy sequences, action shots for those seeking such entertainment; mountain scenery, good direction, and a widened appeal.

Jimmy Durante as the western star's stooge is ably abetted by Barbara Allen, the "Vera Vague" of radio. Ann Miller, remembered for her performance as the ballet dancer in "You Can't Take It With You," is properly photogenic as "Julie," a Park Avenue deb.

Autry is a popular radio star, who returns to his home town, Torpedo, as guest of honor at the Frontier Days Celebration. He accepts the post of honorary sheriff, also, to counteract reports that he is going high hat.

Autry's broadcast is cut off the air by three roistering childhood enemies, after he protests against their shooting up a saloon and endangering children attending the broadcast.

Humiliated because Hollywood's easy life has softened him and made him unable to hold his own with his assailants, Autry resolves to get into condition and, after a difficult regimen of exercise, is ready for his final test with his enemies. He rounds them up, gives them a single-handed thrashing and compels them to sing on his broadcast.

Meanwhile, he decides to abandon the radio to run for sheriff so that he can clean up the town. Then ensues a gun-battle in which one of Autry's friends is slain. The latter then secures evidence linking the perpetrators to the crime, after another exciting gun-battle.

Possessing many exploitation angles, the picture has been tied in with the Gene Autry radio show, aired by CBS over 67 stations from coast to coast. The radio program titled, "Melody Ranch," was the inspiration for the picture.

Hold That Woman

(Producers)

Comedy-Melodrama

Comedy and melodrama vie for top honors in this film, which has to do with the adventures of an operative of an agency that specializes in re-claiming merchandise, purchased on installments and his girl friend. It is an easy-going, unpretentious film that has its amusing moments.

James Dunn is the star of the production with Frances Gifford, his constant companion in a chase involving a radio and stolen jewels.

"Jimmy Parker," the quick-witted collector, is sent to re-claim a radio for lack of payment. "Lulu Driscoll," a gun moll of sorts, has secreted stolen jewels in the radio and is reluctant to part with it and succeeds in having "Jimmy" jailed for illegal entry. Freed from jail "Jimmy" continues the chase after the radio, interrupted by his courtship of "Mary." "Jimmy" gets the radio and the jewels, not to mention a big reward and the girl.

Texas Terrors

(Republic)

Western Melodrama

George Sherman, producer-director, brings to the screen for Republic another in the series of action pictures starring Donald "Red" Barry whose acting ability was first noticed in "Wyoming Outlaw." In this Barry continues his competent performance which has won for him his own series of pictures for the company.

Based on an original screen play by Doris Schroeder and Anthony Coldewey the story concerns "Bob Millbourn," a young lawyer, who returns to a town under an assumed name to avenge the death of his parents. Upon his return he finds that the local government is still being run by the same ruthless business men who caused his parents' death and that these same business men, through illegal contracts and land grants, force the townspeople and miner to purchase supplies at exorbitant prices from the politicians. Ridding the community of the undesirable individuals and unethical business practices opens the way for much adventure and action for all concerned with justice triumphant and law and order established at the end.

In supporting roles are Julie Duncan offering the romantic interest to the picture, Arthur Loft as the corrupt politician and leader of the outlaws, and Al St. John returning to a featured role and handling the comedy element of the picture.

Remedy for Riches

(RKO-Stephens-Lang)

Comedy

The Dr. Christian series continues with "Remedy for Riches," a motion picture which exceeds perhaps, its predecessors in comedy. It is a story of an apparently wealthy youth attempting to swindle the residents of River's End in a fake oil well scheme, and of "Dr. Christian's" efforts to defeat the scheme. Concurrently the kindly doctor engages in an attempt to bake a cake.

Jean Hersholt as "Dr. Christian," Dorothy Lovett as "Judy," and Robert Baldwin as "Roy Davis" and Maude Eburne are the cast's regulars, while Edgar Kennedy, Jed Prouty, Walter Catlett, Warren Hull, Margaret McWade, Halline Hill, and Renie Riano are the supporting players.

Higgins Family—New Faces

The first thing noticeable about this newest Higgins Family film is the face shifting that has been done to the cast. Instead of the Gleason tribe of James, Lucile and Russell, who had become quite at home in this domestic comedy series, Roscoe Karns, Ruth Donnelly, Spencer Charters and George Ernest play "Joe, Lil, Grandpa and Sidney" Higgins, respectively. Lois Ranson continues as daughter "Betty." The substitutes are well able to succeed to the positions vacated in this family portrait sitting. The material remains substantially the same with the homespun humors of the previous Higgins productions predominant.

Trouble comes to the "Higgins" home when son "Sidney" momentarily loses some business bonds and the family attempts to raise money to replace the loss. "Grandpa" offers to accept the matrimonial proposal of the wealthy "Widow Jones." He pens a romantic ditty and, when a cash sum seems about to be realized without "Grandpa" having to sell himself into love bondage, "Father Higgins" attempts to retrieve the epistle. The gallant gesture only succeeds in creating more difficulties as "Joe" becomes involved with a blonde and her jealous boy friend, the suspicious "Mrs. Higgins" and a doubtful boss. Complications become too stiff for "Grandpa" and his son-in-law and they set out for the cooling climate of the North Pole. However, a broadcast picked up in an Eskimo igloo informs "Joe" and "Grandpa" that all is well with the "Higginses," as the bonds have been found and "Lil" is convinced the marital mixups have been pure coincidences.

The Great Plane Robbery

(Columbia)

Air Melodrama

Produced by Larry Damour for Columbia "The Great Plane Robbery" is a melodrama of a modern air transport and racketeers who steal the plane and kidnap its passengers in an effort to force one of the victims—an ex-racketeer and convict—to divulge the hiding place of a supposedly hidden fortune.

Jack Holt is starred in the picture as the insurance investigator assigned by his company to protect the life of the ex-convict, portrayed by Noel Madison, who is heavily insured, while Stanley Fields is the leader of the criminal ring and offers an impressive performance as the egomaniac who holds the plane's crew and passengers on a deserted ranch until the money is found. Through the ingenuity of the special investigator, the racketeers are caught in their own trap.

Directed by Lewis D. Collins and based on a story by Harold Greene there is an underlying keynote of suspense and some action. Romance, what little there is, is supplied by Vicki Lester as the airline hostess and Granville Owen as the co-pilot of the transport. Hobart Cavanaugh, as the meek shoe salesman, handles most of the comedy and aids the group in capturing the gang.

Barnyard Follies

(Republic)

Novelty Musical Comedy

Offering personalities enlisted from radio, performing in consonance with Hollywood actors, this musical comedy staged in a barnyard affords showmen a number of selling angles. It is at bottom a story about an orphanage whose manager, under pressure for financing his charges in farming projects under a Four H Club setup, inherits a nightclub and with it responsibility for employing on the farm the personnel thereof. Solution of problems which multiply as the story progresses is achieved by the youngsters when they stage a show in the barn, to which multitudes have been attracted by a fire.

Radio personalities featured are Harry Cheshire, star of a St. Louis airshow from which the film takes its title, The Cackle Sisters, from the WLS National Barn Dance program, The Kidoodlers, NBC foursome, Isabel Randolph, the Mrs. Uppington of the Al Pearce show, and Jim Jeffries, Texas Network announcer. Rufe Davis and Mary Lee lead the Hollywood contingent.

Seven musical numbers are performed in the course of the picture, all in the character and spirit of the scene.

The Merry Wives

(A. B. Film - Lloyd)

Czech Cuckoldry

The prolonged contact which this Czech film experienced with New York censors may be a reason for its present disjointed state. In its revised form, deemed safe enough for screening to Empire State audiences without the danger of corrupting public morality, the production, picturing in part the career of a patriot-philanderer is a muddled and sluggish affair.

Placed in Czecho-Slovakia and timed around the sixteenth century, the story pictures "Count Dachisky" as quite a ladies' man who forsakes a career of a profligate to become a patriot and thus free his country of foreign invaders who are milking dry the government treasuries. The Count's political sentiments, particularly as phrased in his poetic promulgations, sound a sad and pertinent note, especially significant in the light of current Czech history.

To translate the foreign dialogue, an adequate supply of obviously intentioned English titles are appended.

Seen at an afternoon showing at the Bryant Theatre in New York City where a medium sized audience sat through the performance stolidly except for an occasional burst of male guffawing over some indication of the film's double meaning depiction.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.

Produced by A. B. Films, Prague, Czecho-Slovakia. Distributed in the United States by Edgar E. Lloyd. Story, Zdenek Stepanek. Scenario and direction by Otakar Vavra. Cameraman, Jan Roth. Music, Jaroslav Kricka. Running time, 85 minutes. Release date, November 11, 1940. Adult classification.

March of Time, No. 4, Vol. VII

(RKO Radio)

Arms and the Men—U. S. A.

The most recent issue of March of Time brings to the screen the country's rapidly expanding army and other phases of the nation's huge defense program. The cinema-reportorial job is complete and concise, taking the audience within the boundaries of a newly established army training camp and showing how the youth of America will be disciplined, trained and molded into a powerful defensive fighting force. The film also shows, step by step, how the various industries throughout the United States have been utilized in the production of weapons, machines and munitions under the defense program which will give the country—in a few years—an army of five million active and reserve troops, a two-ocean navy, and an air force of some 50,000 planes. The specialized tasks of the various branches of service are explained and sham battles and army maneuvers as shown.—Running time, 19 minutes.

$3 THEATRE GIVEAWAY IN NATIONAL CAMPAIGN

Silex Coffee Percolator Offered Patrons Buying Ticket Books; Film, Other Advertising Used

Giveaways are moving from the single butter dish or ruby glass tumbler offered by one theatre toward country-wide campaigns with national merchandisers participating. Added to others, of recent vintage, is the promotion devised by M. R. Daytz, head of United Theatre Promotions, newly organized company in Philadelphia, a city rapidly attaining the status of the home of the national giveaway.

The promotion is the giveaway of a Silex coffee percolator now being offered in and around Philadelphia by 24 independent theatres. It is a standard $2.95 item of merchandise made available to the patron upon buying a $3 booklet of tickets to the particular theatre on the adult evening admission scale.

National Campaign Planned

The only charge to the patron is 30 cents to cover the cost of handling and shipping. To the exhibitor, the cost is equivalent to what he has been in the habit of paying for premiums.

The campaign for Silex will be carried on nationally, offered for one month in a territory and moving into a different territory three weeks later. From Philadelphia, the campaign moves to New York, then to New England and finally across the country to San Francisco. Other national advertisers are being lined up b United Theatre Promotions. Philco and General Electric are said to be interested.

The theatres cooperating in the Philadelphi territory include the Apollo, Hamilton, Cedar, Chelten, New Lyric, Broad, Tioga, Crest, Regal, Tyson, Admiral and Colonial in Philadelphia; Roxborough and Wissahicken in the Philadelphia suburban section; Seville, Bryn Mawr, Pa.; Bristol, Bristol, Pa.; Liberty, Camden, N. J.; Wood, Woodbury, N. J.; Stanley, Bridgeton, N. J.; Criterion, Moorestown, N. J.; Broadway, Bridgeport, Pa., and the Fox theatres in Bordentown, Riverside and Mt. Holly N. J.

Coffee Company Cooperates

The Chase and Sanborn coffee company is cooperating in the promotion, demonstrating in the lobby of the theatres how the coffee percolator is used. There are tie-ups with cooking schools in the territory, heralds announcing the giveaways are distributed door-to-door, and radio and newspaper advertising used. In addition to the leading newspapers, 42 neighborhood newspapers are used. A Silex trailer is shown on the screen.

The radio will also be used to exploit the giveaway. WIP and WFIL are alternately employed for the three spot announcements daily during the month's campaign in Philadelphia.

The campaign was to be extended next to the New York area. Spot radio announcements have been contracted for on WHN and WEEI, the latter station in Jersey City, N. J., but covering the New York metropolitan area.

The entire advertising and promotion program for the campaign is being handled by Solis S. Cantor Advertising Agency of Philadelphia.

New Radio Game

Philadelphia exhibitors are disturbed over the introduction of "Zing-O," a new radio game with cash awards sponsored by the Philadelphia Daily News on WIP. "Zing-O" has the listeners mark off sound effects heard during a dramatic skit on blanks published in the newspaper. It similarity to Bingo in name and procedure in playing, has exhibitors, who are restrained from offering Bingo and similar money games, hoping that they can return to the games. The Daily News offers $1,000 in cash awards for its weekly contest, a transcribed and syndicated feature.

Exhibitors are also pointing to the fact that Bingo playing has been introduced in many of the super markets in the Philadelphia area, the games being played at stated intervals at the various stores. While the store games are heavily advertised as "Bingo" the legal objections are apparently removed by the fact that no player need buy anything to play and the awards are in foodstuffs instead of money.

Spokane Giveaway Suit

Six independent theatre owners of Spokane, Wash., have filed suit against the Evergreen Theatres, Inc., asking a restraining order to stop the practice at the Orpheum theatre of giving away cash, books, candy bars and jewelry as an attendance stimulant. E. W. Baker, Evergreen city manager, and William Seale, Orpheum theatre manager, are made defendants.

The complaint filed by R. E. Lowe, counsel for the independents, charges these acts violate the unfair trade practices acts and asks a temporary injunction during the pendency of the action.

The independent theatres are the Granada, Bandbox, Rainbo, Unique, Ritz and Empress owned respectively by Howard Amusement Company, W. E. Waverly, Harry C. Luft, A. P. Mitchell, Cecil D. Miller and H. A. Black.

Mayor Edward Kelly of Chicago has ordered the police department to investigate Bingo Clubs, which exhibitors claim are hurting their business.

The Essaness circuit, Chicago, has decided to continue premiums in its Chicago theatres and has made a deal for a 20-piece earthenware oven set, already used in six of the circuit's Chicago houses.

Despite a state supreme court ruling holding Bingo to be a lottery, games continue to flourish in Beaver Dam, Wis., with a dozen games advertised in a single issue of the local newspaper at many different halls on five nights in the week. Penny games are apparently among the most popular. Reports from around the state indicate that organizations which had suspended the games following the high court's ruling a number of months ago, are again operating.

Bingo, forbidden in motion pictures in the province of Quebec, but until now permitted in aid of churches and charities, has been removed from the list of competing amusements by a decision of Archbishop Joseph Charbonneau, of Montreal.

Complaints from various sources, it is said, resulted in the action. Many had protested that some players were in the habit of jeopardizing their relief allowances in the hope of winning the cash awards offered by some parochial organizations.

The Nebraska supreme court has been asked to make some finding in the case of W. W. Wenstrand, city solicitor of Omaha, against the Omaha Motion Picture Exhibitors Association in the matter of Prosperity Clubs. Mr. Wenstrand was denied in municipal court in Omaha, and is after an injunction from the state body in Lincoln, charging the game is a thinly disguised step-child of the now outlawed Bank Night.

Through a tieup with the H&M Bakery Company, in Mansfield, Ohio, the Park, a subsequent run double feature house, is accepting five bread wrappers and one paid ticket for two admissions to any Thursday showing. Patrons may have the wrappers redeemed for a ticket at designated grocery stores, if desired.

WILKES-BARRE HAS FIFTY BINGO GAMES

Approximately 50 Bingo games are being run weekly in the Wilkes-Barre area, about 38 of which advertise regularly in the local newspapers, it was disclosed this week. Friday and Sunday are the most popular days.

Chief of Police Eugene T. Weatherly has announced that an aggregate of 308,538 persons attended 253 licensed Bingo games in Cincinnati last month. Gross receipts were $222,818.29; prizes, $54,246.98, leaving net receipts to sponsoring organizations of $168,571.31. The average net cost per player was 54.8 cents, as compared with 57.3 cents for September this year.

Theatre Roof Caves In

A score of persons were injured, none seriously, and damages estimated at between $150,000 to $200,000 were incurred when the roof of the first-run Alvin-Harris Theatre, Pittsburgh, collapsed, last Thursday, November 14th. The number of injured was kept low because Manager William Zeilor, who observed the roof beginning to sag, got all the patrons to the rear of the theatre before the roof collapsed. The theatre will be closed three or four months.

Coca Cola in Warner Houses

Twenty Warner theatres in Chicago and Philadelphia have installed Coca Cola dispensing equipment, according to Harold Rodner, theatre department executive, who returned recently from visits to the two cities. The equipment was installed by the Beverage Dispensing Company, Newark. The new equipment augments candy vending machines which were already in use in the theatres.

Cuba to Enforce Block-booking Ban

Notwithstanding efforts of U. S. distributors to have the Cuban Government repeal the anti-block-booking law, no agreement has been reached and the statute is now in effect, it was learned in New York this week.

The law was originally to have gone into effect October 18th, when the new administration took office. Through intervention of the U. S. distributors, who sought to have the law repealed or amended, the Cuban Government consented to a 30-day postponement. No agreement having been reached in the meantime, the Cuban law automatically became effective.

According to advices received in home office foreign departments in New York, the distributors are servicing accounts not affected by the law. New contracts are being accepted for completed releases on hand in Cuba, but no contracts are being made beyond January 1st; also no "spot" bookings are being accepted.

This policy would indicate that there is still hope for the repeal of the statute on the part of U. S. distributors, it was said.

Delaware Blue Law Application Extended

Delaware's 144-year-old Sunday blue laws, which have been under fire for the past two years since the defeat of a proposed Sabbath movie bill and fining of a Rehoboth Beach theatreman, were applied to bowling establishments and skating rinks over the week-end as Attorney General James R. Morford in Wilmington, ordered State Police to take action against known violators.

Following numerous complaints, particularly in and near Wilmington, about violators of the ancient Sunday statutes, Mr. Morford forwarded to Supt. Norman R. Purnell of State Police a list of establishments, including bowling alleys and skating rinks, which have been operating on the Sabbath. No arrests were made, however.

At the same time, the attorney general wrote the Rev. Ralph L. Minker of Wilmington, chairman of the special legislative commission appointed at the last session of the legislature to study possible modernization measures, listing possible steps of modernizing the old statutes and pointing out that "we both feel that this statute (blue laws) is obsolete, unenforcible, and entirely out of step with modern life and the accepted activities of the people living in our present community."

New York Hospital Fund Drive Aided by Film

Making use of the documentary technique of film production rather than the direct appeal method March of Time has produced a one-reel subject entitled "A First Line of Defense" in connection with the current drive by the United Hospital Fund.

The various types of work done by the voluntary hospitals in New York City including the training of some fifteen hundred young physicians each year, the training facilities provided for nurses, the operations of the medical research departments and clinics throughout the city and the many other services rendered to the public are depicted in the subject.

The film was prepared by the staff of March of Time under the personal supervision of Roy E. Larsen, Chairman of the Campaign Committee in the fund drive and President of Time, Inc. The film will be available to New York theatres without charge.

New California Circuit

S. Charles Lee, Hollywood theatre architect, is completing plans for new theatres in Fort Bragg, Ukiah, Eureka, Dinuba and Modesto. The project is receiving Hollywood financial backing and will have local partnerships. Each unit will cost about $35,000. Work on the first house started October 21st at Dinuba.

Stage Shows in Steady Advance

Stage shows continue to show a steady advance from week to week. In the east there is a considerable scattering of houses either billing stage shows for the first time or increasing their allotment.

The Academy of Music, a Skouras house on 14th Street, New York, is presenting a stage show on each Tuesday and Wednesday in addition to films. There will be no advance in prices.

RKO Adds Shows

Stage shows have been added to the weekly programs at RKO's Coliseum, Royal and Hamilton theatres, "Name" bands, augmented by specialty attractions, are presented every Tuesday and Wednesday night at the RKO Coliseum, and vaudeville at the Royal Tuesday nights and the Hamilton Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. Five acts of vaudeville will be offered at both the Royal and Hamilton on the nights mentioned.

Two other RKO houses, the Temple, Rochester, N. Y., and the Grand, Albany, N. Y., are now presenting vaudeville. The former plays full week shows about twice a month and the latter full week shows once a month. RKO's Strand, Syracuse, continues its elastic vaudeville policy. The theatre plays shows anywhere from three days to a full week, depending on the availability of talent.

The Comerford circuit is expanding its vaudeville policy in several Pennsylvania towns. The stage of the Feeley theatre, Hazelton, has been enlarged to accommodate two-day-a-week shows while plans are in work to inaugurate vaudeville at the Hippodrome, Pottsville, and the Strand, Carlisle. The first year of the three-day-a-week stage shows has been completed at the Irving, Wilkes-Barre, and the Family, Scranton.

Loew's, Inc., has booked vaudeville for Wednesdays at the Lowe-Poli, Waterbury, Conn.

Loew's Cleveland officials have not guaranteed 20 week's work to local stagehands, as demanded so there will be no spot booking of stage shows at Loew's State in Cleveland this season.

Resumes Show in St. Louis

The Fanchon and Marco deluxe Fox theatre in St. Louis has resumed stage shows.

Nate Platt will supervise Balaban and Katz stage bookings, formerly handled by the late Max Turner, until a new chief booker is appointed.

Fox Wisconsin has spotted vaudeville in a number of Milwaukee neighborhood houses on Sundays. Matinee and evening performances have been given at the circuit's Paradise, Zenith, Venetian and Riviera in addition to the regular dual bill at no increase in prices.

The Roxy theatre, in Atlanta, operated by Meyer hotel interests, has added vaudeville. The theatre is featuring "name" bands.

Leading entertainers who will be in Miami this Winter will be featured in stage presentations at the Olympia and at the new Paramount theatre at Miami Beach. Stage shows in addition to regular film policy will be featured through the season.

The 4,000-seat Arena theatre in New Haven will discontinue regular weekly vaudeville shows on Sundays until after the ice hockey season. The Bijou now has the only vaudeville show in town.

MARTIN BECK, ORPHEUM CIRCUIT FOUNDER, DIES

Built Palace Theatre, Mecca of Vaudeville Stars; Director of RKO Stage Shows

Martin Beck, who built the Palace theatre, on Broadway, once the goal of all vaudeville actors, died in Mount Sinai Hospital, New York, Saturday, November 16th, after an operation for a stomach ailment. The producer and manager, whose career dates back to his childhood appearances in Shakespearean roles on the German stage, was about 71 years old.

Orpheum President in 1920

Mr. Beck became president of the Orpheum Circuit, Inc., in 1920, and was associated with Keith-Albee-Orpheum and Radio-Keith-Orpheum in the ensuing years. In 1932 he acted for RKO in making a survey of its theatre interests. He also was managing director of RKO vaudeville and an adviser in inaugurating the shows at the Center theatre in Rockefeller Center. He resigned from RKO in 1933 and built the Martin Beck theatre, a legitimate playhouse, in New York.

Long before he built the Palace theatre, now a film theatre, in 1913 or his own Byzantine structure that defied theatrical tradition west of Eighth Avenue, Martin Beck had attained fortune and some fame as founder of the Orpheum circuit, which he headed for 27 years.

An immigrant, his career followed a familiar pattern, except that he always managed to keep hidden the place and date of his birth. His associates believe he was older than the 71 years credited to him in "Who's Who in American Jewry," the only record book into which his birth date seems to have crept. There it is given as 1869.

He was born somewhere in what until recently was Czecho-Slovakia, went to school in Vienna, and after acting experience with a Shakespearean traveling troupe in Germany, arrived in New York when he was about 18 years old.

His first experience in this country was with a group of German actors with whom he went to Chicago where he soon was jobless. In that city a friendly proprietor of a biergarten let him put on a show on an improvised stage, a show which turned out to be a success.

Traveling to San Francisco he opened his first theatre, the Orpheum Concert Hall, in 1889. From the management of this playhouse grew the Orpheum circuit that numbered some 60 or more theatres, headed by Mr. Beck and dominating the variety scene west of Chicago, when Mr. Beck returned to New York in 1907 to book acts there.

Warred with Keith-Albee

This precipitated a war with the dominant Keith-Albee interests, which was settled when the Palace began taking Keith acts. The theatre became the paradise of all vaudeville actors. Ed Wynn was on the first bill shown. Later Charlie Chaplin made his first American appearance there and Buster Keaton had his start on its stage. Other headliners included the four Marx Brothers, Gallagher & Shean, Douglas Fairbanks, Nazimova, Beatrice Lillie, the sisters Ponselle, Fannie Brice, Sophie Tucker, Will Rogers and Elsie Janis. In 1923 Mr. Beck gave up active interest in the Palace.

Mr. Beck figured in several litigations. Hope Hampton sued him and Charles Dillingham for $36.000 for removing her from the leading role of "Madame Pompadour" before it opened. Last year he was the central figure in the trial of his nephew's wife, Mrs. Lillian Schrein, his former secretary, who was convicted of forgery and theft of $60,000 from the Beck theatrical interests. Mrs. Schrein made accusations against her uncle-in-law which he denied. She was sentenced to two to four years in prison.

MARTIN BECK

Served Producers' Group

In recent years Mr. Beck had been interested and active in the affairs of the League of New York Theatres, the producers' organization, of which he was a member of the board of governors. Lately he had been a member of a subcommittee studying the code to prevent ticket-scalping. He also was a member of the national panel of arbitrators of the American Arbitration Association.

Funeral services were held Monday in the Campbell Funeral Church, New York. Burial took place in the Martin Beck Mausoleum in the Salem Field Cemetery in the Cypress Hill section of Brooklyn.

Honorary pallbearers included John Golden, Harry G. Somers, J. J. Murdock, Guthrie McClintic, Marcus Heiman, Lee Shubert, William A. Brady, Sam H. Harris, Vinton Freedley, Harry T. Sommers, Gilbert Miller, Brock Pemberton, Al Lewis, Rowland Stebbins, Lawrence Langner, Max Gordon, Herman Shumlin, Dwight Deere Wiman, Lester Meyer, James F. Reilly, Milton R. Weinberger and Louis Lotito, manager of the Martin Beck theatre.

Mrs. Louise P. Heims Beck, Mr. Beck's second wife, and two daughters, Mrs. Nicholas Ransohoff of New York and Mrs. Paul Ladin of Los Angeles, survive. Mr. Beck's first wife died several years ago.

Charles J. Welsman

Charles J. Welsman, 75, Toronto exhibitor, died there November 12th. He owned and operated the Brighton and Le Plaza. Prominent in musical circles, he was organizer and first leader of the Governor General's Bodyguard Band.

Ben Kaufman

Ben Kaufman, for 22 years representative of Regal Films, Montreal, distributors of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, died November 13th in Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal.

Harry MacFayden, of NBC Production Staff, Dies

Harry MacFayden, a production director for the National Broadcasting Company for the last eight years and an actor and director who had been associated with the American stage for almost 40 years, died November 13th at the Flower and Fifth Avenue Hospitals after a brief illness. He was 59.

In 1929 Mr. MacFayden became a director in Hollywood for Universal and assisted in the production of "All Quiet on the Western Front." His adaptation of "The Trojan Woman" for radio was included among the best broadcasts of 1938 and 1939.

Sam Flax, 53, Republic Franchise Holder, Dead

Sam Flax, one of the Republic franchise holders in Washington, D. C., dropped dead Sunday, November 17th, while attending a football game in Griffith Park. He was 53. He is survived by his brother, Jake, who was his co-franchise holder in Republic; Mrs. Flax and two sons, one 19 and the other 16, and two sisters.

Funeral services were held at Danzansky's Funeral Parlor, Washington, Tuesday. G. C. Schaefer, vice-president and treasurer of Republic, attended the services.

Carl Murphy

Carl Murphy, 29, of the staff of Loew's theatre, Montreal, died at his home in Chester Basin, N. S., November 15th after an illness of six weeks.

Sade Carr

Sade Carr, 51, known to Broadway years ago as one of the first Ziegfeld Follies beauties and as a screen actress in the early days of the screen, died November 17th at Carmel, Cal. She played with Charlie Chaplin in early films.

Affie Weaver

Affie Weaver, 85, died November 18th at her home in New York. She appeared for many years on the stage. In private life she was known as Mrs. Horace McVicker.

IN COURTS

Testimony Concluded In Adorno Case

Testimony has been completed in the suit for $269,000 damages and an injunction, against Salvatore Adorno to restrain him from Middletown, Conn., theatre operations, which had been conducted for the past six week in the Middlesex County Superior Court. Plaintiffs are S & S Theatre Corp., and Middlesex Theatre, Inc., operators of the Capitol and Middlesex, with whom Mr. Adorno was formerly associated as partner and general manager. Attorneys for both sides were expected to sum up and file briefs before Judge Ernest Simpson, Friday.

Trust Suit Adjourned

Federal Judge Patrick T. Sone, who has been presiding at the $1,472,000 damage suit, under the anti-trust laws, of the LaCrosse Theatres Co., in the U. S. District Court at Madison, Wisc., against Paramount, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists, Welworth Theatre Co., and the Minnesota Amusement Co., has adjourned the trial until after January 1st. The trial had been in progress six days before adjournment.

Mexican Producers Get Circuit Backing

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

The Calderon Brothers, operators of a Spanish language film theatre circuit in the American southwest, have advanced $35,000 towards the production of 10 films to be made in Mexico by Mexican producers. This money, the most important that has been put into the Mexican industry in a long time, seems to assure the completion of the 10 films by the end of this year.

Toledano Abandoning Politics

The Mexican picture industry is breathing a bit easier with the announcement by Vicente Lombardo Toledano, long Mexico's labor czar, that he will be through with politics for keeps when he relinquishes his position as head of the Confederation of Mexican Workers late this month. Mr. Toledano is expected to be succeeded by Fidel Velasquez, now the organization's press agent.

The labor boss said that he will not accept any cabinet or other post in the government of President-elect Avila Camacho, who is slated to take office December 1st. Mr. Toledano also said that he is even leaving Mexico. He intends to go to South America in December for a long vacation.

The industry had feared that the labor czar, even though officially out of control of the Confederation, would continue to influence Mexican politics.

Old Theatres Passing

Two of Mexico's oldest theatres, both called Principal, one here, dating from 1752, the other in Guanajuato City, a central mining camp, which opened in 1788, have gone with the wind. The Mexico City Principal, which since 1931 has been a cinema, is to give way to a skyscraper office-stores building.

The Principal in Guanajuato City, which ran as a cinema from 1916 to 1921, is being converted into a garage as its owners decided that the aged theatre would be more profitable at the service of automobilists than at that of film patrons.

The British Olympic News Reel, a newcomer in Mexico City, is doing so well that it is being featured by several cinemas. This demonstrates a pro-British swing on the part of Mexicans. The newsreel is frequently applauded.

The local Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer office recently held a private exhibition of "Gone With the Wind" at the Cine Iris with Senora Amalia S. Cardenas, wife of the President, as guest of honor.

Rosendahl Joins Handy

Henry Rosendahl, scenario writer, playwright and novelist, has been appointed a member of the sales convention department of the Jam Handy Organization, according to President Jamison Handy. The writer will apply showmanship in sales conventions for business groups in the national field, Mr. Handy announced.

New Theatre Company

J. S. Duss and associates have formed the St. Johns Amusement Corporation at Jacksonville, Fla.

To Release Five Features

Film Alliance, Inc., of New York, announced, this week, the next five pictures for release as follows: Paul Lukas and Jane Baxter in "The Chinese Bungalow;" John Lodge and Diana Churchill in "Sensation;" Jack Buchanan and Elsie Randolph in "Larceny Street;" Basil Radford and Silvia St. Claire in "Secret Journey," and Ian Hunter and Mary Newland in "Death At a Broadcast."

Richmond Signs Armetta

Henry Armetta has been signed to a four picture deal by T. H. Richmond Productions, which will release through Producers Releasing Corporation, headed by Harry Rathner.

Form Film Society

Historical films dating back to 1895, from the collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York, have been made available to the newly organized Film Society of Philadelphia. The society, backed by socialites, will present a series of six programs for members only during the winter.

Stage Financing Pact Concluded

A resume of the agreement between the Dramatists Guild and New York League of Theatres, which became effective last week, by which motion picture companies are enabled to finance plays prior to their Broadway opening, contains nine basic sections, as follows:

1—A formula for arriving at payments for motion picture rights.

2—A formula governing rights to close a play.

3—Rules governing the release of a motion picture from a play financed by a motion picture company.

4—Provides for payment of $5,000 by a motion picture company backing a play as advance royalty against the purchase price.

5—An escape clause which gives the motion picture company the right to withdraw backing from a play within two weeks after opening.

6—Gives motion picture companies right to acquire rights, prior to New York opening if play runs at least 12 consecutive weeks.

7—Provides a ceiling of $200,000 in payments by motion picture company for picture rights. After this sum is reached, picture payments are limited to 50 per cent of the weekly profits of the play.

8—Creation of a concession committee, appointed by the Dramatists Guild, to make special concessions, wherever circumstances warrant.

9—Creation of a Permanent Board of Arbitrators, consisting of an author, manager and motion picture company emissary to pass on matters requiring quick arbitration.

The agreement, signed for one year, as an experiment, may become part of the minimum basic agreement, negotiated by the Dramatists' Guild and the League of New York Theatres, which, in effect since March 1, 1936, expires March 1, 1941, and will be renewed.

Official text is in the hands of printers and is expected to be released by the Dramatists' Guild, next week.

"Academy" Books Vaudeville

The Academy of Music, on 14th Street, Manhattan, was to have inaugurated a policy of stage shows, in addition to films, on Tuesday, this week, and every Tuesday and Wednesday thereafter, at no advance in admission prices. Three shows daily are planned. The initial show will feature Louis Prima and the second week's bill will headline Ella Fitzgerald. The plan was tried on Election Day with Teddy Powell's Band and was so successful, that it was decided to continue.

Photographic Exports Drop

Exports of photographic and projection goods in September declined from the same month of last year, the Department of Commerce reports. The September, 1940, export figure is $1,100,000 compared to $1,408,000 for September, 1939. For the nine months ending in September, the Department reported exports for 1940 at $11,741,000 compared to $14,114,000 for the same period of 1939, representing a decrease of $2,373,000.

Ochs Gets Select

Herbert Ochs will distribute Select Pictures made in this country, in the Cleveland and Cincinnati territories, according to Charles Kranz, president of Select Attractions.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

FIVE LITTLE PEPPERS IN TROUBLE: Edith Fellows—This series of pictures always draws very well for us and this one was no exception. This one no better or worse than previous pictures of series. Running time, 65 minutes. Played October 24-25.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

GOLDEN BOY: Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou, William Holden—This picture really went over very well and we have heard nothing but good comments about it. Running time, 140 minutes. Played November 9-10.—W. J. Overstreet, Prison Theatre, Florida State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

TOO MANY HUSBANDS: Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray, Melvyn Douglas—Must say this picture, being played late, drew a good crowd—also some fine acting on part of cast. Went over with a bang. Running time, 82 minutes. Played November 8.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

First National

FATHER IS A PRINCE: Grant Mitchell, Nana Bryant—Got by as the lower half of a dual. Running time, 56 minutes. Played November 5.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FIGHTING 69TH, THE: James Cagney, Pat O'Brien, George Brent—Very good. Warner's product has been quite satisfactory to us in general. This picture is most timely and did above average business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

KING OF THE LUMBERJACKS: John Payne, Gloria Dickson—Good picture but was entirely too short in running time so was doubled with "One Million, B. C." Last couple of scenes were from "Valley of the Giants." Business was good. Played October 23-24.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

MAN WHO TALKED TOO MUCH, THE: George Brent, Virginia Bruce, Richard Barthelmess, Brenda Marshall—A satisfactory picture. Good story and acting. Played on double feature program with "Captain Caution." Business was average. Running time, 75 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

NO TIME FOR COMEDY: James Stewart, Rosalind Russell—This picture is in the third "bracket" and it sure belongs there. I would suggest it for midweek or on a dual. We had more kicks on this picture than any other picture in a long time. It is a shame that Warners would waste two great stars in a picture that has nothing. Running time, 93 minutes. Played November 10-11.—E. J. Pennell, Coliseum Theatre, Bronson, Mich. General patronage.

RIVER'S END: Dennis Morgan, Elizabeth Earl—Very good action picture. Played on double bill with "Charlie Chan at the Wax Museum" to top business. Played October 23-24.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

THEY DRIVE BY NIGHT: George Raft, Ann Sheridan, Ida Lupino, Humphrey Bogart—A grand performance by all the stars. Contains plenty of action and suspense. Business good. Played on Cash Nites. Running time, 95 minutes. Played October 28-29.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

VIRGINIA CITY: Errol Flynn, Miriam Hopkins, Randolph Scott, Humphrey Bogart, Alan Hale—All the big westerns are milked here in their early runs and as a result I don't do anything on them. Flynn is not a favorite with this audience. Played October 17-19.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

Grand National

SHADOWS OVER SHANGHAI: James Dunn, Ralph Morgan, Linda Gray—This picture was well liked and went over well. Played October 3-4.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone—Combination of Rooney and Garland spells boxoffice for any theatre that has a movie conscious community. This is good and Judy's growing up—with personality and ability. Running time, 89 minutes. Played September 19-21.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

ANDY HARDY MEETS DEBUTANTE: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—They can't make too many pictures with Mickey Rooney for me. Had the best business on this I've had in months. I saw customers that I thought had forgotten they made movies. This is just as good as any of the Hardy series. Please don't stop making them. Running time, 89 minutes. Played November 3-4.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

BOOM TOWN: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert, Hedy Lamarr—Played at regular prices to our biggest gross in two years. Swell picture with four big stars, although several thought it too long and rather repeated itself. Running time, 120 minutes. Played November 2-5.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

DR. KILDARE GOES HOME: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day—Fairly good business on this. But this series is slipping. Running time, 80 minutes. Played October 27-28.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

DULCY: Ann Sothern, Ian Hunter, Billie Burke, Roland Young—Lots of laughs in this comedy but business was only fair. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 10-11.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GOLD RUSH MAISIE: Ann Sothern, Lee Bowman, Virginia Weidler—A good little programmer, pleasing the large majority of our audience. Nothing to rave about but it has entertainment, so there you are. Running time, 83 minutes. Played October 18-20.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

I LOVE YOU AGAIN: William Powell, Myrna Loy, Frank McHugh, Edmund Lowe—Real entertainment all the way. This team always draws extra business and the customers are always satisfied. Plenty comedy and will take care of your best dates. Running time, 99 minutes. Played October 27-28.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

ON BORROWED TIME: Lionel Barrymore, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Bobs Watson, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel—Very good acting by all members of the cast but we heard lots of complaints because of the morbid atmosphere. However, many were enthused and pleased with the story. Running time, 99 minutes. Played October 19-20.—W. J. Overstreet, Prison Theatre, Florida State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

WYOMING: Wallace Beery, Leo Carrillo—Up to Beery's standard. Good story. Had lots of comedy scenes in this one. There was also lots of action. Leo Carrillo also good as Beery's partner. Business was good. Played on Cash Nites. Running time. 89 minutes. Played November 4-5.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

Monogram

ARIZONA FRONTIER: Tex Ritter, Slim Andrews—Very good, but not one of Ritter's best by a long shot. We think Slim is adding a great deal to the Ritter pictures. They were on our stage recently in person; a fine couple of fellows indeed. Running time, 58 minutes. Played November 8-9.—Kenneth M. Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

BOYS OF THE STREET: Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey—Another "Tough Guy" picture that is above average. A good weekend picture. Running time, 63 minutes. Played November 7-9.—Pearce Parkhurst, Larcom Theatre, Beverly, Mass. General patronage.

MYSTERY PLANE: John Trent, Marjorie Reynolds—A nice picture for action fans. Double billed it with a western to nice business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

WANTED BY THE POLICE: Frankie Darro, Robert Kent, Evalyn Knapp—A fair picture which will get by in action situations.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

Paramount

ADVENTURES IN DIAMOND: Isa Miranda, George Brent—Played on Bank Night and that is about all it will stand. No comment either way. It will entertain them while they wait for the bank night drawing. Running time, 76 minutes. Played October 29.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

BISCUIT EATER, THE: Billy Lee, Cordell Hickman—Played on Bank Night and could have played it on Sunday-Monday with the same good comment. This is the first real bird dog picture I've seen. People that don't care for dogs will want one after seeing this picture of a real dog. Good business and very good comment. Running time, 81 minutes. Played November 5.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

CAT AND THE CANARY, THE: Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard—A good picture that my audience liked well. Played October 15-16.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

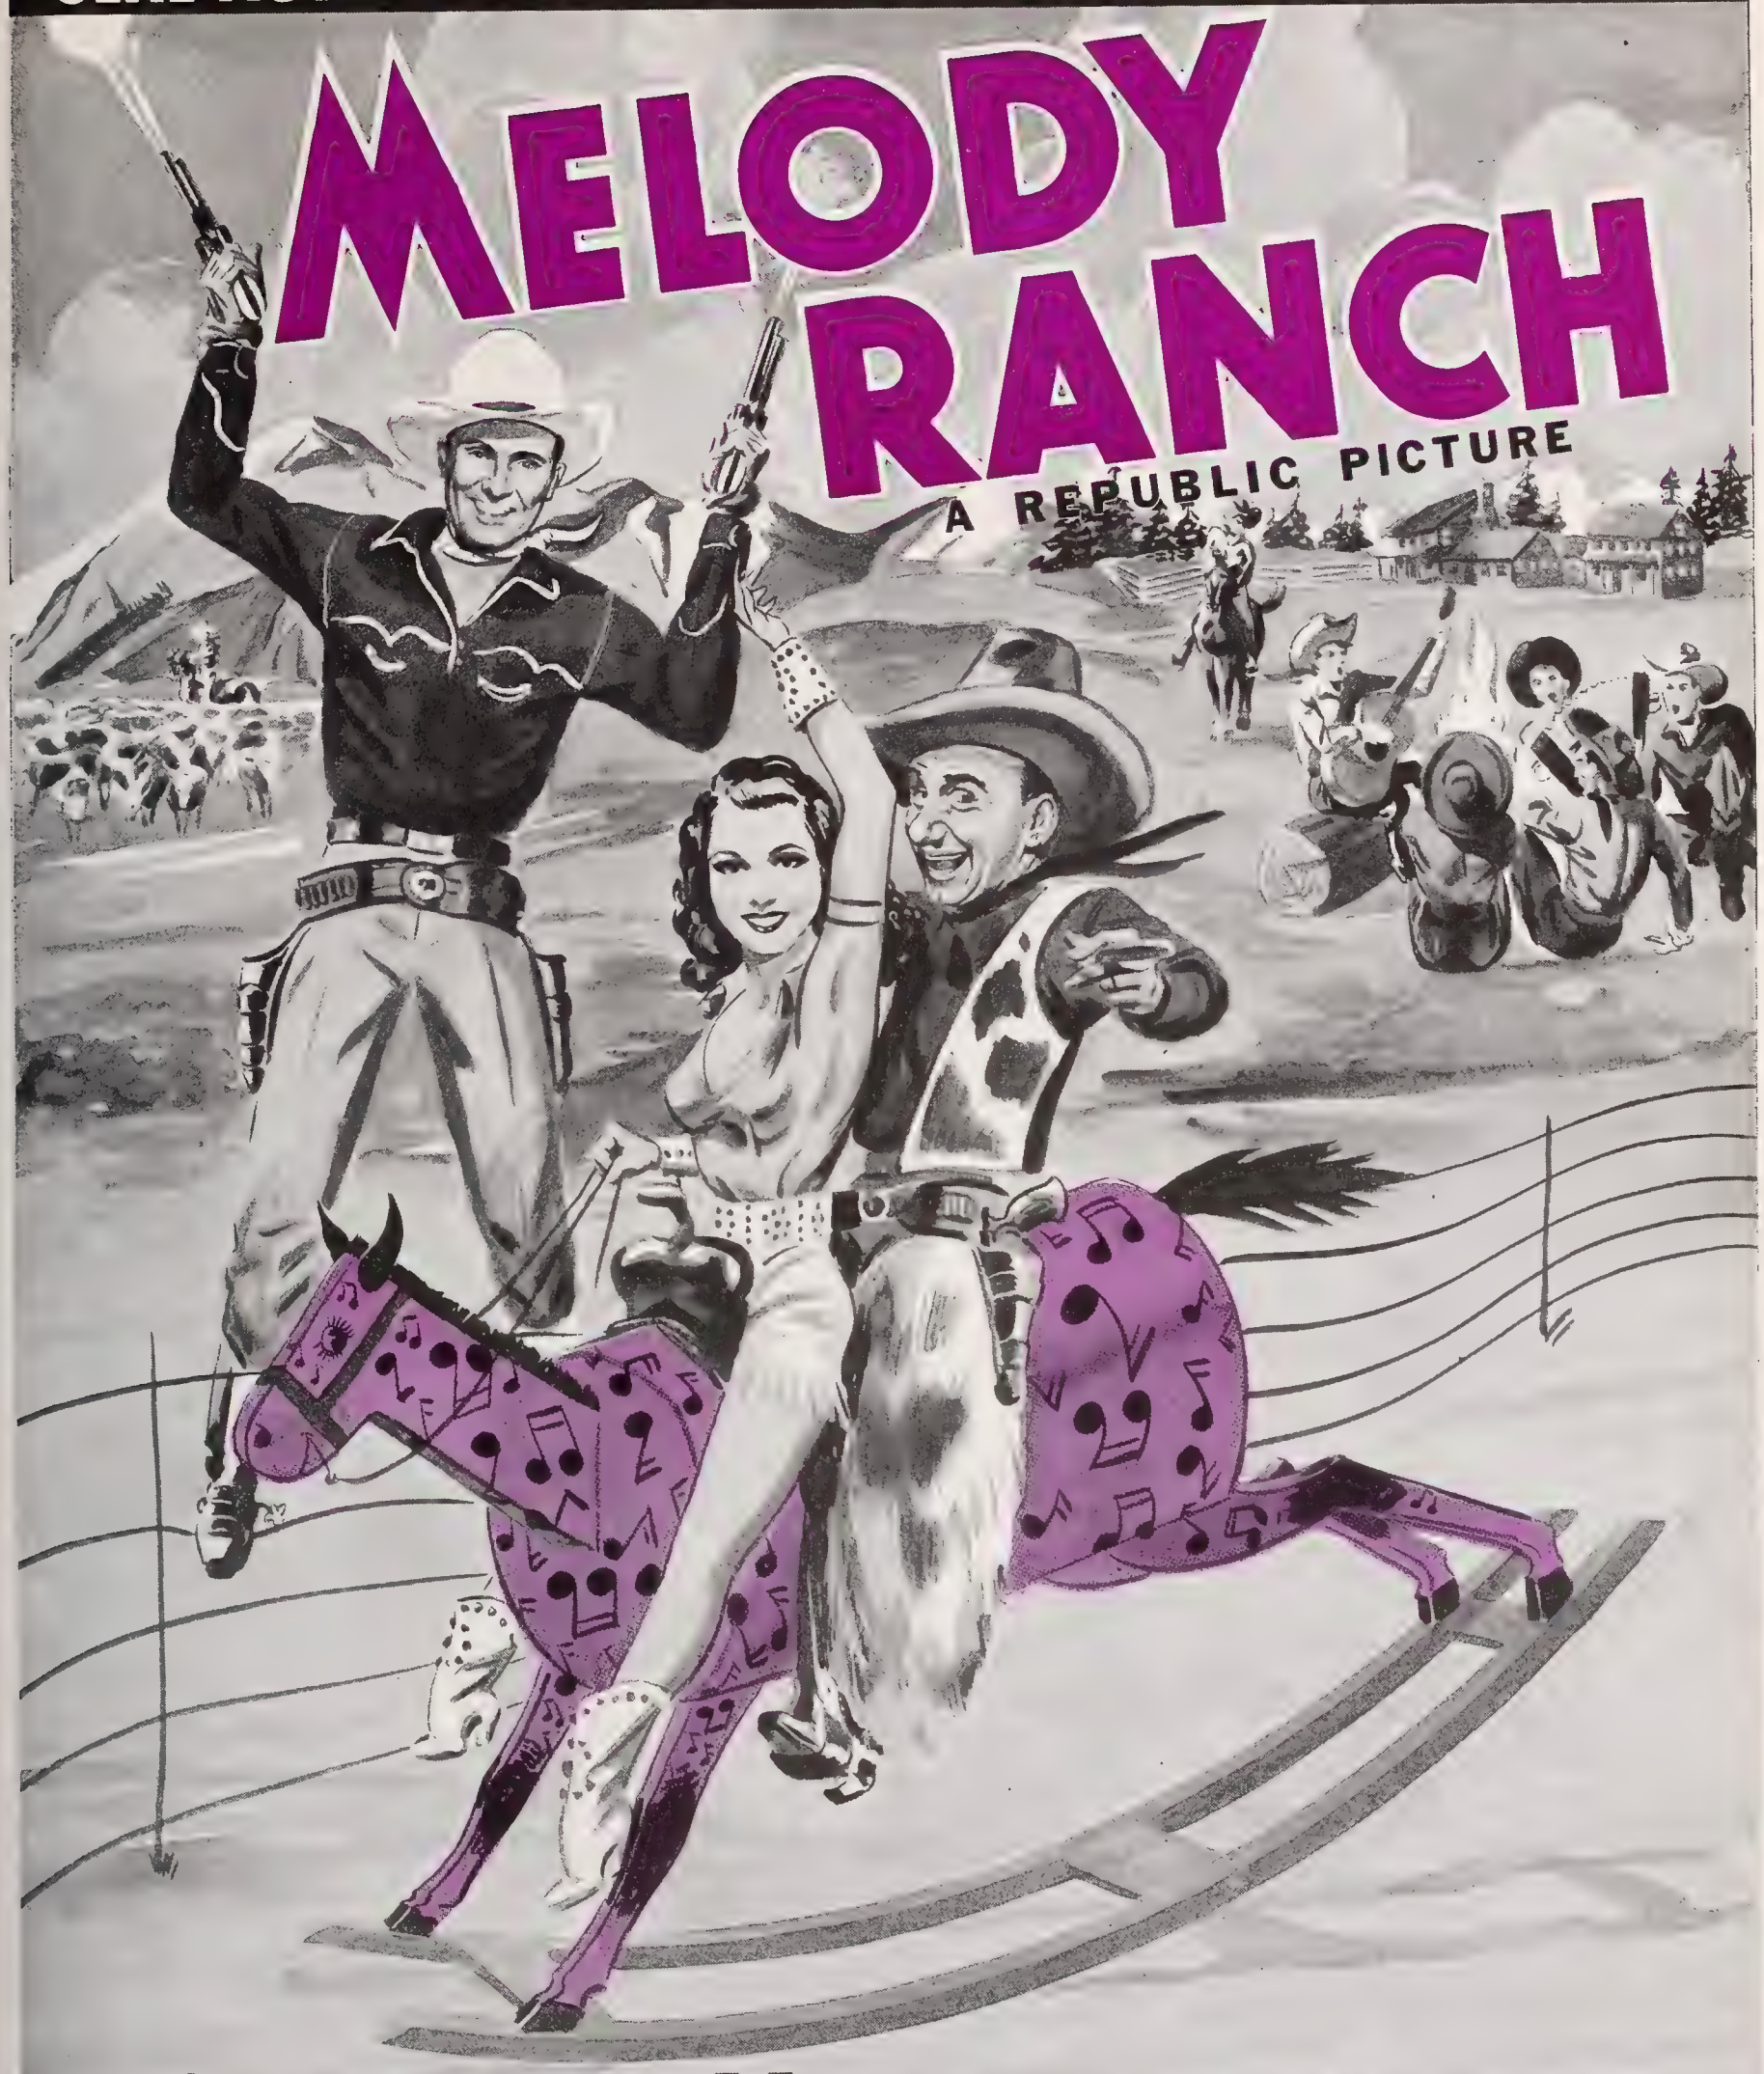
COMIN' ROUND THE MOUNTAIN: Bob Burns, Una Merkel—If you are in a small town this picture will get you money if played on the right day. The critics panned it but I did all right with it. Running time, 64 minutes. Played November 5.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DISPUTED PASSAGE: Dorothy Lamour, Akim Tamiroff—Many favorable comments on this one. Played October 24-25.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

GHOST BREAKERS, THE: Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard—Played on Hallowe'en, which was very timely for this spooky comedy that was enjoyed by all. Good comment and fair business. It really has the spooks. Bob Hope is a one-man show. Running time, 85 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

I WANT A DIVORCE: Joan Blondell, Dick Powell—An excellent picture that drew much better than we had expected. Powell and Blondell both good, as is Frank Fay. The title seemed to draw many customers in. Business better than average. Running time, 90 minutes. Played October 19-21.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

RHYTHM ON THE RIVER: Bing Crosby, Mary Martin, Basil Rathbone, Oscar Levant—Good picture for Crosby fans. Contained some of the latest songs now on the Hit Parade. Mary Martin stole the show in singing and acting and everyone who came liked the picture. Business fair. Running time, 94 minutes. Played November 1-2.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.



TYPHOON: Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston—Dorothy Lamour is an excellent sarongist and Bob Preston isn't far from that either. The color and action is good. Lynne Overman is the show stopper with his comedy. J. Carrol Naish is good also as the native.

There isn't much offered in the story line but the action makes up for it. This is good entertainment. Running time, 71 minutes. Played November 1-3.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

UNTAMED: Ray Milland, Patricia Morison, Akim Tamiroff—No extra business but the ones that saw it were satisfied. Paramount is pretty good in their snow storms, typhoons and forest fires. The color added to the picture for drawing power and the snow scenes are beautiful. Running time, 83 minutes. Played November 6-7.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

Republic

GAUCHO SERENADE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—Pleased exceptionally well. Played November 3-4.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

GHOST VALLEY RAIDERS: Donald Barry, Lona Andre—Real good. What a man this boy is. He should join up. A battalion of his kind would go places.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

GIRL FROM GOD'S COUNTRY: Chester Morris, Jane Wyatt, Charles Bickford—We ran this on a Sunday-Monday and I was surprised. For we had a crowded house, and they all seemed to like the show. Running time, 74 minutes. Played October 20-21.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

MELODY AND MOONLIGHT: Johnny Downs, Vera Vague, Jerry Colonna—A very satisfying musical, costumes excellent, music very good indeed, and comedy a riot. Audience liked it very much indeed. Crowd medium. Running time, 72 minutes. Played November 6-7.—Kenneth M. Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

SCATTERBRAIN: Judy Canova, Alan Mowbray, Ruth Donnelly—Played on a double bill with a western to good business. It was exactly what I wanted for the rural trade and small town. Judy Canova was a scream all the way. I liked the business and they liked the show. We will take Judy again anytime. Running time, 73 minutes. Played November 1-2.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

THREE FACES WEST: John Wayne, Sigrid Gurie, Charles Coburn—A fairly good picture. But we did not do much on it. Running time, 78 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

WAGONS WESTWARD: Chester Morris, Anita Louise—We ran this one first run in Beverly. Fairly good show and pleased our audiences. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 7-9.—Pearce Parkhurst, Larcom Theatre, Beverly, Mass. General patronage.

WHO KILLED AUNT MAGGIE?: Wendy Barrie, John Hubbard, Walter Abel, Edgar Kennedy, Willie Best—Good picture; good business. This mystery picture has an abundance of laughs and will please all. Republic pictures are getting better. Comedy by Edgar Kennedy and Willie Best is very good. Running time, 70 minutes. Played November 8-9.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

IRENE: Anna Neagle, Ray Milland, Roland Young, Billie Burke, May Robson—The rain hurt my business on this one. Very favorable comment from all types of patrons. I was surprised at some of the people that liked it. Very seldom do we get a picture that most all the patrons enjoy. The reel of color made you want the whole picture that way because of the beauty brought out in the gowns. Good story and good music. Running time, 101 minutes. Played November 10-11.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

LUCKY PARTNERS: Ginger Rogers, Ronald Colman—Good picture that contained some comedy. Good business. Liked by all who saw it. Played on Cash Nites. Played October 21-22.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

MEN AGAINST THE SKY: Richard Dix, Edmund Lowe, Wendy Barrie—Fair little picture of the airplane action type. Used on a single bill, but it should be doubled with another feature. Business fair. Running time, 75 minutes. Played November 1-2.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

MY FAVORITE WIFE: Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Randolph Scott—Played this fine picture second run. It comes the nearest to being "The Awful Truth" yet made ('nough said). My audience ate it up, for it merits all the approval one can give it. Great picture. Running time, 89 minutes. Played November 3-4.—Kenneth M. Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

PACIFIC LINER: Victor McLaglen, Chester Morris, Wendy Barrie—An excellent action picture and well taken by all who saw it. Running time, 83 minutes. Played October 26-27.—W. J. Overstreet, Prison Theatre, Florida State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

NEW AND PRODIGAL CONTRIBUTORS

One new and one prodigal contributor this week joined the ranks of exhibitors, sending their opinions on pictures to the What the Picture Did for Me department. The new contributor is:

FRED BASHA, Palace Theatre, Corner Brook, Newfoundland, Canada.

The prodigal contributor whose reports have been missing for some months is:

PEARCE PARKHURST, Larcom Theatre, Beverly, Mass.

Read the reports of these and other contributors in the adjoining columns.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BRIGHAM YOUNG—FRONTIERSMAN: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Brian Donlevy, Jane Darwell, Mary Astor, Vincent Price, Jean Rogers—Good picture to good business. Dean Jagger should go places if given the right parts. Performances by other members of the cast were also good, making it a worthwhile picture to see and play. Running time, 113 minutes. Played November 8-9.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

BRIGHAM YOUNG—FRONTIERSMAN: Tyrone Power, Linda Darnell, Dean Jagger, Mary Astor—Splendid production that held interest throughout. Dean Jagger looks like a real find. The entire cast does exceptionally fine work. Business average. Running time, 113 minutes. Played November 3-5.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN AT THE WAX MUSEUM: Sidney Toler, Joan Valerie—Played on bargain night to average business. Many of our customers still like this series. Running time, 63 minutes. Played November 5-6.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

ELSA MAXWELL'S PUBLIC DEB NO. 1: George Murphy, Brenda Joyce, Elsa Maxwell, Mischa Auer—Good comedy, but the title kills the draw in small towns. Running time, 80 minutes. Played November 6-7.—N. E. Frank, Wayland Theatre, Wayland, Mich. Small town patronage.

PIER 13: Lynn Bari, Lloyd Nolan—Played on Bank Night to average business. The picture is surprisingly good with clever dialogue. Pleased everyone. Running time, 66 minutes. Played October 29.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

RETURN OF FRANK JAMES, THE: Henry Fonda—Not the business "Jesse James" did. But still good. Running time, 92 minutes. Played November 1-2.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska. Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

RETURN OF FRANK JAMES, THE: Henry Fonda, Jackie Cooper—Played this picture late in this section to average week-end business. No comparison with "Jesse James," both as to box office and picture itself. Beautiful color helps this one through. Running time, 92 minutes. Played October 26-28.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

YOUNG PEOPLE, THE: Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie, Charlotte Greenwood—Good picture and story. Was better than Shirley's pictures in the past. Business good. Too bad they did not give her better stories in the past. Played with "The Quarterback." Running time, 79 minutes. Played November 6-7.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

ALIAS THE DEACON: Bob Burns, Mischa Auer, Dennis O'Keefe—This one was exceptionally well liked. Played October 27-28.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

United Artists

CAPTION CAUTION: Victor Mature, Leo Carrillo, Louise Platt—Didn't care so much for this. It has lots of action but seemed to lack the punch to put it over. Played with "Man Who Talked Too Much." Business was average. Running time, 86 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

HOUSEKEEPER'S DAUGHTER, THE: Joan Bennett, Adolph Menjou—Audience loved this picture. Pleased most everyone. Played September 5-6.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural and small town patronage.

ONE MILLION, B. C.: Victor Mature, Carole Landis, John Hubbard, Lon Chaney, Jr.—Here is a picture that was decidedly different from the usual run of the mill. Acting was good as no talking was done by the actors. Played with "King of the Lumberjacks." Business good. Played October 23-24.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

REAL GLORY, THE: Gary Cooper, Andrea Leeds, David Niven, Reginald Owen, Broderick Crawford—A picture packed with emotion; just the kind the good old doctor prescribed for us. This story of the attainment of national unity by the Philippine Island natives after they had overcome existing superstitions and fear as a result of "Doctor Canavan's" (Gary Cooper's) application of psychology was loudly applauded by our men. Perhaps the most outstanding incident, at least the one that brought forth tremendous applause, was the destruction of "Alipang" by one of the members of the Philippine army. Besides the thrills that are provided in the conflicts between the two factions, there is a love interest and some comedy which add effectively to the picture. In addition to the fine work of Andrea Leeds, Gary Cooper, David Niven and Broderick Crawford, we cannot pass without tossing bouquets to Tetsu Komai ("Alipang") and Benny Inocencio ("Miguel"), the latter being Cooper's loyal friend and guide. Running time, 95 minutes. Played November 2.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

Universal

ARGENTINE NIGHTS: Ritz Brothers, Andrews Sisters—A light musical comedy that drew better than average midweek and seemed to please everyone. Running time. 80 minutes. Played October 30-31.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

DESTRY RIDES AGAIN: Marlene Dietrich, James Stewart—This one has everything. Something to please everyone. Will stand a repeat run. Played September 29-30.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

GREEN HELL: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Joan Bennett, John Howard—Here was a surprise picture for me. It was well liked and business good. Played October 5.—H. E. Fulgham, Ideal Theatre, Fort Worth, Tex. Rural small town patronage.

HAWAIIAN NIGHTS: Johnny Downs, Constance Moore—Due to cold weather this musical drew a very fair crowd. This picture is what I think they like. It is a change from the usual run. Running time, 63 minutes. Played November 8.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

IF I HAD MY WAY: Bing Crosby, Gloria Jean—A very good cast included in a very good show. But attendance was very low. Due to cold weather and that it had been played all around us. Running time, 92 minutes. Played November 6-7.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Small town patronage.

SOUTH TO KARANGA: Charles Bickford, James Craig, Luli Deste—A fine action picture for you double feature night. Bickford always good in action parts. Even the students enjoyed it and came in pretty well to see it. Running time, 65 minutes. Played November 1-2.—Kenneth M. Gorham, Town Hall Theatre, Middlebury, Vt. General patronage.

SPRING PARADE: Deanna Durbin, Robert Cummings, Mischa Auer—A splendid commencing, a magnificent ending and "Spring Parade" is Deanna's latest and best triumph and a star of the first magnitude. A thrilling picture of love and adventure, commencing with "Nannie," the female goat, and also an excellent actress, "Blackie," the crow, who could tell fortunes that came true. Corporal "Robert Cummings" was a major general in action and all is well that ends well. An excellent good picture to book and suitable for all classes of patronage. Running time, 89 minutes. Played November 8-14.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

SPRING PARADE: Deanna Durbin, Robert Cummings, Mischa Auer—We have never had a Deanna Durbin picture yet that made us any money. Our week-end business just about half of normal and we got little more than film rental during three days. Picture is well made and well acted, but our customers do not like her type of singing, foreign settings and costume pictures. Running time, 89 minutes. Played November 2-4.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

Warner Brothers

CITY FOR CONQUEST: James Cagney, Ann Sheridan—This is a very excellent production and was very much enjoyed by all my patrons. There is comedy, action and everything that goes to make entertainment to please all class of patrons. The story runs through with enough entertainment to keep them all interested and entertained. Miss Sheridan is getting a following here as they all talk about her. She takes her part wonderfully well. Play it at any spot. Running time, 105 minutes. Played November 2.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre. Bengough, Saskatchewan, Can. Rural and small town patronage.

DARK VICTORY: Bette Davis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald—One of the best pictures of the year. Wish we could get many of this type to show our patrons. Running time, 102 minutes. Played November 2-3.—W. J. Overstreet, Prison Theatre, Florida State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

FLOWING GOLD: John Garfield, Pat O'Brien, Frances Farmer—A picture that contained plenty of action and thrills but business was the poorest for Friday and Saturday that we have had for some time. Played October 25-26.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Pa. Rural and small town patronage.

KNUTE ROCKE—ALL AMERICAN: Pat O'Brien, Gale Page, Ronald Reagan, Donald Crisp—Good picture; good business. A fine production. Running time, 98 minutes. Played November 6-7.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PRIVATE LIVES OF ELIZABETH AND ESSEX, THE: Bette Davis, Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—Just a fair picture. 'The scenery was very good. Color excellent. Cast good but people do not want to see ancient history. Box office receipts poor. Running time, 106 minutes. Played October 17-19.—H. B. Narfason, Foam Lake Theatre, Foam Lake, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

SEA HAWK: Errol Flynn, Brenda Marshall, Claude Rains, Flora Robson, Una O'Connor—Plenty of slambang action and good acting by all concerned made this one do well here. It was the best crowd we have had for almost four weeks and they gave real evidence of liking it. The only criticism is the fact that the slow scenes were a little too slow by contrast. People that come to see action pictures in general are not in favor of having it bog down somewhat for a couple of twenty-minute stretches. However, that is a minor point. It is good and it did business for me. Running time, 125 minutes. Played November 1-2.—W. Varick Nevins, III, Alfred Co-Op Theatre, Alfred, N. Y. Small college town and rural patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

FIREMAN SAVE MY CHOO CHOO: Andy Clyde—As good as the rest of Clyde's comedies. They do a little extra business on western fans if the show is not up to par. Running time, 18 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

NOT GUILTY ENOUGH: Andy Clye—An exceptionally good slapstick comedy.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

SPOOK SPEAKS, THE: Buster Keaton—Many enjoyed this more than the feature. Play it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

SUE MY LAWYER: Harry Langdon — Whoever gave this guy an idea he was funny? I have never seen one of his comedies yet that produced even a smile.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BARON AND THE ROSE, THE: Passing Parade Series—A very good Passing Parade.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

BIG PREMIERE, THE: Our Gang—Not so good. Our Gang comedies are not as funny as they used to be. Running time, 10 minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

BIG PREMIERE, THE: Our Gang—The Our Gang comedies are not as good as they once were. This one is a little better than usual. Running time, 10 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

CALLING ON COLUMBIA: FitzPatrick Traveltalks—A good pictorial.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

CAT COLLEGE: Pete Smith Specialties—Educational and interesting. Running time, 9 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

FOOTBALL THRILLS OF 1939: Pete Smith Specialties—Entertaining. Running time, 10 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HOME MOVIES: Robert Benchley—Unless one is strictly a Benchley fan this is not enjoyable. Running time, 10 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

HOME ON THE RANGE: Cartoons—Nice little cartoon in color. Running time, 10 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

MILKY WAY, THE: Color Cartoons—We've always had praise for these—this gets the same. Running time, 8 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

MIRACLE AT LOURDES: Passing Parade—The human interest quality and the resultant question, left for the public makes this a real piece of entertainment. Running time, 10 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

PAPA GETS THE BIRD: Cartoons—The best Metro cartoon for some time. Running time, 9 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

SOAK THE OLD: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—Very good two reeler from the Crime Doesn't Pay Series. Running time, 20 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STUFFIE: Pete Smith Specialties—Dog lovers and everyone liked this clever story about the two dogs. It is good. Running time, 8 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

TOM TURKEY AND HIS HARMONICA HUMDINGERS: Color Cartoons series—One of the best cartoons on the market are MGM's. Here is definitely a topper. The old tunes were enjoyed by everyone, and why not?—they are good. Running time, 7 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

WHAT'S YOUR I.Q.?: Pete Smith Specialties—Some good questions put over very nicely. Running time, 10 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

Paramount

ANTS IN THE PLANTS: Color Classics—A good cartoon—'nough said. Running time, 7 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

BLUE BARRON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—Fair.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

BLUE BARRON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—Good orchestra and good songs. Running time, 10 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

DANDY LION, THE: Animated Antics series—Very good cartoon. Running time, 7 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

DOG IS BORN, A: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Very good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

—Passable. Cartoon market is overdone. Popeye not the man he used to be; losing his "oomph."—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

FRANKIE MASTERS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—Some tunes fair—some aren't there, but the song "Key to my heart" is the best in the whole reel. Running time, 10 minutes.—John Grabenstein, Liberty Theatre, Eustis, Neb. Rural and small town patronage.

GEORGE OLSEN AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Headliners—One of the worst musical shorts I've seen. One song saves it from being a complete flop. Running time, 10 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

KICK IN TIME, A: Color Classics—Good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: No. 18—Subjects: 27th Division leave for Alabama; Ambassador Kennedy arrives in U. S.; Tokyo recalls Ambassadors to Chile and U. S.; Japanese armies cross French Indo-China border; New York World's Fair closes; crowds greeting Willkie sets new records; John L. Lewis supports Willkie; huge crowds welcome Roosevelt in Newark and New York; football, Cornell vs. Ohio State, Northwestern vs. Indiana, Michigan vs. Pennsylvania. Excellent program. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

SNEAK, SNOOP AND SNITCH: Animated Antics—Good enough cartoon in black and white. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

STEALIN' AIN'T HONEST: Popeye the Sailor Cartoons—Average Popeye cartoon. Running time, 7 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers patronage.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS: No. 1—Very good.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Can. General patronage.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS: No. 5—These single reel colored subjects are very good. The last part of this reel shows Gene Autry at home, singing and training horses. Where Gene Autry is popular, this reel would be worth a little extra advertising. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. C. Stock, Iroquois Theatre, Petrolia, Ontario, Canada. Small town patronage.

WAY BACK WHEN WOMEN HAD THEIR WEIGH: Stone Age Cartoons—Better than the usual Stone Age cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WEDDING BELTS: Stone Age Cartoons—This kind of cartoons really go over in this section. The actors that Paramount puts in these carry a great deal of life, and comedy that will thrill everyone in your house. Don't miss this series, Stone Age Cartoons. Running time, eight minutes.—Harry H. Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell, Mo. Rural patronage.

WEDDING BELTS: Stone Age Cartoons—Very good for a laugh. A change from all other cartoons. Running time, seven minutes.—Harry Shaw, Dillard Theatre, Wardell. Mo. Small town patronage.

WIMMIN IS A MYSKERY: Popeye the Sailor—Popeye is dead here. The production is passe. Color is the thing now. And he seems to have lost his punch.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

RKO Radio

CHICKEN FEED: Billy Gilbert—Some thought it too silly but most of them enjoyed it. Running time, 18 minutes.—Felix H. Tisdale, Ga-Ana Theatre, Georgiana, Ala. Small town and rural patronage.

INFORMATION PLEASE: No. 2—John Kieran, Oscar Levant and Franklin P. Adams, the mental giants, are on the job as usual and Ruth Gordon, the guest star, and Clifton Fadiman, interrogator, presented a very entertaining, amusing and instructive program and the byplay among the five participants extremely interesting. Running time, 10 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, No. 12: Spoils of Conquest: Dutch East Indies—A very good March of Time centering on Japan's demands on the Dutch East Indies. Running time, 17 minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

PATHE NEWSREELS: Always very timely and interesting.—W. J. Overstreet, Prison Theatre, Florida State Prison, Raiford, Fla. Prison patronage.

SUNK BY THE CENSUS: Edgar Kennedy Comedies—A swell comedy that pleased everyone. Running time, 18 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ACQUITTED BY THE SEA: Believe It Or Not—Ripley—The first in a new series is quite good and thoroughly enjoyed by our customers.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

LUCKY DUCK, THE: Terry-Toons—A good cartoon in color. Running time, seven minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

Universal

I DREAM OF JEANNIE WITH THE LIGHT BROWN HAIR: Two-Reel Musical Series—Good musical short. Running time, 20 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

RHYTHM JAMBOREE: Two-Reel Musicals—One of the best variety musical shorts that it has been our pleasure to offer. This short has everything in the way of music, singing and dancing. There is a small jazz band and a snappy harmonica band, the latter, as might be expected, being the most popular of the two. Also included are a peppy jitterbug couple, a male tap dancer, a classy female chorus, Judy Starr with her inimitable style of singing and, last but not least, a couple who do some really fine dancing on stilts. Most any movie fan would be pleased with this one. Running time, 18 minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

STRANGER THAN FICTION: No. 79—A very interesting short subject. To our group the most unusual and appealing part of the short is the excellence of the work that is done by a woman who uses milady's old silk stockings to make very fine copies of important American edifices. Running time, nine minutes.—J. A. Reynolds, Director of Education and Recreation, Prison Theatre, New Jersey State Prison, Trenton, N. J. Prison patronage.

Vitaphone

HOLIDAY HIGHLIGHTS: Merrie Melodies series—This color cartoon was good. Running time, 9 minutes.—Ray Peacock, Onalaska Theatre, Onalaska, Wash. Loggers and mill workers' patronage.

GOOD NIGHT ELMER: Merrie Melodies Series—The poorest Merrie Melody we've ever played. Very unfunny. Running time, 8 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

HOLIDAY HIGHLIGHTS: Merrie Melodies—This is the best Merrie Melody we've ever played. Many good gags. Running time, 8 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

JOE REICHMAN AND ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—A swell orchestra short with a semblance of plot. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Park Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

LONDON CAN TAKE IT: Special—Most all of shots in this one have been seen many times before in the various newsreels. This got us no extra business, but it is okay. Running time, 10 minutes.—Ritz Amusements, Inc., Ritz Theatre, North Vernon, Ind. Small town patronage.

LONDON CAN TAKE IT: Special—A powerful brief of what is going on in London and how that London can take it on the chin and still keep going. Every lover of liberty will be immensely interested and a well wisher of England's capital city as the outcome of the titanic struggle will effect the entire world and not maybe. Running time, 10 minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

OZZIE NELSON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—A very good musical short. Running time, 10 minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

PONY EXPRESS DAYS: George Reeves—A good featurette in color. Had lots of action and thrills that took place in the days of 1860's while carrying the mail. Running time, 19 minutes.—Irvin Baker, Jr., Roaring Spring Theatre, Roaring Spring, Penna. Rural and small town patronage.

PREHISTORIC PORKY: Looney Tunes—Porky the Pig needs a new suit of clothes but the prehistoric monsters of that time also need theirs and refuse to help Porky out. And the saber tooth tiger gives Porky a run for his money and retains his own suit. Alas, poor Porky. Very amusing and entertaining. Running time, seven minutes.—William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla. General patronage.

SINGING DUDE, THE: Dennis Morgan—Absolutely swell. This will take the place of a second feature easily. Beautiful color, and Morgan can sing.—Eddie Mansfield, Regent Theatre, Kansas City, Mo. General patronage.

SWORD FISHING: Vitaphone Varieties—Extra good, especially when the sword fish charges the boat.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WACKY WILD LIFE: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoon in color. Will please. Running time, seven minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Universal Employees Give $30,590 to Fund

Universal, the first studio reporting, last week disclosed 100 per cent employee contribution to the Los Angeles Community Chest campaign, with $30,590 collected. This is more than a 125 per cent increase over the studio's 1939 contribution, according to Deanna Durbin, Joseph Pasternak and A. McCausland, campaign leaders. The Universal drive was completed in two and a half days setting a record.

The first ticket to the new Charles theatre, Birmingham, Ala., was auctioned off for $130, the proceeds going to charity. Colonel Marion Rushton, prominent attorney, acted as auctioneer. Charles Rook is owner-manager of the house.

The Warner Theatre circuit will contribute $2,500 to the Community Fund.

Defense Will Spur Box Office—Wobber

Improvement in business since the election and expectations of further gains due to the booming defense industries were seen last week by Herman Wobber, 20th Century-Fox general sales manager, upon his arrival in Hollywood for studio conferences. Mr. Wobber was accompanied by Charles E. McCarthy, director of advertising and publicity and M. A. Levy, Minneapolis district manager and Kent Drive leader.

Mr. Wobber says he based his belief in an expected boom on his observations of business conditions in Canada, where, before the war, business was moribund. Since, the Government began spending money for the war industries, the picture business perked up. He predicted this situation would be repeated in the U. S. Pictures released now are doing much greater business than they would have done a month ago, Mr. Wobber said.

Stars To Appear

Broadway musical comedy stars will appear at the "Night of Stars" show at Madison Square Garden, November 27th, for the United Jewish Appeal, according to Marvin Schenck, head of the producing committee. Stars include: Ed Wynn, the Demarcos, Jane Pickens, Dave Appollon, Al Jolson, Martha Raye, Bert Gordon, William Gaxton, Victor Moore, Vera Zorina, Carol Bruce, Bert Lahr, Betty Hutton and Arthur Treacher.

Form Bowling League

Devotees of bowling in Chicago's filmdom have formed the Chicago Motion Picture Bowling League, with Henry Porter as president; Christ Otto, as treasurer, and Howard De Tamble, secretary. Games have been scheduled for the various teams in the league until the week of April 16, 1941.

Name Four Releases

The remaining four of the eight Range Busters' westerns to be released by Monogram during the 1940-1941 season, were announced as follows: "Dead End Trail," "Trail of the Silver Spur," "Terror Town," and "Tumbledown Ranch."

Peggy Goldberg Weds

Peggy Goldberg, publicity agent in New York for Regina Crewe, was married Wednesday to Dr. George Blatt of Brooklyn.

THE WORLDWIDE AUTHORITY ON TALENT VALUES

The seventh annual edition of FAME is now in preparation. Edited by Terry Ramsaye, it will be published about January 1st, 1941, and will analyze and summarize the year's outstanding talent successes. Among its features it will present the box office champions of 1940 with complete analysis and personnel credits . . . the money-making stars of the season, evaluated and reported upon by the exhibitor showmen of the world . . . the radio champions of 1940 as polled by Motion Picture Daily among the editors of the daily newspapers of American . . . Fame and Radio—an analysis of the extent to which the air waves lean on Hollywood for talent.

BOOK REVIEWS

BEST PICTURES OF 1939-40. Edited by Jerry Wald and Richard Macauley. Dodd, Mead & Co. 534 pp. $3.50.

Bearing the sub-title "The Year Book of Motion Pictures in America," this collection of "Bests," published as a companion piece to Burns Mantle's "Best Plays," contains factual data about the motion picture which will be of value to the practitioner as well as the laymen. It is prefaced with a foreword by Walter Wanger, president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

In selecting the best pictures of the 1939-1940 season, the editors chose the best in various classifications as follows:

Farce: "Bachelor Mother."

Drama: "Goodbye, Mr. Chips."

Comedy: "Ninotchka."

Tragedy: "Rebecca."

Comedy-Drama: "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Biographical: "Dr. Ehrlich's Magic Bullet."

Action: "Destry Rides Again."

Commenting upon the trend of motion pictures last season, Mr. Wanger wrote in part:

"1939 brought the screen the broadest variety of entertainment in its history. The year's filmfare went from satirical comedy to romantic tragedy to spectacular melodrama, fantasy, historical and biographical subjects. In no previous season had the full facilities in writing, acting, directing, color, sound and processing been given such an opportunity or been so constantly in demand. As a result, standards which will serve as an inspiring challenge for many a day were established.

"Screen attractions, which five and ten years before would have been immediately classed as roadshows, were forced to accept presentation in theatres which maintained double-bill policies, bank nights and low admission prices. More than one outstanding picture was forced to accept public presentation on exactly the same level as films of far less merit, forbidding proper public appreciation."

In describing the difficulty in evaluating the public appeal of certain pictures, Mr. Wald and Mr. Macauley said: "Several times during the year, there comes a picture which pleases the critical gentlemen of the New York press, and, at the same time, mops up in Battle Creek and Boise. It is well written, cleverly directed and brilliantly played. It has an amusing, mature comedy premise; or perhaps it soberly considers, in an adult manner, some contemporary problem." These pictures, in the main, constitute their choice of the best pictures.

Included in the volume are synopses of scripts of the winning pictures; a resume of the production season; synopses of the major releases of the season; the Academy awards and the New York Film Critics Circle awards.

Conspicuously absent is "Gone With the Wind," which, the editors contend, should be included in any list of best films. The impracticability of condensing the lengthy script, however, resulted in its omission.

TELEVISION TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW, by Sydney A. Moseley and H. J. Barton-Chapple, with a foreword by John L. Baird. Pitman Publishing Corporation, New York and Chicago. 179 pages; 34 plates. $3.00.

This book on the origin and development of television in Great Britain is the fifth edition of a work first published in 1930. The most recent revision was made some months after the war had closed a chapter in English television history by causing the cessation of all programs and experiments. The authors summarized the progress of television in that country from 1925 to 1940 and discussed in detailed technical problems. Special attention was given to theatre television.

With the Radio Corporation of America and Scophony, a British company, preparing to demonstrate theatre television in New York City, the chapter on "Big-screen Television" is of particular interest. Various methods of obtaining large screen television pictures for theatres are explained. Of historical importance is the intermediate film system in which the television image was focused on regular motion picture film which, after passing through a very rapid developing process, was projected onto the theatre screen in the usual manner.

"Television Today and Tomorrow" is well illustrated with over 50 drawings and 34 pictures. The first two sections on the development of television and general principles were written to give a clear picture of some of the problems of the new art. With the exception of the chapter on theatre television the bulk of the book was intended for the expert.

The writers made no attempt to cover completely all aspects of English television. The presentation is admittedly somewhat onesided in that the work was originally based on the television activities of Mr. Baird. The style, also, is uneven as Mr. Moseley appeared to be writing for the interested layman and Mr. Barton-Chapple, in the technical chapters, addressed himself only to those skilled in television theory.

However, the book gives a good outline of progress made in England, some simple explanations and a treatment of theatre television in the only country which has tried that medium of entertainment to any extent up to now. —M. Q. Jr.

War Hits Musicians' Fund

The Musicians Emergency Fund must rely on benefits for its revenues this winter because of the large sums being diverted from local philanthropies for war relief, Dr. Walter Damrosch, chairman of the board, announced after a meeting of the board held in New York this week to discuss means of maintaining the fund. At the meeting Lucrezia Bori, one of the fund's founders, was elected a member of the board of directors, and Mrs. William H. Osborn a vice-president. Mrs. Huntington Astor remains acting president.

Kallet Renews with Altec

M. J. Kallet, of the Kallet circuit of New York State, has renewed a service agreement with Altec. Jayem Management Corporation has renewed with the firm for the Jayem theatres in West New York, and Cliffside, New Jersey, and for Brooklyn.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

The Prime Asset and A Test Of It

Writes a college student aspiring to a career in showbusiness. He asks what we consider to be the most important asset of theatre showmanship; how he might test himself to discover whether or not he is possessed of it.

Didn't take much thought to select the virtue of quick-thinking over most everything else. True, a theatreman is expected to know his job, to be honest, conscientious, physically able, mentally poised, retentive of memory, self-possessed. Among showmen, these are not rare qualities.

The lightning-fast mind is something else again and those who have it are thrice blessed. Their ability to think in a pinch often means the difference between profit and loss, often stimulates grosses beyond expectancy, often overcomes what might at first appear to be insurmountable obstacles.

The Round Table has been sprinkled plentifully with instances to illustrate. Currently, the following are selected as cases in point.

In Hanover, Pa., at Warners' State, Charlie Moyer learned that the biggest night football game of the local season was scheduled against his opening of "Knute Rockne". Unable to change the picture booking, Moyer immediately hit upon the idea of a giant after-game rally, with the teams and high school bands parading to the theatre from the stadium. Working at top speed, Charlie sold nearly 1,000 tickets in advance through the schools, promoted a co-op page advertising the game and rally in addition to the picture.

The result: a smash opening which otherwise would have "been brutal", the Round Tabler writes in noting that grosses were more than doubled because of the big show. The campaign also made the picture "the talk of the town", reflected in the balance of the engagement.

"Bob" Fulton's careful plans for the opening show of a Major Bowes unit at the Paramount, Waterloo, Iowa, were threatened when the train carrying the troupe was reported a half hour late. Since the station is some blocks away and the tracks run alongside the theatre, the fast-thinking member saved the show in arranging with the railroad to stop the train at the stage door.

The Tri-Stater, too, found time to notify the newspapers of the unusual situation. It landed him an unexpected two-column news cut and story, the special stop proving a first-time in local history.

Detailed in last week's issue, Stanley Lambert's fast stepping in obtaining an exclusive showing of the recent draft numbers is another example of what we have in mind. Because of newspaper headlines and radio program limitations, Lambert was quick enough to take over at the theatre, making the house a two-day rallying point for the town.

To test his own reactions to these instances, let the applicant study them closely. If he feels floored, if he regards such activities as a species of rare magic far beyond his ken, then it would be best if the student sought less hectic outlets for his ambitions.

Should the applicant, on the other hand, feel a surge of deserved admiration, an itch to do likewise, a quiet confidence in his abilities to move as handsomely when the occasion requires, he is at least qualified to point himself in the direction of his heart's desire.

"SO GOOD IS THE REACTION—"

In the circuit's extensive advertising, Standard Theatres, of Oklahoma City, finds profitable the stressing of institutional copy, as noted in recent layouts. Topping one of the displays, for instance, is the following:

"No Place In the World—so much happiness for so few cents. There is nothing to equal a good movie," etc., etc.

Writes Bert Stearn, circuit ad head:

"Allowed to slumber for too long, the institutional stuff is being brought back into play—and pay. So good is the reaction, that copy is being readied for daily use together with our regular big ads. It also makes excellent trailer copy."

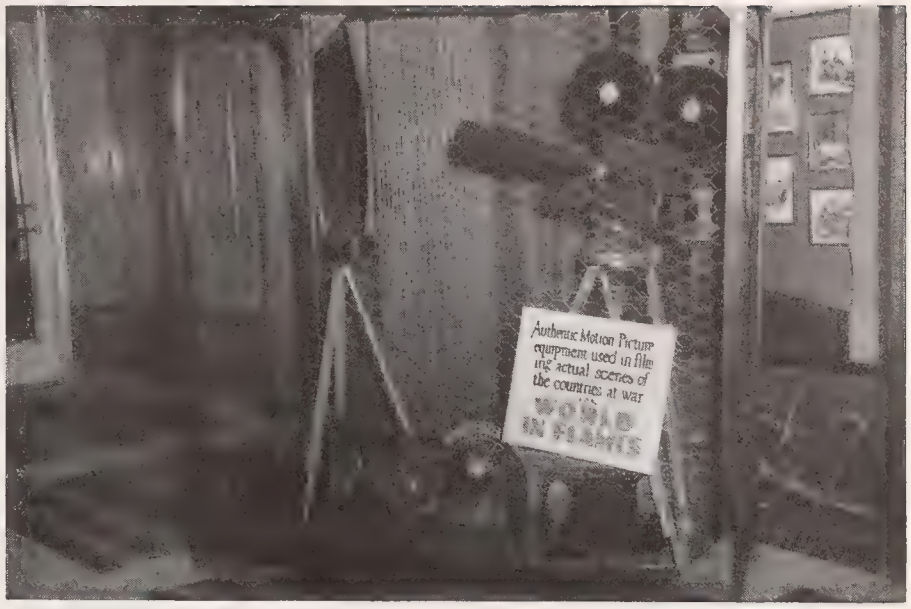
Round Table In Pictures

Through tieup effected by Manager Frank Perry, United Artists, Detroit, and MGM exploiteer, Warren Slee, eye-arresting window display was set with American Airlines for "Escape". Blowup of Norma Shearer boarding plane en route to New York was featured. In addition, souvenir photos of the star were distributed at the store and entire airlines mailing list was circularized.

To launch the circuit's Barney Balaban Fifth Anniversary Celebration, covering the period from Thanksgiving to Christmas, a luncheon was held by the United Detroit Theatres, where E. J. Hudson, president, at head of the table, gave the keynote speech to inaugurate the campaign. Over 50 members of the circuit's staff, comprising managers, assistants, supervisors and home office executives, were in attendance.



Promoting importantly located five-and-ten on the value of using Chaplin as an attractor, Tom Delbridge, assistant to Sam Gilman at Loew's, Dayton, arranged for theatre frame and 40 by 60 on "The Great Dictator" to be placed at store entrance.

Featured in the lobby of the Kansan Theatre, Parsons, Kans., week ahead of "The Westerner" opening by Griffith City Manager David Dallas, was a typical Judge Bean saloon display. As an additional promotion, arrangements were made for serving regular old-fashioned bunk-house coffee to all attending the special preview.

Arranged by Sam Teitlebaum at the Commodore, Philadelphia, was the presentation of a Rockne Memorial trophy to the winning coach and captain of the Detroit-Villanova game held there recently. At left is Gus Dorais shaking hands with Teitlebaum, while holding the trophy is the Detroit captain, Casimere Brovarney.

Arranged by Charles Moss and Phil Laufer of the New York Criterion was arresting display for "World in Flames". Authentic motion picture equipment used in filming actual scenes was spotted with explanatory copy.

Set up in his lobby for "Dreaming Out Loud" at the Brillion Theatre, in Brillion, Wis., was Manager R. Pfeiffer's Lum and Abner replica country store. Spotted in center of display was cutout of Lum in character.

To help folks get in festive mood for his recent Hallowe'en show at the Ritz Theatre, in Chillicothe, Mo., Manager Barnes Perdue dressed his entire staff in costume week ahead of his jamboree. Chest banners called attention to the special show.

An electric eye shooting gallery, set up in the lobby of the LeClaire, Moline, Ill., was arranged by Francis Gillon for date on "Wyoming". Patrons supplied with gun and rubber darts tried their skill for guest tickets.

Ghosts and Games Sell "Hallowe'en"

Interest on behalf of his Hallowe'en midnight show, at the Orpheum, Terre Haute, Ind., was heightened by Nat Blank through the wide distribution in advance of a "faint check," a small colored card, so labelled. At the top, there were spaces for name, address, city with copy below requesting that the card be filled out and "kept in your pocketbook or where it will be easily accessible in your pocket should you pass out during the performance." Then followed billing for the Dr. Silkini Ghost Show, on the stage, and "Before I Hang" on the screen. Atmospheric heralds were also used, emphasizing that "Ladies should have escorts." Outside the theatre, Blank parked an ambulance with two attendants and an interne.

Playing down the horror angle in favor of an "Old-Fashioned Hallowe'en Party," Marlowe Conner worked out a laugh campaign for the event at Warners, Sheboygan, Wisc., by booking "Hired Wife" in addition to "Mummy's Hand." The party was directed at adults who were intrigued by Conner's stage "Spirit Chair" wherein cash was awarded to any woman game enough to sit in it during the celebration. The chair was an ordinary one, covered with a sheet for a build-up. When applicants came up on the stage, they were quickly advised to watch Marlowe for a cue when they were to scream and jump out of the chair as though something had actually happened.

In addition to favors to all, a Pumpkin Hunt was had with cutout paper pumpkins placed under the seats, some carrying guest tickets. Traditional stage games were also held, with three entrants in each, all games put on at one time for heartier laughs—a "three ring" circus, writes Conner.

Cohen Holds Costume Party

Advertised widely by both theatre and cooperating jeweler who supplied the cash prizes, was a costume party held on Hallowe'en night in connection with Lou Cohen's opening of "Hullabaloo" at the Poli Palace, Hartford. Prizes were awarded for the best, funniest and most original costumes. Through tieup with florist, roses christened with title name for the occasion were distributed to first 200 women entering theatre.

Sustaining bands of WTHT played feature song hits from picture, music cards were placed in leading music stores and window cards in others. For street bally, Cohen dressed a man in top hat and tails and had him carry a title lettered bass drum which he beat as attractor. Whispering campaign was engaged in by theatre attaches and cashiers engaged in a telephone chain bally calling prominent club women and asking them in turn to tell their friends.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Excuse It, Please

In the story on Doc Twedt's "hole-in-one stunt" at the Lido, Manly, Ia., detailed in the issue of November 9, page 54, measurements were given as 3 feet wide by 18 inches long. The latter, of course, should have been 18 feet.

AMATEURS INVITED TO SING FOR DATE

Building up his stage "Jamboree" held on Mondays and Tuesdays at the RKO Proctor, Newark, N. J., "Bob" Ungerfeld has added an audition offer, wherein local boys and girls of ability are allowed to compete for actual dates with the house band. Letters with name, address, age, addressed to the theatre, are requested, with weekly winner at the auditions singing during the overture.

Response has been so big, "Bob" reported, that applicants are being held down, with over 500 names now listed. Papers are supporting the tiein with frequent breaks.

Laugh Insurance Features "Opry"

To protect his risibilities during the run of "Grand Ole Opry" at Warners' Prince, Ambridge, Pa., Lige Brien took out insurance to guard him from "death by laughter" and from any rush by patrons to see the picture. For publicity purposes, Brien went through the procedure of a regular examination by the company doctor, then accepted his policy from the branch manager in the presence of local prominents, newspaper men and patrons.

Follow-through on the insurance hookup was a lucky number idea wherein the company provided advertising folders on the picture distributed throughout the area by the company's field men. Each folder was numbered and duplicate figures posted on lobby board were good for free admissions. The insurance people also supplied calendars imprinted with theatre credits.

With these tieins to whet his appetite, the Round Tabler further promoted from the insurance company's Pittsburgh offices a number of albums describing the "Grand Ole Opry" radio program. These were imprinted and distributed ahead. Further radio material on the radio background of the picture in booklet form was also obtained and put out around town. Through one of the pressbook merchandising tieins, Brien was able to secure three of the city's best windows on a neckwear promotion.

PLACE WEDDING RINGS ON PATRONS' FINGERS

During the week ahead of "Third Finger, Left Hand" at the State, Springfield, Ohio, Manager Oliver S. Nicklas invited women entering the theatre to extend the third finger of their left hands. As they did so, wedding rings were placed upon the digit, the hoops tied to a card carrying reminder-copy about the picture.

In the case of couples, Nicklas asked permission of the escort, which was readily given.

Syracuse Students Dine with Starlet

For the personal appearance of Gloria Jean in Syracuse, in conjunction with "Little Bit of Heaven" at Keith's, Harry Unterfort tied in with the Post Standard on a letter contest open to pupils of the city's secondary schools. Entrants were required to address the starlet on why they would like to dine with her. Six winners were selected, three boys and three girls, the paper running shots of the group dining at the Onandaga Hotel which Unterfort promoted.

Cooperation was obtained from the Board of Education by letters to school principals urging students be advised of the competition through the teachers of English. In addition, the public schools music departments were interested in another contest for prizes of 10 Decca albums of Gloria Jean recordings, also promoted. Publicity was had by the starlet autographing the albums for the winners. Harry obtained another break with the presentation of football to Gloria autographed by all members of the Syracuse pigskin squad.

Ad tieins were had through co-op ads by music stores and on all radio musical programs, the starlet was saluted with various of her songs from the picture. Featured broadcast was a dramatization of Gloria's life with the artist playing herself.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Newspapers Aid Rosenthal On "Great Dictator" Date

Newspaper coverage was generous on Morris Rosenthal's opening of "The Great Dictator" at the Majestic in Bridgeport, with special art layouts and full page streamers. In addition, three-column art was planted on the signing of the contract in New York, co-op ads promoted and coloring contest for kids arranged.

Tying in with the police department which runs a Hallowe'en civic contest each year, Rosie offered a cash prize for the funniest Chaplin makeup, theatre entering 10 Chaplins in the contest. Imprinted menus were distributed in all downtown restaurants, soda fountains and luncheonettes as were paper napkins. Also tied to the recent elections were heralds distributed widely. Outside cover read "Every American Will Vote For," inside carried Chaplin announcement. A reported first time for the city was the painting of street curb with picture title. Cartoon blotters were distributed at schools to attract kid patronage and Station WIIC featured a man-on-the-street broadcast.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Australian O'Hara Quest

To create interest among residents in Sydney, Australia, for date on "Gone With the Wind," proprietor C. H. Smith, at the Regent, arranged a Scarlett O'Hara quest. This was publicized through newspaper and radio coverage. The winner was presented with a replica of the crinoline dress worn by the star in the picture and promoted from local dress shop. Merchant devoted window displays to "Wind" tieups and winner of the quest acted as hostess at the theatre during the engagement.

Governor, Mayor, Proclaim 'Rockne'

Inspired publicity for "Knute Rockne" continues to be reported at the RKO Palace, Rochester, was the portion of Jay Golden in the elaborate campaign put on in conjunction with Notre Dame alumni and civic officials. Stressing the advance was a screening for the newspapers, radio stations and high church officials which brought a raft of attention, especially from sports commentators on all the stations.

Proclaimed by the Mayor, "Rockne Week" was inaugurated with a dinner sponsored by the Civic Scholarship Awards Committee and attended by the biggest local names, including the Mayor, Frank Gannett, of the Gannett papers, church dignitaries and other prominents. Climax of the dinners was a screening of the picture. Invitations and programs for the event were elaborate and in keeping. Newspaper coverage was unusual, the morning daily smashing the story across the page one of the first edition, distributed to the guests as they left the party. In later editions, the yarn was moved to the sports page. Golden reports a precedent-breaker in an editorial on the occasion by the editor of the same daily, in which the theatre and playdate was included. This was a first-time, says Jay.

Opening night was dedicated to Notre Dame with members of the local club on hand. Second night was in honor of the high schools, when the team captains were introduced. Also dedicated to the famed coach was the first game of the Western New York conference when, after a parade at the stadium, imprinted megaphones were distributed. To spread the word all over the area, Golden arranged with the New York Central to plug the date in special-trip handbills posted at all stations within 50 miles.

Governor Proclaims "Week"

The mounting score of "Rockne" proclamations was added to in Wisconsin, where for the date at Warners' Sheboygan, District Manager Keegan persuaded the Governed to set aside the date as a part of "Rockne Week." Marlowe Conner had photostatic copies made up for display in windows and at the box-office, also secured a break in the local press. Other publicity was had through the efforts of Jim Gorman, assistant manager and Notre Dame alumnus, through a series of old clippings about "Rock" during his heyday. These were mounted on a large cutout football fastened to a goal post and placed in the lobby for wide attention.

The Saturday ahead, Connor promoted footballs for giveaway at his kid club matinee. Other gridiron stuff was a prediction score contest on a jeweler tiein for watches for the winners, male and female. The date also marked the first special front used at the theatre.

Meeks Lands Co-Op Page

Considerable interest was stirred up on his "Rockne" date at the Rialto, Morrilton, Ark., writes Manager Hiram M. Meeks with a co-op contest page participated in by 16 merchants. In each of eight ads was placed the name of a famed University and in each of the remainder the nickname of their football team. Ten free admissions were given to those making up correct lists of the schools together with the nicknames and the ads in which they appeared.

Meeks also contacted the public and parochial schools, arranging to have the students march to the theatre in groups. He also was able to letter sidewalk corners three date ahead.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Salmon's South American Way

Advertised as a Latin-American Show, Monty Salmon at the New York Beacon Theatre went about selling his engagement on "Argentine Nights" and "The Gay Caballero." Lobby, which was in keeping, featured 21 flags from the republics, loan of which was promoted for the occasion, and a group of pictures by Latin artists. Special three-fold programs were printed front and back carrying cut of girl in rhumba costume with the words "You're invited to my Latin-American Party." In addition special trailer was made up for the show.

Biography Tiein Heads Hart's "Carson" Drive

To get away from the straight western slant on "Kit Carson," at Schine's Hippodrome, Gloversville, N. Y., Lou Hart interested one of the dailies and the schools in a contest based on identity of famous American pioneer heroes. For a week ahead, the paper ran biographical sketches of historical pioneers without naming them, the material supplied by high school history students. To the first ten guessing the identity of the daily subjects, guest tickets were awarded.

On "The Quarterback," Hart worked with Montgomery Ward's on a score guessing contest, the store supplying 60 prizes and the guess cards that carried full theatre credits. Seven prominent coming games were listed with "Quarterback Predictions" alongside of each. Space next to these headed "Your Guess" was for contestants. Cards were distributed at big local games, the store tying in further with prominent window.

EXPLOITATION BRIEFS FROM A-FIELD

Promoted from local oil company by Mike Chakeres were imprinted magaphones which were distributed at football games two weeks in advance of "Knute Rockne" opening at the Regent, in Springfield, Ohio. As a tribute to the coach a giant football show was held on the stage at which local team band, cheerleaders, entire team and Notre Dame Alumni paid tribute to Rock. Also attracting considerable attention was the theatre float which was entered in the local Mardi Gras parade.

Holding a football rally at his house ahead of "Rockne," Ed Kidwell at Schine's Kent, Kent, Ohio, announced the presentation of a Rockne plaque which would be awarded to the winning team in connection with game to be played following Saturday. Dedication services were held at the field and after a 30-second silent period, taps were sounded and theatre announcements made in regard to the plaque. Also in connection with the rally "Football Thrills of 1939" was shown.

To gain attention for his date on "Girls from God's Country" at the State, Waterville, Maine, Manager Ed Harrison at the top of his newspaper ads carried special copy. Addressed to boys and girls, it read: "Do your home work early. . . . Eat everything on your plate. Help Mother with the dishes. Then suggest to dad that he take the family to see," etc., etc.

Arranged with local hosiery shop was stunt put on by Milton L. Wainstein for "Lucky Partners" at the Strand, Holyoke, Mass. Tinted lucky number cards bearing thumbnail cuts of Colman and Rogers were distributed with all purchases. Holders were advised to look on board displayed in theatre lobby and if corresponding card were posted, guest tickets were awarded.

Written in a light vein was the letter addressed to all school teachers in Uvalde, Texas, by Boyd Scott at the Strand Theatre, welcoming them to his house. With streamer across top, dotted with musical notes, copy read: "Heigh Ho, Heigh Ho 'Tis Off to School We Go," and followed by message which contained plug for his special attractions.

Enlisting the aid of several of his merchants, Roy Shoffner for "Our Town" at the Marian Theatre, in Auburn, Ky., secured numerous window displays, all of which were tied directly to the picture. Essay contest was planted in high school, papers carried an editorial on the theme of the film and large banner was hung in strategic downtown spot.

Dressed in western outfits, two lads covered downtown area of Waterloo, Ia., as part of Maurice Crew's date on "Frank James" at the Strand Theatre. Each wearing back banners, one read: "I'm the guy that killed Jesse James," while the other said: "I'm Frank James and I'm looking for the guy that killed my brother."

"CORRESPONDENT" AD EXCITES IN MEXICO

Set up in regular newspaper layout, with streamer heads and photos, a full-page ad for "Foreign Correspondent" at the Alameda, in Mexico City, Mexico, was reported by Manager M. De La Serna as creating unusual attention, since the stunt is new in those parts.

Lower half was devoted to highlight action shots with explanatory captions, the entire promotion tied up with a box at bottom carrying theatre credits.

Effective was the newspaper ad run in local daily by Duke Prince at the Ohio, Marietta, Ohio, consisting of letter of endorsement by the Mayor of "Boom Town." In addition, full page of co-op ads was promoted, each merchant's ad carrying part of a scene still. Guest tickets went to those correctly assembling the various pieces and presenting them at boxoffice.

For additional atmosphere on "Comin' Round the Mountain" at the LeClaire, in Moline, Ill., Francis Gillon planted a replica still in his lobby with small jugs. Each jug carried title, cast or playdate copy.

Lobby stopper used by Artie Cohn for "Lucky Partners" date at the Roosevelt, in Philadelphia consisted of life size cutouts of Coleman and Rogers seated at table to represent restaurant scene. To carry out realism, upraised arms of cutouts held glasses filled with drinks, burning cigarettes conspicuously displayed on ash trays. Copy at base of table called attention to opening.

For lobby attractor, Ted Irwin at the Star in Lyons, Kansas, made a giant map of Kansas on which he filled on a few of the principal cities. Spotting Lyons in the center of the State, Irwin tacked small aeroplanes to the map as though flying in direction of his city. Each toy plane carried title of a forthcoming attraction. Copy overall called attention to the fact that the finest in picture fare was to be shown at the Star.

NORTH BAY EDITORIAL TIES "BOOM" TO BOOM

Feature and editorial breaks for "Boom Town" at the Capitol, North Bay, Ont., Canada, were had by Manager Jack Nelson, through suggestions tying the war boom in that sector to the title of the picture.

Dealt with in detail in the lead editorial, the two were coupled, the same slant carried further in a four-column back page feature describing the city's steady progress. Theatre mentions were prominent.

Full window displays with special art signs and stills were planted by Gene Curtis at the Paramount, in Syracuse, for "Rangers of Fortune." Co-op ads tied directly to Patricia Morison were promoted from numerous merchants. Street bally consisted of three lads in "Ranger" costumes with back banners, while second bally consisted of bannered car which toured the city. On his second feature, "Calling All Husbands," Curtis planted a quiz contest in leading daily and radio tieups included plugs over WOLF, WFBL and WSYR.

When his local county recently inaugurated a special safety traffic campaign, Chris Chamales at the Roxy, in Delphi, Ind., promoted candy firm which sponsors an "Elmer Layden Safety Club" to tie in with his theatre and supply him with membership cards, etc., which were distributed at his kid matinee. In addition firm supplied leaflets for giveaway containing official rules and regulations.

Made from parts of a six-sheet was Assistant Manager Bob Roberts' 15-foot lobby display of Errol Flynn standing on the rigging of his ship as advance on "The Sea Hawk" at the Majestic, in Stuttgart, Ark. Used in his lobby ahead of run, display was moved out front during engagement. In addition, special letter was mailed to out-of-town patrons recommending the picture.

Henry Eytinge, at the Grange, in Philadelphia, used a "Name for a Puppy" contest with a live purp giveaway as an incentive for kids in his "Welcome Back Kiddie Matinee." Henry made a party of the event, promoting balloons and hats from local merchant. Having promoted 10 puppies from a dog food merchont, these were given away in connection with the contest on "best names."

Roy Robbins, at the Karlton, Philadelphia, for "Lady in Question" planted a newspaper contest whereby guest tickets were offered to those men submitting best letters in not more than 150 words telling just how they "popped the question." Another contest was landed on WFIL with spot announcements promoted.

During his evening shows on "Ramparts We Watch" at the Polk Theatre, in Lakeland, Fla., Manager C. T. Chapin stationed two army trucks on either side of his entrance with attendants on hand to answer any and all questions. Special parade was led on opening night with members of the American Legion, V.F.W., and Boy Scouts marching to theatre with banners and drum and bugle corps doing their stuff. Special tinted heralds were also distributed.

Through tieup effected with manufacturer, Bob Graham of the Paramount office in Mexico City, for "Dr. Cyclops," arranged for the distribution of toothpicks in imprinted cellophane envelopes at principal restaurants and coffee shops in the city. Both Paramount and technicolor were given credit on the wrapper.

LATE NEWSPAPER ADVERTISEMENTS

(Below) A grown-up Durbin, in fashionable dress, to stress the romance of her role in "Spring Parade", was the keynote of the advertising prepared by H. Harris Williams, staff artist, for Dave Kamsky, ad head, Neighborhood Theatres, Richmond, Va., on double date at the Byrd and State. Size: 190 lines on 3 col.

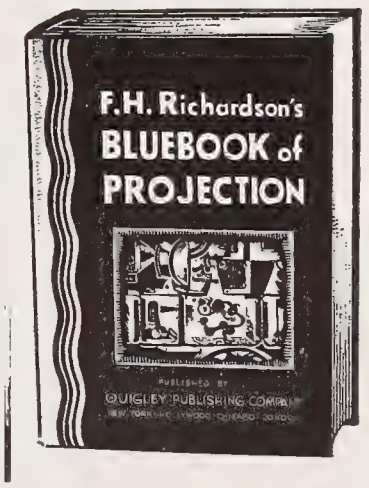
A practical working tool for every projectionist



F. H. RICHARDSON'S BLUEBOOK OF PROJECTION

NEWLY REVISED with
SOUND TROUBLE CHARTS
AND ALPHABETICAL INDEX

The newly revised Bluebook does a threefold job: (1) It gives a detailed description of the construction, wiring and functioning of every piece of sound and projection apparatus used in a modern projection room. (2) It gives careful instructions on the operation and maintenance of this equipment. (3) It is a quick and effective trouble-shooter with sound trouble-shooting charts that enable the projectionist to spot and repair sudden breakdowns both in the projection and sound apparatus. The new edition is handy to keep and handy to use, with an alphabetical index system for quick, easy reference.

You will find the revised Bluebook the most complete treatise of its kind and a sure solution to every projection problem.

THE CHART

Productions are listed under distributors. Features in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed as "Coming Attractions." Parenthesis after title denotes audience classification: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following classification are production numbers. Dagger (†) indicates the 1940-41 season. Asterisk (*) after title denotes first appearance.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures.

When a production is reviewed the running time is as given by the studio and this is denoted by an asterisk (*) preceding the number. When the home office has established the running time for national release, the studio figure is changed. Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions or repairs to the film may cause variations.

"WE SAW 'THE PHILADELPHIA STORY'!"
The Biggest Eyeful of 1941!
Hot from M-G-M's Projection Room Preview comes this prophecy: "'Boom Town' was the sensation of 1940—'Philadelphia Story' is the 'Boom Town' of 1941!" We saw it and we tell you that Cary Grant, Katharine Hepburn, James Stewart are at their box-office top! We saw it and we tell you that the famed stage play is bigger and better in M-G-M's unstinted production. Keep your eye on "Philadelphia Story" —the success story of next year!

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

MARTIN QUIGLEY, Editor-in-Chief and Publisher

Vol. 141, No. 9 — November 30, 1940

HEADING WHERE?

SEVERAL years have elapsed since the motion picture industry, after some sharp experience, especially espoused a policy crystallized into the Production Code, a document of guidance in the direction of common decency and the mores of America.

Putting entirely aside direct observation, it would appear from the expressions of reviewers, critics and journalists in general that there is a wide impression that there is a rising curve for forgetfulness, a recrudescence of the impulses that got into trouble before.

Examination of these expressions in print indicates that they have been had by the writers' examination of the product.

Further, a glance at what currently goes on with reference to the acquisition of alleged material for the screen, tends to suggest that the trend into the realm of trouble is becoming intensified.

Considered solely, for the moment, from the point of view of commercial expediency, the situation would seem to warrant most especially serious consideration now with the narrowing of the market to precisely those areas which have generally in common a moral and social tradition, identical mores. What used, in a certain equivocating lightsomeness, to be called the "continental viewpoint" does not today represent buying power on the available market map.

It is especially interesting that in the last fortnight Mr. Burns Mantle, dramatic critic of long and broad experience, writing for the mass-popular New York Daily News, has been strongly suggesting that there should be not only a program of purposeful decency in motion pictures, but also on any part of the New York stage which looks to Hollywood sponsorship as adventure in creating source material for the screen.

Says Mr. Mantle " . . . decency is not only fun, but profitable as well . . . "

"I want the theatre to grow and be successful," continues Mr. Mantle, "and to be trusted by intelligent audiences. I want the men who have the courage and money to make it a successful theatre to be encouraged by their experiences in place of being crushed by them. I want them to discover from experience that decency and good taste do pay dividends."

"HOLD-OUT"

SOME entertaining gyrations will presently be had in the fiction-and-screen market between Hollywood and Mr. Kenneth Roberts who appears to have just delivered what promises to be an important best seller in his ponderous "Oliver Wiswell," a tale of colonial America.

Mr. Roberts, in interview, has said this one shall not now go to the motion pictures because he is so displeased with what was done to and with his "Northwest Passage." He also makes the observation that the story will be just as good ten years from now and that it might make a nice item for his estate.

The author's speculation on futures, ten years ahead, is not too well founded. Also there is a bit of a question about the wide screen acceptance of a tale that sees the colonial revolutionists as somewhat less than perfect heroes, discovers flaws in Ben Franklin and merits in Benedict Arnold. It is not the tradition.

However, Mr. Roberts' position that the story is not for sale is likely, if not calculated, to make its sale, at a thumping figure, reasonably certain.

PRODUCT DIGEST

A LIVING, continuous, catalogue of the screen wares of the industry, to appear every other week, is begun in this week's issue of Motion Picture Herald. It is an extension, and enhancement, of the service functions of this publication, and an outgrowth of the Release Chart, which is continued, to appear on alternate weeks.

The new department of service is made the more immediately important by the necessity for increased attention to the product flow consequent upon the Consent Decree in the anti-trust case, and some of its influences on trade practise.

The reference value of the files of the Herald is thereby enhanced. Amplifications of the new department, and modifications of it will be made as may be indicated by reductions to practise in continuing exhibitor experience. The Product Digest is a living document, based on and reflecting the entertainment output, ever with the earliest available information.

KENNEDY SPECULATIONS

MARGINAL to motion picture affairs, some of the more pungent speculation of the columnists and the gossip of Washington pertains to the current American sojourn of Mr. Joseph P. Kennedy, who is, yet, ambassador to the Court of St. James's. Mr. Kennedy, for reasons that possibly might have no relation at all to geography or climate, made a sort of passing call on Hollywood.

From Mr. Kennedy's Hollywood visit have come two not so very weighty but interesting expressions. First there was an outgiving by the ebullient but often incisive Hedda Hopper in her column, indicating that he was not filled with certainty as to what his movements or official relations might be from this time on. This bears on a general speculation that he would not be going back to London.

Now in sequel comes the Drew Pearson-Robert S. Allen column from Washington, reporting that the State Department has heard that Mr. Kennedy has been advising Hollywood producer friends to quit making pictures "offensive to dictators," incidentally along with his alleged notion that Britain was losing and the best America might do would be to stall for time to arm.

Speculation about Mr. Kennedy's program, and impressions that it may yet prove to have a motion picture significance continue.

It may be extremely irrelevant, but one is to be minded

KENNEDY SPECULATION

at the moment that from Washington there are now percolating, diffusely, many expressions that tend to indicate that the Government is acquiring deeper and deeper concerns with the screen, with some indication of a notion of stranding them together.

Also at midweek another set of rumors that Mr. Kennedy was considering some sort of project involving the Hearst newspapers, or the taking over thereof, gained increased currency. It seems that Mr. Kennedy was up to La Cuesta Encenada while out west. Wednesday he was in New York, and, coincidentally or not, so was Mr. Arthur Pool, now a financial official of the American President Lines in San Francisco, the same who once explored the Hearst newspaper books for Mr. Kennedy, leading to the report which preceded the realignments of the Hearst papers. However, Mr. Pool was for years Mr. Kennedy's accountancy expert in several diverse fields.

Something, it seems, appears to involve figures.

"Vitasound"

A FEW weeks after public inaugural of Disney-RCA "Fantasound," Warner Brothers will have their Hollywood theatre in Hollywood, and their Strand in New York, ready for "Vitasound." A press demonstration of "Vitasound" has been held in Hollywood, but pending completion of the theatre installations now underway, Warner technicians remain reticent as to details.

It is learned, however, that like "Fantasound," the Warner method employs three horn systems behind the screen, and a control track; but that unlike the former, "Vitasound" has the control track on the same film with the sound track, while both accompany the image, the sound track in its standard position, the control track along the edge adjoining the sprocket area. Each horn system has its own amplification channel, and the control track, which cuts in or out the supplementary horns systems, also controls the volume of each of the three channels.

Also developed by RCA engineers, under the direction of Major Nathan Levinson of the Warner studio technical department, "Vitasound" requires only the extra horn and amplification systems, and soundhead modification for picking up the control signals. It is said that the total expenditure for the provision of "Vitasound" in all but theatres of several thousand seats, would be in the neighborhood of $2,500. Specifications have been submitted to the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the establishment of equipment design and installation standards.

A musical short was the first picture to be made up in "Vitasound" print. Additionally, the forthcoming Warner feature, "Four Mothers," has been given a musical sequence, using Beethoven's "Egmont" overture, in "Vitasound"

Via Air Express

NEWSREELS are the fourth largest user of air express, exceeded only by machinery, printed matter and wearing apparel. At the time of the last analysis made by the Railway Express Agency nearly seven percent of the total number of air shipments were newsreels. Over five percent of all air express revenue comes from the five newsreel companies. In a typical month 10 tons of newsreel prints are shipped by air as compared with 23 tons of wearing apparel, 51 of printed matter, 53 of machinery.

It was reported by the Railway Express that practically all negatives filmed by the newsreels are air expressed to the laboratories in New York and special prints are rushed by the same medium to key theatres. A coast-to-coast shipment of a five-pound can of film cost $15 and took 33 hours in 1927 and now takes 17 hours at $4.80.

All a Mistake

WHILE Cuban and U. S. motion picture groups were petitioning Fulgencio Batista, president of Cuba, to repeal the recently enacted anti-block booking law in that country, indications, this week, were that the entire controversy had developed into a comedy of errors, the statute having been based upon a misconception that the parallel Neely bill had become a law in the United States.

Cuban groups, backing their own version of the Neely Bill, were under the impression that passage by the U. S. Senate of the Neely Bill on July 17, 1939, automatically made block booking and blind selling illegal in the U. S. The Presidential decree of last May regulating contractual relations between exhibitors and distributors, in Cuba, was based upon that assumption.

Only recently the Cuban Legation in Washington officially reported to Cuba that the Neely Bill had not become a law, thus strengthening the hands of the National Union of Motion Picture Theatre Owners and the Association of Motion Picture Distributors of Cuba and others who are fighting the Cuban measure.

U. S. distributors in Cuba, henceforth will not accept spot bookings from exhibitors in that country, at least, not until the muddle is cleared up. They will carry out existing contracts until January, however.

90% for Advertising

THEATRES spend in excess of 90 percent of their advertising budgets on newspaper advertising, Art Schmidt, MGM publicity manager, of New York, said in an address Tuesday to the Boston Advertising Club.

Mr. Schmidt pointed out that in some respects film theatre advertising problems resembled those of department stores. The business requires a "come downtown today and get it" sales appeal.

The MGM Lion's Roar column in national magazines is the most read advertisement in magazines today despite the fact it is only a single column ad in black and white and must compete with full page copy in color, Mr. Schmidt said, citing statistics from surveys. He also said that figures from the Bureau of Advertising's readership studies showed that motion picture ads size for size, out-pulled all other types of advertising by more than two to one.

A Guild Academy

THE Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has set tentative plans for its reorganization and has asked the participation of the Screen Actors, Screen Directors and Screen Writers Guilds in effecting what virtually would represent an Academy-Guild organization.

The Guilds received letters from the Academy, signed by Walter Wanger, president, inviting "definite assurance . . . that if such reorganization is ratified by our present members, the Guilds will actively cooperate through the Academy, will designate Guild delegates to meet with and serve as additional members of the Academy board, and will share in financing the work of the Academy through contributions from each Guild."

Ruled a Lottery

THE first attack on Bank Night in the Federal Court in a long time, the divertissement has been subjected to numerous tests in the past—resulted, this week, in a decision by Circuit Judge William A. Smith in Newark that the game was a lottery and that a contract based upon it was against public policy and, therefore not enforceable. In announcing his decision, Judge Smith dismissed a suit for $1,140 against A. & G. Amusement Company, operators of the Majestic Theatre, in Paterson, claimed as payment for use of the game.

The theatre was sued by William Fuerst, Newark attorney, as assignee for the claim of Affiliated Enterprises, owners of the trademark and copyrights under which Bank Night was distributed. In defense, Edward Goldstein of Affiliated testified the game was an advertising plan to stimulate business and that patrons and non-patrons, alike, were eligible to participate.

Judge Smith, ruled, however, that the attempt to remove the element of "consideration," generally considered necessary in the definition of lottery, was merely a subterfuge. He said the primary purpose of the game was a lottery for the benefit of the theatre patrons who paid admission.

Central Accessories

FROM CANADA came the report this week that a plan for centralizing distribution of advertising accessories is being considered. Under the proposal a central clearing house would be established in each territory to handle publicity material and do the work which is done individually by the different exchanges.

The plan would not be applied in the territory covering New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, Eastern Quebec and Newfoundland, it was said, because the three circuits operating there want to keep their advertising material distinct. The circuits are the Spencer, Franklin & Herschorn, and Bernstein & Lieberman.

In New York Charles Casanave, National Screen Advertising Accessories, said the company had been invited to centralize advertising material distribution in Canada but had been too busy organizing domestic operation to consider the matter. National Screen Service Corporation, headed by Herman Robbins, now handles accessories for Paramount, RKO and Warner Brothers in the United States.

British Pact Delayed

NEGOTIATIONS for a new monetary export agreement are still being carried on by the American motion picture companies and the British Government. The pact covering operations during the first year of the war which allowed the majors to take about $17,500,000 out of England, expired October 31st.

The most recent proposition, calling for permission to withdraw about $12,000,000, had not been accepted at mid-week by foreign department heads in New York City. Another meeting was held Monday at the office of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America but no action was taken. On Wednesday representatives of the American companies in England discussed the situation with Fayette W. Allport, MPPDA representative for England.

Another problem considered in the new contract is what disposition the American companies may make of funds blocked in England. The British are interested in encouraging financial support of production but do not wish the American companies to get control of theatre interests, it was reported.

Fame in Silver Lace

NOW that the electron microscope has been brought to bear on the study of photographic emulsions it is revealed that the theory of the nature of the silver image and its grain characteristics has been all these years in error. The announcement now comes from the research laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Company, and Dr. C. E. K. Mees, director, in Rochester. It had always been held that the picture image was made up of tiny solid dots of infinitesimally small particles of silver. The electron image shows that the dots are really bits of silver lace work. The electronic image gives about 25,000 diameters of magnification, as compared with the 2,000 of the better optical microscopes. Dr. Mees considers the discovery of great importance. A new impetus may be given to emulsion development, which has been showing marked progress for all the last decade, incident in part to the pressures of color processes.

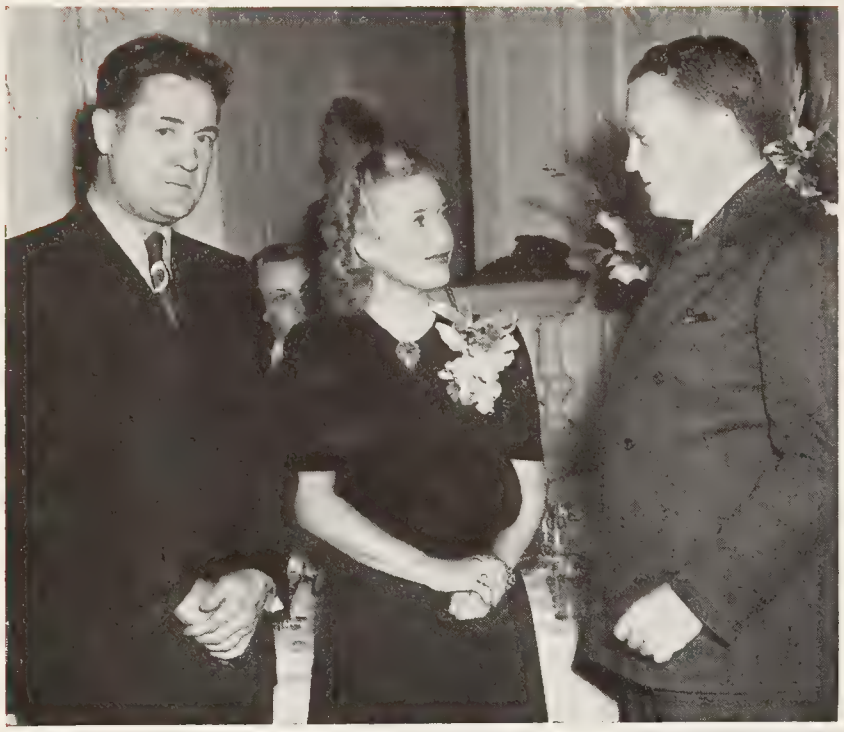
Bombs Close 75

GERMAN bombers have closed 75 London motion picture theatres, cables at mid-week reported, adding this booster note for MGM: "Gone With the Wind" is continuing its run at the Ritz Theatre, bombers or no. It was added, however, that the Ritz had been slightly damaged.

Of the 75 theatres closed, approximately 50 are so badly damaged that they cannot be repaired under present circumstances. The Leicester Square Theatre is among these. It may be recalled that the British government recently allowed to be released here, newsphotos showing great damage to the plaza of that name.

The Empire Theatre was hit, but reopened.

50-50 for "Wind"



"GONE With the Wind," Selznick-International production released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer probably will be sold on 50-50 terms in general release after the first of the year, it was reported this week. The terms were 70-30 for the several thousand pre-release engagements last season.

Saturday MGM district and branch managers and home office distribution executives were to meet in Chicago and David O. Selznick, the producer, and William F. Rodgers, MGM general sales manager, were to confer before the sales meeting.

The admission price scales in the "Wind" pre-release runs were 75 cents and $1.10. Also in a number of key cities the film was shown in one theatre on a two-a-day road-show policy. It was reported that the minimum prices for the general release engagements would be 40 cents, matinees, and 55 cents, in the evening.

OF NEW FILM ARBITRATION

THE American Arbitration Association, in New York, Wednesday, appointed the "Administrative Committee of the Arbitration System of the Motion Picture Industry," a panel of nine which will form basic policies and generally supervise the 31 arbitration boards to be set up in key cities under the consent decree. Representatives from many fields of business and professions were selected. Last week Judge Henry W. Goddard named Judge Van Vechten Veeder chairman of the Arbitration Appeal Board.

The following make up the Committee:

Paul F. Warburg, chairman, philanthropist and member of the banking family.

Hermann Irion, vice-chairman, general manager of Steinway and Sons.

Evan E. Young, vice-chairman, vice-president of Pan American Airways, formerly chief of the Division of European Affairs for the U. S. State Department.

Frances Kellor, first vice-president of the American Arbitration Association, long active in the AAA and author of books on sociology.

P. M. Haight, secretary-treasurer, International General Electric Company; he served abroad for General Electric, is a past president of the New York Credit Men's Association and will be in charge of funds for the 31 local film boards.

Sylvan Gotshal, attorney, member of the New York law firm of Weil, Gotshal and Manges. He is a member of AAA's board and of its lawyers' committee.

Wesley A. Sturges, professor of law at Yale, former executive of the Distilled Spirits Institute, also formerly a member of the New Haven Grievance Board of the NRA Motion Picture Code Authority.

Lucius R. Eastman, chairman of the AAA board. From 1906 to 1938 he was president of Hills Brothers, food importers, and has been chairman of that board since 1938. Ex-officio member of the new Administrative Committee.

C. V. Whitney, president of the AAA, who is chief executive of Pan American Airways; also an ex-officio member of the new film committee.

NAME 9 TO ADMINISTER INDUSTRY ARBITRATION

Business, Professional Group To Set Policies for 31 Local Boards; More Exhibitor Units Attack Consent Decree

Arbitration of motion picture trade practice disputes under the "Big Five's" consent decree settlement of the Government's trust suit, will be administered by a highly diversified group, representing interests identified with banking and philanthropies, piano manufacturing, airplanes, public utilities, law, education and the field of arbitration itself.

It became known late Wednesday that the American Arbitration Association, in New York, in whose hands the Federal Court and the consenting parties placed control of the arbitration machinery, had selected a panel of nine Administrators-at-Large for the specific purpose of administering motion picture arbitration nationally, setting the broad general policies for the 31 territorial boards now being set up. The national panel follows (pictures on pages 10 and 11):

Paul F. Warburg, of the banking family, chairman.

Hermann Irion, general manager of Steinway and Sons, piano manufacturing, vice chairman.

Evan E. Young, vice-president of the Pan-American Airways, vice-chairman.

Frances Kellor, first vice-president of the AAA, executive member.

P. M. Haight, secretary-treasurer of the International General Electric Company.

Sylvan Gotshal, attorney.

Wesley A. Sturges, professor of Law at Yale University.

C. V. Whitney, president of the Arbitration Association, ex-officio.

Lucius R. Eastman, chairman of the Arbitration Association, ex-officio.

The committee's appointment was confirmed by Mr. Eastman after a meeting of the AAA's executive committee, Wednesday, at the Uptown Club, New York. The panel may be enlarged at the discretion of the AAA.

With the election of Mr. Whitney to the AAA presidency, also on Wednesday, the AAA chairman designated Frank E. Parker, Jr., his predecessor, to the post of chairman of the arbitration committee, which will have the deciding voice in choosing the panels of arbitrators for the motion picture tribunals.

None of the members of the new committee will receive any compensation. They will meet weekly, starting immediately to set up regulations for the establishment, maintenance and administration of the arbitration system for the film industry.

The operation of the tribunals will be supervised and directed by J. Noble Braden, executive secretary of the AAA.

Walter Elliott, head of the AAA tort department and with the organization for 10 years, has been appointed clerk of the Los Angeles arbitration appeal board and will go to the West Coast, January 1st. Key men will be placed in a half dozen cities as clerks of local boards, it was said. Mr. Elliott will advise and supervise operations of local boards in the Far West. His is the first appointment to be made to the field boards.

COAST CONTEMPT CASE DROPPED

The government, Wednesday, dropped criminal contempt proceedings charging violation of the Fox West Coast consent decree on the part of 12 distributing and theatre corporations and 54 individuals. The decree will be amended shortly to conform with the New York consent decree.

Counsel for the defendants agreed to the dismissal requested by Thurman W. Arnold, assistant attorney general. The contempt charges were filed over a year ago.

Meanwhile the consent decree ending the Government's anti-trust suit against the five theatre-owning companies, signed a week ago Wednesday, was still a highly controversial issue in the industry this week with the Southeastern Theatre Owners Association voting to file suit in Federal Court to prevent its enforcement.

In other parts of the country the new consent decree settlement also was having immediate effects. In Chicago, Abram F. Myers, general counsel of Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, with the permission of the Department of Justice, told a meeting of the Allied Theatres of Illinois about the changes which would be made in the Balaban and Katz consent decree of 1932 to bring it into conformity with the New York decree.

In Washington Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the Motion Picture Research Council which, with Allied, had been a prime force behind the move for reform in the industry that resulted in the consent decree, asked Congress for the immediate enactment of the Neely anti-block-booking bill because the decree did not satisfy the organization's demands.

In Philadelphia the first anti-trust suit following the signing of the decree was filed on Wednesday of last week by Henry Sork and Harry Block. Six Pennsylvania exhibitors and 13 distributors were named defendants.

On Monday the Southeastern Theatre Owners Association in convention at Atlanta decided to take legal action against the decree. The meeting was called by M. C. Moore, Jacksonville, Fla., president, and about 40 exhibitors, representing 300 theatres, were present. Ed Kuykendall, president of the MPTOA, and R. B. Wilby, of the Wilby-Kincey circuit, a Paramount affiliate, and chairman of the Paramount partners committee, observing the New York anti-trust suit, had conferred before the meeting.

Other exhibitor groups including the Independent Theatre Owners of New York, Allied of New York, and the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, were studying further action.

Only the three non-consenting defendants, Universal, United Artists and Columbia, have the right to appeal directly from the order entering the decree made by Judge Henry W. Goddard, it was said. No official statement had been made by any of the three companies but it was said that they would probably not oppose the decree any further but direct all their attention against the proposed amended complaint which will be considered by the court at the hearing scheduled for December 5th, next Thursday.

It was reported that exhibitor groups could oppose the decree by either appealing to a higher court for the right to intervene in the suit or to bring separate anti-trust suits and ask for an injunction to restrain enforcement of the decree until the other suit, or suits, were settled.

Kuykendall Attacks Arbitration

Mr. Kuykendall issued on Tuesday a bulletin to members of the MPTOA in which the consent decree and its effects were discussed. The arbitration machinery was subject to special attack.

According to Mr. Kuykendall the following was the action taken on several points of the MPTOA's trade practice program in the consent decree:

"1. Block booking (and blind selling). We want a reasonable selection on contracts for blocks of pictures by a fair unconditional right of cancellation of a minimum percentage of the pictures licensed in every contract, but we want to retain the economic advantages of wholesale buying.

"Result: Nothing accomplished by the consent decree. No cancellation provided, inevitable effect to abolish cancellation rights entirely. Wholesale buying sharply restricted. Blind selling completely abolished and with it the stability of an assured supply of pictures.

"2. Organized conciliation of trade disputes by a local agency.

"Result: Nothing accomplished. Relies exclusively on outside arbitration.

"3. Unreasonable clearance.

"Result: Relies exclusively on outside arbitration.

"4. Competitive overbuying.

"Result: Highly restricted 'remedy for discrimination' and for 'refusing to license some run' subject to outside arbitration.

"5. Unfair cut-rate competition between theatres, including double and triple features, giveaways, etc.

"Result: Nothing accomplished.

"6. Simplified standard form of exhibition contract.

"Result: Nothing accomplished.

"7. Unfair non-theatrical competition.

"Result: Nothing accomplished.

"8. Separate score charge.

"Result: Abolished before the consent decree by persistent effort of MPTOA. No longer a problem.

"9. Designation of play dates on unsuitable pictures.

"Result: Nothing accomplished.

"10. Forcing short subjects.

"Result: Involved prohibition of dubious effectiveness, relying on outside arbitration."

He also said, "There are other serious and important problems and abuses that remain unsolved that cry for attention, such as the music tax, overbuilding, increased taxation, censorship, special taxes on theatres and admissions."

"We still don't like lawsuits and litigation," was the way Mr. Kuykendall began his statement. He listed two inherent difficulties "which we always encounter when we take a motion picture controversy into court." These were "lack of understanding of the practical, necessary and technical operation of this business, with all its peculiarities and complexities" and "the training and experience necessary to solve legal problems is of little help in unraveling economic and commercial difficulties."

He also said that the arbitration system set up in the decree had the same inherently objectionable features which were encountered in the law suits. It was also suggested that although a lawyer is not required in an arbitration hearing exhibitors would find it "advisable" on account of the "complex, legalistic procedure and the fact that every case is subject to appeal to New York for final decision." Mr. Kuykendall also pointed out that although the companies signing the decree would put up a half million dollars to establish the arbitration system each exhibitor bringing a complaint must pay a filing fee, and other expenses and certain cost of the distributor, if he loses the decision.

Mr. Kuykendall pointed out that an exhibitor is not required to request arbitration. He remarked, "This brings up a question which we believe each exhibitor with a grievance will have to decide for himself, i.e., whether to bring a law suit or file an arbitration complaint. As we understand it, however, once you submit your complaint to arbitration you give up your right to bring a law suit on the same complaint or grievance. Thus you must waive all rights to triple damages under the anti-trust laws, and to any relief by an enforceable injunction by the courts, in order to get a hearing before the arbitrator."

Sees Long Argument

The arguments on interpretation of the decree may go on for some time in the opinion of Mr. Kuykendall. He said, "It will take a long while to unravel all of the strange and tricky clauses that make up the whole decree, much of which we are convinced are empty, meaningless proposals set forth in impressive language."

On the question of divorcement, Mr. Kuykendall said:

"The suit filed over two years ago was originally intended to secure the divorcement of distribution and exhibition. This is a fake issue. Whatever evils and abuses there are in circuit theatre operations are not due to any distributor interest in theatres, any more than they are due to exhibitors owning stock in a distributing company. If all such affiliations were abolished, it would cure none of the abuses in our business, and we believe the Department of Justice discovered that when they got to preparing their case."

"Polite Blackmail" Charged

He continued, "This phoney issue was devised for exhibitor politics, agitated with tongue-in-cheek glibness to force concessions by the distribtuors, as a sort of polite blackmail. Such insincere tricks so often backfire on those responsible. Because it is a fake issue that could produce no benefit to exhibitors, MPTOA refused to be roped in on the scheme."

"The MPTOA," Mr. Kuykendall said, "was the first exhibitor organization to voice the objections of theatre owners to the new block of five selling scheme.

"What our next step is will require considerable study and careful consideration by competent counsel. In the meantime, every exhibitor should prepare to make the best of it, when the time comes for the decree to become effective," he added.

On the question of cooperation under the decree the MPTOA head asked the question, "Should we 'cooperate' on arbitration by filing a lot of complaints? That costs you money to do, certainly does not promote goodwill. There are no facilities offered for mediation or conciliation of disputes."

He also said, "The block of five scheme and the other restrictions in the decree are imposed on you for your own good without your consent. You will do all the 'cooperating' because you have no choice in the matter. Whatever inconvenience, time and effort and extra expense this involves you will bear because there is nothing else you can do about it. The extra sales costs of the distributors you will either pay for in increased film rentals or decreased quality."

Immediate Effects of the Decree

With the signing of the consent decree by Judge Henry W. Goddard on Wednesday of last week a number of provisions of the document went into effect. The trade showing and blocks-of-five and certain other sections do not become operative until the next selling season.

The following points provided by the decree are in work now:

1. The five consenting distributors may not force short subjects, newsreels, trailers, serials, westerns or foreigns.

Exhibitors dealing with the five consenting companies may arbitrate charges of "forcing" and if their complaint is sustained the license affecting the "forced" product will be cancelled and if no license has actually been signed a distributor convicted of "forcing" will be compelled to pay a fine up to $500 into the arbitration fund.

2. Consenting distributors may not refuse to license its pictures for exhibition on some run unless granting of the run will have the effect of reducing the distributor's total film rental in the competitive area.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies may arbitrate requests for "some run". The burden of proof for not giving a run rests on the distributor.

3. Consenting distributors must permit cancelling of pictures determined to be locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies may cancel a picture on the complaint that it is locally offensive within 10 days after the receipt of the distributor's written approval of the exhibitor's signed application for such feature. The picture is cancelled automatically if the distributor does not mail to the exhibitor within five days a denial of such claim. In the latter case the question is arbitrated.

4. Consenting distributors must arbitrate clearance disputes.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies may arbitrate clearance and if it is found unreasonable the arbitrator may set the maximum clearance. Other theatres affected may institute a further arbitration to request modification of the clearance granted by the arbitrator.

5. Consenting distributors must not withhold delivery of prints to give a competing exhibitor a prior playing date not provided in his license.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies may request arbitration of charges that prints are being withheld. If the arbitrator finds that such is the policy he shall enter an award directing the distributor to discontinue such policy.

On September 1, 1941, the following additional points go into effect:

1. Consenting distributors must trade-show each feature in the local exchange district before offering it for licensing in that area.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies are privileged to attend the trade shows in their each district or rely on other information about the pictures before licensing.

2. Consenting distributors may not license more than five pictures in any given block and the sale of one block may not be conditioned on the sale of another block.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies may arbitrate claims that the licensing of one block was conditioned on the licensing of another. If a license has been signed and the arbitrator decides in favor of the exhibitor the license, insofar as it may relate to other features (outside the one block) or to forced shorts or foreigns may be cancelled. If no license has been signed the distributor may be fined up to $500 with the sum going to the arbitration fund.

3. Consenting distributors must not license together theatres in different exchange districts and must not condition the licensing of theatres in one district on licensing in another district.

Exhibitors dealing with the consenting companies may arbitrate, with the same penalties provided as provided above, up to $500.

4. Consenting companies, under certain specified conditions, must arbitrate requests for some run other than given by the distributor.

Exhibitors who fulfill the conditions set forth in the decree and gain the decision of the arbitrator may obtain an earlier run.

Allied May Poll Directors

Allied, it was reported, may poll its directors by mail on the future policy with respect to the decree or may wait until the next annual meeting, to be held in Washington in January.

In Chicago Mr. Myers said at the conclusion of his talk to the Allied of Illinois meeting, presided over by Jack Kirsch, president, that the Department of Justice had notified him and given him permission to tell Allied members about the proposed settlement of the Chicago Balaban & Katz-Paramount consent decree.

Thomas M. Thomas, a member of the law firm of Kirkland, Fleming, Martin, Green and Ellis, representing some of the defendants, explained in more detail Mr. Myers' statement. According to Mr. Thomas, all the defendants except Paramount Pictures, Inc., Balaban & Katz Corporation, Barney Balaban, its president, B & K Management Corporation, a subsidiary, will be discharged. It is expected that fines will be assessed against Paramount Pictures and the Balaban & Katz corporations, while charges against Mr. Balaban will probably be nolle prossed, it was said.

NEELY BILL REVIVAL DEMANDED

Mr. Thomas further said that one of the provisions of the settlement of the suit charging violations of the decree signed in 1932, would be the amending of that decree to conform to the new decree signed by Judge Goddard.

No definite date has been set for disposition of this case but action is expected within a few weeks that will eventually lead to complete ending of the law suit.

On October 19, 1939, Seymour Simon and Robert Wright of the attorney general's staff filed an information brief charging the defendants with continuing preferential treatment of certain exhibitors, coercion of independent theatre owners and forcing theatres to take all the pictures offered by the producers.

Named as defendants were: Balaban & Katz Corporation; Barney Balaban; B & K Management corporation; Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp.; United Artists Corp.; Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.; Vitagraph, Inc.; R.K.O. Radio Pictures, Inc.; Warner Bros., Pictures, Inc.; Loew's, Inc., and Paramount Pictures, Inc.

Calls for Neely Bill

Lining up with exhibitor interests critical of the consent decree accepted last week by Judge Henry W. Goddard in the New York suit, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of the Motion Picture Research Council, this week called upon Congress for immediate enactment of the Neely block-booking bill.

Final passage of that legislation, Dr. Wilbur said in a statement issued through the council's committee on legislation in Congress, is a necessary step in the nation's fight againt the spread of totalitarian ideologies in which, he pointed out, the dictator nations have acknowledged motion pictures to be one of the most important media of propaganda.

"Now that the signing of this decree has convinced us that only temporary and inadequate relief from the evils of block booking can be hoped for under the Sherman Act, the way is cleared for prompt action by Congress on the Neely bill," he declared.

"This bill, which would permanently abolish compulsory block booking and blind selling, has been before Congress for more than five years. Twice it has been passed by the United States Senate. For many months it has been pigeonholed with the House Committee on interstate and Foreign Commerce awaiting the outcome of the long-drawn-out negotiations for the consent decree signed by Judge Goddard. Congress' refusal to adjourn still affords time for its passage this session," Dr. Wilbur continued.

Despite the position of the Research Council it was reported that Congressional leaders consider the Neely Bill dead, at least as far as this session is concerned. The new Congress convenes in January.

Pennsylvania Suit Filed

On Wednesday of last week Henry Sork and Harry Block, jointly operating the Rio in Reading, Pa., and the Rio in Schuykill Haven, Pa., filed an antitrust suit in the United States District Court in Philadelphia seeking $62,700 triple damages. The plaintiffs were represented by Arnold M. Blumberg and Benjamin Sork, Philadelphia attorneys.

The suit charges discrimination by 13 motion picture distributors and six up-State exhibitor groups. It was asserted that they were forced to wait from a week to 37 days longer for feature films than their competitors.

The exhibitors joined as defendants include the Warner Brothers Circuit Management, operating the second-run Strand Theatre in Reading (Warners also operate the Astor and Arcadia theatres in Reading, latter dark, but the houses are not concerned in the litigation); Wilmer-Vincent Corp., operating the first-run Embassy Theatre, Reading, first-run State Theatre, Reading, showing third grade pictures, and the seventh-run Penn Theatre, West Reading; Jay Emanuel and his East Reading Theatre Co. and his Rajah Theatre Co., operating the first-run Park Theatre and the fourth-run Rajah Theatre in Reading; David B. Brodstein, operating the Orpheum Theatre, Reading, a fourth- and fifth-run house; George Lessey, operating the sixth-run Capital Theatre, Reading; and the Comerford-Public Theatre Corp. and the Comerford Aumsement Co., Inc., operating 50 houses within a radius of 100 miles from Scranton, with the circuit's three first-run houses in Pottsville, the Capital, Hollywood and Hippodrome, concerned in the litigation.

The plaintiff's Rio Theatre, Reading, is a third-run house while their Rio in Schuylkill Haven is the only house in that town. The alleged discrimination, the basis for the suit, is the fact that the Reading Rio has to wait seven days ofter Warner's Strand Theatre and from 28 to 37 days after Wilmer-Vincent's State Theatre; and that the Schuylkill Haven Rio has to wait 28 days after Comerford's Pottsville houses. It is also averred that Warner Brothers and Loew's "have a silent but financial interest" in Wilmer-Vincent's State and Embassy theatres in Reading and that Loew's has "a silent but financial interest" in Wilmer-Vincent's Penn Theatre, West Reading.

Apart from the fact that the anti-trust suit was filed as the consent decree became law is the fact that it marks what is believed the first time that a member of Allied has brought suit against another member of Allied. Henry Sork, plaintiff, is an active Allied member, as is David B. Brodstein, who is joined as one of the exhibitor-defendants.

Intervention Allowed

Joseph Schulman, Plaza Theatre Company, Windsor, Conn., again received permission of the court in New Haven to intervene as a party defendant in the clearance suit of Lampert theatre of Windsor against Warner Brothers. A similar request was granted last Spring but a "fresh start" was made in the case at the suggestion of Judge William H. Comley, following some technical omissions in the pleadings.

Testimony in the case of the S & S Theatre Corporation and the Middlesex theatre against Salvatore Adorno, their former partner and general manager, has been completed before Judge Ernest Simpson in Middletown, Conn. Damages of $269,000 are asked as well as a writ restraining the defendant from operating a theatre in that city.

The American Arbitration Association announced that, while any parties to a dispute may submit to arbitration, matters covered by the consent decree must wait until the arbitration machinery provided for in the decree is established sometime in February before they can be settled by arbitration.

PATRONS THANKED FOR SUNDAY VOTE

Grateful for the successful vote on Sunday movies recently exhibitors in Allentown, Pa., have instructed their telephone operators to answer the telephone in the following manner when patrons call: "Good evening. Thank you for voting for Sunday movies. This is the ..... Theatre."

Indicate New Record In Federation Drive

The amusement division of the New York and Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities will exceed, this year its record total of $150,000 raised in the 1939 campaign, it was indicated, on Tuesday, at a luncheon meeting of the group at the Hotel Astor, New York.

More than 40 attended the luncheon at which Louis Nizer outlined the needs of the charities affiliated with the Federation. Major Albert Warner, co-chairman of the division with David Bernstein, presided.

Marvin Schenck, B. S. Moss, Leopold Friedman, and Ben Bernie were appointed a committee to arrange the annual luncheon, with Mr. Nizer in charge of program arrangements.

The seventh annual "Night of Stars," was held at the Madison Square Garden, on Wednesday evening, for the benefit of the United Jewish Appeal for refugee relief. Marvin Schenck was chairman of the show in which stars of radio, stage and screen appeared. The show was five hours long. WHN carried the broadcast from 10:15 P.M. to midnight. Time charges, contributed to the station by I. J. Fox, will be turned over to the fund. There were no commercials.

Paul F. Jones, Former Newsreel Manager, Killed

Paul Fortier Jones, 48, former Paris manager for Pathe News, was killed Sunday night in an automobile accident near Sommerville, N. J., while driving to his home in Martinsville, N. J. His wife, Cornelia Wallace Jones, two brothers and a sister survive.

In 1926 Mr. Jones joined Pathe News and was with the company for six years. He represented Pathe in various European countries.

In 1936-37 he was director of the Academy of Political Science at Columbia University and also he had been with the National Bureau of Economic Research. When he died he was a member of the Council on Foreign Relations, serving as administrative secretary of that Rockefeller project which is studying the effects of the war on the United States and America's interest in post war settlements. He was educated at the University of Texas and at the Columbia School of Journalism.

Warners Re-issuing "Navy"

Prompted, it announces, by the public's present interest in the nation's defense forces, Warner Brothers is re-issuing "Here Comes the Navy," produced in 1934, and one of the first pictures in which James Cagney and Pat O'Brien were starred as a team. (The picture is re-reviewed on page 38 of this issue.)

DISTRIBUTORS ACCUSED OF STILL HOLDING FEATURES, FORCING SHORTS

Samuelson Makes Second Report for AID; Southern Exhibitors Warned of Increasing Policy of Advanced Admission Runs

Distributors were accused of still withholding pictures, forcing short subjects, and other practices, by Sidney Samuelson, chairman of the National Allied States Association Information Department, at the annual convention of Allied-Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana in Indianapolis on Monday and Tuesday at the Hotel Antlers.

Meanwhile, warnings were sounded in Atlanta, at a special meeting of the Southeastern Theatre Owners Association, that the policy of advanced admission prices, and of road shows at advanced prices showed no signs of abating but rather of increasing. The 40 delegates were told the latter of type of show would be "common" by next September.

The consent decree, which virtually all exhibitor organizations have either assailed, or merely condoned, depending upon their affiliation with Allied or the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, was also condemned by the Southern theatre men, and they decided to fight it in court. The decree was also the subject of an address on Tuesday to the Indiana theatre operators, by Abram F. Myers, general counsel to the National Allied States Association.

Among other speakers at the Indiana sessions were Troy G. Thurston, president of the Indiana Association of Certified Accountants, who discussed new tax laws; and Henderson M. Richey, director of exhibitor relations for MGM.

Policy Variation Charged

Mr. Samuelson charged distributors with continuing unfair trade practices, while submitting his second report of the AID. He said there was a wide variation of sales policies in different parts of the country, basing his information on the survey cards received from exhibitors.

Withholding pictures, he continued, was the principal evil, while there was evidence that distributors were still forcing exhibitors to buy shorts and features they did not want.

Mr. Samuelson said that sales had been completed nationally on 67.8 per cent of all films offered for this season. He said that Allied's second annual product survey will be completed early in December. Contracts in Indiana are for 86.2 per cent of the product.

Mr. Myers, Allied counsel, addressed the Indiana exhibitors, on Tuesday, on the New York consent decree and its effects upon exhibitors generally. He had spoken the day before to the Illinois Allied at Chicago.

New legislation and its effect upon the industry were the main topics discussed at Monday's session.

Personalities scheduled to have been present, excluding speakers already mentioned, were: Governor-elect Henry F. Schricker, of Indiana; Dave Palfryman, of MPPDA; Colonel Roscoe Turner; E. Thornton Kelly, business manager of the New Jersey Allied; Pete Wood, Secretary, Allied of Ohio; Col. James Vincent Sparks, Commander American Volunteer Ambulance Corps; Fred J. Herrington, Secretary, Western Pennsylvania Allied, and Dr. J. Wellington Foo, Chinese Ambassador.

All officers were reelected: Roy E. Harrold, of Rushville, president; Ernest L. Miller, of Indianapolis, vice-president; Harry Markun, of the same city, treasurer; and Don E. Rossiter, executive secretary.

Named to the board of directors were: For District 1, Alex Manta, Maurice Rubin, H. Lisle Kreighbaum, and Karl Gast, an alternate; for District 2, Roy Kalver, Pete Mallers, Albert Borkenstein, and Douglas Haney, an alternate; for District 3, William Studebaker, Sam W. Neall, Richard Vlastos, and J. M. Dixon, an alternate; for District 4, V. U. Young, P. H. Dickson, Leonard Soward, and I. R. Holycross, an alternate; for District 5, Harry Vonderschmitt, A. H. Kaufman, Jack Vanborssum, and J. B. Sconce, an alternate; for District 6, Roy Harrold, Trueman Rembusch, Walter F. Easley, and Joseph Schilling, an alternate; for District 7, Oscar Fine, Harry Kornblum, Bruce Miller, and Howard Hargis, an alternate; for District 8, Sam J. Switow, H. P. Johnson, A. B. Thompson, and Lowell T. Moore, an alternate; for District 9, Fred Dolle, Harry Markun, Ernest Miller, Earl Bell, and Joseph Cantor, an alternate.

On display were many exhibits set up by the following equipment and supply companies: MGM, RCA Manufacturing Co., Burch Manufacturing Co., Kroehler Manufacturing Company, American Seating Co., Confection Cabinet Corp., and Indiana Theatre Equipment Corp.

Higher Admissions Seen

The public will have to pay more for their movies, and road-show films at advanced prices will be common by next September, 40 delegates to special meeting of the Southeastern Theatre Owners Association, at Atlanta, recently, were told. The exhibitors voted unanimously to legally combat the New York consent decree and discussed ways of operating within its limits.

President M. C. Moore, of Jacksonville, said the new method of distribution would delay release dates in smaller towns and increase prices.

R. W. Wilby, of Atlanta, asserted that the decree was entirely in favor of the distributor and granted "nothing to the exhibitor."

President Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA, explained some of the hardships which will confront exhibitors under the decree.

The STOA is said to be the first exhibitor organization to decide definitely to launch a legal battle against the decree, since it was approved recently by Federal Judge Goddard in New York.

Theatre Owners of Oklahoma, Inc., MPTOA, affiliate, will hold its first meeting since the MPTOA convention was held in Oklahoma City in November, 1938, at the Skirvin Hotel, in that city, on December 16. Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, the principal speaker, will arrive the day before, for conferences with Oklahoma exhibitors.

Five new directors will be chosen at the convention to augment the present board of seven directors. Present officers are: Morris Loewenstein, president; Max Brock, vice president; Leonard A. White, secretary-treasurer; and directors, Vance Terry, Bill Slepka, J. C. Hunter, John Giffin, and Carl Burton.

The nominating committee comprises: Bill Slepka, chairman; Vance Terry and Leonard White.

Herman M. Levy, executive secretary of the Connecticut MPTOA, was to have addressed the group at the monthly meeting on Monday, at Ceriani's, New Haven, with Vice President Irving Jacocks presiding.

Referring to the exhibitors' hearing before Judge Goddard in New York, recently, Mr. Levy stated in the organization's Bulletin; "Court room observers felt that never before in the history of the industry had exhibitors presented such a united front in any cause affecting them."

Allied Theatre Owners of Connecticut also heared a report on the hearing, giving by Dr. J. B. Fishman, Lawrence C. Caplan, Harry Lavietes, Barney Calechman, Leo Bonoff.

Speakers at the annual convention of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina, to be held at Charlotte, on December 1-2 include:

Edward Kuykendall, William Conn, Roy Rosser, Roy Rowe, and H. E. Buchanan, North Carolina exhibitors.

The Philadelphia unit of Allied States passed a resolution opposing advanced admissions for certain pictures at a recent meeting in that city. The exhibitors discussed defense tax on student admissions.

20TH-FOX FRANCHISE INCLUDED IN DECREE

The franchise of Twentieth Century-Fox with the Keith-Albee-Orpheum circuit has been included under those exempt from the terms of the consent decree, even though it was actually signed after June 6, 1940.

The Government told the Court that consideration was passed early in January of 1940 and it recommended that the franchise be exempt under section XV of the decree.

"Melody Ranch" Gets $50,000 Budget

To advertise its "Melody Ranch," Republic Pictures will spend $50,000 in the trade papers, it announced on Tuesday, in Hollywood. That sum will become the largest ever spent by the company, in those media. The advertising displays, it was said, will feature the line: "Gene Autry's first $500,000 all-star production."

The company's Pacific Coast sales officials held their quarterly meeting at the studio on Tuesday. Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, parent company, and M. J. Siegel, studio chieftain, met with J. T. Sheffield, Northwest franchise holder; Sid Weisbaum, San Francisco exchange manager; and Francis Bateman, manager of the Los Angeles branch.

Acquires Distribution Rights

C. D. Koehler, Astor Pictures franchise holder in Milwaukee, has acquired distribution rights in that territory on "Vengeance of the Deep" and King Vidor's "Hell's Crossroads."

'U' Reissues Film

"Next Time We Love," originally released in 1936, will be re-issued November 22d by Universal. Starred are: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart and Ray Milland.

Radio Observes 20th Anniversary

November 2, 1920, the date of the broadcast of the Harding-Cox election returns by station KDKA, Pittsburgh, is generally considered the start of commercial radio and all this month, by means of special programs, individual stations and the networks have been celebrating the 20th anniversary of broadcasting. Most of the special programs stressed the rapid growth from experiments listened to by a few engineers to a great industry that claims millions of listeners every day and competes with motion pictures and other forms of entertainment for the public's leisure moments.

Monopoly Hearing To Open

James L. Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, has announced that the radio monopoly hearing will open as scheduled next Monday, December 2nd. The National Broadcasting Company and the Columbia Broadcasting System have filed briefs denying the charges of monopoly.

On Monday the U. S. Supreme Court upheld the contention of the FCC that the District of Columbia Court of Claims is without jurisdiction to hear appeals from a decision of the Commission which denied permission to KSFO of California to transfer from Associated Broadcasters to CBS of California.

The FCC has granted FM radio licenses to Travelers Broadcasting Service, Hartford, Conn., and to General Electric Company, for Schenectady. A permit has been given for a regular station to Kokomo Broadcasting Company, Kokoma, Ind.

Over last weekend the General Electric FM station at Schenectady was dedicated. Instead of the traditional bottle of champagne a bottle of high vacuum, "a bottle of nothing," was broken against the antenna tower. The station operates from 3 P.M. to 10 P.M. every day in the week.

CBS has applied for an FM permit for Chicago.

The Mutual Broadcasting System has given member stations permission to rebroadcast network programs over their FM outlets. The Mutual system has a total of 162 affiliates.

John F. Royal, NBC vice-president in charge of international relations, left Wednesday by plane on a tour of Mexico and Guatemala. He will be a guest of president-elect Gen. Manuel Avilla Camacho at the inauguration in Mexico City and following conferences with radio executives and Government officials he will proceed to Guatemala to consider other radio problems.

NBC Has 218 Stations

The total number of stations affiliated with NBC has reached 218, with 86 Blue Network members.

Construction has begun on NBC's new $1,200,000 building in downtown San Francisco, with plans calling for completion of the structure in ten months. The four story, windowless structure will be devoted exclusively to radio, with exception of basement and street-level floor, which will be a public garage. Ten studios are included, the largest to seat 500. Provision is made for FM and television, and many of the network activities on KPO-KGO will be visible from the main lobby.

Opens New Branch

Select Attractions, Inc., has opened a branch office in Kansas City, under management of Bert Edwards, to distribute product in western Missouri, Kansas, northern Oklahoma and part of Arkansas.

Theatres Receive Assessment Cuts

The Milwaukee Board of Tax Review has reduced the assessment on the Empire Building, housing the Riverside Theatre, $150,000 from $1,662,000 and the Alhambra Building, including the Alhambra Theatre, $38,000 to $561,000.

Owners of the RKO Palace Building and the Temple, Rochester, have joined in suits against the city to reduce assessments for 1941. The former seek a reduction of $296,000 in their $828,000 assessment. Owners of the Temple Theatre, demand a $119,000 slash on their $469,000 levy.

A suit for an injunction to enjoin the Fulton County from assessing Twentieth Century-Fox for $93,000 taxes for 1940 was filed recently in the Superior Court, Atlanta. It is claimed that the levy on the company's motion picture film was "arbitrarily" fixed by the tax assessors.

Stanton Griffis Talks to Workers

Stanton Griffis, chairman of the executive committee of Paramount, addressed the Paramount "Pep" Club, organization of home office workers, Tuesday evening, on the subject "Banking in Show Business," outlining the growth of Paramount in the past five years, giving special credit to Barney Balaban, president, for reorganizing the theatres; Y. Frank Freemen, vice-president in charge of the studio, and David E. Rose, for work in England.

Richard Mealand, eastern story editor, another speaker, talked on "How Stories Become Films." He pointed out that there were five forms of material which the company combs thoroughly for its story material, books, plays, originals, short stories and serials.

Walter B. Cokell, treasurer, presided at the meeting, the third in the general series on "The Romance of Motion Pictures." Arthur Israel, Jr., is president of the Paramound Pep Club. The educational committee sponsoring the series is headed by Agnes F. Mengel.

To Set Circuit Deals

Norman Elson, sales manager for Film Alliance of the U. S., was to leave New York, Friday, this week, on a visit to Jacksonville, Atlanta, Dallas and New Orleans to negotiate circuit deals for the second five of the 1940-1941 line-up, which includes: "Among Human Wolves," "The Chinese Bungalow," "Larceny Street," "Death At a Broadcast," and "Sensation."

Lavine Joins Snider

Philip H. Lavine, former general manager of the Phil Smith Circuit, in New England, has joined the Ralph E. Snider Theatres, also of New England, in the same capacity.
